Lieut.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery, commander of the British 8th Army charged with the defence of Egypt, is shown bareheaded as he discusses a tactical situation facing the 22nd Armored Brigade facing the Nazis in the western desert. Under Montgomery's brilliant leadership Allied troops have stopped the Nazi General Rommel's drive towards Alexandria and Cairo cold, and have driven them back beyond the starting point of their last attack. Standing just behind and to the left of Montgomery is Lieut.-Gen. Horrocks.

Over Two Tons of Scrap Rubber Collected by Rural Mail Carriers

Over two tons of scrap rubber, old tires, rubber boots, and other material with rubber content, are now in the basement at the Belleville post office, collected through the efforts of the rural mail carriers, operating out of Belleville office.

The scrap rubber was collected in conjunction with the national scrap rubber campaign carried out through the co-operation of the public and through the efforts of rural mail carriers across the Dominion. The campaign opened on August 24th and continued until September 8th.

Realizing that the postal service was one of the most efficient government services in the Dominion, the National Salvage committee launched their rubber salvage campaign through post offices in every district and pamphlets were delivered urging rural box-holders the necessity of the collection of the scrap. Rural mail carriers would collect the scrap rubber at mail boxes and deliver to a central point from where it would find its way into general salvage channels.

The two tons of rubber delivered at the Belleville post office was collected through the efforts eight rural carriers operating from Belleville and by the operator of the Belleville - Bancroft bus. Postal employees have sorted the tires from the general rubber scrap and the whole will be turned over to the chairman of the Belleville salvage campaign.

Although the response by rural dwellers to the campaign thus far has been encouraging, mail carriers will still continue to accept salvage despite the fact the campaign has now officially closed, it was stated this morning by Postmaster J. V. C. Truaisch.

Mr. Truaisch paid high tribute to mail carriers through whose efforts the encouraging amount of salvage was collected in the immediate vicinity of Belleville. All services in the campaign were offered gratis by postal employees, but the need for scrap rubber is constantly growing more acute and rural householders who have not already searched their premises for old tires and other articles are urged to do so immediately. Mail carriers will gladly co-operate in making deliveries of the material to the proper channels.

Although their position warrants them exemption, about 25 lords and M. P.'s are on the regular rota at Westminster and, in addition, between 40 and 50 home guard M. P.'s—additionally exempt by being home guards—also turn up regularly. Some watch once a week, others every two weeks.

The Bishop of Truro, Dr. Joseph Hunkin, probably holds the record for service. He fire watches at Truro, belongs to the home guard, and whenever he comes to London does duty at Westminster.

Clement Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister and Dominions Secretary, carried the burden of the Prime Minister's duties while Mr. Churchill was away on his Russian trip. Despite the added work, Mr. Attlee found time almost every day to visit his 11year-old daughter Alison, critically injured in a fall from a bicycle. Youngest of the four Attlee children, Alison is getting better. . .

Presence in London of Sir Henry Moore, Governor of Kenya since January, 1940, conforms with the plan of Lord Cranbourne, Colonial Secretary, to have personal discussions with governors. Sir Henry, whose predecessor in Kenya was Air Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, doesn't exist as far as the Vichy radio is concerned. It announced his assassination three months ago. . .

No one has yet suggested Britain's generals are using the tactics of Agincourt but the BBC isn't taking any chances. The other day it submitted for censorship a script based on the 1415 battle. There were no security objections.

Latest of wartime booklets in London is "Warfare by Words" by Ivor Thomas, 37-year-old labor M. P. for Keighley, an Oxford double blue and former times man and chief editorial writer for the News Chronicle.

He suggests British propaganda's chief defect is a lack of burning sincerity akin to religious faith. Another point is that good propagandists are more likely to come from, journalists, speakers and broadcasters, rather than the services and the civil defence.

Ralph Michaelis, who publishes a weekly "independent" news-letter, rapped the government for calling up Frank Owen, Editor of the Evening Standard, and charged the call-up was the result of Owen's criticism.

"I am not one of those who believes that a man should be exempt from military service because he is the editor of a newspaper; and neither was Frank Owen," wrote Michaelis, "but when clerks in the Government Departments of Whitehall and Bloomsbury are still exempted from military service at a much lower age than that at which Frank Owen was taken, it would be inescapable evidence that it was his opposition to the government rather than his essentialness to the army which was the cause of his inductment.

"They wanted to discourage other newspaperman from criticising them; and the method has rewarded them with a good deal of success. A great deal of the newspaper criticism has been called off."

Few after-dinner speakers hold the attention of their audience better than Sir Norman Birkett, distinguished British jurist who has visited Canada twice within the last year and who calls the Dominion "my first love."

He has a fund of interesting and humorous stories which enliven the dullest speech and what is more important knows how to tell them.

When Canadian soldiers were not as commonplace in England as they are today, Sir Norman used to stop every one he met on the street, and ask him his name and home town.

"I finally had to quit this habit," he said. "Too many Canadians took me to be a card sharp."

Not many people know that Sir Norman has turned his country estate into a convalescent home for Canadian soldiers and airmen. Many hundreds of troops, well enough to leave hospital but not yet fit to return to their units, have been welcomed there.

Sidelight on the austerity meal situation in restaurants is this trolley bus conversation:-

"What's the food like there?"

"Very good. They've has 10 summonses (for violating food regulations) and 10 more pending."

Says Planes Can't Take Place of Ships

By Oliver Stewart British Air Authority

The possibility of using aircraft to do some of the work of ships is not a new idea. It has been put forward, at intervals, for 20 years at least.

Aviation enthusiasts always have believed that aircraft will in the end take over some of the work now done by surface craft. But in the past aircraft design has not been sufficiently advanced to make the thing practical. Only recently have aircraft sizes brought them near the stage where they can carry the great loads that have travelled by sea for so long.

From the wartime point of view, there are so many advantages in using aircraft for as much transport work as possible that the problem of providing machines to do it is certain to be re-examined with more attention than ever before.

It has been pointed out hundreds of times that the enemy has the advantage of working on interior lines of communications, while the United States are working on exterior lines. The only way the United Nations can get rid of this strategical disability or eliminate its effects on the battlefield is by using transport vehicles so fast that they more than counterbalance the advantage of shorter routes.

Moreover, aircraft are less vulnerable to enemy action on the long sea routes than ships.

There is a third advantage in air transport of munitions of war—speed.

On the Burma Road, a famous United States aircraft manufacturer claims that a single cargo plane could do the work of 120 trucks. There is an air service also to Egypt by the way of Central Africa. In fact there are air services between the producing centres, such as Great Britain and the United States, and almost every main war zone.

But the total weight of supplies carried on these routes is extremely small compared with the weight carried by other means.

There is nothing impossible about carrying everything by air. These exists sufficient experience of design to allow aircratf to be made big enough to take even the biggest-engineering components.

Aircraft even of large sizes are probably built more quickly than ships, when once production on a big scale is begun, and they probably use less raw material.

There is, however, a difficulty. It is that the total number of aircraft in all the air fleets of the world, if devoted entirely to the carrying of munitions, would still carry only a small fraction of the amount carried by ships.

Aircraft are being built at a great rate, but never fast enough to satisfy the military machine. The RAF could use four times the number of aircraft it has got today. The United States army air forces and the United States navy, I imagine, could do the same. Everywhere where fighting goes on there is a continuous demand for more and more aircraft. Production is enormous. In the United States it is touching figures almost unimaginable, but still the call is for more aircraft.

So one thing is settled by the same process that settles most of the major problems of war—the scale of priorities.

What is the first thing needed by the United Nations? Is it bombers or is it transport aircraft? Is it fighters or freighters? Although we know nothing of the secret deliberations of the strategist, I don't think its difficult to hazard a guess as to their decision in this matter. The factories of Britain and the United States are tooled up for military aircraft. Military aircraft can be modified and thing made to carry freight. But in any event they can never replace ships on a large scale—fo that, new and specialized machines would be necessary.

The pace of war is too great to allow any country to pause in the middle to create a vast air transport fleet. No doubt machines will be used for this purpose as they are being used today. But the weight they will carry will not approach that carried by ships.

Rommel Suffering From Some Malady Says Turkish Report

Ankara, Sept. 8.— (Delayed) —(AP)—A member of Wendall L. Willkie's party visiting Turkey, who asked not to be identified by name, said today that German officers captured in Africa had disclosed that the German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel is suffering from some malady, and may be relieved of his command.

The nature of the supposed disease was not stated.

These officers, captured in the recent tank battle in which Rommel's forces suffered serious losses, were quoted as saying the Field Marshal either has been returned to Germany by air, or is awaiting relief by some other commander.

The story was told, it was said by Willkie's travelling companion, by British officers who have spoken with a number of German officers who have fallen into Allied hands. These German officers, it was added, also said that one of Rommel's most reliable aides, who has been at his side in all the desert campaigns, was killed while trying to cheer his forces as they retreated after their latest assault. (The death of Maj.-Gen. George Von Bismarck was reported on Monday.)

British officers told members of Willkie's party in Egypt that German prisoners now appear dejected, war-weary and not nearly so confident as they were a few months ago.

Some of the prisoners, it was stated, were 16-year-old boys rushed to Egypt to reinforce Rommel's hard-pressed forces.

In a desperate effort to replace recent losses in Egypt the Germans are now using planes almost exclusively to transport men and materials from Crete and Greece, the British officers said. Allied officers on the desert front said R. A. F. and American planes are destroying four out of five of the small Axis ships attempting to reach the battle zones with armored equipement.

Elimination Bout to Challenge For British Empire Title Won By McCready Over Nango Singh

Western Grappler Wins Last Two Falls of Main Bout With Step-Over Toe Hold

WATSON WINS

Earl McCready, powerful western grappler and prime favorite in this city, will get another crack at the British Empire heavyweight wrestling title held by "Whipper" Billie Watson, through his disposal of the "Mad Hindu" Nango Singh in two straight falls at the arena Wednesday night after the Hindu had taken the first one with his famous "Cobra Hold." McCready will meet John Katan in the next show here next Wednesday and if he hurdles that obstacle he will be matched with Watson and that should be the battle of the century from a wrestling standpoint. The card presented by Tunney and Company did not stand out like other cards given in the city but the large crowd were treated to one of the best shows put on.

That playful little fellow, Pedro Martinez simply smothered Jan Gotch with elbow smashes, kicks and gouges to win the only fall at the nineteen-minute mark of a thirty-minute bout, while "Whipper" Billie Watson, the darling of the ladies, had to jump back in the ring to get the nod over that ruffian Roland Kirchmeyer, who of late has caused a lot of disappointments to those wrestlers, who have started to climb the ladder of success. Martinez did not have it all his own way with Gotch, who became greatly incensed, when he felt the referee, Cliff Fox was not giving him a square deal and Pedro took a nice lacing but speed and size overcame all that and Martinez flattened Mr. Gotch after he had given him the air with a body press. Gotch really went up before he came down to stay. Of course Martinez was disliked by the crowd but he seems to know his way around.

Kirchmeyer Quite Tough

In the semi-final bout Watson had a tough hombre to handle in Kirchmeyer for Roland seems to have drunk from the fountain of youth, as he made Watson step rather lively before gaining the decision. He even put Watson in wrong with the referee and Whipper was busy many times defending himself from Fox with Kirchmeyer going about his business as usual. The two finally tangled near the ropes and both went overboard and real set-to took place outside the squared circle with the police giving the battlers the required protection and Watson had one kick left to climb back in ahead of Kirchmeyer and win the decision.

In the main bout McCready was not given a chance to defend himself before Singh had placed a "Cobra Hold" on him in his own corner and Lawson, the referee was forced to give the Hindu the nod because Earl could do nothing about it. The fall was in one minute so you can see how fast he works. When they came back McCready was ready to even matters and Singh was given many anxious moments and he was not particularly anxious to meet McCready in the centre of the ring. He was chased hither and yon and finally when Lawson attempted to make him take a stand, Singh picked on him and gave him a going over to the delight of everyone but Lawson. Finally McCready caught up with his adversary and applying a "step-over" toe hold, Singh gave up the ghost. McCready had a hold of his sore leg, that required 32 stitches to close a wound not so long ago and the skin is rather tender and the Hindu was afraid that it would be broken open again.

Coming out for third fall McCready again got the punishing hold but Singh took rescue behind the ropes but McCready was not to be denied and in the short space of five minutes, he had Singh in the same difficulty as in the previous fall and the Hindu conceded the battle. At the conclusion Mr. Singh was quite angry and was going to attack some of the more noisy rooters but thought discretion the better part of valor and escaped to the dressing room with a large following close behind.

"HOLIDAYS!" snorted Hank

"Holidays are necessary — if you can git them — even in war-time," said Mr. Picobac. "Napoleon found that out. He tried to do away with holidays. But it didn't work. Production dropped."

"I guess my production is about due for a drop, then," observed Hank, in town for a new pair of overalls. "Holidays! I never git any".

"Hank," said Mr. Picobac kindly, "listen to me. If you can't take holidays, you can always take a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke. A pipe of Picobac is a rest in itself. You should be thankful you live in a country which can produce such a blessing as this sunny, southern Ontario Burley".

"Who said I ain't?" grinned Hank, generously helping himself from Mr. Picobac's pouch.

"It DOES taste good in a pipe!"

YANKEES NEED FIVE VICTORIES TO CINCH FLAG

Any Combination of Five Wins for Yanks or Five Losses for Boston Enough

MARCHILDON WINS 17th

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

There is no need to be in a hurry, but New York Yankees apparently are ready to clinch their sixth American League pennant in seven years this week-end.

Any combination of five victories by New York or five defeats for Boston Red Sox will return the Yanks to the throne room and this little qualification can be attended to by Sunday — or before.

The Bombers blasted out an 8-3 triumph over St. Louis Browns yesterday for their fifth straight success and 11th in 12 games. This put them 10 full games in front of the Red Sox, who were idle.

In the first inning Joe Gordon hit a homer with the bases loaded, his 18th roundtripper and second grand slam of the season, and New York completed all of its scoring in four frames before big Ernie Bonham allowed the Browns either a hit or a run. Afterward he relaxed to the extent of giving eight safeties, but was able to coast to his 19th victory.

The only other major league game that escaped the weather was a 13-inning night marathon which Philadelphia Athletics wangled from Cleveland Indians 5-4.

Five Frames of No-Hit Ball

Phil Marchildon, pitching five no-hit innings in relief, gained credit for his 17th victory when the A's pushed across a run in the 13th on a walk, a single by Bob Johnson and a fly by Dick Siebert.

The idle day in the National League permitted the senior circuit to turn its full attention to the impending series between Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals.

Today the Cards have a date with New York Giants and the Dodgers must take on Chicago Cubs, but these ventures are merely warm-ups for the two games between the contenders at Brooklyn tomorrow and Saturday.

The standings now show:—

Club	W	L	Games Behind	Games to play
Brooklyn	94	43	—	17
St. Louis	91	46	3	17

Thus it would be possible for the Redbirds with some help from the Cubs, to draw abreast of the Dodgers in the next three days. But it also would be possible for Brooklyn to gain an almost prohibitive lead over the challengers from the west.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKELSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 10. (CP)—Only a small percentage of the Canadian Forces Overseas could attend the annual track and field championships, so the army took the meet to the men.

Through special arrangements made by the Signal Corps, a running account of the meet was broadcast directly from the field to army formations all over the south of England. Soldiers were able to hear not only an account of the races and other competitions, but the cheers of the crowd in the stadium and the music of eleven pipe bands and a 50-piece brass band.

At the same time, the Army Film Unit "shot" the events and a few days after the meet the reels made the rounds of camps for the benefit of track and field fans who couldn't get to the big affair.

Last year 10,000 Canadian soldiers journeyed by foot and troop carriers to Aldershot for the meet. Gasoline and tires since have become too valuable for such an excursion and foot sloggers outside walking distance of the stadium were just out of luck.

Because of the war, 100-mile time trial of the Eastern Counties Cycling Association went flooey. Telegraph wires— the main direction guide—had been diverted as a war measure from one road to another at a junction and this caused competitors to take the wrong turn. Another open 100-mile race is booked for the sufferers. The marshal who plotted the course knew the road only in pre-war days.

Gunning for a return fight with Freddie Mills, Sgt. Jack London, West Hartlepool giant, made short work of Big Jim Wilde, Swansea docker: Wilde's second threw the towel into the ring in the third round after he had been floored three times and suffered an injured knee.

Mills beat London on points over ten rounds last year and London has been anxious to get a whack at him ever since—more so since Mills won the British Empire Light-heavyweight title from Len Harvey a couple of months ago.

Brief Bits: Four thoroughbred racehorses owned by Mrs. Ethel Asquith are earning their winter's feed and saving gasoline between the shafts of a governess cart. They are The Chaplain, St. Herbert, Handley and Arthur's Choice. . . . . A Royal Navy sailor acted as caddy to former British golf champion Wanda Morgan, now a W.R.E.N. transport driver, in a war relief match. Wanda and Sam King beat Maureen Ruttle and Abe Mitchell by one hole.

Toronto, Sept. 10 (CP)—Quebec racetracks finished this season without a deficit among them, first time that has happened for several years. ...Race fans move in curious ways....At the begnning of the season many Quebec racemen had the wind up, wanted the Connaught (Ottawa) meeting transferred to (Montreal) Blue Bonnets....Official sanction was not forthcoming, luckily enough, and Connaught had the most successful meeting of them all using twilight racing as the main prop.

The Quebec circuit was first to use the daily double form of betting, and may be first to abandon it....The Mount Royal (Montreal) track dropped the double in favor of two quinella (in Ontario: Oneto) bets for its last two days of racing and the experiment was considered a success....Quinellas generally don't pay off the bucks doubles do, but more people win, which is what counts....The Toronto Autumn meetings start this week.....Among the 55 nominations for Woodbine's $4,000-added Breeders Stakes are five western thoroughbreds, Whitier Park Stock Farm's Broom's entry, Fairy Witch, Fighting Finn, Toy Broom and Youville.

Fighting Irish:

Pat Egan always went best for Brooklyn Americans when everyone else had given up and gone home, and he hasn't changed....When Vancouver Norvans came from behind a 6-- deficit to beat New Westminster in the first British Columbia boxla final game, Egan scored three goals....He sent the game into overtime with a goal 13 seconds from finis, and gave Norvans their first lead in extra time.

Incidentally:

Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith tells of an umpire who watched one entire three-game series in the northern league this year without seeing a left-handed pitcher, batter or fielder....Western curling rinks may be next addition to the war effort....Every village has one, every town several, and every city dozens....The military would like to use a few for storage ....It wouldn't be any great hardship, of course....There are so many clubs they could double up memberships for the duration.

JERSEY GIANTS AND SYRACUSE WILL TRY AGAIN

Teams Have Bumped Into Weather Conditions Twice in a Row

DATES CHANGED

By The Associated Press

Jersey City and Syracuse will try for the third time tonight to settle ownership of third place in the final International League standings, while Newark and Montreal players wait to see whom they will play in the first round of the Governors' Cup series.

The original schedule for the circuit's annual playoffs, postponed once after Jersey City and Syracuse woundup in a third-place tie, was thrown into confusion last night when these two teams bumped into a weather postponement for the second night.

Newark, winner of first place over the 154-game season, will meet the fourth-place team and runner-up Montreal will face the No. 3 outfit when they are finally determined.

League President Frank Shaughnessy said a new schedule for the playoffs would be drawn up today after he confers with officials of the four teams involved.

"All openings will have to be changed," Shaughnessy said, "because we had drawn the schedule to get certain clubs at home on the weekend."

Adding to Shaughnessy's problems is the act that night baseball is prohibited at Newark and Jersey City because of dimout regulations.

However Newark officials announced last night the pennant-winning Bears would open their best-of-seven series with the fourth-place winners in Newark tomorrow, regardless of the outcome of tonight's third-place playoff. Originally, the Bears were scheduled to open in their opponents' park. Another postponement of the Jersey City-Syracuse game would push the Newark opener back a day.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Sept. 10. (AP)—Second thoughts: wonder why Mike Jacobs hit on 77,000 as the likely attendance for the Louis-Conn scrap? . . . He once packed 88,150, the third largest crowd in boxing history, into the Yankee Stadium to see Louis wreck Max Baer. . . . Looks like a good spot, too, to borrow an idea from the Chicago all-star football game and save a few choice seats for people willing to contribute $100 to a good cause, but we hear the army voted that one down . . .And why not make it an all-service affair with Lieut. Jack Dempsey of the coast guard as referee and Lt.-Cmdr. Gene Tunney of the Navy as announcer? . . . If Conn really wants to win, why doesnt he hire father-in-law Jimmy Smith as sparring partner—for Louis?

Turnover

White Deer High School in Texas has had six football coaches in six months—and well let that stand as a record until we hear of a better one. . . . Gene McCollum, last season's coach, resigned to take a new job. . . Two of his successors, Gail Smith and Charles Churchill, went into the army and Thurman (Tugboat) Jones, who had decided to quit pro football, took over. . . But the Grid Dodgers made Tugboat an offer that was too good to refuse so he moved on and left the job to his assistant, Tyson Cox . . . W. C. Whiteside, Coxs new aide, is the sixth newcomer.

One-Minute Sports Page

Word trickling down from Canada, via Billy Kelly of the Buffalo Courier and Express, is that a lot of guys who are used to supporting race hosses in style may have to give up their stables because new taxes will limit incomes to about $40,000 net. . . Big stables here may be hit, too . . . The National semi-pro baseball tournament at Wichita, Kans., gave out $14,384.49 in prize money, including $5,136.72 to the winning team.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

SPORTS POST MORTEMS ARE invariably exceedingly delicate matters to handle, especially after a team has been eliminated from competition. However, following the abrupt passing of the Army & Navy Vets from the O. A. S. A. picture, local softball patrons were shocked, to say the least. It was at least estimated that the Vets, should win at home and perhaps the series in three games, but alas such was not to be the case. Ardent softball fans point the finger of responsibility on poor management in the selection of starting pitchers in both games, especially the second fixture. Such might be the case, but after reviewing the series from afar it must be admitted the Kingston Vics. hit the over-size spheriod at and through the Vets' fielders with more gusto and downright power than they'd seen all season, while in Kingston the locals collected but one base knock. Murney Green's double. Down in Kingston Hunter allowed only two hits after taking over in the fourth, while here he did well, so what the ultimate outcome might have been with "Big Hun" starting will never be known.

COMMENTING IN THE KINGston press, following the elimination of the Army & Navy Vets, Scribe Bill Walshe hinted something about cliques spoiling Belleville's chances of even so much as forcing a third game. At any rate here's part of Scribe Walshe's views on that second game in Kingston, he says—.

"Belleville's loyalty to Johnny Bawden, for years boss of Kingston batters when he was slinging in softball playoffs, cost the Quinte representatives any chance of stopping Kingston in the Ontario playdowns this season. Kingston Vics ploughed into Bawden's best balls to gain big leads in two games and sweep the series two straight. Jim Hunter, a tall twirler from Tweed, relieved Bawden in both games and controlled the Kingston clouters but he came to the rescue much too late.

"Kingston played fairly smart ball, except for occasional lapses, and had a big edge on Belleville when Bawden was heaving but when Hunter went in they had to battle to retain their big lead. Hunter heaved with a peculiar all arm motion and with his flipping style seemed on top of the batters almost as soon as the ball. He went in in the last of the fourth last night and blanked Kingston for the remainder of the game while his mates made a plucky effort to cut down a nine run deficit. Tom Sughrue pegged most of the game for Kingston and when he was in danger near the finish Stan Scrutton relieved him.

"Kingston Vics were never extended in the scheduled city play or playoffs but in beating Belleville two straight Kingston fans now realize they have a strong team to root for in the softball playdowns."

SOFTBALL ISN'T EXACTLY A forgotten issue in the Bay of Quinte area, however, as FO. Buff Horton has entered the strong Trenton R. C. A. F. team in the Senior "B" playdowns of the O. A. S. A. and they've been drawn against the Toronto winners. Harry Rollins, local convener and Vice President of the O. A. S. A., announced this week that the Trenton Flyers would play in Toronto on Sept. 19th with the return game scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 22nd. Judging from the decreased attendance at recent O. A. S. A. play-offs games in Trenton in the past fortnight, the Trenton Flyers would be well advised to play their home Senior "B" play-off game at the Exhibition Park here, providing, however, the dates could be reversed, as the Belleville Fair is scheduled for Sept. 21 to 23rd inclusive. Softball has drawn well at the Exhibition Park and with the assurance of a Senior "B" O. A. S. A. fixture here on either Sept. 18th or 19th a capacity grandstand could practically be assured Skipper Horton's Trenton Flyers for the home fixture.

REMEMBER WHEN VANCOUver's belting Irishmen, Jimmy McLarnin, punched his way to a three-round knockout over Al Singer, lightweight boxing champion, at Madison Square Bowl 12 years ago tonight? The title wasn't at stake, however, as McLarnin was over the weight limit. He entered the welterweight class and later ruled that division. Barney Ross outpointed McLarnin for the title on May 28th, 1935.

NOTHING LESS THAN THE crowning of two new boxing champions is predicted before the year has passed. Such is the summing-up along cauliflower lane since Allie Stolz trounced Chalky Wright.

The aftermatch predictions, are that Wright will lose his 126-pound honors to Luly Costanino should they meet on Sept. 24, as scheduled, and the same goes for Sammy Angott when Stolz catches up with him on Oct. 2.

JUST WHEN BIG EARL MC Cready was thinking of challenging "Whipper Billie" Watson for a shot at the British Empire heavyweight wrestling title along comes John Katan, the "Calgary Eye-opener", to stick in his oar and demand a spot in this Empire title business. "I held that title before either McCready or Watson and successfully defended it in Australia for over six months," Katan stated as the basis of his contentions for a bout with McCready.

There was little Promoter Frank Turney could do about the matter except to concede Katan's rights—so it's John Katan and Earl McCready in the next British Empire Elimination bout. Incidentally last night's wrestling show at the Hume Arena was just about the seasons' tops for action, and right from the opening gong until McCready really gave that mad Hindu, Nanjo Singh, the business and made him cry "uncle". With the application of his favourite step-over toe-hold McCready didn't do Singh's injured leg any good as the Hindu was seen to noticably favour his game limb even when leaving the local sports palace. With the return of cooler weather Promoter Tunney announced he would try weekly wrestling bouts at the Hume Arena commencing next Wednesday when Katan and McCready will tangle in the Empire semi-final round.

THIS AND THAT — "Penetang Phil" Marchildon pitched five innings of no-hit relief ball to chalk up his 17th win of the American League season, which is remarkable after taking into consideration that Marchildon is pitching for a cellar-position club . . .With any kind of a break the Canadian moundsman might hit the 20-game pitching victory mark yet . . . The Yankees only need five more wins to cinch the American League pennant, or any combination that includes five with the Red Sox. . .Ernie Bonham's pitching and Joe Gordon's grand slam homer (three aboard) moved the Yankees up another notch yesterday . . . That was a much better wrestling card presented here last night than is advertised at the Maple Leaf Gardens tonight when Kirchmeyer and Martinez top the card. . .Incidentally Paul Bowsar and all the grappling bigwigs will be in Toronto for a conference tonight. . .Roll 'em over.

FRITZIE ZIVIC GIVEN THE NOD OVER COCHRANE

10-ROUND BOUT

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—Simply off past performance charts and the "dope" sheets, you have to pick Fritzie Zivic to flail the daylights out of welterweight champion Freddie (Red) Cochrane in Madison Square Garden tonight. It's a 10-round none-title scrap and a 13,000-crowd is expected.

It was just about 14 months ago that Cochrane was supposed to roll over and play dead for Fritzie in a ring in Newark. But Freddie wound up by taking the world welterweight championship away from Zivic.

On that occasion Zivic was a 1-to-7 favorite, and there were no takers. Tonight Fritzie will be 1 to 2 largely because in his recent trips to the post he has done everything Cochrane has done—and done it better. Cochrane's three starts saw him outpoint the fading Lew Jenkins, take a decision from young Bobby Britton and drop a verdict to Garvey Young of the marines. Fritzie took on all three of the gladiators—knocked them all out.

For that reason this corner tabs Fritzie to get the revenge he's been hollering about for more than a year. In fact, it wouldn't be too much of a shock if he got it by a knockout.

There'll be two winners coming out of this scramble—the victor in the ring and the United Services organization. The organization that entertains the soldiers and sailors gets a slice of the cake from the cash register, and promoter Mike Jacobs expects a $35,000 bit of pastry.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By the Associated Press

Joe Gordon and Ernie Bonham, Yankees—former hit grand slam home run in first inning to help latter attain 19th victory with eight-hit pitching job.

Phil Marchildon, Athletics—pitched no-hit ball for five innings in relief at Cleveland to get credit for 17th triumph of season.

The letter indicates that France is facing its greatest crisis since its fall in June, 1940.

LOU NOVIKOFF IS QUITE ANGRY AT THE DODGERS

Wants to Break Batting Slump to Even Score on Bean-Ball Contest

FOND OF CHICKEN

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Sept. 10 —(AP)— Lou Novikoff, the Roaring Russian from Chicago's North Side, has such a mad on against Brooklyn Dodgers it has even ruined his appetite for chicken.

What's more, the Chicago Cubs' fence-buster is still so steamed up over the feud that started in the now-famous bean-ball competition two months ago that he went to Manager Jimmy Wilson today to personally plead his case and promise that if he starts in this afternoon's brawl with the Dodgers, he will bring his batting slump to an end at the expense of the Bums' fancy pennant hopes.

"Y'know," he explained, "I love chicken. And nobody can cook it like my wife cooks it. Every day I come home from the ball game and she puts it in front of me for dinner. And I go to work on it.

Could Not Eat Chicken

"But that afternoon in Chicago (July 15) after that game with the Dodgers when they threw those dusters at us, I went home and when my wife put the plate down, I pushed it aside. I couldn't eat it. I've got a wife and two children and pitchers start throwing at my head. I ask you—is baseball worth that?"

That was the afternoon the Dodger and Cub pitchers spent a large portion of their time watching batters fall down trying to get away from pitches that were thrown not wisely, but well. Novikoff stood up to one, caught it with the "meat" of his bat as it whistled past his ear, and knocked it for a homer.

Carried Baseball

"The next time up," he related today, "I came to bat with a baseball in my hip pocket. Mickey Owen (Dodger catcher) asked me what I had. I said, 'Owen, if Higbe (Pitcher Kirby Higbe) throws at me this time, I'm going to take this ball out of my pocket and hit you with it. And you better tell Higbe that when he sees me throw at you, he better start running."

And now the Roaring Russian is in his worst slump since early summer. In his last 15 times at bat he's connected or just two hits. As a result, Manager Wilson let him sit out of the second game of the Labor Day doubleheader.

Uplands Air Station To Be Represented

Ottawa, Sept. 10 —(CP)— Uplands Air Station of the Royal Canadian Air Force will be represented in the Ottawa intermediate football league, it was learned last night.

Other prospective teams for the new loop are Gladstone and Rough Riders. A fourth team may be added later.

Wing Cmdr. W. R. (Bill) MacBrien, officer commanding at Uplands, which is just outside Ottawa, gave permission for an Uplands entry in the league. He is an old footballer himself, having played for Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., Ashbury College, Ottawa, and Ottawa Rangers of the intermediate Quebec rugby football union.

A fourth team for the circuit may be organized by Cecil Duncan, convenor of the eastern section of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, now suspended.

O.R.F.U. ADMITS 2 TORONTO TEAMS

Balmy Beach Given Spot by Vote of League at Kitchener Meeting

Kitchener, Ont., Sept. 10—(CP)—The Ontario Rugby Football Union's senior division was converted from a four-team group into a six-team league at a meeting of the O. R. F. U. executive and team representatives here last night.

Two Toronto teams, Balmy Beach and the R. C. A. F., made application for a berth and their applications were accepted on motion of Sammy Manson, of Hamilton Wild Cats and Doug Paul of Toronto Oakwoods. The four originals this year were Hamilton Wild Cats, Toronto Oakwoods, H. M. C. S. York, and the Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers.

It was not known until last night that the Toronto Fliers had definitely made up their minds to start.

Opening games will be played on Saturday, Sept. 26, and by utilizing Thanksgiving Day Oct. 12, the single schedule of home and home games can be completed by Saturday, Nov. 22.

Provided Canadian playdowns are to be held, a sudden death game between the teams finishing first and second in the schedule will determine this year's Senior O. R. F. U. champions. In the event that there are to be no playdowns outside the O. R. F. U., the first and second clubs will play home and home games for the Ontario Union Championship.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Pardon My Sarong"

Rated by local theatre-goers as tops in the current season's crop of comedy films, "Pardon My Sarong," starring Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, now playing at the McCarthy Theatre is playing to packed houses nightly.

"Pardon My Sarong" is undoubtedly one of the screwiest and balmiest pictures ever to come out of Hollywood and is definitely the best ever produced by screenland's Abbott and Costello comedy team, which is packing them in with greater success with each succeeding vehicle.

Filmdom's No. 1 comedy team in charge of a stolen bus which they have chartered on a cross country run to a wealthy playboy and a bevy of beautiful damsels, reaches a new zenith in hilarity, but when the law gets on their trail—it's a scream. Eventually they find themselves engaged as a two-man land-lubber crew aboard a small sailing yacht but their reaction to a typical Pacific roller which sees the yacht standing first on its stern and then the bows has the audience involuntarily breaking out in side-splitting mirth.

The pay-off, however, is when they become shipwrecked on an out-of-the-way island upon which the natives still cling to their old customs and rituals. Dusky eyed and sarong-clad maidens proceed to get a "crush" on the more rotund party of the famous comedy team but not before their ignorance of native custom gets them in dutch with the chief and young men of the tribe.

Adventure is worked into the hilarious screen presentation when a villian who has planned spiriting the native's wealth away is foiled through the stars' desire of self preservation. Virginia Bruce, Robert Paige and Nan Wynn are included in the casts to give it added sparkle.

AT THE BELLE

"Hatter's Castle"

Jack Karr, distinguished screen critic of the Toronto Daily Star lists the following features as best of the month "Mrs. Miniver," "My Gal Sal," "Eagle Squadron" and Hatter's Castle."

A. J. Cronin, the man who wrote the "Citadel" and "Keys to the Kingdom" gives you a story in "Hatter's Castle" every inch as great as his greatest. A story whose shocking drama will remain in your memory long after you've left the theatre. "Hatter's Castle," now on the Belle Theatre screen is breaking "North West Mounted Police," records in London and features an eight-star cast headed by Robert Newton, Emlyn Williams and Deborah Kerr.

Craig Wood is an entertaining and seasonal sportsfilm, and unusual occupations a new and thoroughly entertaining screen novelty in technicolor, precede the exhibition of "Hatter's Castle."

Lamour "Sarongs" Again

UNCERTAIN DESTINY

by Betty Webb

Chapter 22
Shocking Discovery

Speaking before the Literary Society, Linda talked simply and honestly of the hard work involved in writing a successful novel. She gave a short sketch of Steve's average day, filled with appointments, lectures, the long hours spent autographing books in leading department stores. The picture she painted was filled with romance as she touched lightly on Steve's love of horses, their life at the farm. She described Steve so realistically that it left her weak with excitement and yearning to see him again.

But despite her longing to be with her husband, Linda hated to leave her parents. For them the time had passed all too quickly and Mary Phillips clung to her daughter's hand when the time for leave-taking arrived.

"I've scarcely seen you," she murmured tearfully. "You'll come home again, won't you?

"Of course," Linda promised.

By the time the train neared La Salle Street Station in Chicago, Linda was fairly trembling with excitement. Her wire to Steve, announcing her arrival, had been devoid of the emotion she was experiencing.

What would Steven say, she wondered, when they came face to face? Would he take her in his arms and say all the things his one brief letter had left unsaid, or would words be necessary — now?

At last the train stopped and as Linda stepped on the platform her eyes searched the crowd for Steve. For a moment Linda stood puzzled and perplexed. Surely Steve has not misunderstood her telegram, but she saw no familiar face in the station. Steve had failed to come!

Then, suddenly, a familiar feminine voice caroled: "Linda! Here I am—over here!" It was Diane, she was breathless. "I thought I'd never get here!"

"But where's Steve?" Linda said anxiously. "I sent him a wire asking him to meet me. Why isn't he here?"

"Steve was called to New York and had to leave immediately. He He asked me to meet you and explain."

"New York? But why?"

Diane shrugged. "He said something about a motion picture company wanting to buy the book, or something like that."

Linda stopped short, "Not really! Diane, how can you be so calm when something as wonderful as that has happened!" Her disappointment at not seeing Steve was forgotten in her present happiness.

"I feel like celebrating, Diane. Let's stay downtown for lunch?"

"I suppose I should be working," The artist laughed. "But—all right, Linda. You name the place.

When they were seated in a fashionable restaurant, Diane said anxiously, "How is your mother?"

"Feeling much better, thank you. She promised to come to Chicago for a visit when she's completely well."

"And—Prairievale?" curiously.

"Nothing is changed," Linda answered. "It looks just the same. It is the same. Jane Miller is still typing letters for Harcourt, Simmons and Hanover. Kyle is working—and plugging along as usual. Sally and Hugh are sublimely happy and expecting a blessed event in the spring."

She described her activities—the lectures, the teas and dinners, and Diane laughed. "What a difference from your former life there. Would you like to return to that way of living?"

Linda could not suppress a shiver at the thought. "It doesn't seem possible that I ever lived there, and yet I suppose I was happy. Of course Sally and Hugh aren't tied down, and they can pick up and leave if it becomes boring, but my life wouldn't have been like theirs.

"I would have had a little house, children, but there would always have been insecurity. Something would have been lacking. I think that thing would be—harmony."

"And you have that quality with Steve?"

Linda hesitated. Why was Diane always so curious, so prying when it came to her relationship with Steve? Did the artist suspect there had been an unusual marriage?

"Naturally," she said, and although it had not always been true, still the future seemed rosy and bright and Linda felt she was committing no falsehood in her reply.

Smiling a little she lifted her head to glance around the well-filled room, and in that instant her air-castles tumbled. With the color draining from her face she stared at the beautiful gowned, ashen-haired woman seated in a secluded booth across the room. Brenda Coleman, Brenda, laughing, assured. And her companion? One glance showed Linda—Brenda's companion—was —Steven Baridon!

Brenda was speaking, confidently looking into Steve's face, and as Linda watched, frozen, the girl's hand crept into Steve's and nestled there.

Without a word Linda pushed back her chair and got to her feet, her one desire being to leave the room unnoticed. One glance at her face and Diane's head turned to view the cozy scene. Then, silent, she rose and followed Linda onto the street.

"Linda—" she began uncertainly.

The other girl did not see her. Her face was like a mask, disbelieving. Cold.

On sudden inspiration, Diane took her arm. "You're coming up to my studio," she said firmly. "It's only a block away, and we can talk."

Linda started to protest; then docilely, she turned and walked down the street. Brenda and Steve! It was unbelievable. Steve was in New York—or had that been merely his way of refusing to meet her? She had been mad to think his good-bye kiss, his murmured words had meant anything.

"You jumped at conclusions once before," Linda told herself, "And look what happened. Don't be so gullible this time."

In Dianes studio she collapsed, weeping. Then she poured out the entire story, sparing no detail in a description of her happiness on the farm, of Steve's kindness and generosity.

"I love him so much" she said, "and I thought that he loved me, too, but I was wrong. It was Brenda. It has always been Brenda. She's been like a ghost between us and I —was a fool to think he would ever forget her."

"I've suspected something like this," Diane admitted, "although I didnt think it was quite this way. I'll be frank, honey, in telling you Brenda is a bad enemy. She has made Jerry's life a living torture despite his love for her, and once she makes up her mind to win Steve back again—"

Linda made a noble decision. "Steve was very good to me, Diane, when I needed understanding and kindness. It's only right that I should try to remedy a bad mistake."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I won't stand in the way of Steve's happiness. Knowing him, I'm afraid he would never say anything, but leave the decision to me. If I can show him I don't care—"

"But you do care!"

"You must forget all that I told you," Linda said quickly. "Swear to me, Diane, that you will never tell him anything I've said, no matter how important it may seem to you."

"I have a feeling this isn't right," she said, "but—I promise, Linda never to tell anyone what you told me here today."

Suddenly Linda kissed Dianes cheek. "Thank you. I'm sure I can depend on you." She moved to the door then paused. "Diane—no matter what happens, or how strange my actions may seem, please trust me."

Diane was bewildered, Linda had seemed sad and dejected. Now she was crisp and sure. Her face was devoid of emotion, save for an intent expression in her eyes.

Hesitantly, Diane nodded. "I trust you" she said.

Entering her own apartment, Linda went immediately to the telephone and grimly dialed a familiar number, a number she had expected never to call again. The sound of the bell echoed in her ears, and then Greg Hollister's familiar, masculine voice reached her.

"Why, Linda, this is a surprise!" Greg made no pretense of hiding his pleasure. He had been sitting alone in his apartment, staring at a picture of Steve and his wife snipped from a newspaper, and wishing savagely he had not made such a mess of things.

Now that Linda was the wife of a popular and successful novelist, she symbolized in Greg's eyes all the qualities he most admired in a woman—glamour, beauty, wealth and position.

The fact that she was already married, and, apparently happy, did not enter into Greg's scheme of things He had expected to win her as easily as he had the first time; instead she had made him almost ashamed of his ill treatment of her. Now, hearing her voice, his voice quickened.

"I'm afraid you've been neglecting me," she reproached him.

"I called you several times," Gregg protested. "Your maid always said you were out."

Those had been Linda's instructions.

"I've been away," she murmured softly. "After all, Greg you're my only real friend in Chicago. I shouldn't like to think you'd forgotten me." Linda was sick with shame at her own actions. How could she go on with this farce, when her heart was crying out to Steve for understanding? Then she remembered Steve lunching with Brenda Coleman, and steeled herself against weakening.

"But I haven't forgotten," Greg objected anxiously. "If you'd only let me take you to dinner this evening—"

Could this be Greg, this humble, pleading man whom Linda had thought so indifferent, so audacious?

"Why Greg, how perfectly sweet of you to ask me—and Steve out of town—"

"May I call for you around seven?"

"I—I'm afraid that wouldn't be wise," Linda said ruefully. "You see the servants might talk. Couldn't I meet you somewhere?"

GOOD BYE, OLD SHIP

Only Wishes He Had Known About Syntona Years Ago

Might Have Saved Me a Lot of Suffering from Stomach Troubles, Backache and Rheumatic Pains, Says Ancaster Man.

"I am glad to tell others about my experience with Syntona, because if I had known about this medicine sooner it might have saved me a lot of suffering," says Mr. William Noga, Ancaster, Ontario, who is employed locally by Dominion Foundry and Steel Company.

"My stomach had been giving me trouble for the past three years. Heartburn and sour stomach followed every meal. Gas accumulations bloated me so much I could hardly breathe. This often troubled me after lying down at night so I couldn't sleep. I'd get very dizzy sometimes, especially when I stooped over. Lately I had a sore, lame back that hurt like anything, and rheumatic pains had set in my limbs, joints and muscles.

"I tried so many different things without getting help that I was discouraged with medicines, but I was only using Syntona a short time when my food began to digest better. The sourness and heartburn stopped troubling me. As I continued, the gas passed off and I was enjoying my meals without any trouble after. The aches and pains gradually left me. I haven't had any dizziness since, my bowels are moving more regularly than they used to and I feel better in every way."

Syntona is made from 12 medicinal herbs and roots. It acts on the stomach, kidney, liver and bowels. Many who take it say that even after the first few days the whole system takes on a new feeling of energy and vigor.

No Stunts in Canadian Army General McNaughton Tells Principal Army Chaplain

Colonel Right Rev. G. A. Wells Addresses General Council in Session

PRAISES CHAPLAINS

"As long as I am in command of the Canadian Army, there will be no stunts. It will be an ill day for Canada when we begin to blow our own horn," Lieutenant General A. G. McNaughton told Principal Chaplain, Colonel the Right Reverend Bishop G. A. Wells, at a recent meeting in England.

Colonel Wells, former Anglican Bishop of the diocese of Caribou, now on leave of absence for duty with the army in an address to the Tenth General Council of the United Church here today stated that the "Canadians served a useful purpose at Dieppe in demonstrating the efficiency of training, and the securing of information."

"We as Canadians must be prepared for great losses and suffering, but as Britishers we must keep our heads up," he said.

He spoke of visiting the Canadian Army commander in England shortly after General McNaughton's son was reported missing, and felt the commander would like Canadians to know that their soldier sons would take part in no uncalled for demonstrations.

There were sufficient chaplains in England at the present time, Col. Wells told the Council. At home and abroad there are 300 and future expansion will call for many more from the United Church as well as other churches. In England there are 130 chaplains on duty and a pool of 10 for replacements. Organization was splendid, he remarked.

He paid tribute to the fine fellowship and co-operation apparent between chaplains of the various denominations overseas, and urged as many ministers as possible to oin the chaplain service.

Col. Wells introduced a lighter vein when he addressed the Moderator as "Brother". Dr. W. Harold Young, Toronto, parried this banter with the suggestion that Col. Wells give up the bishopric. "So I can have the pleasure of supporting your application to enter the United Church ministry".

Meeting Spiritual Needs

"Nothing is more important to the Church in Canada than meeting the spiritual needs of the armed forces," Dr. Young told the Council.

He paid tribute to Lieut.-Colonel Ross Flemington, assistant Chief Protestant Chaplain overseas, and to Assistant Principal Chaplain to the new air force chaplaincy, Ottawa, W. E. Cockram, first overseas padre of the R.C.A.F.

Special tribute was paid to Captain M. Laite, taken off the mission ship "Melvin Swarthout" on the Pacific coast to go with sea forces to Hong Kong, where he is now a prisoner.

His name symbolizes that the United Church is prepared to play its part in these trying times.

Dr. Young recalled a radio broadcast of Dieppe of a service held by a chaplain, just before the men went over. A noted psychologist called it the finest possible spiritual preparation. The chaplain was a United Church minister.

"To the chaplains and the men in the services we owe more than we can ever repay," Dr. Young said.

There are 150 chaplains in the air service at home and abroad, Wing Commander John McNab, Protestant Principal Chaplain, R.C.A.F., declared. He eulogized the United Church War Service Committee for the quality of men chosen as chaplains.

Three-Fourths of U.S. Monthly Steel Output Going to War Use

Washington, Sept. 10 —(AP)— More than three-fourths of the United States monthly steel output of 5,300,000 tons now is going into direct war use and the rest into such essential industries as railroads and machinery manufacture, the War Production Board said today.

David F. Austin, acting chief of the W.P.B.'s iron and steel branch reported that the 5,300,000 tons a month now being delivered represents finished steel products, a reduction of approximately 30 per cent from ingot production of more than 7,000,000 tons. The residue goes back into the furnaces of the form of scrap.

The W.P.B. noted "it takes half a ton of steel to make one of the 2,000-pound bombs Britain has been dumping on German cities lately."

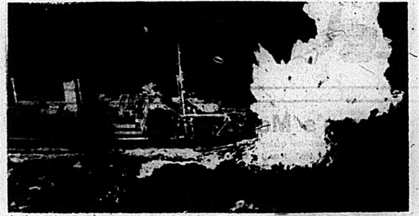
The W.P.B. reported that current production far exceeded that of the Axis nations, including the German-controlled countries of Europe. It placed Axis steel production in 1941 at approximately 74,000,000 ingot tons, and declared the United Nations last year controlled more than 65 per cent of the world's output.



An incredibly close view of an enemy merchant vessel as bombs dropped by a Sunderland flying boat, burst near by. The picture was taken during an attack by a coastal command Sunderland on the enemy vessel in the Mediterranean.

Somewhere in Northern Canada, this picture was made showing a portion of the highway now being completed by pushing through virgin forests. This highway, an important part of North America's defence against the Japanese, stretches from Alaska through Canada to the United States. Across it men and materials could be sped to the north. Threat of a Japanese attack on Siberia makes the swift completion of the highway still more important.

London, Sept. 10. (CP)— A Yugoslav government source said today that fifty persons were killed and more than 200 injured when German troops in Belgrade fired on a crowd of pro-British demonstrators after the Canadian raid on Dieppe.

He said the Germans were reported also to have arrested 2,000 Belgrade residents the same day.

38 Blood Donor Clinics in Canada

Toronto, Sept. 10 — (CP) — Thirty-eight Red Cross volunteer blood donor clinics now are in operation or authorized across the Dominion, Dr. J. T. Phair, chairman of the Blood Donor Committee, announced today at the meeting of the Central Council, Canadian Red Cross Society here.

Dr. Phair reported new clinics had recently been opened in Peterboro, Oshawa, Brantford, Kitchener-Waterloo and Sarnia, Ont., and a clinic had been authorized at Cornwall.

Red Cross groups across the Dominion have shipped 2,392,127 articles overseas for men and women in the armed forces and civilian war victims during the first six months of this year, Mrs. W. R. Campbell, chairman of the National Women's War Work Committee, said.

"Outstanding for the period was the filling tremendous requests for Russia — 250,000 sheets, 100,000 pillow cases — materials being purchased with funds collected for Russian relief and ordered by the Russian Red Cross," Mrs. Campbell said.

GREAT ARMY ROAD IS TAKING SHAPE IN WILDS OF B. C.

Alaska Highway Under Construction by U. S. Engineers Through Canada Marks Fourth Year of War

By J. E. CRAEME
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, Sept. 10 — (CP) — Through the rugged terrain of northern British Columbia, United States army engineers are cutting their way—third time in Western Canada's history the uniformed men have been called on for road-building.

To the growl of huge caterpillar tractors, the clank of scoop shovels and the rumble of other equipment the engineers are blazing a pilot road to Alaska to open a faster route for military supplies and troops to that northern outpost of the United States.

Dreamed of in peacetime as part of a super-highway which might some day run from Siberia 56 miles across Bering Strait to Alaska, down the Northern American coast to South America and across to Brazil, the Alaska road was started this year as a wartime measure.

Over it, when completed, will roll supplies for the bases from which America drive at the Japanese, now occupying three small islands of the Aleutian group, and may later form the starting point for attack that will carry the United Nations into Japan's front yard.

Route of Road

The highway starts at Fort St. John, B. C., and runs through Fort Nelson and Watson Lake in northern British Columbia, Whitehorse, Y. T., and Fairbanks, Alaska. This route is east of that favored by the Canada-United States Alaska highway commission which three years ago recommended a road from Hazelton, northern terminus of British Columbia's highway system, to Prince George, B. C., Dawson City, Y. T., and Alaska.

The present route was recommended by the Canada-United States joint defence council headed by Mayor F. H Laguardia of New York in 1940 and approved by both governments. From Fort St. John the road runs south to Edmonton and then to the international boundary.

The highway will cost anywhere from $25,000,000 up according to some estimates. The United States is footing the bill, with the proviso that after the war it will be turned over to Canada.

Twice before uniformed men have been called on to build roads in western Canada. In 1859 the Royal Engineers started at Yale, B. C., and after six years had carved out a road to Barkerville in the interior where a gold strike had been reported. In 1905 a band of Northwest Mounted Police officers and men hacked and dug a wagon road to the mountains from Peace River Crossing in three years.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R. C. A. F. somewhere in England, Sept 10—(CP)— The Canadians who form the "Moose" Squadron of the R. C. A. F. have left the field where the movie "Target for Tonight" was taken and have gone to a new base. There's nothing the matter with their new home; it's pretty good in fact; but they'd been a long time on the "Target Tarmac" and were reluctant to leave.

They ended their stay there with a big party and hope soon to have two moose heads to hang in the messes at their new spot. One head is on the way to them from an Englishman's trophy room. Another is enroute from Montreal, a donation from the C. P. R.

"That's quite O. K., having two moose heads," said Flt. Lt. Dan McCann of Ottawa, the squadron adjutant. "We've got two messes, one for sergeants, one for officers, so we can use them. But I'll have to turn down the other six offers we received."

P. S.: The squadron didn't know what it was in for for when it let it be known the boys would like a moose head for their mess to go with the name "Moose Squadron," a tribute to Johnny Moose Fulton of Kamloops, B. C., their former wing commander who is missing.

When PO. John Higham of Assiniboia, Sask., got back from leave there was good news waiting for him—word that he'd won the D. F. C., eight days before when he brought his damaged plane back safely from a big raid on Dusseldorf. His batman immediately went scurrying around to find some D. F. C. ribbon for "Hi" to wear but couldn't get any so Sqdn. Ldr. F. W. S. Turner of Ganges, B. C., came to the rescue.

One of the intelligence officers with this squadron is PO. Forbes Watkins. He played in "Target for Tonight" and wears the ribbons of the last war when he was a major. Some of his old pals still call him major just for fun when they come over for a visit. Forbes is with the R. A. F. and came over to England from Toronto on the first ship out of Canada after the war started.

In a way you'd call these Canadian bomber men tourists so far as Germany goes. They're always visiting there, even if they do try to leave in a hurry, so the poster on the wall of the tea room where they gather after ops is fairly appropriate. It is a tourist propaganda bit, showing a boatman toged out in Tyrolean costume and headed "Osterreich."

R. A. F. BOMBERS "GO TO TOWN" ON DUESSELDORF

Documents Show Hitler Demanded Stalingrad

BRITISH CAPTURE 3 PORTS ON MADAGASCAR

Spread Destruction Wrought in 49 Previous Raids

31 PLANES MISSING

London, Sept. 11 (CP)—Hundreds of British bombers unloaded a terrific weight of high explosives over Duesseldorf last night, spreading the distruction wrought in that important German industrial city in 49 previous raids.

Other targets in western Germany also were attacked during the night operations, which British authorities said had cost the R.A.F. 31 planes.

The exact number of aircraft which participated in the assault was not disclosed, but from first reports it seemed probable it exceeded the total employed in the last great attack on that city July 31.

Thirty planes were lost in that raid.

The attack came after a one-night lull in the British air offensive during which Russian bombers kept up the pounding of Germany by raiding Berlin, Budapest and Koenigsberg.

It was the seventh R.A.F. night attack upon Germany in the last 10 nights.

A Co-Ordinated Program

Observers in London saw in the whipsawing British and Russian attacks evidence of a co-ordinated program. Designed to spread Germany's aerial defences thinly over a broad area and thus make the Reich even more vulnerable to massed assaults.

Russian reports on the Soviet raids Wednesday night, when bad weather in the west kept the R.A.F. at home, said 38 fires were started in Budapest, 12 in Berlin and 16 in Koenigsberg. Moscow reported the loss of two bombers.

Britain again was raid-free last night after R.A.F. fighters had turned back several small-scale German forays along the east coast during the evening.

Early today two Nazi raiders — believed to have been Foche-Wulf 190 fighters—swooped over the southeast coast and dropped several bombs in an orchard, causing some damage to nearby houses. Spitfires chased the raiders off.

Canadian Bombers In Duesseldorf Raid Encounter Heavy Anti-Aircraft Fire

SOME MOTORS HIT

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 11 — (CP Cable) —Canadian bombers which participated in the attack on Duesseldorf last night reported encountering a heavy wall of anti-aircraft fire, and intense concentrations of searchlights.

Two R. C. A. F. squadrons took part in the raid and they left many fires burning after their bombing runs.

"It was one of the best concentrations of fires I have ever seen," Sqdn. Ldr. Don Pattison of Toronto, Flight Commander of a Wellington squadron, told interviewers on his return.

The enemy's defences evidently had been saturated by the continuous wave of bombers carrying incendiaries and high explosives by the time Pattison arrived because the flak and searchlights were none too active.

The crew of a Halifax skippered by Sgt. Jack Campbell of The Pas, Man., who were among the first over the target, encountered stiffer opposition and returned to base with only three of their four engines turning over.

A Wall of Flak

"We had to pass through a wall of flak," asserted Flt. Sgt. W. L. Dark of Edmonton, navigator. "They were really shooting it up this time."

A piece of flak hit the cooling system of their starboard outer motor but Campbell, a veteran of some 25 bombing trips, brought the aircraft safely home.

Sgt. Jack Burke of Montreal, air bomber, said dull red fires were burning as his machine went in over the target.

Flt. Sgt. Jim Clarke of Port Alice, B. C., pilot of a Wellington which landed with only one engine operating, and his navigator, Sgt. Henry Pickering of Vancouver, said "The city was well alight and smoke or smoke haze could be seen up to about 1,000 feet."

A Halifax flown by Flt. Sgt. Dick Pernyough of Vancouver returned unscathed and his English navigator backed up his statement that the flak was heavy by declaring it was the worst he had ever seen in that area.

Italian Socialists Defy the Fascists

Berne, Switzerland, Sept. 11—(AP)—The socialist party in Italy, which Mussolini's followers in early days beat down with clubs, castor oil treatments and assassination, was reported today to be raising its head against Fascism.

A delmonte democrate dispatch from Zurich quoted Swiss socialist circles as declaring that the Italian socialist party in recent months had been reorganized with "illegal units" multiplying in factories in the greater part of Italian territory.

The socialists, the newspaper said, recently helped in a strike at the fiat works where they suddenly quit their jobs and demanded an increase in pay. Six hours later, according to this account, company officials acceded to the demands and the strikers went back to work.

Although strikes are prohibited in Italy, the newspaper said, "not a single policeman or soldier showed himself" during the strike.

THE CHEQUE BOUNCED

Chicago, Sept. 11 —(AP)— Frank Demski was in a happy mood over the prospect of selling his home to a middle-aged couple. He had their cheque for $305 and when they asked him for $10 "pocket money," he readily obliged. Their cheque bounced, Demski complained to the police.

STRONGHOLD STILL INACCESSIBLE TO THE ENEMY

Soviet Newspapers Demand Volga River Bastion be Held At All Cost

REDS OUTNUMBERED

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Sept. 11 — (AP) — The most powerful army the Germans ever assembled in Russia, surpassing even the great force which they flung in vain at Moscow last year, was reported today to have been commanded by Hitler to take Stalingrad at any price. But that Volga bastion still held.

The Russian army newspaper Red Star said the Axis forces before Stalingrad outnumbered those of any previous campaign, about 1,000,000 men on each side participated in the battle for Moscow last fall, hitherto the greatest single engagement of the war.

Dispatches said attackers and defenders were fighting in a maelstrom of noise, fire and smoke, planes filling the sky with their roaring and screaming and the ground shaking to the clash of tanks and the thunder of bombs and shells.

The remarkable editorial in Red Star set a serious tone for the day's press comment, exhorting the defenders to fight to the last, recalling the grim measures taken by Joseph Stalin for the defence of the city in 1918 against White Russian forces.

The mid-day communique announced that German automatic rifle men infiltrated western defences of Stalingrad where Nazi troops won three more outlying villages yesterday, but more than 100 of the riflemen were slain.

The fall of the Axis of another settlement southwest of the Volga River industrial centre was recorded, and, for the first time in several days, fighting was reported south of Stalingrad.

Troops Exhorted to Stand Fast

The demand that the Volga River bastion be held at all costs recalled two orders given by Premier Stalin during his civil war defence of the same city in 1918:

1.—"No retreat". 2.— "Death to traitors".

(The Russian feat in holding the Germans from Stalingrad for 17 days after the Von Bock pincers closed upon its approaches is reminiscent of the 27-day defence of Sevastopol against a Nazi offensive which finally overwhelmed that Soviet Black Sea naval base in the

U. S. War Effort Greatly Benefitted By British Material and Experience

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 11—(CP)—Britain has much for which to thank the United States, but the American war effort itself has benefited greatly from British material aid and experience.

In September, 1940, Britain gave the United States, in exchange for 50 over-age destroyers, the right to establish defence outposts and naval bases on Britain's island possessions in the western hemisphere.

A year later production of three Canadian shell-making factories, working exclusively for Britain, was diverted to the United States.

Britain supplied equipment for the largest gun factory in the U.S.A. free of charge, sent America machine-tools, anti-aircraft guns, ammunition and Rolls Royce engines, and supplied her with her newest inventions such as radio-locators and astrographs.

Britain, too, has supplied the United States with much valuable military and technical information on such matters as German tanks, anti-submarine equipment, magnetic mines, special explosives and aviation medicine. The basic design for the American "Liberty" ship came from Britain.

This nation gave an impetus to American shipbuilding, notably through the Henry Kaiser associates. British cash contracts earlier in the war were a deciding factor in creation of new American plant capacity and experience in war industry.

Since September, 1939, the British government has placed nearly $3,250,000,000 in cash contracts with American industry.

In addition Britain has spent some $200,000,000 directly in capital assistance to American corporations making munitions and before the attack on Pearl Harbor and lease-lend, poured about $1,500,000,000 into the American aircraft industry.

British fighter planes and escort vessels have been helping the Americans in their fight against U-boats and the Royal Navy helps protect the United States as well.

Canada Prepared To Give 15,000 Tons Wheat Monthly To Starving Greek People

Ottawa, Sept. 11 —(CP)— As an outright gift to th starving Greek people, Canada is prepared to ship 15,000 tons of wheat a month to that country and considerable quantities have already gone forward, Trade Minister MacKinnon said today.

Under international agreement, eight Swedish ships have been made available for the transport of the grain, and Mr. MacKinnon said Canada is prepared to make provision from its wheat stocks to maintain shipments at the rate of 15,000 tons a month.

With more than 400,000,000 bushels of wheat on hand from past crops and a new harvest of more than 600,000,000 bushels soon to be gathered, Canada has an abundance of grain on hand, and Mr. MacKinnon said there is no indication of how long the shipments may be continued.

500,000 Bushels Monthly

In bushels, the shipments will amount to more than 500,000 monthly.

Mr. MacKinnon said the distribution of the wheat was being made under international supervision to see that it reached the hungry people for whom it was intended.

The shipments were being made from Canadian ports in accordance with the movements of the Swedish neutral ships allocated to the traffic.

By the gift of this wheat, Canada is placing in effect at present an arrangement predicted for the post-war period at the Washington wheat conference of the four major exporting nations, Canada, the United States, Argentina and Australia, and the United Kingdom, this summer.

The major wheat exporting nations indicated their intention of assisting, through distribution of surplus wheat stocks, those people who suffered want due to the effects of war.

Since occupation of their country by the Germans and Italians, the Greeks have suffered severely because of lack of food, reports coming from their country have shown.

Discussion of the shipment of wheat started months ago, and the belligerent nations were consulted to see that the neutral ships were allowed to reach Greece with their cargoes in safety.

ENGLISH-SPEAKING PEOPLE NEED ONE LEADER-HERRIDGE

Suggests Roovevelt As Right Man With Power of Dictator To Stop Waste

3 YEARS OF RETREATS

Ottawa, Sept. 11 (CP) — Declaring the United Nations could not win the war until the English-speaking people united under one leader, Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian minister at Washington, in an address prepared for delivery to a luncheon club (Kiwanis) here today said that leader should be President Roosevelt.

Mr. Herridge, speaking "as a Canadian and a British subject," said that Prime Minister Churchill, representing the British Empire, should nominate Mr. Roosevelt for the leadership and that the American president should have dictatorial powers and a great general staff, half British, half American to advise him. Canadians should demand that Mr. Churchill take such a step.

"Now this war can be won," Mr. Herridge said. "But we must go at it in a different way. We must purge democracy of its peace-time weaknesses. We must build the English-speaking people into one great engine of destruction. For that purpose we must have one leader for the English-speaking people. That leader must have the power of a dictator.

Not Enough Gains

"I do not need to waste your time proving that today democracy is not winning. Three years of retreats and defeats. Compare their magnitude with our small gains. In every continent save America we have lost battles, lost territory, lost face. We have won nothing in America."

JAPS HAVE LOST OVER 150 PLANES IN SOLOMONS

Enemy Planes Continue To Show 'Funeral Pyre' Traits In Battle

JAP PILOTS INFERIOR

By CLARK LEE
(AAssociated Press Staff Writer)

At Sea With the U. S. Fleet Off the Solomons, Aug. 24 —(Delayed) —Ninety-six enemy planes were shot down in a far-flung battle fought over Guadalcanal Island and at sea over a United States naval force.

Forty-seven were shot down by navy fliers, 21 by marines and army pilots, and the remainder by anti-aircraft guns. United States losses were eight pilots missing.

The enemy now has lost more than 150 planes in the battle of the Solomons since Aug. 7.

Even dive-bombers and torpedo planes mixed it successfully with the enemy, the former bagging four and the latter one.

The most encouraging feature of the battle was that Japanese pilots were definitely inferior to those in previous flights over the Pacific, and their planes continued to show "flying funeral pyre" traits, bursting into flames and crashing when hit by even a few bullets.

Watching from the ship's bridge a saw fighter pilots shoot down 31 planes and anti-aircraft down 24 more in an action-packed 10 minutes as they broke up an 80-plane enemy formation attacking American ships. Fifty-five enemy planes plunged into the water, or exploded or disintegrated in mid-air. smak ..a

No Protest to Eire Over I. R. A. Raids

London, Sept. 11 (CP)—The House of Commons was informed today that Great Britain had not protested to Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire over armed raids in Northern Ireland by members of the outlawed Irish Republican army.

It was explained the Eire government "clearly have their own difficulties." The explanation came from Paul Emrys-Evans, undersecretary for Dominion Affairs, in response to a question.

KING SAYS CANADA GAVE LEADERSHIP IN WAR ACTIVITY

First New World Nation To See Real Issue and First to Decide to Fight

REVIEWS WAR EFFORT

Ottawa, Sept. 11 (CP)—Leadership given by Canada to the other nations of the new world during the past three years was emphasized by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a broadcast speech Thursday as the Dominion entered her fourth year of war with the Axis powers.

Canada was the first in the new world "to see the real issue and the first to make the decision to fight," he said.

Canada was the first new world power to support and strengthen Britain "when Britain stood alone between North America and a Nazi attack on this continent."

For a full year, from June, 1940, until June, 1941, when Germany went to war with Russia Canada next to Britain, was the strongest power actually at war with Germany.

Gave Immediate Help

In the "dark months" of 1940 that followed the fall of France Canada sent Britain "everything we possessed, that had immediate military value" to help defend Britain from invasion. Canadian destroyers were sent to British waters. Air squadrons were sent to Britain. Aircraft required for training in Canada were turned back in mid-Atlantic. Small arms and ammunition were sent overseas. Dispatch of the second Canadian Division was accelerated Air training was intensified.

In addition, Canadian troops were dispatched to Newfoundland, the West Indies and Iceland. "For more than a year, Canada was the keeper of the western approaches to the northern bridge of islands between North America and Europe"

Canada also was the first of the nations of the new world to take part in the war in the Mediterranean and the Middle East, said Mr. King.

The Prime Minister told his listeners that Canadians "can and should take a legitimate pride" in this leadership.

The period following France's collapse was described as "Britain's finest hour." He believed it would detrac nothing from Britain's honor to say "no period in the war reflects greater credit on Canada."

Large Navy Increase

The Canadian navy—smallest of the three services in 1939—now had more than 400 ships in operation and a personnel of more than 40,000 men. Navy ship production was keeping pace with the supply of trained men

Decision to concentrate mainly on air training in the early stages of the war was bearing fruit now. Results of Canadian Air Training were visible on almost every battle-front around the world.

In the economic realm, Canada also had led the way among the new world powers in transformation from a peacetime to a wartime economy. Mr. King said: "We have been first in the field of supply, as arsenal, granary and shipyard. We have been foremost in war taxation and finance; in the conservation of raw materials; in efforts to prevent profiteering and inflation; in the control of the cost of living; and in the over-all employment of manpower."

Says Resistance not in Vein

Says 'China Has Enough Soldiers For 5 More Years of War if Necessary'

Chungking, China, Sept. 11 (AP) —A Chinese Government spokesman said today that "China has enough soldiers for five more years of war" if necessary without affecting the supply of agricultural and industrial labor.

He said that more than 1,000,000 men had been mobilized since 1936 under the Chinese conscription law while the same number had volunteered for service.

The conscription law, he explained, was promulgated in 1933 but first was enforced—and then only in limited localities along the coast —in 1936.

Land, Sea and Air Units Co-operate According to Plan

Ambanjo, Majunga And Morondava Captured With Little Opposition

U .S. APPROVES ACTION

LONDON, Sept. 11 — (CP) — British forces, encountering but little resistance and suffering small losses, have captured the three west coast ports on the French island of Madagascar against which operations were started yesterday, Prime Minister Churchill informed the House of Commons today.

It was an all-Empire undertaking, without participation of the fighting French, a British military commentator said. This informant placed the strength of the Vichy garrison on the island at more than 10,000 troops, mostly natives with white officers and "a company or two of white troops."

Jap Reconnaissance Planes Seen

Japanese reconnaissance planes recently had been sighted over the island, separated from the west coast of Africa by the Mozambique Channel, the British commentator said.

He surmised they came from an aircraft carrier since, he said, the Japanese have no air base within reach of Madagascar.

Although negotiations had been going on between British foreign office representatives and the island government for some time, a foreign office source said, "It was apparent there could be no real basis for negotiation so long as Axis pressure on Vichy continued."

"The operation, in which all three services co-operated, was carried out precisely according to plan", the Prime Minister announced.

U. S. Fully Approves

British land, sea and air units made the attacks, with the full approval of the United States government in an effort to wrest complete control of the big island from the Vichy government and eliminate it as a possible base for Axis submarines and Axis espionage agents athwart Allied supply lines.

A communique last night had said simply the action was "continuing satisfactorily".

Mr. Churchill opened his address with a statement that the government "recently decided to resume operations in Madagascar and seize the key points from which enemy submarines might operate'.

"The town of Majunga surrendered during the course of the day and operations against Morondava and Nosy Bay (the approach to Ambania were also completely successful". he said.

Assaulted Thursday

"Majunga, Morondava and Nosy Bay were assaulted in the early hours of yesterday morning and captured with little opposition and light casualties".

(French reports broadcast by the Vichy radio acknowledged the fall of Majunga and Morondava and said that British motorized columns were advancing on Tananarive, the inland capital of Madagascar, and on Antsirane.)

Mr. Churchill said that British, South African and East African troops and South African air forces took part in the assault operations.

Reports from Vichy said all three ports had been heavily shelled and that a flotilla of 18 warships was standing off Majunga in apparent preparation for a land-

AUSSIES CHECK JAPANESE DRIVE ON PORT MORESBY

Fierce Hand-to-Hand Fighting Rages on Slopes of Mountains

HELD AT EFOGI

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 11 — (CP) — Bayonet-wielding Australian troops were reported today to have checked a swift Japanese advance toward Port Moresby in fierce hand-to-hand fighting which still was raging on the southern slopes of New Guinea's towering Owen Stanley mountains 44 airline miles from that vital Allied base.

A terse headquarters communique said the Japanese had failed to advance yesterday from Efogi, which they reached the day before after a 12-mile push across the summit of the mountains, but indicated the battle had not reached a decisive phase.

"Bitter fighting continues with casualties heavy on both sides," the bulletin said.

Prime Minister John Curtin, meanwhile, assured the Australian House of Representatives in Canberra the Allied Command had prepared plans to stabilize the situation in New Guinea. Latest information from the front said these plans now are being carried out, he added.

Study Problem on Spot

Mr. Curtin disclosed that high-ranking Allied officers had visited New Guinea recently to study the problem on the spot.

The fighting in New Guinea was said to be centring around a narrow mountain trail south of Efogi, but the difficulty of communicating with the front made it impossible to obtain details of the action.

It appears obvious, however, that both the Japanese and the Allies are employing forces far in excess of any previously engaged in actual combat in the New Guinea area.

Headquarters said that Allied planes were heavily bombarding the thin Japanese communication lines extending backward from Efogi across the mountains to the enemy bases in the Buna-Gona sector on the Eastern shores of New Guinea.

MARQUEE LIGHTING IS BLACKED OUT

Movie theatre advertising signs were the first users of electrical energy in Belleville to feel the effects of the power shortage now being felt throughout the province of Ontario, with all three local theatres last night blackening out their side marquee lighting in accordance with a request from theatre headquarters.

The order to black out theatre advertising did not come from government circles but from theatre headquarters who requested cooperation of the local managers in regard to the present power emergency. Only essential outside lighting, including ceiling marquee lights and display frames will be illuminated as the result of the request. The lights will be blackened out "for the duration" it was stated by one theatre manager last evening

RUNAWAY TEAM DAMAGES WAGON

Reminiscent of bygone days a runaway team of horses caused considerable excitement at the intersection of Station and Pinnacle Sts. Thursday. The team, in charge of James McTaggart, was being driven northerly on Pinnacle Street when the horses apparently became frightene by a passing motor truck. The team bolted suddenly and dashed along on Pinnacle Street and over the Station Street intersection where the frightened horses collided with a large tree narrowly escaping plunging over the embankment into the Moira River. One of the horses was injured and the wagon damaged. The team is used in connection with Smith's C.N.R. cartage service.

THE WAR TODAY

By De WITT MacKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The French island of Madagascar lies in such an out-of-the-way spot off the southeast coast of Africa that the gunfire from the big British attack there strikes faintly on the ears of the western world, but actually this operation for the purpose of gaining full control is a vital contribution towards meeting Hitler's drive against the Caucasus and Middle East.

Madagascar is the guardian of one of the world's greatest ocean turnpikes—a broad highway which swings around the southern tip of Africa and not only feeds the strategic territory stretching from Egypt clear across to India but connects with Russia's lifeline to the Persian Gulf. With the Mediterranean closed to normal traffic, convoys of troops and supplies from Britain, the United States and other western hemisphere countries depend largely on this long haul.

Madagascar in the hands of the enemy might mean total severance of this route. Thus the giant island, fourth largest in the world, carries on its lumpy shoulders a very precious part of the Allied fortunes.

Because of the danger that Madagascar might fall into the hands of the Japanese, Britain last May occupied some strategic positions, but left most of the island in the hands of the French. This was an unsatisfactory situation, however, and one which the Japs haye plotted constantly to circumvent.

For that reason it became necessary for the Allies to assume full control of the island, and this accounts for the present British assault, which is reported to be proceeding satisfactorily. As in the case of the expedition in May, Britain proceeded with the full agreement and blessing of the United States government.

The Vichy government of course is protesting vigorously at what it calls a wholly unwarranted assault. However, there probably are few Frenchmen who won't understand the full significance of the Allied move and heartily approve. They will recognize that the Allies are fighting for France as well as for themselves. Moreover, Britain has made it wholly clear that Madagascar is to be handed back , to France after the war.

The time may come when this long route around the Cape will cease to be so essential, for we are in process of establishing an air route across Africa to the Middle East. One of the great pioneering feats of history is being carried out by workers who are hewing airports out of the jungles through the heart of the dark continent.

Already air transport is operating over this new territory. One of these days great numbers of men and vast quantities of material will be moved by plane, but that's something of the future. Meanwhile the stern reality is that ocean transport is the backbone of Allied operations. That's why we must control the seas.

15-Pound Pike Caught In E. Lake

Picton, Sept. 11—With $15,100 already raised, Prince Edward County branch of the Canadian Red Cross is seeking $7,000 more before the end of the year, Judge E. H. McLean, county chairman, stated yesterday in giving a financial report.

With completed goods rolling into headquarters here from all parts of the county, Prince Edward women appear to be headed for a new record for number of articles completed in a year. Already, the number of quilts made in the twelve months of last year has been exceeded.

The monthly shipment made yesterday included 106 quilts, 180 pairs socks, 95 sweaters, 12 layettes each containing 35 articles, and a large quantity of clothing for women and children.

Axis Merchant Ship Exploded by Torpedo

Cairo, Sept. 11 — (AP) — Sand storms limited activity on the Egyptian battle front yesterday, although British artillery batteries on the southern sector lossed shells against the Axis forces of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, headquarters announced today.

An Axis merchant ship was exploded and set on fire by a direct hit of a torpedo-carrying aircraft Wenesday night the communique said, and a scout plane later sighted the vessel low in the water and apparently sinking.

Transient Annoyed When Asked For Registration Card

Police Court officials gazed in amazement following the remark of Frank McLarnen, Montreal transient, who appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd here today charged with failing to produce a National Registration card.

"Why, they don't bother asking you for registration cards in Quebec," was the surprising reply given by McLarnen, in reply to the charge read by Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson.

"We'll have to remand this man until he produces a registration card," ordered His Worship.

"That's a funny way to do business, you dont need one in Quebec, mumbled McLarnen as he was led from the docket.

KING SAYS CANADA STRONGHOLD STILL

The Prime Minister paid tribute to those countries which had resisted the Axis powers, including those which had been overcome. He did not believe their resistance had been in vain. If it had not been for that resistance, North America might have been invaded before now, either by Japanese forces from across the Pacific or by German forces from across the Atlantic.

"No one can say how long it may take to stay the power of the aggressor," he concluded. He must gather our full strength for a supreme effort. . . There will still remain the task of liberation.

"It is not alone to save ourselves that we must continue to fight. Freedom must be restored to those who have suffered so greatly. They have resisted the darkest forces of evil the world has ever known. Till these forces are totally destroyed, there can be no enduring peace."

Gave Much Assistance

"It was no exaggeration," Mr. King went on, "when Mr. Churchill (Britain's Prime Minister) told the world in September, 1941, that without Canada's war effort the resistance of the British Empire could not have been maintained."

Drawing a dark picture of Axis dreams of world conquest, Mr. King said "The forces of evil, incarnated in the Axis powers, are seeking to possess the world's soul, and to destroy the free spirit of man." He warned that "they will accomplish this evil purpose unless they themselves are totally destroyed."

Young Canadians had fought and given their lives "that the world's soul may not be possessed by the powers of darkness; that the free spirit of man may not be destroyed . . ." Many of them might not have been fully conscious of "How great was the cause for which they went forth to fight ... but something immortal had been stirring in their breasts. It impelled them to action.

"We think of them, one and all, as they truly are, a part of the chivalry of God."

Mr. King outlined the expansion of Canada's armed forces and the mobilization of her economic output since 1939. The Canadian army in Britain at the end of the year would consist of two complete corps, the second an armored corps. More than 500,000 volunteers were on active service in the fighting forces. In addition, more than 40,000 men were engaged in Canada in compulsory military service for the duration.

(Stalingrad, however, has none of the mountains natural barriers such as screened Sevastopol and probably has fewer fixed heavy fortifications. How many men Marshal Semeon Timoshenko has assigned to guard it is a question, but field dispatches have repeatedly reported them outnumbered.

Nazis Using 500,000 Men

(The Von Bock striking forces, estimated as high as 500,000 troops, apparently total twice those which Marshal Fritz Von Mannstein threw into the climatic Crimean campaign.)

While heavy defensive fighting and counter-attacks occupied the men of Stalingrad, street engagements raged on at the Black Sea port of Novorossisk, the Russians pursued mopping-up tactics in transriver fighting in the Terek Valley of the central Caucasus and the Red Army of the central front registered new gains, the Russians said. Captives were quoted as saying the German 360th infantry division was routed and that in some companies only 10 to 12 men remained.

Red infantrymen before the western gates of Stalingrad were reported to have repulsed three German attacks, destroyed six tanks and wiped out two enemy companies.

Soviet counter-attacks to the southwest were reported to have accounted for 400 Germans, 11 tanks, nine anti-tank guns and five trucks.

Forced to Resort to Siege

Red Star declared the Germans' original battle plan called for the quick capture of Stalingrad by an abrupt and deep stab into the Red Army lines. They broke through to a point from which they directly threatened the city's defence zone, but then were hurled back by a counter-attack, it said.

"The Hitlerite troops crawled to Stalingrad, breathing heavily and bleeding," the newspaper said, "and now are forced to resort to a siege of the city, which is even more exhausting for them."

The government said the Germans and Rumanians concentrated in the western Caucasus succeeded in pressing back the defenders of Novorossisk "and occupied several streets."

Wipe Out Rumanian Company

Soviet marines were credited with wiping out a Rumanian company and in this and other actions in that area yesterday six Axis tanks and an armored car were reported knocked out of action.

With Red army artillery cutting paths for the infantry, Russia's central front troops destroyed 25 Nazi blockhouses and nine dugouts and "broke into the outskirts of a large populated place," it was announced.

Shattered Nazi armor marked the path of Marshal Von Bock's assault upon Stalingrad from the west and Axis burial parties collected hundreds of dead on the rain-soaked steppes, but the theme of the midnight Russian communique was a simple declaration that "stubborn fighting continues."

(The Berlin radio claimed that a German corps had reached the Volga River north of the bomb-scarred arsenal city and enlarged its gains in the face of heavy counter-attacks.)

15 Nazi Planes Downed

Soviet airmen ranging over the Stalingrad front were declared to have shot down 15 German planes harassing Russian ground forces and destroyed or damaged about 30 tanks and some 100 troop and supply trucks in the last two days.

Defence troops destroyed four tanks and killed about 400 Germans during "engagements with varying success" west of the city, the communique said.

Reverses were announced in one sentence: "In one sector our troops after fierce defensive fighting evacuated three populated places."

A Nazi thrust at a Soviet-held town south of Voronezh, on the Upper Don, was reported frustrated, the routed Germans losing such equipment as 20 tanks, six motar batteries and 24 trucks.

Bearing Blows Alone Says Paper

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda insisted it still was possible to sop he Germans but commented: "It is necessary to take into consideration the fact that conditions of the war in the west—the lack of a second front in Europe—make it possible for the enemy to send almost all his forces against the Red Army and we alone are bearing the blows of the Hitlerite army."

The Red Star report that the armies involved before Stalingrad were the largest in any battle of the war implied that a total of more than 1,000,000 men was engaged, although neither the figures nor the relative Axis and Soviet strength were listed.

Presumably a constant flow of reinforcements has built the Axis forces to more than 500,000 men, aided by more than 1,000 planes and hundreds of tanks.

A total of 1,000,000 soldiers for both sides took part last fall in the battle of Moscow, which was previously the greatest encounter of the war.

Germans and Hungarians opened an offensive yesterday in the Voronesh sector northwest of Stalingrad in an effort to break off the Russian wedge in their lines on the west bank of the Don but Red Star said they gained no immediate success.

As an example of the ineffectiveness of the assault, the army Journal said 18 German dive-bombers heavily attacked one point and wounded only wo Soviet soldiers.

AUSSIES CHECK

Many green-clad Japanese snipers were said to have been shot out of trees by low-flying Allied planes which literally chopped off the tree-tops with the murderous fire of their machine-guns and cannons.

A spokesman at Allied headquarters said the area in which the fighting is centred is so rugged that not even pack mules could get through and that both sides probably are depending on native porters for supplies of ammunition and food.

Rains sweeping the heavily-wooded battle area more than 4,000 feet above sea level added to the difficulties facing the combat units.

Little activity was reported elsewhere.

AWAKEN!

Youth of today, where is your thought,
That ideal fire that history wrought,
Across some battlefield or sea?
Or in a winged monster free?
Or is today just but a day
That comes and goes, nor do you pray;
Nor can the sound of dreadful cry,
Awake your heart in sympathy?

Today the world is at the turn.
Its cross we can't afford to spurn,
We must raise up our spirits high
And take the path of victory.
It's narrow way is with us still,
But takes more strength to climb the hill.
God's right is might, and we shall win.
When through the holocaust we've been.

An Excellent Harbor

Majunga is the largest port in Madagascar and is the gateway to Tananarive, the island capital. It has a harbor capable of sheltering a considerable naval force.

Ambanja is important strategically because it is situated on the main highway running south from Diego Suarez, while Morondava virtually controls the southern end of the Straits of Mozambique, between Madagascar and the East African coast.

There are no harbors of any consequence on the east side of the island.

Gov't to Control Typewriter Sales

Ottawa, Sept. 10 (CP)—The Federal government has taken complete control over sales of all new typewriters, it was announced today, and no new machines can be sold to Canadian civilian users.

New typewriters in Canada will be reserved for the Canadian armed forces and armed forces of the United Nations in Canada. Dominion government departments related to the war effort will get new machines, but sales to industrial concerns on war work will be on a permit only.

Typewriters are in short supply in Canada the statement said, because plants of United States manufacturers have been converted to war work.

An order last May restricted manufacturers and independent dealers to 65 per cent of unit sales during the calendar year 1941, except with written permission. That applied to new, used and rebuilt typewriters.

The new order applies the same restriction to new, used and rebuilt "non-portable" typewriters and exempts machines more than 15 years old at date of sale.

AXIS CLAIMS SHIPS SUNK

Rome, (from Italian broadcasts), Sept. 11—(AP)—The Rome radio quoted dispatches from Tokyo today as claiming that a Japanese submarine had sunk a 10-000-ton British transport in Mozambique Chaneel between Madagascar and the African East Coast.

(There was no confirmation of this report from any other source.)

(The Berlin radio simultaneously broadcast a claim that a Japanese submarine had sunk "a British warship of 8,000 tons" in the same waters. It was not clear whether the two broadcasts were garbled versions of the same report or whether they referred to different incidents.)

United Church to Petition Prime Minister to Reduce Liquor Traffic in Canada

Delegation of Council to Report Before End of Session

FOR CONSCRIPTION

The United Church of Canada will ask for an appointment with the Prime Minister of Canada for not later than Monday, next, and through a delegation of General Council commissioners, present to the Government its endorsed resolution recommending a drastic reduction in the liquor traffic.

The delegation will be asked to present a report of its interview with the Prime Minister before adjournment of the General Council on September 18th.

The recommendation for liquor curtailment includes limitation of materials to breweries, distilleries, etc., restriction of beverage alcohol to two-thirds, or one-half the present rate as in tea and coffee; reduction of alcoholic content in beverages; banning of liquor advertising, and a Dominion-Provincial campaign of temperance education.

Presented by Dr. Mutchmor

The resolution to send the delegation to Ottawa was presented by the Rev. J. D. Mutchmor, secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service to the General Council last night after resolutions asking for the full support of a maximum war effort; evangelism; and the recognition of the right for collective bargaining had been placed before the body.

Liquor curtailment, national war effort and evangelism resolutions received the unanimous endorsation of the Council but a warm debate preceded a Council decision to refer the collective bargaining resolution to the Sessional Committee.

In support of a national war effort were recommendations calling for governmental control of living costs; maintenance of price and wage ceilings; inflation check and establishment of a pay-as-you-go wartime financial policy. Equitable sacrifice of all groups in the common cause and a Reformation doctrine that all things become common in extreme necessity be accepted by Church and State as a guiding principle was also recommended. Elimination of privileged positions or exemptions except for conscience sake was included in the recommendations.

Prior to the endorsation of the national war effort resolution, Senator Haig, Winnipeg, asked Dr. Mutchmor if it meant conscription for military service overseas.

"Yes," Dr. Mutchmor replied without hesitation.

With reference to mandatory collective bargaining the speaker recommended recognition of this right, and asked the Council to urge the government to give organized labor full and direct representation on all wartime boards, and to encourage the formation of joint management-labor war production committees in all war industries.

"Before you endorse this resolution," Senator Haig warned the Council "you want to be sure that as a church court that it is a moral issue and not a political one. There is no doubt about the status of the liquor resolution, but this is different."

Another commissioner asked the speaker if collective bargaining meant a closed shop.

"It means both an open shop and a closed one" said Dr. Mutchmor. He pointed out the advancement made in Britain through collective bargaining, also the United States.

"Collective bargaining means nothing but a closed shop," Senator Haig charged. "We had better step slowly before we follow the United States rather than Britain. The Church should not get involved in a political issue where no other issue is involved."

"If we pass this resolution then we condem our own publishing house," he said.

A motion referred the resolution to the Sessional Committee.

Twelve Homes Maintained

Outlining the future policy of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service and recommended to the Council, Dr. Mutchmor stated it would maintain its twelve homes for those "who have lost their way"; assistance to prairie family victims of drought.

The Church will continue its war work in connection with the Red Cross with the 1018 war service women's units comprising 50,000 church workers.

"The Board believed", Dr. Mutchmor stated, "that the utmost must be done to support ministers in the chaplain and auxiliary services".

Referring to the new world order to come, the speaker said "for the church to abdicate, to cut herself off from the state, to have no part in today's and tomorrow's problems would be to invite destruction."

"The policy of the Board is to set its face against the evasion of moral and religious responsibility".

Every section within the Church and the United Church working with other churches must do the task of seeking truth, and sharing in the building of the new world order.

Protection of the use of the Sabbath as a day of prayer will be included in the policy of the Board, the speaker said, "There is more to the Lord's Day Act than restricting shopkeepers' sales and curbing the running of trains".

Three-Fold Policy

With regard to gambling, intemperance, immorality and related matters the Board has a three-fold policy. To find out and set out the facts; to proclaim the moral imperatives in terms of Christian doctrine, and to do it boldly; to keep at it in season and out with governments, business and industry in every form.

Dr. Mutchmor deplored the fact, that the church in the field of social problems has failed to be clear in its policy, because sometimes of ill-information. It has been limited in its political wisdom. It is the policy of the Board to select three or four major items in the social problems field and to continue a study of these over a long period of time.

Dr. Mutchmor stated that the wisdom of the Board's policy on Social Security; Unemployment Insurance and Collective Bargaining and Industrial Organization had been proven.

Under Heavy Fire

During the Kirkland Lake strike the United Church report was under heavy fire. It was the basis of an excellent study, one that was the subject of heavy discussion by mining presidents, a member of parliament, and other officials. The report stood the test. The policy of having thorough work done on urgent, social problems is a sound one.

The Board believes, Dr. Mutchmor said, that today we are witnessing the extension of political democracy, in which men are demanding not only the right to vote but to work and live.

The relating of the Christian Social Council and the Canadian Committee of the World Council of Churches was the first moving step toward a Canadian Council of Churches.

Resolutions

(1) That the quantities of alcoholic beverages be severely reduced by the drastic limitations of all materials used by distilleries, brewers and wine makers.

(2) That the quantity of beverage alcohol released from bond and made available for sale and use be restricted at two-thirds or one-half present rate as in the case of coffee, tea, sugar, gasoline and other consumers' goods.

(3) That the alcoholic content of beer, wine and spirits be substantially reduced.

(4) That liquor advertising and the overseas shipments of all alcoholic beverages be banned forthwith.

(5) That the federal government call a conference of provincial authorities concerned to plan and inaugurate a campaign of education on modern scientific lines as to the nature of beverage alcohol and its effects on human life, such campaign to be carried out in all parts of Canada for enlisted persons and civilians alike. — Adopted unanimously.

National Effort

(1) The action of the General Council's sub-executive as well as of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service, as noted above, in full support of a maximum national war effort be confirmed.

(2) The federal government's efforts to control the cost of living, check inflation, maintain wages and price ceilings, and establish, as far as possible, a "pay-as-we-go" wartime financial policy be endorsed.

(3) The support of the United Church in any and all necessary undertakings to enable all groups and sections of our land to make full and equitable sacrifice in the common cause be pledged.

(4) A doctrine set forth in the Reformation period namely, "That all things become common in extreme necessity," be accepted by Church and State alike as a fundamental guiding principle in this tragic hour. Thus the United Church records its judgment that no national or racial group, no possessor or possession of wealth, whether of current or capital value and no physically fit person be accorded any privileged position or any exemption, except for conscience sake, in this hour of our grave and perilous national necessity. — Adopted unanimously.

Mandatory Collective Bargaining

(1) This Board urges the Government of Canada to recognize labor's right to collective bargaining by means of an act applicable to all industry, commerce and employment in any way connected with wartime industry, and service, with provisions for administration free from political control, for machinery whereby employees can choose their bargaining agency free from employer's control or interference, for making it mandatory that employers must bargain with the trade union so chosen, for investigation of fact and strict penalties for violations of the provisions of the Act.

(2) We urge the Government of Canada to give organized labor full and direct representation on all war-time control boards.

(3) We urge the Government of Canada to encourage the formation of joint management-labor war production committees in all war industries.

(4) It is recommended that the General Council endorse the action of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service as set forth in the preceding resolution regarding collective bargaining and related matters. — Referred to Sessional Committee.

General Council Highlights

Address by Secretary of Home Missions Rev. R. B. Cochrane, D. D., of Toronto. Dynamic "Bobbie" Cochrane as "R. B." is called said "that if he'd known what lay ahead in the 13 years he'd been in office he wouldn't have had the courage to face it. Depression and drought when 250,000 people were dependent on the Church for livelihood and existence. New work had to go by the board but he drew a graphic picture of the work being done under the Home Mission Board, which was mustering every resource to be true to the trust reposed in them. Saying he had met lots of criticism but had developed a thick skin, and believed he had the confidence and co-operation of the vast majority of the people. I don't think the United Church realizes what it owes to the ten District Superintendents of Missions, who cover the whole country and Newfoundland.

The Board of Home Missions is still ministering primarily on the frontier of Canada and that away back in Rebellion Days the first superintendent of Mounted Police had said that "One missionary is worth more than ten policemen today". "We'll have a new frontier for a long time to come", he said. "I don't believe that after the war this country will be left to its 12 millions." He got a lot of approval for the statement, that he was amazed at how little Eastern Canada knew about the West, Ontario isn't the only place in Canada". In telling of the various spheres of service across Canada he referred to Newfoundland as the "Gibraltar" of North America, and added pungently: "I wish Ontario had shown better sense than they did a few years ago when they sent to Northern Ontario people, who know less about farming than I do."

Coast to coast in isolated places the Home Missionary is ministering and "No church is doing as much as the United Church" .... adding. "Perhaps I shouldn't say that, but it's true".

"I get hot under the collar, when men here in the East speak slightly about men on the frontier" he said in a in a tribute to the frontier preachers. "These men are the equal of city ministers in character, scholarship, devotion and piety." Glad to hear Col. Ralston say that Canada needed morale. No institution in Canada does more than the Christian Church to steady the courage and give confidence. "Do wish the Government would show more evidence of appreciation what the church means in this time of war" (Applause, long).

800,000 engaged in war industry, greatest internal migration in the history of Canada. It hurts me in this Canada which has more non-Anglo Saxon than native Canadians that every one that has a little accent is suspected. I insist, he said, that in war as in peace, we must be Christians. There are those who think the whole non-Anglo Saxon work would be cut off. There are 22,000 Japanese in Canada, 6,700 of whom are members of the United Church of Canada in 22 congregations with Japanese ministers. Don't find fault with the Government but has insisted that

1. They ought to have the right to be ministered to by their own ministers.

2. And to be settled in families. They are Canadian born and have the right to stay here after the war. (Applause).

3. The only race that Jesus knew was the human race.

"If we don't be Christians now in Canada, how can we ever have a Christian world after the war." Spoke of ordination service last year at B.C. Conference at which Japanese and Chinese were ordained on the same platform. We can only hold Canada by the cement of love. He spoke of the extreme shortage of ministers and candidates for the Ministry. 75 candidates for the ministry have gone into the armed forces. The latest figures show need for 178 ordained ministers for churches without any at all. It keeps me awake at night, he said. In conclusion of his address, which has been described as the greatest of his career, he urged that the period of theological training be curtailed from three to two years; that a campaign for recruits for the Ministry be initiated, and that there be collective charges near cities that can be served from colleges.

He thought we were in danger of stressing intellectual religion too much. Must prepare ministers to deal with intelligenthia and common people, who "always heard Him gladly". We were losing to the sects because we lack the passing simplicity and the positive note they have. We will do well to copy them, he said. In one place there are 41 churches in 50 miles of which 21 were United Church. United Churches he said must continue to approach other churches. "We haven't yet learned to Christianize Christendom" if we had, there would never have been a war". Have to begin to talk up the Church. "I believe the United Church called of God for just such time as this. We need a revival of religion. If Christianity is not for us a consuming passion we are not Christians. Some things in Methodism I'd like to see brought back into the Christian Church".

Dr. Henry Van Dusen, since 1926 member of the faculty of Union Theological, College, New York, in which he now occupies the chair of Systematic Theology and Philosophy, began Friday morning a series of daily devotional addresses. He is chairman of the Commission to carry on the Ecumenical Studies in the field of Life and Work in preparation for the next meeting of the World Council of churches. In the course of an address on God and devotional life he said "The British families I met recently were never so unified, so happy, so stable. War has brought some benefits to family life. The result of the past three years is seen in truer and better homes in England."

Heavy Reduction Of Church Deficit In Past Two Years

General Council Asked to Wipe Out Remainder by September 30th

WAR SAVINGS PLAN

The United Church, through its war savings plan has reduced the church deficit of $1,692,142 by $742,504 wit pledges of an additional $146,500, in the past two years, the Rev. Denzil G. Ridout, National Director of the Church War Savings Plan told the General Council Thursday night.

To date, 30,000 individuals and congregations have bought war savings and certificates and loaned the money to the government.

At the end of 7½ years the money will be applied to the deficit.

The amount bought and pledged to date will on maturity bring to the church $1,111,504.

Mr. Ridout in a dramatic appeal, asked the assembled commissioners of the General Council to assume the responsibility of clearing up the remainder of the deficit in their own conferences, by the last day of September.

The Council demurred, and on motion agreed that every effort and influence would be put forth to see that the present war savings committees in the various presbyteries and conferences raise the balance.

"If the congregations represented by the commissioners here paid their allotments on the deficit in full another $225,000 could be raised at once.

Dr. E. Leslie Pidgeon, Erskine American United Church, Montreal whose church has raised more money by war savings means than any other in Canada said whether the Council agreed with the suggested method or not, the War Savings Plan is the policy of the Church and the Council must see that the deficit is wiped out.

Appeal Made for Kindly Treatment Of Non-Anglo-Saxons in Canada

Rev. R. B. Cochrane Says 22,000 Japs in Canada Members or Adherents of Church

CHALLENGE TO CHURCH

A highly stirring appeal for kindly humane treatment and tolerance of non Anglo-Saxon people in Canada was issued to the General Council of the United Church by the Rev. R. B. Cochrane B. A., D. D. Board of Home Missions secretary Thursday night.

Referring to the Japanese in Canada. Dr. Cochrane said of the 22,000 resident here, between seven and eight thousand were members or adherents of the church.

"In war and peace we must be Christianlike in our attitude toward these non Anglo-Saxons. The Communists brothered them long enough. Now the church must brother.

He knew of Presbyteries, that had cooled off in their interest in these New Canadians, since the war began, he said, and have even recommended closing certain church works on the excuse, that there was no money.

"The Church will follow these Japanese families wherever they go. Moving the Japanese families from the Pacific Coast was right and wise."

Urged to Show Christian Spirit

He urged the Council to show the utmost Christian spirit to those people, who have made their home here, "for I believe there will be a tremendous influx of immigration to Canada after the war."

"Don't think, that our 11 million people will be the only ones to live in this vast country. Our duties to the new Canadians are now bigger than ever."

"The Church," Dr. Cochrane said, "is under a tremendous challenge in its attitude towards these people and their problems." If we cannot stand the testing, God help the Church.

The shortage of ministers in Canada, the church needs 178 at present has brought a recommendation, that the eight United Church College reduce tuition from three to two years to speed up available men. He recommended a campaign in the church to interest young men to choose the ministry.

Serving on Frontiers

The United Church is serving on the frontiers of Canada, in fishing and lumber camps and in lonely lighthouse areas. Dr. Cochrane said in tribute to ministers serving in small places. No church is doing so much for people in the lonely isolated areas.

He pointed out the hardships being suffered by men and women in many agricultural areas. "I wish," he said, "that the Ontario Government had shown better sense some few years ago when it sent families ignorant or farming, to these co-called Labor Settlement Schemes."

800,000 people are now working in war industry in Canada, the greatest internal migration in the history of the Dominion. The church recently appointed the Rev. W. S. Fingold to devote all his time in this problem of the church which is intensified by war industry.

He praised the ministers who served in lonely isolated places. "They are the equal of men anywhere in piety. Devotion and character."

Difference in Two Years

Air supremacy has long since passed away from Germany to Britain. Two years ago Germans at home could smugly in their false security look upon the raids over Britain as the guarantee that the like could never happen in Germany. But it was just at this time that in the stern resolution of the Royal Air Force Hitler saw he could not storm Britain from the skies and withdrew. So few defenders of Britain performed deeds against so many Huns in that great month of September, 1940, when the first great check was suffered by the Hun.

In the intervening two years between then and now the outlook in the skies has changed. British air squadrons dominate the skies over Germany. Nightly many hundreds of tons of high explosive rend German communications, plants, harbors, so that the enemy might well ask in terror when would come the end of these air blows against Germany. Today in supreme power of planes and bomb-loads Britain's couriers ride the skies and spill their loads upon the enemy. Today the Russians too sweep in upon the skies over Germany and occupied eastern Europe and rain destruction on the Nazis and their captive states.

Many times the volume of destruction is done today on Germany that was done on Britain.

Britain expected bomb raids and was steeled from the start. But Germany never expected this transformation and what must be the morale of these Germans who foolishly felt secure in the lies of Hitler and Goering! These nights the Allied airmen bite deep into Germany ripping asunder her plans with deadly precision and timing beyond anything the enemy ever dreamed of.

World Conscience at Work

Prime Minister Churchill in his Common's speech Tuesday touched on a phase of the war which is of great interest. He pointed out there had been a danger which at one time seemed as if it might be a formidable asset to the enemy for after the fall of France there was "a possibility that Hitler might establish himself as a kind of Charlemange in Europe, unite the countries under his sway and persuade them that this country was responsible for all their woes.

"That danger has rolled away. Germany is more hated than any race has been since human records began." He explained: "In a dozen countries Hitler's firing squads are at work every morning and the dark stream of cold execution blood flows between Germans and almost all their fellow men. The cruelties, the massacres of hostages and the brutal persecutions in which Germans have indulged in every land into which their armies have broken, have recently received addition in the most bestial and most squalid and most senseless of their offences, namely the mass deportation of Jews from France with the pitiful horrors attendant upon the calculated and final scattering of families." This has filled mankind with indignation and astonishment and it "illustrates as nothing else can the utter degradation of all who lend themselves to these unnatural and perverted passions."

The hour of liberation which will come will be the hour of retribution, he solemnly warned as he particularly identified the British Government with the words of President Roosevelt that "those guilty of Nazi crimes will have to stand up before tribunals in every land where their atrocities have been committed in order that an indelible warning be given to future ages, and successive generations of men may say: 'So perish all who do the like again.'"

Since Mr. Churchill spoke there has come revelation of another crime in the step of Hitler to incorporate the Duchy of Luxemburg into the Reich. This action brought the first public strike in Nazi-held Europe, even in the face of threats of execution for strikers. Luxemburg is small, but it is rich in steel wealth, her people are brave and want nothing to do with the Hun and face death rather than yield their state to the treacherous enemy that overran it in 1940.

In all this resistance to the Axis is seen the working of the world conscience of democracy.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

THE SAGA OF JOHNNY ENGLISH

It happened away back in 1897. Jimmy Johnson, a struggling young sports promoter, strolled along a New York thoroughfare. Business was not so good and he could use a promising young fighter or two to bolster his string.

He entered a small tavern. In the dim, hazy light he discerned lounging figures of hangers-on of the ring slowly sipping beer at the bar. He walked to the bar and ordered a drink.

Suddenly an altercation rose at the other end of the room. A big plug-ugly remonstrated with the stockily-built young bartender. A fist whipped across the bar and landed with a dull thud on the bruiser's jaw. The plug-ugly sagged to the floor, out cold.

Johnson's eyes opened wide. He drew in his breath sharply. "Boy, what a sock," he smiled. Here was the answer to a fight manager's dream. He approached the unperturbed youngster, busily engaged polishing glasses.

"Not a bad punch you've got, buddy," he said. The young bartender smiled. "Think so?" he said.

Johnson leaned over the bar. "Ever do any fighting?" he asked.

"No."

"Like to? I think I can make a great scrapper out of you."

The bartender looked at him. His eyes shone with excitement.

"Do you actually think so?" he said.

"Sure," replied Johnson. "Come and see me at my gymnasium tomorrow." And he gave the bartender his card.

The young man went to the gym. For five months he trained during his off hours at the tavern. He made many friends at the gymnasium and his promising style and clean-cut punches indicated a future for him in the prize ring. He was known as Johnny English.

Then came the big news. His first fight had been arranged. The date was set. His friends crowded around him predicting an early victory for the hard-hitting youngster. Johnny English would knock the big palooka kicking in the first round, they predicted.

The big night came. Johnson and his handlers waited at the arena for Johnny English. They waited long, but Johnny English never showed up, nor did they ever see him again.

His boxing pals were disappointed. Then they became angry. They called Johnny English ugly names, such as "yellow," "a quitter." But Johnny never heard them.

Time went on. Fate was kind to Jimmy Johnson. Years passed and he became one of the most widely known sports figures in the United States. He rose to the top of his profession. He became one of the best known fight managers in the game.

He had forgotten about Johnny English.

Then one day he received a letter.

It was in a strange handwriting, one that looked vaguely familiar.

"You will remember me as Johnny English," the letter read, "and probably wondered what became of me. You must have thought I was a quitter because I failed to show up at the fight that night. To tell you the truth, my heart was not in fighting, nor in bartending. I was a writer and worked in and around fight places to get atmosphere for my book.

"I am in Washington now and would like to see you at any time you care to call on me. I would enjoy talking with you."

WINSTON CHURCHILL,
Prime Minister of Great Britain.

KEEP HER BUSY

"If ever you get married," I was once advised by a man of breezy common sense, "arrange it so that the honeymoon shall last only a week, and let it be a bustling week. Don't give her time to criticize you until she has got used to you. Give her plenty of luggage to look after; make her catch trains.

"The honeymoon is the matrimonial microscope. Wobble it; confuse it with many objects. Cloud it with other interests. Don't sit still to be examined. Besides, remember that a man always appears at his best when active, and a woman at her worst. Bustle her, my dear boy, bustle her: I don't care who she may be."—Jerome K. Jerome.

THE FUTURE

My son, if all men you would please
And live your term of life at ease;
If popular you wish to be,
A person all are glad to see,
Be very meek and do not look
Beyond the latest printed book.
From pioneering heartaches shrink
And never lie awake to think.

By custom most of us are curbed.
We do not like to be disturbed.
That two and two make four we know,
But past that have no wish to go.
We'd rather on old pathways stay
Than struggle for some better way.
We don't like thinkers who insist
On teaching us a truth we've missed.

But, son, if something urges you
To join the lonely, thinking few;
If far away you sometimes see
A way of life that ought to be
And cannot rest until you've moved
The race from ruts in which 'tis grooved,
Then shout and make your finding known,
But be prepared to stand alone.

Be firm! From scorn you mustn't shrink.
The many jibe at those who think.
Be brave! For brave that man must be
Who seeks to change society.
Old ways we love, and it is true
Not easily we'll turn to new.
Remember once the Master tried
And for His care was crucified.

In the Midst of War Dawn Breaks

New York, Sept. 11 — While we are all discussing the speech of the President on inflation, which dealt with the problem of how to restrict the purchasing power of the nation, and how to adapt ourselves to the scarcity of consumer's goods, revelations made at the meeting of the American Chemical Society in Buffalo unroll a prospect that is breath-taking.

They reveal that in the midst of war a new epoch is dawning, at least technically, which reduces the perennial causes of war to nonsense.

Any sensible person must agree fully with the President's insistence that we keep order in what remains of our civilian economy. The whole country, except for the shortsighted business agents of a few pressure groups—and not the membership of them—will back up his intention to use his Executive powers to stabilise all prices, if Congress fails to do so.

But if any so-called experts tell us that the next two or three generations will have to suffer economically as a consequence of this war, and that the restrictions of today will become permanent, then I direct their attention to the report of the American Chemical Society's meeting, and especially to the speech of Dr. Charles M. A. Stine, vice-president of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours industry.

Dr. Stine stated that, "under pressure of the necessities of war, the inconceivables of only two years ago are today's realities.

"American chemists are discovering new continents of matter and the world of 1940 has already become an antiquity.

"When the war is won we will have at our command ten to a hundred times what we had before in new materials.

"New and more versatile plastics. High-pressure syntheses of ammonia. Fertilizer of such capacity that the trends of agriculture may be changed. Glass that is unbreakable and will float. Wood that won't burn. Hosiery from air. Window screens without wire, etc., etc."

Dr. Stine said there was a condition for making the future world bright, and fantastically rich. That is "a victorious peace and the freedom of enterprise it should guarantee."

We will all accept this condition. In defeat all our efforts will be used to serve somebody else. And without freedom, the inquiring and critical mind that is capable of creating "new continents of matter" will be stifled.

But what is freedom of enterprise? Is it the freedom of enterprise that we had in the twenties and thirties, or the freedom of enterprise that we have today?

And where lies the difference between the two?

These inventions are apparently a sudden efflorescence. Nine months of war have passed, and decades of scientific development have been telescoped into months and weeks.

But no one can tell us that all this progress has come as a kind of apocalyptic revelation that burst on the minds of scientists with Pearl Harbor. Science is not like that; is is careful and methodical. Everything that has been brought out in the last nine months was there before, latent and unused.

Dr. Stine says, "The war is compressing developments." What does he mean?

He means that there is a social necessity that has to be met, regardless of profits, regardless of prices, regardless of competitors, regardless of traditional financial considerations. He means that the credit of the whole nation is available for the production of these necessities, and that the market for these necessities is assured in the people of the nation. He means that the whole of the production is keyed to the general welfare, the public necessity. And this is the new freedom that sets every scientific mind thinking, every inventor creating, every wheel turning, every hand working.

And so, suddenly we discover, in the time of our greatest crisis, that we have lived our lives away below our possibilities: poor when we might have been rich, unemployed when we might have been working, stupid when we might have been brilliant, stagnant when we might have been creative.

I don't know whether I rightly interpret Dr. Stine when I conclude from his report: Never back to the old freedom of enterprise.

On to the new freedom of enterprise. On to the new freedom that puts this fantastic, Promethean American production to work for the welfare of the whole American people, with surplusses for the peoples of the rest of the earth.

What we are doing now for the purpose of creating instruments of destruction we can do tomorrow to create a grandeur the world has never known, provided we have the intelligence and the morality to recognize that in the new world there is enough for everybody, and that the pressure groups who have bound the hands of the nation for reasons of personal or group profit are merely destroying themselves. There is only one great pressure—the pressure of the whole social necessity.

The President said in his speech that we must invest $100,000,000,000 next year for war purposes. Yes, we must. But a nation that can invest $100,000,000,000 in instruments of destruction in 1943 will be able to invest $180,000,000,000 in instruments of reconstruction in 1945, and enjoy the fruits of that investment instead of blowing them sky-high.

"We are discovering new continents of matter."

These conquests do not cost one life. These conquests are open to all nations of the world where there are human brains. Hitler, whose own scientists have, for the purposes of his war, also discovered "new continents of matter," still thinks he has to find new continents in the Ukraine, when they are in the air and in the elements that are all around him.

YOU'D BE SURPRISED!

By GEORGE W. STIMPSON

Protected, 1942, by The George Adams Service.

THE PIONEER

At 20 he tried to persuade the British not to fire on the mob and cause the "Boston Massacre."

He took an active interest in the colonial militia and as the proprietor of a Boston bookshop studied all available books on military science.

Henry Knox fought at Bunker Hill and in 20 days he hauled the cannon captured by Ethan Allen at Ticonderoga and Crown Point to Boston on sledges drawn by oxen and enabled Washington to fortify Dorchester Heights and compel the enemy to evacuate Boston.

After that he became Washington's best friend, most valuable adviser and constant companion.

Washington put him in command of the American artillery and General Knox and his guns figured conspicuously at Princeton, Brandywine, Germantown, Monmouth, Yorktown and many other important battles.

Knox was with Washington at Valley Forge and crossed the Delaware in the same boat with the commander-in-chief.

The commander of the artillery was a huge, fat man and tipped the scales at 300 pounds.

His wife weighed almost as much as he did, but this fact did not deter Washington from making her his favorite dancing partner.

At Yorktown, Washington chose Knox to receive Cornwallis's sword, but the commander of the artillery insisted that this honor go to General Lincoln, who had surrendered his army at Charleston.

While commanding at West Point he founded the Society of Cincinnati, an organization composed of the American and French officers who had served in the Revolution.

After Washington retired to Mount Vernon, Knox succeeded him as senior officer of the U. S. army, which had dwindled to 700 men.

From 1785 to 1789 General Knox was secretary of war in charge of both military and naval affairs.

Knox was bitterly assailed by the Jeffersonians because he favored a national militia composed of all able-bodied male citizens over 18 and under 60.

Knoxville, Tennessee, and Fort Knox, Kentucky (where all the gold is buried) were named after him.

By Kirke L. Simpson

With Stalingrad's defences slowly buckling under ceaseless Nazi frontal attack conjecture runs rife in the Allied world as to just what incentive is driving Hitler to demand its quick capture of his generals at all costs; just how its fall might alter the battle map of a global war.

Cold autumnal rains, certain heralds of Russian winter, have already fallen from the Vadai plateau Northwest of Moscow, where lie the springs of the Volga, to the Stalingrad battle zone at the head of the Volga delta 1,000 miles to the south. They are advance agents not only of the snows, bitter winds and subzero temperatures November and December will usher in from the Baltic to the Captain, but of pre-winter Russian floods in late September and October.

Seas of Mud.

Seas of mud and streams swollen out of their banks are no less a characteristic of European Russia's autumn climate before the frosts set in than they are of the spring thaw season. A glance back at Nazi war reports of last fall shows them eloquent with references to the part mud and flood played in slowing the German advance before snow and cold completely halted it.

It is clear that Hitler is desperately racing the calendar to turn the Stalingrad corner before it is too late. Yet it cannot be too often emphasized that Stalingrad itself does not discernably offer him strategic advantages to warrant the price he is paying for it. It is not conceivably a spring-board from which he could launch a new attack with any prospect of decisive results before winter closes in to halt his Russian march.

It is some other Nazi or Axis objective—of which Stalingrad is merely a symbol—which has produced that sanguinary battle. Russian estimates of German losses to reach the Don-Volga line and crash deeply into the Caucasus run very high, higher than similar German outgivings on Red casualties.

Whatever the actual Axis losses, to them must be added other damaging blows Hitler risked and suffered to arrive at the Stalingrad climax of his Russian campaign. Axis, not British, forces in Egypt now seem in grave peril. There are even rumors that Marshal Rommel himself has been or will be removed from command of the Axis Africa Corps.

It was primarily Hitler's inability to spare planes from Russia to aid Rommel that turned the tables in Allied favor in Egypt. That is one United Nation asset growing out of Russia's stalwart defence stand, but it is not all.

The aggregate damage done by sustained Allied bombing of German war industries, transportation objectives and troop centres in Nazi-occupied countries is beyond estimation. That, too, is largely to be added to the Nazi casualty score in the battle of Russia. Had Hitler's air power not been engaged eastward beyond withdrawal, its intervention must have limited the Anglo-American air offensive.

All of this Hitler risked to press the campaign against Russia. It does not seem worth the price in a military or any other sense unless it represents in German hands the achievement of some Axis pact that could bring aid to Hitler. And it is only from Japan in the form of attack on Russia that help seems possible.

That is the thought behind the conjecture of a Chinese spokesman at Chungking that Tokyo may be awaiting the fall of Stalingrad before attacking Russia. It is a conception frequently flirted with in other United Nations capitals to explain the Japanese retreat in China as well as Hitler's passion to possess the Volga city at all costs.

Choose Hats To Aid Beauty

A becoming hat is important to good looks.

By HELEN FOLLETT

CHOOSING A hat, one that flatters the features, requires some heavy thinking. A frumpy dress may get by, but the wrong chapeau will turn the prettiest woman into a caricature. We went through a period of crazy styles but now headgear has become more normal.

Among the diehards are women with fixed ideas. They get a notion that a hat of a certain shape is the only one they can wear; they'll have it if they search the town from store to store. Among those who make mistakes are the lean, long-faced women who select lean, high-crowned hats. We wish they wouldn't. A brim gives the face a little fulness, is kind to thin cheeks and pointed chin.

The direct opposite to this type is the woman with the round, fat face who invariably wears a round, fat little hat, making her countenance even more moon-like. A hat of larger dimensions with a medium crown will impart length to her face.

Wear Becoming Hats

Halo hats and those turned up in front were never meant for the poor dear whose good looks have faded, whose forehead has taken on irrigation ditches. She who goes in for these models should remember that if she did not try to look so young she would not look so old.

A hat should look as if it belongs to the wearer, as if it were saying, 'She and I are on good terms. I make her look attractive and she wears me with credit to the one who designed me". It isn't enough for a girl to like her clothes; her clothes should like her. If there is not a bond between them, garments and millinery lose their decorative quality. They're just dry good, nothing more.

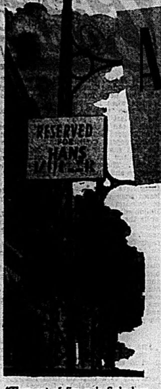
The pledge of the outraged nations

A NAZI ON EVERY LAMP POST!

The heroic living echo the cry for revenge that rises from graves of tens of thousands of victims of Hitler's butchers—what one woman SAW.

By JOHN PARKER

ILLUSTRATIONS BY JOSEPH KNEISEL.



"Three out of five male Serbs have already been killed. But they'll never surrender. They'll be first to be free. And every lamp post in Jugoslavia bears the name of the German who'll soon hang from it."—Miss Mitchell.

PRIMITIVE savagery let loose over the entire world cannot leave us untouched by the cold, gripping horror of a faceless sea of people facing—and meeting death in Europe every day. So some clue to what happens to our emotions, sharpened by the horrors of hate, have been brought closer by Miss Ruth Mitchell, recently escaped to her native land. She has ideas and ideals as did her famous brother, the late Brigadier-General William Mitchell—and can and will continue to fight for them just as hard. For months, a prisoner of the Gestapo, she was forced to look on torture and death. Deliberately drugged and often nearly starved, she dragged herself for thirteen months through eleven Nazi prison camps.

Never was she much further than a few steps down a bleak, stony corridor to a firing squad or a gallows. That is because she held secrets that the brutal Gestapo would have cheerfully torn her apart with sadistic glee to get—if they knew she had them. Definitely condemned once to death, she still kept her secrets. Most important, she brought them to America—one of them a vital secret. It reveals a hidden chink that may be fatal to the hated Nazi hordes now tearing the world apart.

Miss Mitchell, for more than a year, suffered because she not only admired a free and gallant people, but voluntarily and eagerly took a fighting place in their ranks. She was the first foreign-born woman ever formally enrolled in the ranks of the dreaded Chetniks—fierce guerilla fighters who waged underground war for 500 years against the Turks and finally won independence.

And now they are fighting the German and Italian occupation armies to a standstill. Eleven Axis divisions are still waging war in Jugoslavia—a force the size of the United States Army when World War II broke out.

"Serbia was the only country in the Balkans to win their own independence," Miss Mitchell pointed out to me. "And they will be the first to be free again. These courageous people, fully aware of the consequences and demanding help from no one, knew what they were doing when they went to war with Germany. By their heroism, they completely upset the German time-table for an invasion of Russia. History will find they shortened the war by two years."

How and why this can be done are some of the secrets Miss Mitchell brought back. They are being closely studied by military authorities in Washington.

When the Italians made their opera bouffe "blitz" on tiny and weak Albania—probably the only country in the world that still has no railroad—Miss Mitchell was in that country writing an official guide book for the government.

Mussolini's legions may have had more than a little trouble handling fighting Greeks and British desert troops, but they won, temporarily, a smashing and decisive victory over Miss Mitchell. They forced her over the border into Jugoslavia. She spent a year in Belgrade and then, knowing the Germans were to launch their armored fury, she joined the Chetniks.

Assigned as aide and despatch rider to the Chetnik general staff (although a young grandmother, she is a lean and hard rider) she knew the hidden plans for the guerilla defense of Jugoslavia. The underground patriotic fighters were well aware that many of their country's rulers had agreed to appeasement with the Wehrmacht. They were thrown out in a last minute coup d'etat—but too late for a strong military defense. The traitorous members of the cabinet had skilfully disposed dissatisfied and rebellious troops in sectors needing the strongest defense.

1—In a darkened hut outside the city, an old patriarch, wily Kosca Pecanac, tough and long a leader of the Chetniks, swore her into the secret band. "We just cross your name off," he told Miss Mitchell, "because we consider you dead when you become one of us. We may all be dead in a few weeks. I expect to die myself this time." In a heavily shadowed corner was a skeleton. "He was killed many years ago," said Pecanac. "His old mother has never heard of his fate. Every day she comes here to ask for him. I haven't the heart to tell her."

Furthermore, Miss Mitchell now revealed to me, the Chetnik intelligence had information that Hitler's blitzkrieg against Russia was definitely planned for March 16th. But the Jugoslav resistance was the monkey wrench in the Nazi war machine. The blitz when it opened in June—after the Balkan conquest—was too late. The Soviets had time to bring up strong Siberian divisions (and execute as many as 90,000 "fifth columnists" according to the grapevine information brought back by Miss Mitchell) and these three precious months really brought Winter on a gallop and undoubtedly SAVED Moscow.

Ultimately, the relentless Nazi war machine cut the country up into small pieces. Miss Mitchell was hopelessly caught in one of the pockets—near Dubrovnik on the Adriatic Sea. Fully aware of the inevitability of her capture and its possibilities, she coolly figured this might be her last chance to take a bath for some time—and she was actually swimming in the sea when the Gestapo captured her. Jugoslav resistance had collapsed—or so it seemed. But the Chetniks—and Miss Mitchell—all held the secret of how their country would fight on. Surprise was the important weapon. There would be no chivalrous nonsense toward anyone the Gestapo even slightly suspected of having knowledge of Serbian guerilla defense plans—plans that weeks later worked with savage skill to slaughter German and Italian garrisons in lightning raids out of dark mountainsides.

Her captors dragged Miss Mitchell back to a deserted hotel. A quick court-martial was arranged. But Miss Mitchell, in a brief moment allowed in another room, destroyed her confidential orders. Then by a curious twist, the very suspicions of the Gestapo saved her from torture—torture she was soon to witness.

"They thought I was a British agent," Miss Mitchell relates. She had married Stanley Knowles, an Englishman. Their son, a wing commander in the RAF, was killed in Libya during Miss Mitchell's imprisonment. "Of course I wasn't a British agent. I was in Jugoslavia entirely on my own. But I never had a chance—no defense was possible in the court-martial. I was condemned to death. But they did give me the small comfort of arrogantly telling me that "under certain circumstances it's an honor to be shot."

Berlin later ordered a reprieve on the death sentence. But she was safe only as long as she was suspected of being a British agent. All this time, General Draja Mihailovitch—according to the plans made before the invasion—was gathering his forces of remnants of the Jugoslav army.

Before dragging her off to the hopeless, dreary round of German prisons, the Chetnik grapevine brought good news. German troops were deserting in droves. In fact, bands of them had joined the Serbian guerillas to fight against the Nazi evil. And it was the kind of German troops deserting that is the secret Miss Mitchell brought back—the first, ominous hints of disastrous splits in Germany.

"It wasn't the older German soldiers who were deserting," Miss Mitchell asserts. "They know what a storm of hate and vengeance that have let loose. They know they must fight on, whether or not they like the Nazi Party and its aims. For them, it's swim, or sink.

"But it's the young and fanatical Nazi youths who are deserting. Their fanaticism made them at one time Hitler's best storm troops. And it was their 'idealism'—we think it is a perverted idealism—that made them such good and reckless fighters. But this idealism has been badly wrecked by the savagery and cruelty with which conquered people are massacred by the hundreds and thousands. For the first time, their eyes have really been opened to what Nazism really means."

All this time, General Mihailovitch was getting ready his storm of death in the mountains. And Miss Mitchell now saw clearly that her knowledge of these plans was her death warrant. And not a pleasant death. But long before her release from prison, the vengeful Serbs and later the Croats struck their oppressors with furious hatred. That lifted one daily fear of torture and death from Miss Mitchell. Time had been gained for the guerilla defense work as it had been planned.

In Germany, prisoners were divided by sex, but more refined torture was practiced in Jugoslavian jails. There, whole families were herded together in cells.

"For instance, all over Jugoslavia, signs have been posted warning the populace that anyone furnishing German soldiers with civilian clothes will be shot immediately."

In Munich, finally, the Germans pushed her around and actually spat on her. In jail, all the prisoners were drugged daily—it made them that more docile.

"It was put in our horrible acorn coffee. They could have put anything in it. We probably wouldn't have noticed it, the coffee tasted so horrible. But on some days, the jailers failed to stir it enough. On the bottom, would be the white sludge of the sedative they were feeding us. We would be in a semi-stupor all day. But the nights were more horrible. By then we would be hungry and wide-awake in our filthy cells."

In this war, Miss Mitchell estimates, three out of every eight males in Jugoslavia have already been killed.

At present, this spirit of independence will not wreck Germany. But our officials of psychological warfare are studying it. Some day it may mean the wreck of the Nazi war machine, Miss Mitchell believes.

After months of drugged despair and starvation in German prisons, Miss Mitchell's friends in America succeeded in putting up a strong fight for her release.

Finally, she was sent to an internment camp. There, she said, the packages of the British Red Cross literally saved their lives. In prison, the food had consisted of two bowls of watery gruel, with soggy bread as heavy as plaster-of-paris.

At last her case was settled. One day she was put aboard a sealed train and her next view was the welcome sight of Lisbon and the liner Drottningholm to bring her back to America. And like her brother, the Brigadier-General who died in the midst of his terrific battle for air preparedness, Miss Mitchell will never be licked, for she will never know when she is licked.

3—"Once in our cell at Belgrade there was a grand old man. The Gestapo thought he had some secrets. In his case they made him stand on red-hot coals. But he was a Serb. He kept his secrets. Day after day, prison doctors, to frighten us, would come into the cell and we had to look while they unwrapped the bandages from his charred, raw stumps. Some of the prisoners were young girls, and there were two or three expectant mothers. Not one flinched. The old man gazed at us thoughtfully and we looked back. Later, they stood him on the tortured stumps, shot him. He told them nothing except how a brave man dies."

4—Late in March, 1941, the Nazis started a subversive invasion by sending 150 Gestapo agents into Belgrade. But the wily Chetniks rounded them to a single man. Then on April 6th, the German war machine struck. Miss Mitchell came through the pitiless bombing of the "open city" of Belgrade and headed for the front. Steel-shod panzer columns ripped Jugoslavia in a storm of Summer lightning. Her job was to get through and establish liason with British forces, then attempting to fight their way up to Belgrade via Greece. They never came.

2—"They first sent me to the Belgrade prison. In our cell was a young girl, 17. The Nazis suspected her sweetheart was a Chetnik but this young girl would not tell where he had fled. Every day they would come and take her from the cell. Two hours later they would fling her back—beaten until her back was one great running sore. But every day she would join us in the line marching around the prison yard two steps at a time—our exercise. She held her secret and she held her head high. Then I was ordered transferred to an Austrian prison. On leaving I had a chance to talk to a German officer. I asked him how such a delightful girl could threaten the mighty German war machine. Coldly he told me, 'Even little kittens can scratch.' Then he looked casually at his watch and, after a moment, added, 'but she is no longer dangerous. She was hung an hour and a half ago.'"

Miss Ruth Mitchell Reaches U. S. Safely—

In this article is told, much in her own words, in an interview with a staff writer, some of the horrors she witnessed, and some of the tortures she underwent.

But in every land the spirit of liberty marches on!

Cardinals Move Into Brooklyn For Two-Game Series and Only That Number Behind Dodgers

Brooklyn Loses to Cubs While Cards Take the Giants

HUBBELL HURT

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National League's stirring pennant struggle assumes a new and even more vivid hue today as the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals come together for their final, fateful series.

They have met many times before, of course, but this time the situation is different and desperate for the Dodgers in spite of the fact that they still are in first place by two games.

If the Redbirds can beat Brooklyn today and tomorrow, they will be even with the Dodgers for the first time this season — and will move from Ebbets Field to Philadelphia with a great opportunity to grab the lead.

For while the Cardinals are tackling the tail-end Phils four times in three days, the schedule calls for Brooklyn to play only twice. Thus if the Cards are able to rout the Dodgers and keep on winning at Philadelphia, there is nothing Brooklyn can do to keep them from moving into first place, at least temporarily.

Control of Race Slips

That explains how control of the race suddenly has slipped from the Dodgers' hands. They let go of it with a humiliating 10-2 defeat by the Chicago Cubs in Brooklyn yesterday, while the Redbirds were raiding the New York Giants 5-1 across town at the Polo grounds. Howie Pollet, a jinx to the Giants, allowed only four hits and would have had a shutout except for Mel Ott's 27th home run in the seventh. It was his sixth win of the season and fifth over the Giants.

Before the game Carl Hubbell, who was to have pitched for New York, was struck on the head by a ball thrown in from the outfield by Stan Musial of the Cardinals. He was taken to a hospital, but an examination indicated he was not critically hurt. Hal Schumacher pitched — and lost.

Couldn't Concentrate

The Dodgers' couldn't concentrate on the Cubs because of thinking of the imminent adventure with St. Louis and consequently were shelled for three runs in each of the first two innings and practically smothered by the eight-hit hurling of old Lon Warneke. Arky Vaughan's second home run of the year, with one on, prevented a shutout.

In the American League yesterday both the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox were defeated, keeping the margin between them at ten games but reducing the requirement for the Yanks clinching the pennant to any combination of four New York victories or Boston defeats.

The Yanks were shutout by the St. Louis Browns 9-0 on the three hit pitching of Dennis Galehouse as Walt Judnich batted in five runs. The Red Sox were nosed out 5-4 at Detroit even though Ted Williams collected his 31st homer of the year and Dom DiMaggio also notched one.

White Sox Splits

The Chicago White Sox and Washington Senators split a twilight-night doubleheader. Chicago took the first 7-1 with Ted Lyons hurling seven-hit ball for his 13th triumph, then Washington won the night game 5-4 on Bruce Campbell's single with the bases loaded in the eighth.

Cincinnati beat the Boston Braves 6-2 for Paul Derringer, but the second game ended in a scoreless tie after nine innings in which Ray Starr pitched two hit ball. Pittsburgh beat the Phils 2-1 in 11 innings and then also had the second game end in a tie 0-0 for three innings.

Both of these no decision games now will be cancelled, since the teams are not scheduled against each other again.

SYRACUSE ACE HOLDS THE GIANTS TO SINGLE BLOW

Chiefs Will Now Meet Montreal and Bears Take On Jersey City

SCORE IS 2-0

By The Associated Press

The International League's post-season playoffs, set back twice by a tie in the final stands, are scheduled to get under way in part today when the pennant-winning Newark Bears meet Jersey City Giants at Newark's Ruppert Stadium.

The other half of the opening round in the Governor's Cup series to determine the league representative for the Little World Series will start tomorrow at Montreal, with the second-place Royals taking on Syracuse Chiefs.

Both series will be for the best four-of-seven games. The Bears and Giants will shift to Jersey City Sunday, while the Royals and Chiefs will go to Syracuse Monday, for the third and fourth games and the fifth if necessary.

Syracuse qualified to meet Montreal by shutting out Jersey City, 2-0, last night in a game postponed twice by weather. The added contest was made necessary when the two teams wound up the regular season in a dead heat for third place.

Charles (Red) Barrett, ace of the Syracuse mound staff, became the only hurler in the league to win 20 games when he held the Giants to one hit, a seventh-inning single by Sid Gordon. Barrett struck out five but walked six as he shaded southpaw Adrian Zabala, who yielded eight blows.

It was Barrett's seventh shutout of the season and his second over the Giants. In 23 games between the two teams, 14 resulted in shutouts, with the Chiefs holding the edge, 8-6.

FRITZIE ZIVIC CHAMPION OF RED COCHRANE

Welterweight Champion is Defeated by Former Holder in Ten Rounds

TO MEET ARMSTRONG

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Sept. 11 (AP)—Red Cochrane still is the welterweight champion of the world today, but there is no doubt that Fritzie Zivic is the champion of Red Cochrane.

Cochrane, on leave from the navy to fight for service relief before going on active sea duty, received a belt emblematic of the title at Madison Square Garden last night, but that was nothing to belts he took from the veteran Pittsburgh ringmaster in the 10-round bout which followed immediately.

As a result of his victory over the pudgy red-head, Zivic will meet another former welter king, Henry Armstrong, who is bouncing along the comeback trail after losing the crown to Zivic Oct. 4, 1940, and failing to regain it in a return match two months later. The bout probably will be held Nov. 6.

Cochrane Befuddled

Although carrying enough ballast to make his list as a result of the water he was forced to drink so he could come in over the 147-pound limit, Zivic ripped and slashed and thoroughly befuddled the tenacious Cochrane over the 10-round route to win as he pleased and gain revenge for the defeat 14 months ago that cost him the title.

The Associated Press scorecard gave Zivic eight rounds and the champion's two. Two rounds, the fifth and seventh, were taken away from Cochrane for low blows, but he lost the fifth by a country mile anyway.

It was a rough, mauling contest from gong to gong. Cochrane appeared slightly puffy and loggy, despite the fact he came in at 146 pounds to Zivic's 147 1-4, but he kept boring in continually, trying to loop wild swings to the body.

There was a little rough stuff on both sides, but neither man complained, and neither did the 13,259 customers who chipped in to the gross gate of $30,817. They thoroughly enjoyed every minute.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 — (AP) — It was bound to come, what with all these tales of coach-shortages that have cropped up since football began making the headlines this season, but Hal Sayles of the Abilene (Tex.) Reporter-News brings the first report of a college player-coach ... the guy is Arthur Wylie, a 235-pound tackle at McMurray College, who was drafted by boss man Jim Conger when no line coach could be located ...... Wylie will play his usual 50 or 60 minutes on Friday or Saturday and coach the rest of the week .... if Art pulls a boner, Sayles suggests there's only one thing for him to do — summon a sub from the sidelines and say: "Go in at tackle for that thick-headed Wylie. Won't he ever get what I teach him?"

Guest star

Tommy Tucker, Cleveland News: "I've been thinking over the remark of manager Lobert of the Phils that the Phils are so deep in the National League cellar because they tried too hard, and it sounds logical. It stands to reason no club could accomplish what the Phils have accomplished this year without a real effort."

Success story

When Clay McConnell, Nebraska racing man, decided to break up his stable at Thistledown recently, he sold all his horses but one — a four-year-old gelding named Washto .... no one would take a chance on a nag that couldn't win in 12 starts ... finally McConnell offered to give the hoss away, and the only taker was M. K. McCaskill of Cleveland ... a few days later McCaskill tossed Washta into a claiming race, borrowed a fiver to bet on him and the nag came home at $98.50 for $2 ... McCaskill, after collecting a $625 purse and $239.50 from the machines, still isn't looking his gift horse in the mouth.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Ted Lyons, White Sox, and Bruce Campbell, Senators—former pitched seven-hit ball to win first game and latter singled with bases loaded eighth inning to decided second session.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Sept. 11 — (CP) — It seems rather unusual that this year should produce more Senior football clubs in Toronto than the Queen City of the Banner Province (affectionate appellations provided at no extra charge) has had for years.

This year was to have been the one of the great football drought. On the contrary, it looks good for the sport. A few veteran fans gave up the game when Toronto Argos folded. Toronto Air Force may bring them back, because FO. Lew Hayman, the ex-Argo brain, will be operating with his usual sagacity at this new stand. He will have some of the Argos with him, notably Bill Stukus, one of the best quarterbacks in this country.

The ghost of the departed Argonauts will clank its chains along other corridors. Teddy Morris and Jim Palmer, stars on great Argos teams of the past, will coach the Toronto Navy Club. Other Argos players will be scattered here and there through the Ontario Rugby Football Union's six-club circuit.

The R. C. A. F. threat in the O. R. F. U. is veiled, so far. Nobody knows who its players will be. Until then, Hamilton Wildcats, the club Fred Veale coached into the eastern final with Ottawa last year, must be rated the club to watch. The great Al Lenard will be back in the Hamilton backfield. Kitchener-Waterloo probably will be stronger than last year, and may have some help from army camps in the district. This entry's strength is doubtful until extent of that army aid is determined.

The possibilities of Ottawa's three-team league have been minimized. This circuit will operate modestly as intermediate, but many of Ottawa Rough Riders greats of the past are still available. Somebody's trying to kid us with this intermediate stuff. But it is vital to the game to have Ottawa in, even if the bosses there wanted to call it a Sunday School League. Ottawa has produced teams consistently better than Toronto's best during the last few years.

The Quebec League may turn out well. The large number of service teams is encouraging, because most of our best athletes are in the services. There is no further word on the possibility that the Maritimes would be introduced to the game this year. Things look bad for football on the west coast, too. A chance in policy at Jericho Beach Air Station at Vancouver conked football on the head there. The Esquimalt Navy has the talent, but little equipment and no competition.

The Winnipeg City League, which will open its schedule next Tuesday, is most advanced in training and will produce a club capable of making a strong defence of its Canadian Championship.

There will be nothing but Junior Football in Saskatchewan and Alberta. So it looks from here as if the Quebec-Ontario-Manitoba Football Aligarchy rides again.

LARRY MACPHAIL DUBIOUS ABOUT TEAM'S CHANCES

GOING IN ARMY

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Brooklyn, Sept. 11 (AP)—Larry MacPhail, the magnetic mastermind of the Brooklyn Dodgers, says he doubts his ball club can win the National League pennant so it may be just as well that he was in Washington today while the St. Louis Cardinals set siege to Ebbets Field.

The President of the Brooklyn Club went to the capital last night to complete arrangements for his entry into the army—probably with a commission in the field artillery in which he was a captain during the first World War.

But before he left he witnessed the 10-2 debacle which his Dodgers dropped to the Chicago Cubs and it apparently made him even happier that he was marching off to war.

Anyway he was laughing as he declared to newspapermen "I doubt if my club can win it" and recalled the warning he had given his players three weeks ago that they would have to hustle harder to stay on top.

"We were 8 1-2 games in front," asserted the redhead, "but the club didn't look good. The manager wanted me to come down to the clubhouse and talk to the players, but I told him that I didn't want any starchamber sessions. I told him if he wanted to bring them up here to the press room I'd be glad to tell them off.

Told Not Near as Good

'So the players came into the press room, while they were 25 per cent ahead of last year in the standings, but that they weren't 25 per cent as good. Dixie Walker wanted to bet me $200 we would win by 10 games. They all thought it was going to be a breeze. They couldn't keep their feet on the ground and I told them I didn't think they could win the way they were going.

"Well, I still don't!"

It was evident that MacPhail, in spite of his ambition to pit his Dodgers against the New York Yankees once more for the world championship, was less concerned with the fate of the ball club than with his desire to get started on his army duties.

"As a matter of fact," he exclaimed, "I've been in the army for 10 days. But I've been arguing all this time to get assigned to combat troops. I'm 52 years old, seven over the limit, but I told them in Washington that I hadn't spent all these months taking off weight and getting into shape for nothing. I wanted to be sent out with troops and I think I'm going to get it."

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

TOM MAIN, DOMINION MANAGER for Ducks Unlimited, sounded out good news for district duck hunters when he announced this year's crop "tops the increase during the last two years", so local nimrods can prepare for an exceptionally good hunting season. Mr. Main's report explains—"this is the first summer during a decade that nature has given the ducks a break. The improvement in soil moisture and surface waters augurs well for duck conditions, while there have been no substantial losses from drought, flooding, fire or botulism recorded by Ducks Unlimited's 77 observation posts while the loss from predators have been exceptionally small this year". Already gun licences are ready for the new season but they do not sanction the carrying of fire arms in the closed season in district where there are game birds. In the Bay of Quinte area and south of No. 7 highway the duck season opens on Oct. 1st and continues until Dec. 15th this season. A limit of five birds a day and 25 for the season has been set for partridge.

THE HARRISBURG SENATORS in the Interstate League finished third in the final league standing and earned a play-off berth. According to a dispatch from the Harrisburg News Ralph "Highpockets" McCabe pitched two shut out games in the last week of the schedule, striking out nine against the Lancaster White Roses. The Senators are now in the Interstate League. Shaunneggsy plan playdowns, which commenced last night. McCabe is awaiting a military call from the Canadian government, but has permission to remain with the Harrisburg club until he is notified to appear for his medical examination, which he expects sometime next week. Taking into consideration "Highpockets" was out of the game with a torn ligaments in his right shoulder for three weeks in July he has racked up a worthwhile win and loss record with the Senators. Manager Danny Taylor, of the Harrisburg club, personally recommended McCabe to the Pittsburgh Pirates for a trial.

WHEN THE TWO MAJOR leagues produced seven shut-out games in one day last week, four in the American and three in the National, they tied a major league record that had stood for 34 years.

In 1908 there were seven shutouts, five in the senior circuit and two in the American. That earlier whitewash carnival was held on a Labor Day, and oddly enough, five of the shutouts were in the morning games. At that time they played morning and afternoon games on holidays at all big league parks.

Some great pitching names were in those box scores of 34 years ago. In the American League, young Walter Johnson of Washington defeated the then fading Jack Chesbro of the Yankees, 4 to 0, and Addie Joss, great Cleveland righthander, decisioned Big E Walsh, White Sox spitball king, 6 to 0, both in a. m. contests. The Braves and Dodgers exchanged 1 to 0 shutouts, Harry McIntrie of Brooklyn winning the morning tilt and Chapelle of Boston taking the afternoon affair. In the Cub-Red double-header, they also swapped whitewashings, Jean Dubuc of Cincinnati winning, 6 to 0, in the morning, and Andy Coakley of the Cubs was bracketed, 4 to 0, in the afternoon. The seventh shutout was the fifth morning kalsomining, George Wiltse, McGraw's great Giant lefthander, turning back the Phillies, 5 to 0.

BOTH JOHN KATAN, THE "Calgary Eye-opener" and Earl McCready, the powerful Regina wrestler, are westerners and both have held the British Empire heavyweight wrestling crown previously. Both have stampeded through Australia on wrestling barnstorming tours while holders of the Empire crown and both are anxious for a shot at "Whipper" Watson's crown. We had a fanning bee with Jerry Monnahan, who was here on a busman's holiday Wednesday, and the former Masked Wolf doesn't hesitate to say that McCready is one of the best heavyweight wrestlers in the world, but he also predicted that the wrestling patrons will see one of the best bouts yet staged at the Hume Arena when Katan tangles with "Big Earl". Later the subject changed and we asked Monnahan what chance he would have in a mixed bout with Joe Louis.

"I'll put any wrestler that appears on next week's card in a bare room with Louis and bet you any amount of money you can count that the wrestler will beat Louis," convincingly argued Jerry.

REMEMBER WHEN CHALKY Wright, veteran Los Angeles negro mittster, knocked out Joey Archibald in the 11th round at Washington one year ago tonight to gain the New York and Maryland states version of the featherweight boxing championship of the world. Generally recognized at champion, Wright once served as sparring partner to Henry Armstrong, a previous titleholder.

LEO DUROCHER AND FRANKie Frisch fought continually when they handled the work around the St. Louis Cardinals' keystone sack as shortstop and second baseman respectively. Yet, when Durocher was asked if he thought Joe Gordon was the greatest second baseman in history, he replied: "No, indeed. The greatest was Frisch. That guy could do everything. He could run like a thief. Hit? Anything and anywhere and any time against anybody. Never made a mistake."

Looks as though the Niagara district pucksters are planning to give Hamilton and Toronto the well-known "business" when it comes around time to organize a senior "A" group in the O. H. A. The system to be employed is an ancient one, they'll increase their own numbers and say "there isn't room for any more". The latest creation comes out of Port Colborne with a suggestion that Buffalo, N. Y., be admitted into the senior "A" ranks of the O. H. A., thus giving the Niagara loop a four-teamed set-up of Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Port Colborne and Buffalo. Why the Hamilton Tigers are left out in the cold isn't so mystifying — didn't they run rough-shod over the Niagara District pucksters in the O. H. A. last season? Now what happens to clubs like Toronto, Hamilton and even Kingston if those clubs are desirous of carrying on?

THIS AND THAT—Ted Schwab, former prexy of our city ladies' softball loop, takes us to task for intimating summer sports are "all washed up in Belleville" ... Ted says the girls' league is still functioning, but admits they were "washed up last night" ... looks as though Chuck Barnett and Leo Barrett missed the mail when they didn't play the fourth game of their finals on Labor Day ..... Chuck wants to play Saturday evening, while Leo suggests Monday and with President Don Roe having moved to Kingston, maybe they'd better settle to play off at the Mohawk Fair ... The Cardinals gained a full game on the Dodgers yesterday by whipping the Giants, while the Cubs mauled the Dodgers 10 to 2 and now "dem bums" are only two games afront in the senior circuit ... Yesterday Carl Hubbell was to have pitched for the Giants, but outfielder Musial of the Cards, conked him on the noggin with a thrown ball and Hubbell retired to the dressing room for remical aid .... They're planning doubleheaders in the Senior O.R.F.U. at Varsity Stadium for war times .... No socks.

Fires, burning in this region, and being fought by local fire fighters, died down quickly since yesterday and the men were relieved of their task.

Little Benny's Note Book

I took a walk out to the park with Puds Simkins and Shorty Judge, and there was a bunch of little kids out there listening to some lady talking to them about birds, saying, And now we've seen sparrows and robins and blackbirds, and perhaps if we're lucky we'll see a humming bird. The humming bird is one of the smallest and fastest of all the birds, and can fly in any direction it wishes, even backwards, because of the quickness of its wings, and let's all hope we see one so we can tell our mothers and fathers about it. Now I dont want anybody to stray too far while I go and help unpack the lunch, she said.

And she went away and I said to one of the kids, Hay, what's the idea of going around with a teacher during vacation? and the kid said, It's just for birds and things, this is Miss Hopple's Vacation Nature Claks.

Well good night if you want to know about birds why dont you ask us, we're bird experts, aint we, fellows? Puds Simkins said, and Shorty Judge said, Sure we are, we know all about every bird that was ever invented. Holey smokes look at that big snitzerhoffer way up there? he said.

And he pointed up in the air and the little kids claimed they couldn't see anything, and Shorty said That's because it's just the color of air and it takes an expert to see it. We can all see it, cant we, fellows? he said, and me and Puds said, Sure, and I said, Look at it flying on its back, it's the only bird can fly on its back when it wants to scratch its stummick.

Look at it blowing smoke rings. Shorty said. It blows smoke rings in the shape of clouds and then hides behind them to make itself still more invisible, he said, and Puds said, It's the only bird lays square eggs so they cant roll out of the nest. Hay here comes your teacher back, dont forget to tell her about the snitzerhoffer, he said.

And we quick kept on going so fast we couldn't hear whether they told her or not.

"The Return of Daniel Boone"

Described as a hair-raising action-packed western thriller, Colummbia's "The Return of Daniel Boone" now showing at the Capitol. Starring Bill Elliott in the title role, the film tells the story of Daniel Boone's stirring fight to rout the desperate outlaws from Pecos, small western town on the road to Tucson. Supporting players include such action favorites as Walter "Dub" Taylor, Ray Bennett, Walter Soderling and Carl Stockdale. Pretty Betty Miles is seen in the romantic lead, while the famous Rodick Twins round out the talented cast.

AT THE McCARTHY

Abbott and Costello

Again last evening the McCarthy Theatre was jammed to capacity with an audience that continuously roared with laughter at the feature presentation Abbott and Costello in "Pardon My Sarong." This outstanding attraction is playing the entire week and is highly recommended to all who desire to enjoy a big laugh. The balance of the program is made up of an outstanding array of short subjects. Saturday the performances are continuous and during the afternoon the closing chapter of "The Adventures of Captain Marvel" will be presented.

AT THE BELLE

"Hatter's Castle"

A. J. Cronin, the man who wrote "The Citadel" gives you a story every inch as great as his greatest in "Hatter's Castle" featuring Robbert Newton, now on the Belle Theatre screen.

"Beyond The Blue Horizon"

Local movie fans can lock forward with certainly to a film combing thrills, laughs and melodies when "Beyond the Blue Horizon," Paramount's new technicolor jungle film settles down for a run this week end at the Belle Theatre.

That's pretty evident, because Dorothy Lamour is in it, and when Dotty appears in a jungle film, attired in a sarong, it's inevitable that there are going to be some spine-tingling adventure scenes, comedy and new tunes.

Dotty's starring role is bolstered by a top-grade cast including Richard Denning, the sarong-girl's new jungle romance; Jack Haley, the comedian; Patricia Morrison, Walter Abel, Helen Gilbert and Elizabeth Patterson. A new tune that Lamour introduces is "A Full Moon and an Empty Heart."

The villian of the piece this time is a man-killing elephant whose stamping around is the jungle spot where certain papers have gone lost which would prove Dotty heiress to a fortune in the United States. The elephant had killed Dotty's parents, leaving her orphaned in the jungle, with a friendly tiger as protector. When she's grown up Dotty comes to "civilization" but returns to the jungle with Richard Denning, Abel, Haley and Helen Gilbert to retrieve the papers.

Few other stars have been as consistantly a favorite as Dorothy Lamour. This is her twenty-fourth picture. Its got to the point where no movie season can be called complete without a Lamour starrer.

Dotty's most recent picture before "Beyond the Blue Horizon" was that swingy tale of our bluejackets on shore leave. "The Fleet's In." Dotty's cavorting in that one and her singing of several hit tunes are still sweet in our memory. Just before that we saw Dotty bedecked in a sarong, providing us with excitement, comedy and melody, in "Aloma of the South Seas."

The Belle Latest World News Events, "Vitamin Hay" a funny color cartoon, a funny Robert Benchley comedy "How to Take a Vacation" and "Women are Warriors" a timely Canada Carries on film will be exhibited on the same program. Chapter ten of the popular "Sea Raiders" serial completes the program.

Continuous shows will be presented on Saturday.

HEALTH CHATS

Various Substances Relieve Fatigue, But Rest is Best Antidote

When men carry out heavy, tiresome labor, it is common to give them salt. Salt capsules are available in most mills where men work under fatiguing conditions. This salt replaces the salt used up and carried off from the body, as occurs with excessive perspiration. Other substances are used to relieve fatigue. Sugar, meat extracts, even alcohol in small quantities, have been found helpful.

What a man thinks about his own condition has a lot to do with whether or not he feels tired. A man may feel tired because he thinks he has done enough work. It is for this reason, perhaps, that when a stimulant is given the feeling of fatigue may be overcome.

In overcoming fatigue three things may be done. One group of treatments delays the feeling of exhaustion; another hastens recovery from fatigue, and the third dulls the sensation of fatigue. The measures which delay exhaustion include the use of various food substances. To hasten recovery and dull the sensation of fatigue, drugs are sometimes employed. Of course, rest is the one cure for fatigue.

The taking of sugar is thought to produce immediate benefit in exhaustion by raising the amount of sugar in the blood. When the amount of sugar in the blood becomes too low some effect on the brain occurs which helps to produce the feeling of exhaustion. Lowered blood sugar may be brought on by exhausting and prolonged exercises.

Meat extracts had a reputation for usefulness in restoring vigor in exhausted persons. It would appear that they do have some effect in stimulating the action of the lining membrane of the stomach and thus improve digestion in a person who feels too tried to eat. An emergency food made up of sugar or meat mixed with fat is a handy substance, but diet in itself does not seem to have any direct effect on improving the activties of an exhausted person. On the other hand, if a person is to remain physically fit his diet must, of course, be adequate.

Various food substances have been suggested to improve a person's ability to carry on physical work. Among these are gelatin, vitamins, alkalis and phosphates.

Some experiments carried out indicated that the amount of work a person could do might be increased by giving tablets containing sugar, vitamins B-1 and C and miacinamid. However, these experiments have not been confirmed.

Such drugs as caffeine and amphetamine apparently do have some value in relieving the feeling of fatigue but of course, these preparations should be used only as the physician directs and only as an emergency measure. Caffeine delays the onset of fatigue and has a stimulating effect on the nervous system. Amphetamine produces wakeulness and mental stimulation.

It would appear that in the prevention and treatment of fatigue, the providing of adequate rest, and a well-balanced diet are the most important measures. It is only in cases of emergency that drugs ought to be employed.

IMPOSSIBLE?

Axis sources boasted that a floating drydock that they had sunk at an Egyptian port would "never be raised." Capt. Edward Ellsberg, U.S.N., confounded them by raising the drydock in record time. He is remembered for his salvage work on submarines that sank off the Atlantic coast some years ago. Here he is pictured in an official auto in Egypt.

Two Foto-Nite offers of $175 and $50 failed to be claimed at the McCarthy theatre Thursday evening when the persons whose names were called did not respond. Had Mr. TThomas E. Hyland, Coleman Street, been in attendance at the theatre he would have been the winner of the first offer of $175, while Miss Francis Inwood, South Front Street was called for the $50 offer.

Winning numbers in last night's Foto-Nite contest were decided by the approval of the audience to four vocal numbers by local youthful artists while prior to the amateur contest "Oklahoma Slim" favaured as special artist with guitar and harmonica numbers.

UNCERTAIN DESTINY

CHAPTER 23

Brenda Acts

"Of course." Greg had a fear of unfavorable comment. He named the place and time, and Linda replaced the telephone on its cradle with a sinking heart. There! It was done, and there was no undoing now. Soon everyone would know that Linda and Greg were seeing each other. Then Steve could have his divorce and Brenda would be his once more. Linda dismissed Jerry Coleman's statement that he would never free Brenda. Knowing the blonde beauty, Linda was sure Brenda could have anything she made up her mind to possess.

Linda's face was white and drawn, her eyes anguished as she turned slowly from the telephone. Then she stood stiffly—staring into the hard unrelenting face of Steve Baridon. One glance assured her that the conversation with Greg had been overheard, and Linda was suddenly glad. She wanted to hurt him for breaking her heart.

"To whom were you talking on the telephone?" he demanded.

"Really, Steve. That should be fairly obvious."

"Since when have you been in the habit of making engagements with other men in my home?" Steve was white with anger. Scarcely knowing what he said, he raged on until Linda cried out:

"Don't you think you're carrying the irate husband angle a trifle too far? As I recall, our marriage was purely a business agreement and our lives were to be our own. I—I haven't asked you any questions about Brenda Coleman although I know you've been seeing her and now you shan't interfere in my affairs."

"Seeing Brenda?" He was puzzled.

"I saw you today, having luncheon together when you were supposed to be in New York. "Linda suddenly wished that she could recall her words. Better that Steve wouldn't think she was jealous.

"I can explain that," Steve said easily. "I got a long-distance call, telling me the conference had been postponed. I called the station, but they said your train was already in, and I just happened to run into Brenda on the street, so—"

"I'm really not interested," Linda snapped.

Steve stared after her retreating figure until Linda had vanished into her bedroom, and the door slamming in his face was apparently the cue for him to sink wearily into a chair, his face buried in hands that trembled.

In the seclusion of her room, Linda cried heartbrokenly into her pillow. "What if Steve had been telling the truth? But no. It was too fantastic. Too glib an explanation. There had been tenderness gentleness in his face as he lunched with Brenda in that secluded spot.

"I'm sorry, Steve. I didn't mean all the nasty things I said."

For a moment he looked at her, seeing the shining evening gown topped by a silver fox jacket, then his eyes moved slowly upward to her face and Linda was taken back by the cold indifference stamped on her features. Any warmth and understanding his eyes might once have held was gone now. Linda knew with certainty that he would never again see her as she really was, but as the woman she pretended to be.

"It's almost over—the adventure," she whispered to herself, steeling her nerves for another attack of bitter words. Instead, Steve's voice was overly polite. He seemed to be talking to a stranger.

"There's no apology needed," he assured her. "I understand your position and you should be happy to know that your—your bondage ends in a few more months—three to be exact. Then you will be free to choose your own course."

"Bondage? Freedom?"

"Of course. Our contract called for twelve months of marriage. At the end of that time—"

"Steve," she broke in, casting her pride to the winds in one last attempt to make him understand. "I want to tell you that I——"

The telephone's shrill ring interrupted her. Automatically Linda lifted the receiver to her ear, with Steve looking at her, Linda's expression changed from one pleading to hardness.

"Is Stevie there?" a familiar voice was saying.

Linda handed him the telephone. She turned and left the room; left the apartment; left unsaid the things which might have cleared away all doubt and misunderstanding and paved the way to marital happiness for Linda and Steve.

Linda awakened the next morning with a feeling of depression. Her heart was heavy and she tried desperately to forget all that had happened the night before. But the remembrance of Steve's bitter words could not be cast aside. they remained, a wound in her heart.

Greg had proved to be an amusing companion. Dancing at Chicago's most famous roof garden, Linda had tried to share his banalities, but unsuccessfully. Yet if Greg knew something was amiss he gave no sign. At last, when Linda could no longer stand the noise and gaiety which seemed to revolve around he" she had said pathetically:

"Will you take me home please, Greg? I'm not feeling very well".

"Your trip must have been too much for you", Greg said gently. All in all he was a different person from the supercilious young man whoes stay in Prairievale had created so much excitement. His every thought now was for Linda's comfort, and although she could feel no respect for a man who had caused her such heartbreak, still she admired his determination to win her favor.

Greg had made no move to take her in his arms when he stopped his car before the apartment house That, too, had been a surprise, but she supposed Greg was bidding his time, awaiting the proper opportunity.

"Good night, dear," he whispered tenderly, not knowing how Linda revolted against those words. Still she had nodded and smiled, and hurried away.

Passing the library door, she saw the narrow strip of light that indicated Steve was still awake, and Linda hesitated, yearning to enter the room. Inside the study, Steve sitting hunched over his desk, lifted his head expectantly at the slight sound. his attitude one of watchful waiting.

Then came the sound of footsteps retreating, the soft rustle of silk, and the almost undistinguishable click as Linda's bedroom door closed after her, and the vital moment was passed. . . .

Until dawn Linda had turned and tossed restlessly, trying to forget all that had been said. Then, at last, she had slept.

Ellen appeared shortly after Linda had awakened, bringing a breakfast tray and the morning paper.

"Where is Mr. Baridon this mornihg?" Linda asked automatically.

"I don't know, Madam", the maid was apologetic. "He left early without saying where he was going. He looked—worried, if you'll perdon me for saying so".

"Is something wrong, ma'am?" Ellen asked. You're white as a sheet and trembling so!"

Linda could not tear her eyes from the page. There was Brenda's picture—a picture obviously taken on her honeymoon. Across the page were the words:

SEEKS DIVORCE FROM WEALTHY MANUFACTURER

Linda's senses reeled. Her first thought was disbelief. Jerry Coleman had been so positive in his declaration that he would never free Brenda. Linda was reading on avidly. Brenda was flying to Reno to obtain her divorce decree. Jerry, after admitting the break, had locked himself in his mansion and could not be reached. It was true!

Linda flung the papers down and tried to collect her thoughts. Her own troubles were forgotten temporarily. She dismissed Ellen and found the telephone number that would reach Jerry. She was not sure what she would say to him if he could be reached. He had been kind to her. Now she could be equally considerate.

"Tell him—tell him it's Linda Baridon calling".

She waited anxiously, to hear Jerry's voice over the wire at last. Jerry sounded harassed and uncaring, and she said impulsively:

"I've just seen the papers, Mr. Coleman. Is there anything—anything I can do or say that will help?"

She heard his quick intake of breath before he said pitifully, "I'm afraid there's nothing anyone can say now".

"Jerry, why did you do it?" Linda held her breath. What would he think of her brazen attitude in calling—a near stranger—in times such as these facing Brenda's unrequitted husband?

"I . . . had no choice", he was saying agonizedly. "I told you once how much I love Brenda. I couldn't refuse her anything I knew would make her happy—even freedom. Can you understand that, Linda?"

"Yes", she answered dully. "I understand—perfectly".

She had scarcely hung up the receiver when the telephone rang, it was Steve's sister, Mary. Her voice was filled with anxiety. "I just saw the morning papers, Linda, and I'm numb with shock", she said.

"I—I am, too".

"I didn't think it would come so quickly, although naturally I never expected them to live happily ever after; but it hasn't been even a year!"

Linda said nothing. The last few month had been like a lifetime to her. Perhaps they had seemed equally long to Brenda, and how could she condemn a step that she, too, was about to take?

"Phil and I were wondering if you wouldn't like to spend the day with us. We're going sightseeing—to the zoo and the planetarium."

"No, thank you, Mary. I'm going out to the farm. Mrs. Delaney says they're having trouble with sightseers out there, and—" she groped for a plausible excuse. To revisit the places she had been with Steve would be to open an old wound, to recall happier days. The plan to visit Hillsacres had been born in that very instant.

"I—understand", Mary answered quietly. "Some other time, perhaps?"

"Yes. Some other time."

Packed for several days' stay in the country, Linda called Ellen to her bedroom.

"Tell Mr. Baridon when he returns home that I've gone to the farm for a few days. He can reach me there".

Ellen was puzzled as she watched Linda leave the apartment. She thought she had never seen her mistress so dejected before, and Steve Baridon was like a stranger around the house.

6 SETS OF TWINS AT SCHOOL

Vannuys, Calif., Sept. 11—(AP)— Teachers rubbed their eyes as they greeted pupils the opening day of the Vannuys elementary school. There were six sets of identical twins. Two other sets will be there later.

Plainfield Youth Pleads Guilty To Charge of Theft

"Maybe if we enlarged this matter for sentence for a couple of weeks, restitution could be made," suggested Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K. C., after Keith Dunning, 17-year-old Plainfield youth, had pleaded guilty to a charge of theft by conversion, when arraigned before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in County Police Court here on Thursday afternoon. The matter was enlarged for two weeks for judgment.

Dunning was charged by Provincial Police that he did find a wallet, the property of Horace Law of this city, and keep the contents, consisting partially of $107.00. When apprehended by police authorities here $20.00 is said to have been missing. Dunning promised to make restitution if given the opportunity. He found the wallet near Latta, where Mr. Law lost it while fishing last Sunday.

Committed to Institution

Lorne R. Patrick, Frankford, was committed to the Ontario Hospital after evidence was heard in an assault case preferred against him by his wife. "It is evident this man needs medical attention," suggested Crown Attorney Donnan upon viewing Patrick's nervous condition. His Worship did not hesitate in committing the mentally-ill accused.

Couple Found Guilty

Magistrate Lloyd handed down a judgment of guilty against Harold Garrison and Clara Townsend, who were convicted under the leasing section of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Charles A. Payne K. C., appearing for the accused, held they had not violated the law, as the matter pertained to the renting of a farm. S. Gordon Robertson, special government prosecutor, pointed out it made no difference, rents had been raised. Fines of ten dollars and costs were imposed in each case. Evidence had been heard in a previous court.

Civilian Defence Committee Formed By City Council

The City Council in committee on Thursday evening named the personnel of the Civilian Defence Committee for this city, which included, Chairman Mayor Glencoe E. Thompson, Vice Chairman Major Harold Seldon, and Members, Chief William Lynch, O. H. Scott of the Utilities Commission and Doctor Sam Cronk, Medical Officer of Health. This action was taken in compliance of a letter received from the chief Civilian Defence Committee of Canada.

The recommendations of the auditor, F. A. R. MacFadden, under general remarks, page five of his report to the end of June, 1942, will be acted upon and that the Utilities be asked by the Treasurer to definitely "earmark" just what that $15,000 in bearer-bonds placed in the custody of our Treasurer represents. Comptroller Bateman will be added to the Bridge Committee that will wait on the Municipal Board on September 15th, in reference to the request of the City Council to increase that amount that may be debentured for the new footbridge, and that the same committee take up the matter of the Dufferin Street sewer.

Purchasers of City property will henceforth be required to complete their agreement with respect to building within the time specified in the agreement according to a recommendation passed at the meeting. The City Clerk was ordered to advise all purchasers of this fact and if the agreement isn't lived up to with respect to building the lots will be returned to the city.

Sgt. Obs. J. P. Evans Reported Missing

Word was received by relatives here announcing that Sgt.-Observer James Spencer Evans, son of Mrs. Mabel and the late James Evans, had been missing during operations since July 28th. Sgt. Evans took part in one of the recent heavy R. C. A. F. raids over Germany but failed to return to his base and is listed as missing along with other occupants of his plane.

Sgt.-Observer Evans joined the R. C. A. F. in February of 1940, graduating from the Jarvis Observers' school. He was first stationed at the No. 1 Manning Pool Depot at Toronto, later being transferred to Dunnville and the I. T. S. base at Eglington Heights.

Sergeant Evans attended Queen Alexandra School here and graduated from the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School before accepting a position with the Agnew-Surpass shoe store here. He has a brother, Alfred Evans, residing at Foxboro.

INDIAN GOV'T SAVED INDIA AMERY DECLARES

CRIPPS' STATEMENT

London, Sept. 11 (CP) — The Indian government saved India from disaster by preventing the All-India Congress Party from carrying out Mohandas K. Gandhi's civil disobedience campaign, L. S. Amery, secretary of State for India, declared today in parliamentary debate.

The government of India, he said "showed remarkable patience so long as it was possible that the Congress Committee would not endorse the sinister designs of the working committee influenced by Mr. Gandhi," but eventually "took the only action which any self-respecting government could take."

Gandhi and his colleagues are under arrest.

Mr. Amery said the "Congress scheme of sabotage" was a careful plan for an attack "on the safety of India itself."

"It would have made it impossible to defend India or relieve China by reoccupation of Burma," he declared.

He said all evidence showed that the whole campaign of "disorder and revolt" was the result of guidance inspired by Congress leaders. He added that more disorders were expected.

Sees No Settlement at Present

Mr. Amery indicated belief that there was no chance whatever for negotiations of a settlement at present.

He called Gandhi an "arch-saboteur."

Sir Stafford Cripps, Lord Privy Seal, whose failure to reach a compromise with the All-India Congress was a prelude to the civil disobedience campaign, said the Congress working committee at one time accepted British proposals but that "Mr. Gandhi intervened" and subsequently the committee's stand was reversed.

Employed Female Help Contrary To Labor Regulations

The proprietors of two local restaurants were fined $10.00 and costs in Friday's city police court by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd after pleading guilty to charges of employing female help as waitresses between the hours of two and seven o'clock in the morning, contrary to the Labor Regulations of the Provincial Government. The charges were preferred by Mrs. C. Scott, Provincial Labor Inspector. Mr. R. D. Arnott, K.C., represented one of the accused persons with a plea of guilty while Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson presented the cases on behalf of the Government. As it was a first offence in both cases His Worship imposed the minimum fine.

LAC. Carl Walker of the Camp Borden R.C.A.F. base, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and was fined $11.00, including costs. Walker walked into a Church St. business place Wednesday night and assaulted the proprietor without apparent reason.

Thos. D. Barnes and Alfred McRae, of the R.C.A.F. each contributed $5.00 and costs after entering pleas of guilty on careless driving counts, while Lorne Wannamaker paid a similar amount after admitting the operation of a motorcycle not equipped with a muffler, contrary to the regulations of the H.T.A.

Violations of the city one hour parking regulations in the downtown area resulted in several local motorists paying a dollar and costs for their delinquency.

2 PICTON YOUTHS KILLED IN CAR CRASH NEAR TOWN

THIRD INJURED

Picton, Sept. 11. (Special.)—Two Picton youths were killed and a third critically injured shortly after the noon hour today, when their speeding auto left the highway one mile west of Picton on the Bloomfield road and after leaping the ditch crashed into a large maple tree.

Billy Cooper, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford "Buff" Cooper, was instantly killed, while Frank Sifton, 17, son of Major C. H. Sifton and Mrs. Sifton, died a few minutes later in the Picton hospital. Donald Thomas, 17, son of Mrs. Aileen Thomas, also of Picton, alleged driver of the car, suffered internal injuries and is in a critical condition in the hospital. The auto in which the youths were driving is a complete wreck as it wrapped itself around the tree.

All three members of the party were well-known in Picton, being sons of prominent families. The three took a noon drive in Thomas' car with the accident occurring near Lockyer's greenhouse on their return to Picton. The auto, with Thomas allegedly at the wheel, was reportedly travelling at an excessive rate of speed when it left the highway, demolished a milk stand, and crashed into the tree. The force of the impact caused the car to literally climb the tree, with the bark being skinned from the trunk ten feet above the ground.

Billy Cooper was exceptionally well-known in the Picton district, being noted as the youngest speedboat driven in Canada. At district regattas he had repeatedly finished in the money and had competed in races in western Ontario and in Quebec.

Frank Sifton is the grandson of Rev. F. M. Wootten of Picton, while his father, Major Sifton, is overseas with the Canadian armed forces. Don Thomas the third member of the party is the grandson of Mrs. P. S. McLean of the Picton Times.

Box Shortage Soon Cleaned Up Says S. L. Joss

Assurances from the Timber Controller's office that material needed in the Belleville district for the manufacture of cheese boxes will be delivered as required and that cheese boxes ordered from Quebec province are now on the way, has led to the expectation that the box shortage in the Bay of Quinte area will soon be cleared up, according to S. L. Joss, Secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association.

Arrangements have been completed, stated Mr. Joss, for the delivery of four carloads of made-up boxes. One carload is now on the way and the other three are expected next week. If more are necessary they will be available, it has been promised.

Faced by a shortage of box making materials, local manufacturers ordered supplies through the Timber Controller and such materials will be delivered to Belleville as required, it has been promised. Mr. Joss expects the critical cheese box situation in the Belleville area will thus be cleared up within the next two or three days.

BRITISH FORCES NEAR CAPITAL OF MADAGASCAR

U.S. Planes Turn Back Jap Force In Two-Day Battle

RUSSIANS CHECK NAZIS BEFORE STALINGRAD

Swifty Pushing Into Tananarive And Other Points

CASUALTIES LIGHT

London, Sept. 12—(CP)—British and African troops, making "considerable progress into the interior" of Madgascar against negligible opposition, are swiftly pushing toward Tananarive and other key points which the Axis might covet, a communique from the expeditionary force announced today.

A communique from the Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Sir William Platt, head of the British East African Command, said west coast landings were supplemented by the unopposed occupation of Vohemar on the northeast coast, 80 miles from the Naval Base of Diego Suarez.

Destroyer bridges slowed up a force moving down the west coast from the latter Naval Base area, which British forces took over early last May. This force is seeking a junction with troops landed in the nosy-be region.

"By evening we were within 20 miles of Ambanja," the major city there, the communique said.

Encountered Machine-gun Fire

"Our patrol encountered machine-gun fire at one point," it said, "but there were no casualties."

The Vichy radio expressed belief that full occupation was just a matter of time, with the defence garrisons totalling only 1,400 troops.

"Yesterday the southermost column from Morondava reached the vicinity of Mahaho where operations are continuing successfully," the communicue said. Mahaho is 30 miles in the interior and about 130 miles from Antsirabe.

"On the (200-mile) road from Majunga to Tananarive our troops reached the great bridge over the Betsiboka river 130 miles from Majunga," the commmunique added.

Nazis Threaten Heavy Reprisals

London, Sept. 12 —(CP)— The German radio today threatened heavy reprisals for the R. A. F.'s devastating assault on Duesseldorf Thursday night, promising counter-raids exceeding the massed attacks on Britain in the winter of 1940-41.

"We shall not fail to give the answer to our enemy," declared Col. Gertz, a Nazi Air Force spokesman, in a broadcast address. "Extensive raids on an unprecedented scale will be launched against the British by heavy new bombers."

Despite the German threats there was no sign of increased Nazi aerial activity over Britain last night. The government said a few enemy planes flew over the coast of East Anglia but that no bombings had been reported.

There was no indications, either, of any extensive activity last night by the R. A. F., which had been over Germany on seven of the 10 preceding nights.

The BBC, meanwhile, broadcast a play-by-play account of the raid on Duesseldorf to occupied Europe. The program included a recording made at an R. A. F. airdrome, describing the arrival of the bomber crews and the loading of the planes and ending a roaring crescendo from their mighty engines.

SUN CHARIOT, THE KING'S FILLY, WINS ST. LEGER

First Time Filly Has Won the Event Since 1927

SECOND FAVORITE

Newmarket, England, Sept. 12 — (CP)—The King's filly, Sun Chariot, won the 1 3-4-mile St. Leger race today. Lord Derby's Watling Street was second and Hyperides, owned by Lord Rosebery, placed third.

Sun Chariot, first filly to win the classic since 1927 went to the post a 9-to-4 second favorite.

The filly now has won three classics this year—The Oaks, One Thousand Guineas and St. Leger. Watling Street won the Derby.

It was the first time a filly had captured the St. Leger in 15 years and Sun Chariot's victory closed down the King's most successful season.

The St. Leger, last classic race of the season, may be the last of such first-rate affairs for the duration with racing henceforth confined to local meets. The government Thursday banned steeplechasing this winter as a means of slashing unnecessary travel and of saving horse feed.

New Record For Royal Colors

Sun Chariot, whose victory established a new record for the Royal colors, won so easily the crowd was able to cheer a furlong and a half from the post.

The cheers grew to a roar as the filly came on, increasing her lead with every stride to win by three lengths. The time was three minutes, 8 1-5 seconds.

It was the first time the Royal purple, gold and scarlet colors had been carried to success in four classic races in one season.

Sun Chariot was favorite in the last London callover but only second money at starting time. Watling Street turned out looking like a picture horse and created such an impression was 2-1 favorite at the off.

The Derby winner, however, showed temperament as soon as he entered the paddock and in the parade tried to unseat rider Harry Wragg. As he passed the post his neck was a mass of lather.

Montreal, Sept. 12 (CP)—G. Carlyle Allison, news editor of The Winnipeg Tribune, said in an address to the Canadian Authors' Association here last night that war correspondents who covered the Dieppe fighting had done so "graphically and with dignity."

He criticized statements attributed to Col. G. A. Wells, Principal Protestant Chaplain to the Canadian armed forces.

(Col. Wells speaking at Port Arthur, September 7 was quoted as saying Dieppe "served a useful purpose" but that "a great deal of nonsense had been printed in the papers and spoken over the radio about the engagement" adding that brave men never need to talk about themselves.)

Mr. Allison said of these comments, "what bosh and what bad taste! The Canadian public waited for three years to hear of its army in action and ate up every word about its own men. It needed just such a display of fighting prowess to whip up its war effort to a greater pitch. And Ross Munro and the other correspondents who risked their lives with the troops—including Wallace Reybum of Montreal—told their story graphically and with dignity."

Journalistic History

He said the despatches of Munro, war correspondent of The Canadian Press "made journalistic history."

Mr. Allison, speaking on "newspaper work in wartime," said that generally speaking Canadian newspapers "will have no part of sensationalism but, on the other hand, are concerned all the time with presenting an honest picture to the public . . .

"Publishers and editors probably would like to claim a large share of the credit for this trend, but I believe that most of it is due to the sub-editors, the men who actually handle the news on the cable desk and city desk.

"Without meaning to malign their fathers, I think they are a better-trained, better-informed group today . . . the chief reason for the greater news integrity is the consciousness among editors and reporters that the newspaper is the university of the world—the poor man's college—and it is incumbent on the paper to see to it that as many people as possible are well-informed."

100 ENEMY PLANES SHOT DOWN; MANY SHIPS DAMAGED

Seaborne Force Tried To Recapture South-eastern Solomon Islands Taken by Marines

THIRD ROUND IN BATTLE

By CLARKE LEE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

At Sea With the U. S. Fleet Off Solomon Islands, Aug. 25—(Delayed)—(AP)— American airplanes partially smashed and turned back a large seaborne Japanese force attempting to recapture the south-eastern Solomon Islands in a two-day battle yesterday and today.

Many Japanese ships were damaged, including an aircraft carrier, two destroyers and one submarine, and nearly 100 enemy planes were shot down.

The Japanese aircraft carrier, attacked by American navy dive bombers and torpedo planes, was first identified as the 7,600-ton Ryujo, smallest and one of the oldest of the enemy's regular carriers. This identification, however, was indefinite and all that is known for certain is that it was a small carrier with a capacity of between 40 and 50 planes.

In addition, near misses were scored on two largest carriers by navy and army bombers, and both probably were damaged, although the extent was unknown.

U. S. Losses Light

United States losses were one ship damaged but not put out of action and five navy and three marine corps pilots missing.

This two-day fight against Japanese aircraft carriers and between Japanese and United States marine and Army pilots over the Solomons was the third round in the battle of the Solomons, the first having been the marines' occupation of Guadalcanal and Tulagi Islands Aug. 7 and 8 under the cover of aerial bombing and warship shelling, and the second was a cruiser battle Aug. 9.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 12—(AP)—The death toll taken by a fiery pilotless Curtiss plane which plunged through the roof of a building at Curtiss-Wright airplane division rose to nine early today, with 41 others injured.

Although seriously burned before jumping from the ship last night, test pilot J. Bertrand Purnell parachuted to safety two miles away.

Flying wild, the plane was said by eye-witnesses to have done several loops before it plummeted into the building with a roar which one of the workmen inside described as like a "bombing."

Killed outright were Francis Ryan, 37, Kenmore, N. Y., and an unidentified man. Lester Glenn, a civilian employed as a United States army inspector, died six hours later in a hospital.

Paul Chase, 41, of Glens Falls, N. Y.; Martin Till, Joseph Scrolins, 47, Frank Warda, Salvatore Palmeri and Carlson Rauh died early today.

Was Like "A Bombing"

An injured workman, Winston J. Dandreau, 24, who was standing almost under where the plane struck, said the impact was like a "bombing — that's what we thought it was at first."

"First there was the crash of the plane through the roof and then, almost simultaneousely, it seemed, a blinding flash occurred as the plane exploded," he related.

"Just where it exploded I can't say—whether on the floor or between the roof and the floor, but I do know that the plane was torn to pieces by the explosion. Bits of flame and metal went shooting in all directions."

Dandreau said a bit of metal struck him in the arm.

"Right near me a man was knocked against a ladder and had difficulty extricating himself," he continued. "I pulled him free and we both beat it as fast as we could. Later we came back to help the other injured.

Clothes Burned Off

"One badly burned man was on his hands and knees and screaming constantly. Others had their clothes all burned off them."

Nearly all the injured, many of them in critical condition, were burned by gasoline from the plane's tanks.

Ambulances and station wagons carried the injured to six hospitals, jamming emergency wards. The entire air-raid precaution disaster unit of Curtiss was called into action.

Purnell, who began flying in Philadelphia at the age of 13, has been a Curtiss test pilot since May and has more than 3,500 logged hours of flying.

He qualified as a transport pilot at 21.

SHOWDOWN BATTLE FOR PORT MORESBY NOW IN MAKING

Allied Bombers Set Destroyer on Fire and Slash Supply Lines

JAP INVASION HELD

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 12 (CP) — Allied bombers, including a number of Flying Fortresses, slashed at Japanese supply lines on land and sea in the New Guinea war theatre yesterday, setting one enemy destroyer on fire and leaving her to sink, as both sides reorganized their forces for a showdown battle on the road to Port Moresby.

The destroyer was observed sinking by the stern with life rafts and Japanese sailors in the boat about her after the Allied bombers finished their attack on Normanby Island, a communique said. The bombers also scored a "very near miss" on a second destroyer, which was believed to have been damaged.

Normanby Island is north of Milne Bay on the southeastern tip of New Guinea, where a Japanese invasion force was ambushed and destroyed recently. All Allied planes returned safely from the mission.

For the second successive day, headquarters reported "the enemy has made no further advances" in the Owen Stanley Mountains, 44 miles from Port Moresby, the vital Allied base on the southern coast of New Guinea.

The positions of the opposing forces apparently remained the same as on the previous day when bitter fighting was reported south of Efogi, on the south slope of the mountains.

AIR MARSHAL EDWARDS REPLIES TO PRESS CRITICS

Defends "Canadianization" of R.C.A.F. Policy in Interests of the Airmen Themselves

BETTER FOR MORALE

LONDON, Sept. 12 — (CP Cable)—Air Marshal Harold (Gus) Edwards, Commanding Officer of the Royal Canadian Air Force in Britain, last night said that he champions the policy called the "Canadianization" of the R. C. A. F. in the interests of the airmen themselves. He issued this statement:—

I am told that what I said at a press conference here the other day has provoked quite violent criticism in Canada.

I am told by cable only that and cannot at this distance gauge the weight of the attacks which seem to be directed at me, nor can I say whether they are just or unjust. I simply do not know. All I know is that I championed the policy called "Canadianization" which means bringing our R.C.A.F. boys together into Canadian formations.

I have fought for that cause because I believe it is the best possible policy for the men I represent. When I talk in favor of it, I am not speaking as Air Marshal Gus Edwards.

I am talking as a spokesman for Sergeant-Pilot John Morrison who was over Germany last night — and got back safely thank God, but lost his best friend in that other raid two nights ago.

So far as that boy goes, what is called "Canadianization" is good policy. It means that all his personal troubles can be lifted from him, and that he be left only with those which he has been sent over here to meet:—

Which are success over his target, escape from flak, victory over night fighters, loyalty to his crewmates and fidelity to that love of freedom and of Canada which led him to stake his life for the principles in which he believes.

Perhaps from a range longer than even a Halifax bomber can tackle, our Canadian critics cannot perceive this. The things that may distract that boy when he goes into combat and cannot foresee the outcome are things that can be readily adjusted only by Canadians.

HOWE ANNOUNCES USE OF POWER MUST BE CUT

Advertising Signs, Show Windows Will Be Blacked Out After Sept. 20

AFFECTS S. ONTARIO

Ottawa, Sept. 12—(CP)— Sharp curtailment of non-essential uses electricity in power shortage areas of Ontario and Quebec was announced today by munitions Minister Howe.

In an order which becomes effective at sundown Sept. 20 advertising signs and show windows will be blacked out, street lighting curtailed, highway lighting prohibited and outdoor ice rinks required to shut off their floodlights at 10 p.m.

Mr. Howe revealed that the power shortage in the affected areas is becoming so serious that unless the public co-operates to reduce consumption enough power may not be available to meet the demands of war industries.

The new order, which is signed by Power Controller Symington, affects all Ontario south of a line from Parry Sound to Huntsville to Pembroke.

In the affected areas electric signs, both commercial and non-commercial, will be prohibited. This will mean a ban on all advertising signs from an illuminated poster or flash sign visible for a mile or more down to the tiny electric sign on a store counter. Exempted will be direction signs in stores and outdoor name plates at the office or residence of a physician.

All Sign Lighting Banned

Interior and exterior ornamental outline and decorative signs also will be prohibited. This ban will prevent outdoor illumination of Christmas trees and Christmas decorations.

Theatres and concert halls will be allowed for both interior and exterior lighting only the minimum necessary for public safety. For the marque or sidewalk canopy this is defined as no more than one-half watt per square foot of floor or sidewalk. For the exterior lighting of an exit five watts per square foot is allowed and for interior lighting not more than 40 watts per 100

Highway lighting is ruled out and all street lighting must be reduced by at least 20 per cent of ordinary consumption except in areas which are lit by a series of arc lamps placed more than 200 feet apart. No street light may be lit more than half an hour before sunset and more than half an hour after sunrise. Lighting for traffic signals,

Press Correspondent Sure No News Leaked Out Before Dieppe Raid

MONTREAL, Sept. 11 — (CP)— Security measures taken before the Dieppe landing "were wonderful," Wallace Reyburn, correspondent for the Montreal Standard, said today in an interview. Mr. Reyburn, who arrived in Canada today from Great Britain, was one of the Canadian newspapermen who accompanied the troops to France.

"There was no possible chance of news leaking out of the impending attack," he said. "We knew we were bound for France when we started, but it was not until we were well out at sea that we knew the landing would be made at Dieppe.

"I was with the South Saskatchewan Regiment, and we had landed and proceeded well into the village before a shot was fired at us. On the way across, we met some German E-boats, but apparently they did not think to signal to the German forces on the shore."

Mr. Reyburn said that German opposition was stiff, but this was not due to reinforcements which were rushed up.

"It is a well known fact that invasion can only be carried out a couple of times a month — that is when the moon and tides are convenient.

"Because of this, the Germans would have stronger forces than usual along the beaches, but it is a certain fact that they did not know we were coming."

Lt.-Col. C. C. I. Merritt of Vancouver, Officer Commanding the Saskatchewan troops, was a wonderful leader and "very brave," Mr. Reyburn said. Many times he stood out in the open, although "everything was coming down on us."

"The Saskatchewan regiment landed on the right flank, and we were separated from the main beach by a bridge about 200 yards long. Mortars, machine guns and snipers seemed to concentrate their fire on this bridge.

"We had to get across, but it seemed almost too difficult. The Colonel, however, broke us up into small groups, and marching erect, he took off his tin hat, hung it on his finger and swung it around in a circle. Then he started across the bridge.

"He crossed the bridge six times in this manner.

"When we were leaving, he directed his men to their boats, then taking a tommy gun, he marched up into the village to hold off the advancing Nazis. That is the last we saw of him."

No Backward Step Taken by Reds In Last 24 Hours

Russians Admit Fall Of Novorossisk, Large Naval Base On Black Sea

SNOWFALL REPORTED

MOSCOW, Sept. 12 — (AP) — Stalingrad's defenders for whom retreat was declared impossible held the besieging Germans at bay today in perhaps the greatest battle of the war, a battle which overshadowed five others flaming on a Russian front of more than 1,300 miles.

Despite the heroic stand of the Red Army for 18 days against the battering Nazi steel, apparently without a backward step for the last 24 hours, fresh German activity on the north of the Volga River city menaced it as never before.

Even in the midst of that struggle in which Premier Stalin has ordered that there be no retreat, however, the Russians found strength to launch an offensive of their own on the Leningrad front far to the north.

There, some 60 miles east of beleaguered Leningrad, the Russians were storming the railroad station at Sinyavino in an action mentioned for the first time in a communique issued at midnight.

A steadfast stand was indicated, since the Friday noon communique announced a Russian withdrawal from a village southwest of the city. A series of engagements, including a Red army counter-attack, was declared to have cost the Germans 1,000 dead and 37 tanks yesterday.

The Russians said that Novorossisk had fallen, but reported the capture of prisoners and war supplies in the Mozdok area of the central Caucasus and gains on both the central and Volkhov fronts to the north.

(The Berlin radio said the Russians counter-attacked fiercely, particularly against wedges driven into their lines north and south of the Volga River industrial city. The Nazi-controlled Vichy radio asserted that advanced Nazi elements and Red army guards were fighting within the southern suburbs.)

The midnight communique said Russian troops were forced to withdraw from Novorossisk, 70 miles southeast of Kerch Strait and more than 400 miles southwest of Stalingrad, under the hammering of German and Rumanian legions which had previously disrupted its use as a Red fleet base.

Interim Injunction Granted City In Utilities Dispute

According to information received in the city just before noon today, the Supreme Court of Ontario has granted an injunction applied for by the City of Belleville restraining the Belleville Public Utilities Commission from erecting or using surplus waterworks funds to erect a million gallon water reservoir, until time for the trial of the action.

The trial action will be heard some time this fall before a Supreme Court sitting in Belleville.

The interim injunction was granted by Mr. Justice Greene, who heard argument from counsel of both sides at the initial hearing on June 1st, at Osgoode Hall.

Allied Batteries Shell Positions Of Rommel's Force

Cairo, Sept. 12 (AP)—Allied artillery batteries in the southern sector of the El Alamein front shelled the positions of Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces yesterday, but there was little other ground activity to report, a British communique said today.

Axis air activity was on a slightly larger scale over the battle area during the day and at least two Axis planes were shot down by Allied fighters, the communique said. Many other planes were reported damaged.

Another Axis plane, a Messerschmitt 109, was shot down when it attempted to machine gun an Allied airfield.

Miami, Ariz., Sept. 12 (AP) — Women are going to work for Arizona's hard pressed copper mines but glamor girls needn't apply. "It's hard, dirty work and we don't want the glamorous type," R. W. Hughes, General Superintendent of the Miami-Copper company, said today as he ordered the hiring of about 100 women. They won't be sent underground, but will take over mechanical pobs in the concentration plant and the machine, pipefitting and repair shops.

YOUR Help Is Needed to Assist In Continuing the Splendid Work Performed by V. O. N., the 'Y' and S. A.

$15,000 Required by the Three Organizations Which Perform Valiant Service Among Men In Armed Services and Others in Urgent Need Of Help

CANNOT NEGLECT WELFARE WORK AT HOME

Administering to the needs and welfare of thousands of persons, both at home and on the active fronts, the many public services offered by three organizations, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Salvation Army, and the Victorian Order of Nurses, is more important today than ever before.

Thousands of soldier boys, many hundreds of miles from home, are having their leisure hours brightened by the comforts afforded through the social activities of the two war service organizations, but the work on the home front is still all-important and must not be forgotten in view of the greater publicity given the work among the armed forces.

Expressing the value of social work done by social institutions in community life is a difficult task, however, especially if the picture is painted in terms of so many persons served. The best way possibly to express an organization's true value to the community would be to judge through quality rather than quantity.

And the true value of social work can be adjudged to no better advantage than to hear appreciation expressed by persons whose lot in life has been brightened by a kind and considerate helping hand—a member of any of these three social organizations.

The many angles of social and moral welfare administered to by the Salvation Army and the Y.M.C.A. is well known by district residents, while the Victorian Order of Nurses in giving constant medical care to assure the physical well-being of hundreds, is doing yeoman service.

Home Front Services Need Local Support

By parliamentarian decree the expense incurred by war service organizations in their work among the armed forces in active fighting zones is being taken over by the federal government. The expense of administering to the needs on the home front, however, must be raised by the various organizations through local campaigning.

Owing to the many national appeals scheduled for this coming autumn, federal authority has decreed separate campaign appeals for war service organizations will be out of the question. Consequently, the Y.M.C.A., the Salvation Army and the V.O.N. will appeal to the Belleville public in one joint campaign starting on September 21st.

One-Week Campaign

Objective for the campaign has been set at $15,000 for the three services, the money to be used for their social activities on the home front. The campaign will run for one week and an urgent appeal will be made to the residents of this city to contribute with their usual generosity that the social and physical welfare of the community will not lack at a time when activities on other fronts are increasing.

General Council Delegation Meets Prime Minister King to Present Resolution on Liquor Restrictions

A United Church General Council delegation left the city for Ottawa last night to present the Council's resolution to the government asking for a drastic curtailment of the liquor traffic.

The delegation was received by Prime Minister Mackenzie King at eleven o'clock this morning.

Advice as to the Prime Minister's willingness to receive the delegation and the time set for the meeting was received by wire from the Prime Minister's secretary Friday afternoon by the Rev. B. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service.

The resolution asking for liquor curtailment includes limitations of materials to breweries, distilleries, etc., restriction of beverage alcohol to third, or one-half, the present rationing rate as in tea or coffee; reduction of alcoholic content in beverages; banning of liquor advertising, and a Dominion-Provincial campaign of temperance education.

The delegation includes:—

Very Rev. John W. Woodside, Ottawa; Rev. H. S. B. Strothard, Lunenburg, N. S.; Rev. Andrew Roddan, Vancouver, B. C.; Rev. John Coburn, Toronto; Mr. S.J.B. Branion, K. C., Prince Albert, Sask.; Mr. C. W. Taylor, President of Lay Association of United Church, Toronto.

General Council Highlights

The General Council settled down to heavy debate on one of the most momentous issues it had to face, the report of the Committee on the Finances of the Church presented by its chairman, Rev. W. J. Gallagher, D.D., who recently resigned his pulpit at Chalmer's Church, Guelph, to become Secretary of the Social Service Council of Canada. There were many clashes over procedure, especially opposition by Dr. R. B. Cochrane, Secretary of Home Missions to the motion that a recommendation that a Board of Finance to have general oversight of the Finances of the Church, including the Pension Fund, and coordinate the departmental work be appointed.

Dr. Cochrane gained his point and the whole report with the suggested re-organization of the nine Departments of the Churches work into three boards, Evangelism, Education, (which includes Department of Evangelism and Social Service, Christian Education and a separate one for Schools and Colleges; the two last are separated in this proposal); A Board of Missions to include Departments of Home Missions, Foreign or Overseas Missions and Missionary Education and a Board of Finance with Departments of the Treasury, Missionary and Maintenance Promotion and Pensions, was read first. In the end only after the good offices of Rev. E. Leslie Pidgeon, authority on procedure had been obtained, Council did adopt the report and its recommendations as above set out.

Board of Finance Oversight

It decreed that there should be a Board of Finance established to have general oversight of the finances of the Church and determine the broad lines of financial policy and program; and through the Department, to carry out the program. The chairman of the board is to be elected by General Council. His duties will be to preside at meetings. The Treasurer of the Church, Secretary of General Council and Secretary of the Department of Pensions also will be elected by General Council and sit on the Board with representative and elected members. Details will go to the Committee on Law and Legislation at the Council for legal scrutiny. The basis of union will now be amended to create the three new Boards of the Church outlined above, and provision made for amendation from time to time.

An executive of the General Council was legislated to meet three times at least between Council meetings and to review and co-ordinate the policies of all the Boards.

Campaign Through Presbyteries

The report provides for other drastic changes including the recommendation of a campaign through the Presbyteries to provide more capital for the pension funds which as the findings showed was in urgent need. That and the inadequate givings to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund were stated to be the reasons for the financial reconstruction. Pension Fund needs about six million dollars to be actuarily sound, and the Rest and Retirement Fund of the Deaconess Order inherited from the Methodist Church, now closed except for inherited liabilities, needs relief which was provided for.

Nothing but praise was given to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund officers, but conviction was expressed in the report that not enough emphasis had been given to the underlying faith and convictions necessary to missionary enterprise. Plans to raise money must give way to plans which get support for the enterprises themselves. The church is not getting its share of the increased money in circulation, Senator Haig said that Canada was having its largest income in history; the West its greatest crop, and industrial development was at its highest peak. He pleaded eloquently for a method and spirit to go out immediately for an all-inclusive effort that will once and for all put the church on a sound business basis. Business men would support it if they knew that it was not a piecemeal and makeshift effort.

Pension Retirement Age 68

Another change the Council made in its constitution was to make the retirement age of pensioned ministers 68 instead of 65 years and length of service 40 years. With general oversight by the Department of Finance there would be no actual lessening of expense, there would be greater co-ordination and efficiency, and autonomy of departments within themselves is preserved as at present, for administration purposes.

Fred S. Wilson Dies Early Today

Fred Stuart Wilson died early this Saturday morning at his home, 250 George Street. He was ill for some time.

To many friends in this city, in Picton and elsewhere, the announcement of the death of Mr. Wilson will bring much regret. He was well known, well liked and highly esteemed and was prominent in business for many years.

The late Mr. Wilson was born in Picton and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Canniff Wilson, the family being of United Empire Loyalist descent. For a considerable time he resided at Glenora, Prince Edward County, being associated with his father in the flour milling business, the manufacture of water wheels and turbine engines. Twenty-five years ago he came to live in Belleville and established a plant here for the manufacture of water wheels and other machinery. Later he merged the business with the Carthage Machine Company and in this business he filled in an efficient manner the position of Secretary Treasurer. Of recent years he lived retired.

On his mother's side Mr. Wilson was a grandson of the late Mr. J. H. Meacham who for many years was postmaster at Belleville. In the advancement of the city of his adoption Mr. Wilson took a keen interest and gave his support to all undertakings for the benefit of the city. In religion he was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Emily Alexander Stewart; two sons, Mr. H. Alton Wilson, Chicago, Ill., and Mr. J. Reginald Wilson, Coronada Beach, Florida.

The funeral, which will be private, will take place on Monday.

Principal Wallace of Queen's Recommends Staff Reduction In Eight Theological Colleges

$500,000 DEFICIT

Sharply diversified opinion charged Bridge Street Church here Friday as the General Council heard factual argument on the future of theological colleges.

Principal R. G. Wallace, Queen's University, in his report of the Board of Christian Education, recommended staff reduction in the eight theological colleges and a reallocation of grants.

Dr. W. T. Brown, Victoria College, Toronto, chancellor, supported strongly by Principal A. E. Kerr, Pine Hill College, Halifax, urged that proportion of grants be continued and distributed to maintain the integrity of the colleges, and that student grants be at the present level. The debate was adjourned.

The eight colleges house 175 students, Prof. Wallace pointed out, some with less than 15. The colleges cost $700,000 during the past 10 years. There is a deficit of $500,000.

Student cost per year is from $2,000 to $6,000 per capita.

"Until the financial outlook for men in the ministry is better and more comparable to those in other phases of life, there is not much chance of getting more students in the colleges," he said.

"It is not fair to ask a young man and his lady to exist on the type of sustenance he would get for several years after entering the ministry."

Until Protestant denominations work together and see that parishes of reasonable size can give reasonable remuneration, no young man will want to go into the ministry.

"We are making beggars of our students and giving them special alms," Dr. Wallace said.

"If we continue with the present small number of students without financial co-operation from the church, there is no alternative but to close the colleges," he added.

Financial Situation to Blame

Dr. Brown told Council. "there is nothing wrong with the colleges, the trouble lies in the financial situation. Theological colleges are filling two functions as training and recruiting centres.

"Remove the recruiting centres and you reduce the number of recruits for the ministry."

Colleges represented the Gospel on the campuses of other universities, where there is a need for the Gospel today.

"The difficulty lies," Dr. Brown said, "in the fact that we are trying to train more men on less money, and in this way are not maintaining the efficiency of the colleges."

Referring to the reduction of one professor from each of the eight colleges, Dr. Brown told the Council " if this recommendation is passed it means the colleges will be closed in the next ten years and we will be ashamed of them."

He recommended high class efficient staffs; colleges in a constituency of which it is a part and where its roots are deep and a fair proportion of grants to all.

The division of funds as suggested is not fair to the west, he said. The working out of a grant to students in colleges with no endowment is a much fairer scheme.

Principal Kerr stated that the church "is making an educational retreat rather than an advance, if the report is adopted. This is no time to dismantle colleges, but time to go ahead.

The shortage of ministers is so acute and the necessity so big that the church cannot do without these recruiting centres. He challenged the statement that there is a widespread opinion that too much money is being spent on the colleges.

"If we get more money at the cost of the smaller colleges in the west, then we don't want it," he said, stating that in the new allocation every eastern college got additional grants, while the western ones were reduced.

KINSMEN HONOR MRS. ZETA RYAN

Proprietress and Staff of Queens Hotel Presented With Gifts

It was farewell until we meet again at the New Queens Hotel Friday evening when the Kinsmen Club said au revoir to Mrs. Zita Ryan, proprietress of the hostel in which Belleville's youngest service club has met for the past eight years, and her capable staff. It was "Queens Hotel Night" for the Kinsmen on the occasion of their final meeting in that hotel for the duration of war at least. On behalf of the club members President "Buster" LaBarr personally presented Mrs. Ryan and her hotel staff with tokens of appreciation, for the splendid hospitality afforded the club during the fortnightly meetings for the past eight years. "Your kindness is beyond our words of appreciation," assured Kin Dick Arnott to Mrs. Ryan.

An evening of entertainment, before the Kinsmen enter upon their autumn semester of service work, was enjoyed following a month's vacation from labors. However, in the sense of business, Mr. Wm. Milton, of the Ontario Institute for the Blind, spoke on behalf of the institute outlining the principles and purposes of the organization and asking the co-operation of the Kinsmen in the forthcoming financial drive for the Institute. Capt. J. Smith of the Salvation Army, approached the club regarding assistance and canvassers for the Community Chest drive to raise funds for the Y.M.C.A., V.O.N. and Salvation Army "We only have a short space of time in which to conduct our drive for $15,000 and hope for your assistance in approaching the public," asked Captain Smith.

The club welcomed back to its fold Kin. Sergeant Jack Haig, an early member of the Belleville Kinsmen Club, who has returned home from overseas duty and was an honored guest last evening. Kin Lieut. Jim Fraser was presented with a token of appreciation from the club upon his acceptance to military active service.

The evening's entertainment was provided by the Commodores' orchestra, the Belleville Male Quartette and Mr. Alec Gordon.

Hay Bay Church Celebrates 150th Anniversary of Founding

Several Hundred Commissioners to General Council of United Church Visit 'Cradle of Methodism'

SPECIAL SERVICE HELD

The General Council of the United Church of Canada pays its tribute today to the cradle of Methodism, the oldest Methodist Church in Upper Canada, the Hay Bay Church near Adolphustown, the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of which is being celebrated. Between one hundred and fifty and two hundred Commissioners to the General Council now meeting in Belleville at Bridge Street Church will attend the service which will begin at four o'clock. This large body of representatives will with others travel by motor to the historic scene.

This day is of special importance as it has provided the opportunity of the highest court of the United Church to join in the celebration.

Rev. H. L. Morrison of Tweed, as chairman of the Belleville Presbytery, will preside at the service. The Hon. Sir John C. Puddester of Newfoundland, will read the Scripture lesson and prayer will be offered by the Very Rev. Dr. A. S. Tuttle, ex-Moderator. Rev. A. J. Wilson, editor of the United Church Observer, will read an historical sketch. The new Moderator, the Right Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Sclater, will preach.

During the service Rev. Dr. Sisco will lead in the singing.

The ladies of Adolphustown will entertain the distinguished visitors at the close of the service before their return to the city.

W. W. Brown of Hamilton, secretary of the Laymens Association of the Dominion will move the vote of appreciation to the ladies.

The Old Hay Bay Church, situated near Adolphustown on the Bay of Quinte, has been called the "Cradle of Methodism," built as it was by Rev. William Losee in 1792 and now restored as nearly as possible to its original form under a Trust of Belleville Presbytery.

Losee worked among the United Empire Loyalist settlers in 1790, and in 1791 was the first itinerant minister appointed to the Bay of Quinte Circuit which included Adolphustown. Services were first held in the barn of Paul Huff, but such success attended Losee's ministry that in 1792 two churches were built, one at Hay Bay and the other a few weeks later at Ernestown near the village of Bath. The proposal to build a church at Adolphustown, thirty-six feet by thirty feet, with two storeys and a balcony, was set out in a subscription list dated February 3, 1792 and twenty-two subscribers promised £106. In addition Paul Huff gave the land, which in the Original Deed dated June 17, 1811, is given as a mark of his "Love, good will and affection for the Methodist Episcopal Church." The document is a splendid example of foresight in providing for future contingencies in changing trustees, and for disposal of assets if the congregation is dissolved. Losee himself was named Director and monies were paid to him until his retirement in 1794 because of ill health, when he assigned his interests to eight trustees.

Early in 1795, Hay Bay Church was the scene of the meeting of the second Court of Quarter Sessions which alternated between Adolphustown and Kingston, the first meeting having been held in Huff's barn which was not suitable for winter use. Only after strong protests against using the "House of Prayer" as a "Den of Thieves" was the permission granted to hold the Court within the church walls—no other public building was available at that date.

In this old building have been raised the voices of mighty men of Methodism: the Ryersons, William Case, Elder Ryan, Nathan Bangs. Near by is the United Empire Loyalist Burying Ground where the earliest settlers lie buried, including a relative of Barbara Heck, and the nine young people who were drowned crossing the Bay to attend a Quarterly meeting on August 30, 1819, whose screams startled the congregation just then listening to Rev. I. Puffer pray that "the day might be one long to be remembered."

The New Church

In 1862 a new church was built at a more convenient place a mile south of the Bayshore. In it, the future Prime Minister of Canada, John A. Macdonald, worshipped regularly with his father, Hugh Macdonald. Stones from their home, which was later destroyed by fire, have been used in the Macdonald Memorial on its site not far from the church.

The old church, no longer used for worship, was then sold and used for a grain and implement storehouse until Rev. Richard Duke in five letters published in The Christian Guardian in 1892, disclosed its condition and urged its purchase and restoration. Interest was quickened at the Centennial Pilgrimage to which the steamers Ella Ross and Reindeer and "Hundreds of Carriages" brought the great crowd who attended on June 22, 1892, and "The church was swept out for the occasion." At that time Mr. Duke says the building still stood "unmarred in its aboriginal conformation;" but C. C. James, writing in 1899, speaks of it as "somewhat dilapidated at that time." On December 17, 1910, a Deed which is in Victoria College was prepared by lawyer U. M. Wilson, Napanee, in which William Platt and wife sold property to a Trustee Board of the Methodist Church. Writing in that year of restoration work began, the late Allan Ross Davis, said, "This Old Mother of Methodism became alarmed at the sound of hammers and strange voices which soon proved constructive and friendly and assured a longer life."

The restored church was reopened first in the summer of 1911 when Rev. A. Carman, Superintendent of the Methodist Church officiated.

The task of restoration has been somewhat simplified by the quarter inch scale model of the church made in 1876, inscribed on a sheet within which, the maker, Rev. E. S. Rupert, certifies over his signature that it was made "from an original board and original glass." The model is complete with inner furnishings, and differs only from the restored structure in having a chimney, date board in the gable, and a narrower entrance door.

Public Interest Aroused

The efforts of Mr. A. R. Davis aroused public interest in the project, and at the Centennial Conference of Methodism held in Picton in 1924 a committee was appointed to plan for further restoration and to raise a fund for permanent upkeep. Rev. R.A. Whattam, President of Conference that year, himself a great-grandson of one of the original trustees, was appointed Secretary-Treasurer of the Committee in which capacity he has served ever since.

There was a largely attended pilgrimage by boat from Picton on the Saturday of Conference. J. B. Allison, a worshipper in the original church was present, and Dr. S. D. Chown, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church, paid tribute to the pioneers of Methodism and said, "The Church that forgets its past deserves no future."

The Bay of Quinte Conference of The United Church sponsored a Trust Fund in 1927 and sought $1,500 for the work. Before Church Union the Districts of the Methodist Conference had raised $677 to which was added $1,000 from the Conference, and gifts and amounts collected by Mr. Davis to make $3,000. At the Conference of 1928, Rev. A. J. Wilson moved that "We proceed to repair and conserve the church in the form in which our pioneer fathers built it." The next year saw the major work done. The outer sheeting was removed, the frame sheeted with new lumber and covered with building paper, the original sheeting replaced and the whole creosoted to prevent decay.

Reseating and lighting, in the "form in which the pioneers constructed it," were added in 1930, and the following year two great pilgrimages, one from the Conference and the other under United Empire Loyalist auspices, gathered to rejoice in the completed work. I shall never forget that occasion when Alex. MacGregor, the veteran precentor of Napanee, struck up the tunes for "O God Our Help in Ages Past, Our Hope for Years to Come."

Students of Church History will find all the details in Playter's and Meacham's Histories of Methodism; W. S. Herrington's, splendid History of Lennox and Addington; and in articles in Acta Victoriana in December, 1899, by C. C. James and Sir J. G. Bourinat. Recent history of the work of restoration is preserved in the Minute Book of the Trustee Board in the possession of Rev. R. A. Whattam, now of Toronto.

Former Methodists and Presbyterians and United Church folk will find in the Bay of Quinte area the very heart and soul of their religious ancestry. The Committee has agreed to take, as part of their trust, care of the site of a former Presbyterian Church of the same period, but burned down some years ago. The Conger Chapel, built in 1809 near Picton, is another church of great historic interest worth visiting, and likewise an example of what transformation can be made by consistent care of a sacred spot.

DONNACONA

Wartime HOME CONSERVATION Plan

1. CONSERVATION OF FUEL: Coal and oil must be conserved today to make more fuel available for urgent war needs. Proper home insulation, such as provided by Donnacona, conserves fuel—for insulation checks heat waste, cuts fuel consumption. Donnacona insulates as it builds or renovates. It is decorative too.
2. CONSERVATION OF FUNDS: When you insulate with Donnacona, fuel savings quickly repay the small initial cost of insulation. You permanently reduce your overhead; more money is available for War Savings and other necessities.
3. CONSERVATION OF SPACE: Today the nation is fighting waste, and this includes waste space. Idle space can be converted simply and inexpensively, through the use of Donnacona Board, into useful rooms for the family or for paying guests. You can help your budget and help relieve an acute housing shortage at one blow.
4. CONSERVATION OF HEALTH: A healthy nation works and fights better, and good health begins at home. Elimination of drafts, through the use of Donnacona Board, an even warmth in winter and coolness in summer, all help to promote better health at home and added comfort.
5. CONSERVATION OF VALUES: Today values are liable to rapid change, but a house will always be the best and safest investment in times of economic stress. That investment can be protected and enhanced through remodelling and renovation with Donnacona Board.
6. CONSERVATION OF EFFICIENCY: It is at home that we gather strength for tomorrow's job—and that job may be of vital importance to Canada. Donnacona will make your home more comfortable—a real haven of peace in which everyone, including the night shift worker, can sleep undisturbed, thanks to the sound-deadening properties of Donnacona.

Small home construction and renovation is not only permitted — it is vitally necessary to help relieve acute housing shortages. Materials are available for this essential purpose. Suggestion for Smaller Council

Alderman Thos. Marshall recently gave notice of motion which will come before the city council on Monday evening whether the question should be placed before the electorate of the city at the next municipal election concerning an expression of opinion on asking the Ontario Legislature for a special act to reduce the council from the present membership of a mayor and thirteen aldermen to a mayor and eight aldermen.

There is this to be said in favor of a smaller council that it is more flexible and practical than a large council. The number of aldermen being smaller, the members are more likely to be cognizant of all matters coming before council. Then in fact in any council, whether large or small, the greater share of the burden of the important duties rests on a few men in the council. With a large council there is the probability of prolonged discussions which delay action and irk business men and which may have a tendency to prevent other good candidates offering their services to the city.

There is also the pertinent advantage of some salary saving as a result of a smaller council body.

From the standpoint of the voters, the smaller council has the advantage that voters can concentrate on the candidates for aldermanic honors and therefore have a more direct voice than where their expression by the ballot is scattered over a larger number of men to be elected. The election of a smaller group would no doubt add to the keenness and zest of elections which is something to be desired because there is a tendency towards lack of interest in municipal affairs.

The Ontario Intelligencer believes that reduction would be a constructive move and that the voters of the city should be given an opportunity to express themselves at the polls on this question.

The Democracies

In the ranks of such a union as that of the United Nations the world has the fine example of the spirit of the races composing this great body who are opposing the Axis. The steadfast courage and reliance of the people of Britain, standing for principle and honor, has been shown everywhere in this struggle. The courage of the Russian people defending their own great land with hand and heart and mind has won the admiration of the world by the magnificent demonstration in the past fourteen months. The wholehearted zeal and enthusiasm of the United States of America facing the challenge of the Axis conspirators has been seen in Washington, in the factories, in the air and on the sea and in the powerful rise of American manpower which is to play a great role on the field of honor.

Mr. Wendell Willkie on a mission for the President of the United States to the Near East, Middle East and Far East, gave the world a demonstration of the spirit of America the other day when he greeted the United States troops in Egypt, and in his subsequent journeys, and of a healthy optimism built on the basis of determination, recognition of the facts and on the knowledge of what freedom has done for individual and state in the democratic world. A product of democracy and of a nation which believes in the rights of man he carries these principles out in private life and in his life in the service of his country. Well might Mr. Willkie be confident of the end and give his words of cheer to the American troops. Mr. Willkie is typical of the great American people.

The world has seen the glorious national spirit of the other European nations in action in the cause of democracy.

Canada and the other Dominions and the Colonies too have shown their special characteristics of courage, initiative and possession of self-reliance and confidence. And the other American nations too have demonstrated their spirit of liberty.

All the United Nations manifest how their national ideals can dwell together in democracy and make the great fighting union which will down the Hun, the Italian and the Jap. The spirit of the unity of democracy together with the diversity of the characteristics of these nations is the great proof that freedom, justice and democracy are the political ideals of humanity.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

BY

CAUGHT IN A SHOWER

Pre-nuptial "showers" differ widely. They either refresh and warm the heart or leave you cold, and very, very weary, writes Jean Wilkie in 'Bluebell.'

If a band of friends want to give a bride-to-be something extra, a shower provides a handy and happy opportunity. With friends backing it, the bride's real taste and wishes will likely be gratified. And besides this, a shower gives the little group one more and memorable chance to reunite sociably before the wedding. All of us who have taken part in such a shower have been glad to be there.

But regarding some other showers, I can only echo a comment I have heard repeatedly: "Nothing but a racket!" Innocent, well-meant rackets, of course, but no better for that. They include unreasonable levies on friendship in the form of repeated shower invitations to one person. The results are unwarranted social and financial strain on their victims—for overcharged charge accounts must be cleared up as surely as the next Income Tax instalments. If a friend has already arranged for a wedding present, given a shower present and perhaps a personal trousseau gift as well, further shower solicitations obviously fall into the "racket" category.

And so do all showers organized by somebody for somebody else whom we only know casually. If you are scarcely on Christmas-card terms with the bride, something like resentment may further cloud the dubious joys of late supper and forced enthusiasm.

"I don't want to be a piker, but . . ." is the murmur, uttered or unuttered, when the average wage-earning girl is summoned to a shower like this. Each of us, to a woman, must "stand and deliver" or else be pronounced "a piker."

Now, whatever detractors of the sex may say, they can never accuse women of being pikers! Practically all of us, (I've known no exceptions) will face the prospect of curtailed sleep and damaged bank accounts and dispositions, rather than ever say "no" to anybody who has decided that an acquaintance or friend must be showered with our help. Our hostess-to-be may be a stranger, may live in the other end of town, but we'll be there, smiling gamely through the second, third, fourth or fifth surprise party of the week. I suspect that at these showers the bride's immediate lot isn't always enviable, either. The last few hundred hours of her single life are usually very busy ones and now she must make frantic, last-minute mental notes of names she should remember when the time comes to "pay back" for tonight's benefactions. However, the bride is no piker, either.

Surely, surely, in the midst of the most hideous war in history, some of this nonsense should end. If we want to shower brides, let us be merciful and sensible about it. Only the bride's former friends should be enlisted.

And why not organize occasional "cash showers," for the duration anyway? The money we would willingly spend on a specified gift could be given to the bride to spend as she wishes. Why not cut down on the expense of salted nuts, fancy sandwiches, candy, white satin ribbon, favors, paper bells and other pleasing trifles connected with such festivities and have a few extra dollars to offer the girls in war savings stamps or certificates?

A SPECTACLE that depresses the male and makes him shudder is that of a woman looking another woman up and down to see what she is wearing. The cold, flat look that comes into a woman's eyes when she does this, the swift coarsening of her countenance and the immediate evaporation from it of all humane quality is one reason why men fear women. — James Thurber.

Fire was discovered yesterday in Mr. C. P. Holton's lumber yard by Mr. George Minor, the watchman. The fire broke out about two hundred feet from the saw mill. The firemen soon arrived, but as the nearest hydrant was 1,000 feet from the fire, the stream of water was not great. The water pressure was 125 pounds. The water main on Commercial Street broke and Mr. M. M. Thompson, manager of the waterworks, had the water cut off at the head of Dundas Street West, and the hose attached to the hydrant on Commercial St., and the hose run down the hill to the lumber yards. The result of the fire was the loss of a million and a half feet of lumber, two stables and a brick house. The fire teaches that a hydrant should be within 300 feet of every large manufacturing plant.

THE FUTURE

Rough the path and steep the hill,
Step by step keep climbing still.
Wild the storm and dark the night,
Follow still faith's candle light;
Watch and work and wait and pray.
Little's settled in a day.

Look beyond the present fear.
Skies may soon begin to clear.
Burdens lighter are, you'll find,
Carried with a cheerful mind.
Time sweeps many a care away.
Little's settled in a day.

Nothing worth while comes with ease.
Hard to win are victories.
Who would skill and wisdom gain
Lives with weariness and pain,
Disappointment and delay.
Little's settled in a day.

Worried, fearful and perplexed,
Wondering what may happen next?
Brave the present moments through.
All tomorrow waits for you.
Work and wait; let come what may.
Little's settled in a day!

British Women Army Leaders In Canada

Mutual problems of running a woman's army were discussed by, LEFT to RIGHT, Col. E. M. C. Gowers, chief commander of the Auxiliary Territorial Service, Joan G. U. S. Drops Calling Cards On Tulagi

This official U. S. navy photograph gives an air view of the much mentioned Tulagi Island, CENTRE FOREGROUND, stronghold of the Jap forces in the Solomon Islands, attacked by the U. S. recently. Smoke can ben seen rising from a fire, RIGHT CENTRE, after American carrier-based aircraft paid their first visit with bombs. In addition to fortifications, anti-aircraft batteries and a radio station, the Japs had a small golf course on the island but the U. S. airmen didn't yell "fore" before dropping their load of bombs. American action in the South Pacific continues strong. The Solomon Islands again come into the picture as United States bombers and fighters strafe Gizo Island.

PUSSYFOOT JOHNSON

William Eugene Johnson, according to the biographical account of him in "Who's Who in America," acquired the nickname "Pussyfoot Johnson" because of "his catlike policies in pursuing law-breakers in the Indian Territory."

Pussyfoot Johnson, now passed 80, says the nickname "has stuck to me for nearly forty years like a sandburr to a dog's tail.

In a recent letter to the author of "You'd Be Surprised" Mr. Johnson says:

"Beginning with the year 1906, I served for six years as Chief Special Officer of the U. S. Indian Service. I was charged with the duty of suppressing the liquor traffic among Indians. The dubious character of assignment was apparent in the fact that in this period eight of my deputies were murdered and quite a list of others wounded but not killed.

"My operations were of a knock-down-and-drag-out character. It came to pass that a reward of $3,000 was offered to anyone who would dispose of me. One of my deputies, Sam Roberts, was mistaken for me one night and got killed. A part of the reward was paid before they found out that they had gotten the wrong corpse.

"During the six months when this reward was in force, I hit upon the policy of doing all of my work at night. At ungodly hours I would raid a joint, spread ruin and devastation and make my getaway while getting away was good. As all gamblers were also liquor dealers, they came within the purview of my activities. I destroyed 76 gambling layouts.

"All this made good 'copy' for the newspaper scribes. Who first used the nickname in a newspaper story was probably John W. Flenner, city editor of the Muskogee Times-Democrat. He claimed the credit and probably was correct. Anyhow, the name seemed to fit the case and it followed me so persistently that most people seem to have forgotten what my real name is."

"Another development of this nickname affair," says Pusyfoot Johnson, "was that I afterwards married the widow of one of my slain deputies."

Altogehter he secured more than 4,400 convictions while Special Officer of the U. S. Indian Service.

William Eugene Johnson took the temperance pledge while attending the University of Nebraska more than 60 years ago. He has written thousands of books, brochures and articles on the liquor problem, made three trips around the world in the interests of temperance and has delivered 4,000 lectures.

Pussyfoot Johnson became so identified with the liquor question that the English sometimes apply the term "pussyfoot" to any American who advocates prohibition.

Sulfonamide Drugs Hasten Recovery From Fever

The remarkable success of the sulfomide drugs in controlling infectious diseases now includes treatment of various diseases of the breathing mechanism.

"Upper respiratory infection" is a term used to describe such everyday conditions as sinus infection, tonsillitis and sore throat, together with inflammation of the lymph glands in the neck. These infections are common and occur at practically any season of the year, although it is probable that they are more frequent in the winter and spring than at other times.

Treatment for upper respiratory infections usually has consisted of rest in bed, the giving of plenty of fluids and such drugs as might be prescribed by the physician to relieve pain and discomfort. With the discovery of the sulfonamide drugs, these preparations have been employed in many instances. Dr. Francis W. Davison of Danville, Pa., has carried out some studies in 100 patients to determine the exact value of the sulfonamide drugs, such as sulfanilamide, sulfapyridine and sulfathiazole, in these various upper respiratory infections. Fifty of the patients were given the usual treatment without the sulfonamide drugs, while the other fifty received these preparations.

Dr. Davison noted that the fever in the patients with sinus infection lasted twice as long in those who did not get the sulfonamide drugs as in those who did receive the drugs. Further more, the discharge from the nose cleared up more quickly when the sulfonamide drugs were used. In tonsillitis, the fever lasted a shorter period of time also in those who were treated with the sulfonamide drugs. A similar effect was noted in patients with lymph gland infections. In the patients with sore throat or pharyngitis the use of the sulfonamide preparations apparently did not have much benefit.

As a result of his studies, Dr. Davison concluded that the sulfonamide drugs are helpful in treating severe infections of the sinus, severe tonsillitis, and infection of the lymph glands in the neck. However, in order to obtain the greatest benefit from these preparations, they must be used early in the course of the disease and must be given in sufficient amounts.

It is important to note that the drugs were used only in patients who were in bed. When these drugs are used, a urine examination and blood count should be made at frequent intervals. In this way no harmful effects escape detection. When they occur the use of the drugs should be stopped.

Of course, in severe infections of the sinuses and the throat, other methods of treatments must not be neglected. For example, blood transfusion may be found extremely helpful in severe cases. Just because the sulfonamide drugs are used, these other methods of overcoming infections should not be neglected.

IT'S FASHIONABLE TO CONSERVE TO RECLAIM TO REMODEL

ZELLER'S
RETAILERS TO THRIFTY CANADIANS

THE COMING DAYS are prelude to a season that, in other years, found women making purchases at the dictate of Fashion doing so with little regard to the serviceability of garments they already owned, should those have happened to be slightly outmoded.

BUT THIS YEAR loyal Canadian women will look over, carefully, the things they now own and will not give in to impulses to buy replacements simply because a "new fashion wrinkle" appeals to them.

In preparation for AUTUMN 1942, Canadian women will take an inventory of the clothes they own . . . . will use cleansing fluids and sewing basket and ingenuity to give longer life to garments possessing utility-value. And the morale of Canadian women will be higher for their having, by extra carefulness, resoucefulness and diligence, helped to conserve.

. . . but we do urge you to buy, today and every day . . .

WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

IF you must have replacements . . . you will, we know, shop carefully. You will check quality and values, and the serviceability of the things you buy. IF you must have replacements . . . we are, as always, ready to serve you Efficiently and Courteously . . . with values that are up to the standards of Zeller's.

CONSERVATION SUGGESTIONS

The following few Conservation Suggestions have been tried successfully. Not all of them may be new to every one of our readers, but if they help even a few Canadian Women to make clothes last longer, we shall feel that the space devoted to printing these "hints" has been used to good purpose.

MAKE A DASHING CALOT..... Remove trimmings and brim from an old Felt Hat. Turn the edge of the crown inward, on the wrong side; sew it down with small, neat stitches, using matching thread. If there was a ribbon band on the hat originally, freshen it by brushing and ironing; make into a bow and sew on at the side of Calot. For dress-up occasions, wear with a clip, brooch or feather.

GIVE LONGER LIFE TO SHOES by following these simple rules: Replace rundown heels without delay, to avoid twisting shoes out of shape. Keep wet shoes away from excessive heat; polish when dry. When shoes are not being worn, keep shoe-trees in them.

MAKE A JERKIN from an old sweater that is baggy at the elbows. Cut off the sleeves, about an inch below armholes. Fold remaining inch into armholes and sew around neatly, on wrong side. You will then have a smart jerkin to wear with blouse-and-skirt outfits or with tailored dresses.

DON'T THROW AWAY a worn Shirtmaker Dress. Simply remove the top, sew a length of belting around the waistline of the skirt, add hooks and eyes—and you will have a trim Skirt to wear with blouses or sweaters.

"It's Fashionable (because it's patriotic) to conserve."

Church Work in Foreign Fields Never Will Be Destroyed By Holocaust of War Council Told

16 Missionaries From Korea, China, Japan and India Speak at General Council

SOME REPATRIATED

Work of the church will never be destroyed in enemy and conquered countries in the Far East by the holocaust of war, returned missionaries told the United Church General Council last night

Sixteen missionaries from Korea, China, Japan and India with their fellows from the home missions and the Council heard a dramatic word picture of heroic church workers laboring under tremendous difficulties.

Foreign missionaries, speakers for the evening sat with the Moderator and Dr. Willard Brewing while the remainder occupied the choir loft. A sparse gathering of spectators occupied the gallery of the church auditorium.

The missionaries included:

Trinidad—Rev. H. F. Kemp, Miss Grace Beatty.

India—Rev. R. M. Clark, Miss Irene Stewart

W. China—Rev. H. G. Brown, Rev J. G. Endicott and Mrs. R. S. Langley.

S. China—Rev. D. McRae.

Korea—Rev. W. Scott, Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Fraser and Dr. F. Murray.

Japan—Rev. G. E. Bott, Dr. C. J. L. Bates and Miss G. Hamilton.

Work Broken by War

Sixty-nine years of missionary wark in Japan has been broken by war, the Rev. G. S. Bott, recently returned from Tokyo told the council. Three missionaries are still in the Japanese capital but are expected to leave within the week.

"For several years the Japanese have controlled the missions," he said. The Japanese Church always co-operated until December the 8th.

Missionaries were not interned in Tokyo. They were allowed the freedom of the city but were not allowed to leave. The women were not allowed to leave their houses.

"It is a pleasure to be able to sit here in the General Council and say what you like about the government" Mr. Bott, remarked. "In Tokyo six or eight gendarmes took their places in the front of the churches during a service with notebooks in their hands. If anything was said that was thought to be against the government, grave consequences would result.

"There is no doubt of the existence of the Church in Japan, nor of its future. Losses would come through lack of missionary support but this would not result in the finish of the work. Japanese Christians gave every co-operation after war was declared. Social Service work will be carried on. Japanese converts told Dr. Bott's party when they were leaving Tokyo, "Don't worry, we will carry on."

Members of several school board, Dr. Bott and his fellow missionaries were asked for their resignations after war was declared. However, they were called to a meeting, where the Japanese principal refused to accept the resignations.

"The work is going on—but we are not trying to minimize the unfortunate things," the missionary said. "We were treated courteously.

"The war will not destroy the structures of Christian fellowship and work. One chapter is ended, but the book is still there."

Loyalty Unquestioned

"Loyalty of the Korean Church is unquestioned," the Rev. W. Scott said. "The church does not take the initiative, but offers passive cooperation with its tongue in cheek."

Like sturdy trees the Church in Korea is weathering the storm of war. It is being blown but its roots are firmly entrenched, awaiting the Spring. It always emphasizes the personal religion, and prayer and is as loyal as ever.

The attendance in city churches is larger than ever while many small country places of worship have been closed. The word "King" has been deleted from the hymn books but the word "Lord" is allowed. Christian Endeavour groups, and societies have been disbanded because of their international affiliations. No money is allowed to be sent out of the country for missionary purposes.

Churches, hospitals and schools are still carrying on and doing a splendid work.

"Difficult days lie ahead for the church in Japan and Korea," Mr. Scott told the council. "I tremble to think what will happen when the dark days of defeat and the following period arrives. There will be moral and social disintegration, disillusion and distrust. It is a direct challenge to the church in these countries and it must be helped. We must not fail in the hour of greatest need."

As late as June, 1940, the Japanese were receiving huge quantities of war material from the United States, the Rev. James G. Endicott of West China stated. "Chinese asked why the democracies were sending war material to the dictators to crush the smaller democracies. They could not understand it."

BACK HOME

Pilot Officer W. M. Jackson, first Canadian airman back from Dieppe. He is a Winnipeg man and was overseas for a year and a half, before the commando raid, leaving Canada just two weeks after his marriage.

The speaker flew with Madam Chiang Kai-Shek, when she visited many bombed and burning cities. "Flying over Luchow one day," he recalled, "the heat from the blazing city was so intense that the plane shot upwards 600 feet in the air when we attempted to land. It was impossible to land on the beach so the pilot brought the plane down in the river."

Worked Like Heroine

Madame Kai Shek worked like a heroine in the streets of the stricken cities. The Chinese love her like a mother.

"One Japanese warplane brought down had American engines and British machine-guns."

Suechwan province was partly isolationist, Mr. Endicott stated. "When the Japanese bombed one of its cities, 300 wounded lay in the streets. Twelve medical men, not licenced practioners, picked out the wealthiest of the wounded and rushed them out of the city where they treated them and waited for their pay. Madame Kai Shek came along and with two girls and a man looked after the remaining wounded."

"I reminded the Chinese later," he said, "of the reception we got some years ago, when we were greeted with signs of "Down with Christianity" Science is best. "I showed them what science did when the bombers came, and also what the Christians did."

He told of the adoption by Madame Chiang Kai Shek of 30,000 orphans. At a Christmas party given by her one of the boys suggested that the children give up their lunches for two days and send the money to the suffering children of Poland. This was done and it was learned later through the International Red Cross that the money had arrived at its destination."

Dr. W. C. Arkinstall of Hearst, Ont., told of the growth of the church and of those frontier posts of the province. The W.M.S. through years of valiant effort had built a fine hospital, one which was now doing a fine work there. He outlined the progress made in the town with its many nationalities, and of its struggle through the years of depression. "Some day" he said, "it may need a university and a theological college."

Too Much Overlapping

There was a grievous undercurrent of dissatisfaction some years ago in the Maritimes receiving charges, the Rev. F. E. Boothroyd, Sydney, N. S., said. "Men were living on $1,000. This had been improved, however when the Home Missions minimum of $1,250 was given them. He told of the many leaders in all walks of life, who had come from the Maritimes, all of them gifted men who had made a mark in the world.

There had been too much overlapping, he said, in that the Baptist Church was strong down east, and many small places had too many churches. He hoped an agreement, where one or the other, according to which had the larger number of families, would remain and the other leave, would soon come into effect.

The Rev. Andrew Rodden, a brilliant dynamic speaker from Vancouver, painted a colorful picture of his church "the Old First, the church with the open door" in a forceful manner. He spoke of the many nationalities which pass the door and his many experiences with them.

The real problem in this section of Vancouver is the life in the raw. The area is pockmarked with bootleg dives, taverns and houses of ill-repute, he said.

"I hope" he declared amid applause, "that the delegation which leaves for Ottawa tonight will drive a spearhead into the hearts of our those in authority to make the liquor problem a national one, and a spreahead into the hearts of our own church and people and waken them from their smug complacency."

He had not seen any young men riding the rods. They were bright, cheerful, in uniform now and riding "inside".

"We must not say, when this job of war is done, to these young men, 'go away, there is not enough money to give you jobs'."

The foreign missionaries were introduced by Dr. A. H. Armstrong who gave a forceful prelude address on the value of missionaries. The home missionaries were presented to Council by Dr. R. B. Cochrane.

Great Britain Gets Jump On Japan in India

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

If India is the next goal set by Hitler for his Japanese Axis mate, there is no doubt that this time Britain, despite perils that faced her in Egypt or the urgency of home demands for a second-front concentration, has got the jump on the enemy.

Even as Mr. Churchill voiced his first and soothing statement to Parliament on the Indian situation, powerful British air, sea and land forces were deployed to mop up Madagascar. That his India exposition was timed to coincide with that move is obvious.

Complete British occupation of the huge French island must prove a stumbling block in the Axis pathway, whether it is a junction of Axis forces in the Middle East that is to be attempted, or whether a Japanese assault upon India to capitalize on internal disturbances there is in the making.

The excuse offered for the Washington-approved British action was Japanese submarine activity off Madagascar and Japanese air reconnoitering over the island. Unless they came from the decks of carriers in the Indian Ocean, those Nipponese planes could not have reached Madagascar.

Assumption Warranted

Their presence was a sure indication of threatening Japanese activities against the Allied supply lines around the Cape both to India and to Egypt and the Middle East. It warranted the London and Washington assumption that Vichy might be winking at, if not directly fostering, Axis efforts to set up secret Japanese submarine and air bases on the great French island.

If so, British action has gone far to scotch the plan. And with Madagascar not only eliminated as a possible sore spot on the flank of the Allied supply routes in the Indian Ocean, but available as a powerful supporting base for United Nations' use, Tokyo probably would be forced to reconsider any project for invading India across the Bay of Bengal.

As Mr. Churchill told Parliament, there are only two discernable routes for such an attempt—by land from Occupied Burma, or by sea across the Bay of Bengal. Weeks ago Parliament was assured by the Admiralty that irrespective of other British naval commitments in many seas, powerful forces had been concentrated in the Indian Ocean.

Tribute to Indian Troops

Secured by complete occupation of Madagascar, the British position on the sea flank of any Japanese attempt to span the Bay of Bengal is strongly reinforced. Ceylon and defense installations on the west coast of India now manned. Mr. Churchill said, by more white as well as Indian troops than in the history of Anglo-Indian relations, are prepared to offer stout opposition.

For India's defense purposes the essential element of the Churchill review was his statement that no Indian unit of the army in India or elsewhere had been influenced by the civil-disobedience campaign. He also paid highest tribute to the loyalty of he Indian police and of Indian officials generally.

It was his purpose, apparently, to lessen concern in the United States as well as in the Empire as to what might happen in India. He is in a position to know more accurately what the situation actually is than could be discovered from despatches from India. His own political head might pay the price of misinforming Parliament on so grave matter. The best any distant observer can do is accept the Churchill picture of India.

Weekly War Commentary

By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Gwynn

Written For The Canadian Press By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Gwynn

London, Sept. 12 (CP Cable) — There now can be no doubt but Marshal Erwin Rommel's attack of last week in Egypt was a major attempt to inflict a decisive defeat on the 8th army.

The attempt failed in its objective and Rommel was compelled to withdraw after heavy losses to his original positions. He has suffered a severe reverse but not a crushing defeat.

This could be inflicted on him only by a full-scale counter-attack which at this stage might lead only to the frittering away of Allied resources without attaining decisive results.

Counter-attacks with limited objectives were delivered which added greatly to the Axis losses and which regained ground temporarily overrun. The enemy's withdrawal was slow and orderly, covered by strong rear-guard action, and he still holds bridgeheads in that part of our minefields which covers a sector held mainly by mobile troops.

Confidence of Troops

One of the most important consequences of the battle has been its giving to the 8th army full confidence in its new leaders. Rommel's prestige, on the other hand, probably suffered. In his withdrawal. Rommel was able to retrieve many of his damaged vehicles and it has not yet been officially announced how many he abandoned.

He probably did not lose many armored vehicles in the Allied bombing attacks behind the front but great numbers of his other motorised equipment now must be of little value except as sources of spare parts.

The losses of the 8th army are reported to be comparatively light and there is every reason to be satisfied with the result, but there is still more to be achieved, if possible before winter releases a large part of the Nazi air force and probably many panzer divisions from Russia.

Russian Front

Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's attacks on Stalingrad have grown in intensity but his progress seems to have been slowed down. While the Russians' position is very critical, it is encouraging that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko has been bringing up more and more reinforcements and has been able to counter-attack at some points.

Reports that rain has fallen may be important for even if this may not greatly affect the fighting area it is likely to cause delays on the German lines of communication which must employ masses of motor vehicles as well as railways.

Even in dry weather it has been amazing that the Germans have been able to supply their great concentration of troops and meet the expenditure of munitions in this prolonged, intensive fight. Except for the attack on Novorossisk and the advance toward the Grozny oilfields and the Caspian coast, the fighting appears to have slackened on the Caucasus front, suggesting that troops and material have been diverted toward the Volga.

The Novorossisk assault has been reinforced from the Crimea by way of the Kerch Strait and has made progress but the claim to have captured this port was prematurely made and probably is not yet justified. In any case, Tuapse must be taken before the full effects of the loss of Novorossisk will be felt by the Black Sea fleet.

Although the Nazis have gained a foothold across the Terek River, their advance toward Grozny has made slow progress and has been meeting tough opposition.

Japanese Treasure

In the Far East, Japanese attempts to land reinforcemnets for their groups holding out in the Solomons seem to have been half-hearted and with the growing strength of the United States forces, nothing short of a major attempt to recapture the islands is likely to alter the situation materially.

There are signs the Japanese are pressing on in their effort to take Port Moresby and now have forced the pass which guards the approaches to that Allied base.

Glancing Back 25 Years

The Soviet movement gained prestige when Prime Minister A. F. Kerensky, virtual dictator, appealed to the Petrograd Soviet for assistance in quelling an attempt by Gen. L. G. Kornilov to assume power in the Russian capital.

Gen. Kornilov was dismissed from his post as commander-in-chief of the Russian army Sept. 8, 1917 and surrendered a week later after his revolt had failed.

High Prices Benefit Commercial Fishermen

Point Traverse (Special)—Commercial fishermen operating in county waters, received fancy prices for their catches of whitefish, early this week, according to local fish buyers. Friday and Saturday of last week, fishermen were offered 30 cents per pound for round whites, with lake trout bringing better than 20 cents per pound. These prices prevailed only during the Jewish Holiday.

Commercial fishermen operating in the Bay of Quinte are reported to be netting good catches of whitefish. One fisherman brought in over six hundred pounds in one lift.

Southeast Gale

A southeast gale, accompanied by a driving rain, swept over the lake on Wednesday. All fishing craft were kept at their quays, as great seas lashed the rocky shores for many hours.

Salvage work aboard the sunken tug "Florence," off Timber Island, has been discontinued temporarily. Much valuable machinery is to be recovered from the hull of the vessel.

Water Level Higher

Water level of the Point Traverse harbor was some two inches lower in August than July, according to figures recorded here. The water level of Lake Ontario shows it to have been 13 inches higher than August 1941.

SHOWDOWN BATTLE

There was no disposition here, however, to assume the Japanese definitely had been stopped in their drive on Port Moresby. The terse announcement that no further advances had been made was taken rather to indicate that both sides were regrouping their forces for a continuation of the important battle.

Fair Sized Garrison at Port

The Allied base is defended by a sizeable garrison and it is assumed the Japanese are massing all available strength for the attack.

One wounded Australian, returning from the mountain fighting, said the Japanese taking part in the drive were "big men, some nearly six feet, well-built and cunning."

Allied air units continued to support the ground troops, the communique said, indicating that bombing and strafing flights had been carried out against the Japanese positions. In addition, Allied bombers raided the Buna area twice, destroying three aircraft on the ground and a number of trucks. The airmen said they encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire but no opposition in the air.

Allied bombing units also attacked a building and a small vessel on Teden (Teun) Island northeast of Timor, but results of the raid could not be observed, the communique said. It was the first reported attack on this island.

Mort Cooper Whips Dodgers With Three Hits And Cardinals Shave Brooklyn's Lead to Game

Scores 3-0 Shutout, Collects Two Hits and Scores Two Runs

YANKS DEFEATED

(By AUSTIN BEALMEAR)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

They're singing "The St. Louis Blues" in Flatbush today and the cause of it all is Morton Cooper, first 20-game winner of 1942 among the pitchers of the major leagues but strictly a pain in the pennant race to Brooklyn Dodgers.

Cooper, who forms the front end of the only brother battery now intact in the majors, carved out his 20th triumph yesterday with one of the most impressive performances of his career and probably the most important.

He pitched St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-0 shutout over the Dodgers, holding them to three scattered hits as the Cards chopped Brooklyn's lead in the National League flag chase to a single game.

He collected two of his team's eight blows, starting both of the Cardinal run-making sprees and tallying each time against the ace of the Brooklyn Curving Corps, John Whitlow Wyatt.

It was the eighth shutout of the season for Cooper, first Cardinal ever to pitch that many scoreless games in a single year. It was his fifth triumph over the Dodgers, three of which have been shutouts at Ebbets Field.

The big right hander didn't let a man get past first base. He walked only one and struck out three—Dolph Camilli twice and pinch hitter Lew Riggs—the latter with a man on base.

Thus the Cards, who hold an edge of 12 games to nine over the Dodgers this season, have only to repeat yesterday's performance or produce a reasonable facsimile in their final meeting today to take over a half interest in first place.

Standings As Of Today

The 1-2 standings in the National League:

Club	W.	L.	G.B.	G.P.
St. Louis	93	46	1	15

In the American League, the front-running New York Yankees also are finding the path to the pennant a little rough, having failed to score in their last 23 innings, but they still stand nine games to the good and do not appear in any danger.

Chicago White Sox handed the Yanks their second straight shutout yesterday as Ed Smith shaded Atley Donald in a pitching duel 1-0. Meanwhile Boston's second place Red Sox picked up a full game by walloping the Cleveland Indians, 15-2, on a 17-hit attack. Tony Lupien started the parade with a three-run double off Jim Bagby in the opening frame.

The 1-2 standings in the American League:

Club	W.	L.	G.B.	G.P.
New York	94	47	—	13
Boston	85	56	9	12

Elsewhere in the Junior circuit, Philadelphia Athletics stopped Detroit Tigers, 5-4, and St. Louis Browns whipped the Washington Senators, 10-4 ,with the help of home runs by Chet Laabs, Walt Judnich and Frankie Hayes.

Two other games in the National League saw the New York Giants edge out the Chicago Cubs, 4-3, and Cincinnati Reds beat the Philadelphia Phils, 8-5, in 11 innings. Pittsburgh's scheduled doubleheader at Boston was postponed until today because of weather.

WINDSOR ATHLETE TOPS FIELD AT NO. 5 I.T.S. MEET

GOES TO TORONTO

The cream of the athletic prowess paraded before the personnel of the No. 5 Initial Training School R.C.A.F. here Friday in an autumn track and field meet, that saw A.C. 2 Jack Parry, of Windsor, waltz off with the day's individual honors and handily win the meet championship. Parry raced home to win the century dash and finish first in the javelin throw and broad jump to crown himself with athletic glory for the day.

Prior to the meet the athletes paraded before Wing Commander A. J. Sentsinger, who took the salute and subsequently congratulated the champion athletes and those in charge of the day's program for the splendid presentation, that was accorded the airmen and visitors.

2 Compete in Regional Meet

F/O. Robt Hunter, in charge of sports at the station, announced the winners of the day's meet would compete in the R.C.A.F. Regional track and field meet at Toronto on Sept. 19th. F/O. Hunter also made it known that Parry, who won the century dash in fine time over a dampend track, would run for the local Air Force team at Toronto, while a relay quartette, as well as a 220-yard entry and an entry for the mile run would also be selected from the results of yesterday's competition.

In group championships P/O. Henderson's "F" Flight took top honors, while F/L. Wann No. 2 Squadron walked off with the squadron honors. Owing to the soggy condition of the field no station records were established, except in the pole vault when McHenry topped the bar for a new station record.

The results:

220 yards—1 Sauro, 2 Roberts, 3 McCameron.

Shot Putt—1 McCameron, 2 Acton, 3 Sussman.

Running High Jump—1 McKinley, 2 Connell, 3 Stewart.

Javelin Throw—1 Parry, 2 Stewart, 3 Yuile.

Running Broad Jump—1 Parry, 2 Alexander, 3 Cope.

Pole Vault—1 McHenry, 2 Stewart.

N.C.O.'s 100 Yards—1 McHenry, 2 Casselman, 3 Holsette.

THREE BELIEVED KILLED

Hackettstown, N.J., Sept. 12 (AP) —An explosion rocked the war production plant of the Essex Specialty Company here and the United States Army Explosives Branch said later three persons were believed to have been killed.

Five persons were injured, the army said through its Chicago office, and $10,000 property damage created.

Fire followed the explosion but was brought under control.

TORONTO, Sept. 12 — (CP) — Vancouver golfers lead the field in raising money for war charities, with Montrealer their closest opposition. The coast city's exhibition season isn't over yet (Ben Hogan will be there next Thursday) but its $6,000 take in the Lions Gate Open gives it a clear margin on the field.

Montreal has raised $2,713 from three war charity field days, and there may be more to come. Exact records aren't available from other cities, but they are known to fall below these figures.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association should have a large donation for the Red Cross at season's end when the year's profits including the swag from the Canadian Open, will be turned over. B. L. Anderson, secretary of the R. C. G. A., told me no figures will be available on this donation until the year end.

Individual clubs have used many unusual money-raising plans to swell war funds. One of the most successful is at the Beaconsfield Club near Montreal, where anyone driving into a certain bunker on the 18th hole pays 25 cents. There has been $40 worth of hooks, slices and (always be charitable, fellows) had bounces this season.

Straight Talk Dept:

J. P. (Toronto Telegram) Fitzgerald, on rugby football: "It is to be hoped and trusted that the playing season and all connected therewith will be conducted with a little more stability of mind than the preliminary skirmishes..."

Incidentally:

Schoolboy Rowe was voted a full $75 share in Montreal Royals' second-place swag from the International League, although he arrived only about three weeks from the season's end ... he'll probably earn a full share, and more, of the playoff booty ... Omar's Gift, who cost guess how much, isn't finished for the season after all ... she's sound after a two-month layoff, and will run in the Toronto fall meetings .... Charlie (Toronto Globe and Mail) Oliver earned undying fame a few days ago when he mentioned this two-year-old filly without even hinting that she cost Winnipeg's Scotty Kennedy only 37 cents ... Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning recalls an old managerial adage of the Northern League, where ancient buses provide all transportation: "I don't care if they hit or pitch, so long as they can change a tire." It must be lonesome around rion-hard Park De Young in Regina these days, without the thuds and smashes of big men training for football and the soul-searing screams of Dean Griffing getting into shape for another season of heckling fans from the secondary defence line.

Toronto, Sept. 12 —(CP)— Two well-known Truro, N. S. boys are in the Royal Canadian Air Force now.

Sgt.-Pilot Donald Fulton, goaltender for the Truro Junior Bearcats in 1940, and Sgt.-Observer Tom Fraser, a member of the Truro team which won the Nova Scotia intermediate rugby championship in 1940 are two lads who have made the switch from games to guns.

Keith Langille, a product of Charlottetown hockey rinks, and formerly with Dave McKay's Nanaimo, B. C. Clippers, has joined the R. C. A. F. Langille also starred for a time with St. Michael's college hockey teams while he was playing in Toronto.

Paul Laidlow, west coast swimmer, is a flying officer P. T. instructor in the air force.

Byron (Butch) McDonald, who played hockey for Moose Jaw Millers last year is in the R.C.A.F.

Hal McBride, who played with Glace Bay Miners two seasons ago is another hockey-star-turned-airman for the duration.

Lieut. Jimmie Gray of Amherst, N. S., former Acadia University hockey and football player, enlisted with a Nova Scotia unit and went overseas some time ago.

Bill McLachlan, who used to be quite a basketball player in Vernon, B. C., is in the air force. Another Vernon cage star in the armed forces is Walter Mills, who has been taking a special course at an aviation school.

OUT OF THE BUSHES to split a pennant purse have come Stainback, Cullenbine, Hassett, Hemsley and Turner of the Yanks.

NEWARK BEARS WALLOP GIANTS IN FIRST GAME

Score Seven Runs in Third Frame and Never Headed

COOMBS COMBED

By the Associated Press

Taking a back seat after clinching the International League Pennant a few weeks ago Newark Bears came forward yesterday and walloped the fourth-place Jersey City Giants, 8-2, in the first game of the semi-final Governor's Cup playoffs.

The second-place Montreal Royals and third-place Syracuse Chiefs open their semi-final round tonight at Montreal while Jersey City and Newark play their second game at Ruppert Stadium this afternoon.

Yesterday's struggle was a scoreless deadlock until Newark's half of the third. With two out, the Bruins scored seven times and never were headed.

Newark combed starter Bobby Coombs for seven hits and all eight runs. Coombs also walked six men. Tommie Byrne, Newark flinger, helped his own cause in the third-inning uprising with two hits. Other Bears who garnered two bingles in the big third were Bill Johnson and Lloyd Christopher.

Byrne had a no-hitter until Joe Orengo lined a single in the seventh after one was out.

In winning his 18th game of the season, Byrne walked four and struck out six batters. He woundup the regular campaign as the League-Leading hurler with a record of 17 and 4.

Ken Jungels is slated to take the hill for the Giants and George (Washy) Washburn has been nominated to toss for the Bears.

At Montreal, the freshman sensation young Ewell Blackwell is scheduled to hurl for Syracuse and Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe veteran of baseball wars is to carry the torch for the Royals.

New York, Sept. 12 (AP)—If Col. Bob Neyland's Eastern United States Army All-Star football outfit fails to show as much today as Maj. Kimbrough who has been practically the whole western team.

3 Heroes of Libyan Battle Awarded Victoria Crosses

London, Sept. 12 —(CP)— The Victoria Cross, the Empire's most coveted military decoration, has been awarded to three heroes of the battle of Libya but only one has lived to wear it, the War Office announced today.

One posthumous award was to Private Adam Wakenshaw, member of a British anti-tank gun crew, whose left arm was shot off in a point-blank duel with a German motorized gun in the Libyan desert last July.

When all other members of the crew were killed or knocked out, he managed with one hand to load and fire his two-pounder five times. Another enemy shot blew him away from his gun and injured him further. Slowly he dragged himself back and was preparing to fire again when a direct hit on his ammunition killed him.

Australian Private Arthur Gurney made a lone bayonet charge, silencing two enemy machine-gun nests at El Eisa last July 22, and last was seen alive charging a third post inside which his body later was found.

The third Victoria Cross went to South African Sergeant Quentin Smythe, who although wounded, took command of his platoon when its officer was shot and then stalked and destroyed a machine-gun nest with grenades.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

For the first time in history two soldiers will fight for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world. The two army men of course are Corporal Joe Louis, champion, and Private Billie Conn of the United States Army and the big event will be held on Columbus Day (Thanksgiving Day in Canada), Monday, Oct. 12th. It's a natural. This scrap can't miss being the biggest thing of its kind in pugilistic history. Joe Louis is one of the great champions of the heavyweight dynasty, while Billy, the Conn Man, has already proved himself a dangerous contender by outboxing Louis for 12 rounds before succumbing to Louis' lethal punching. This time there is no difference in the financial end between the champion and the challenger, There is nothing in it for the two soldiers except the thumps they will absorb, the applause they'll receive and of course the heavyweight title. All profits is to be given into the United States Army Relief Fund and starting about next week the usual pre-fight ballyhoo will feature sports.

Walter Johnson, the original "big train" of baseball and considered by many the greatest pitcher ever to ascend a mound, recently declared "Mickey" Cochrane the No. 1 handler of pitchers in diamond history. It was in an interview with Taylor Spink, publisher of the St. Louis Sporting News, that "Barney" went overboard to say that while with the Philadelphia Athletics, Cochrane was faced with the handling of the most temperamental mound staffs ever to perform in the major leagues. Johnson claims "Mickey" handled that corps of hurlers perfectly, knowing when to cuss Big George Earnshaw and when to extend a pat on the back to the nervous Lefty Grove.

Considering that during his pitching and managing days Johnson watched such backstop greats as Billy Sullivan sr., Steve O'Neill, Bill Carrigan, Ray Schalk, Gabby Street, Bill Dickey and numerous others, his selection of Cochrane as the finest worker of pitchers is a marvellous compliment to the former Philadelphia and Detroit great, and bears out the feelings of such other luminaries as Ty Cobb, George Moriarty and Zach Wheat.

With the Dodgers and Cardinals staging as torrid a race in the National League as could be wished for it might be in order to glance over the remaining games left for these two clubs, especially after the New York Yankees announces the sale of world's series tickets yesterday. The remaining contests for St. Louis and Brooklyn reads: —

CARDINALS

Abroad — September 12th at Brooklyn, 13, 14 and 15th at Philadelphia; 16 and 17th at Boston and 19 and 20th at Chicago.

At home—21st and 22nd, Pittsburgh; 23rd and 24th, Cincinnati and 26th and 27th, Chicago.

BROOKLYN

Abroad — 26th and 27th at Philadelphia.

At home—12th, St. Louis; 13th, 14th, 15th, Cincinnati; 16th, and 17th. Pittsburgh; 19, 19, 20, 20, Philadelphia; 22, New York; 23; Philadelphia; 24th and 25th, Boston.

Remember when Art Ross, manager of the Boston Bruins, resigned from the National Hockey League board of governors one year ago today when the board awarded the contract of player Angus Cameron to the New York Rangers and charged the Boston club with "tampering"?

These professional wrestlers are chronic pranksters outside the ring. Take for instance about a month ago, Jerry Monnahan and Earl McCready went fishing over at Consecon Lake and enjoyed considerable good fortune in catching some fine pickerel. McCready packed three of the best of the finny beauties into a box with some ice and hid them in his Hume Arena dressing room. When Earl was engaged in the ring that night Billie Watson and Roland Kirchmeyer substituted three sticks of wood for the fish and McCready lugged the box of wood to friends east of Kingston. Naturally he was embarrassed, but there's one thing certain—these boys don't clown too much in the ring. Especially when you have grapplers the type of McCready and John Katan meeting in an elimination bout for the British Empire title as is the case next Wednesday night here.

Despite heavy track and field conditions, the athletes at No. 5 Initial Training School completed a successful field day yesterday and all concerned were extended the personal thanks of Wing Commander A. J. Snetsinger, officer commanding. Jack Parry, who Belleville softball followers will remember as an outfielder and hitter of note, captured the No. 5 ITS field day championship and will be one to represent the Belleville R.C.A.F. base at the Ontario Regional R.C.A.F. track and field meet in Toronto on the 19th instant. Parry won with the century dash with ease, the javelin throw and the running broad jump. F/O Bob Hunter, in charge of sports at No. 5 ITS, announced that his station would enter a relay team, Parry in the 100 yard dash and also entries in the 220 and mile run at the Air Force Regional meet. In all probability the ITS. relay team will consist of Parry, McHenry, Roberts and Moore, the quartette from "F" Flight who won yesterday's relay. Incidentally following Parry, as individual point winner, came McHenry of the same flight, and McCameron, so is F/O Archie Green's face beaming today.

THIS AND THAT—DOWN IN Flatbush there's a guy by the name of Leo (the lip) Durocher, who's practically ready to be tied today.... The reason—his Brooklyn "Bums" are just that today—That is unless they can win over the Mound City Cardinals this p.m.... Yesterday Mort Cooper fired three-hit ball against the Dodgers to move within one game of the National League top rung in as thrilling a race as the senior circuit has seen in years .... 'Tis an old saying—"the American League wins world series, while the National League makes money with sterling league finishes under the wire.... Joe Louis Barrow has received another "hook" and is now Sergeant Barrow in the United States Army ....They must be feeding him well in the army because he's considerably over-weight for a title bout, but neither Joe nor his followers seem to be worrying .... Rain washed out the first Oshawa-Kingston Eastern Ontario softball final Thursday and they'll try it again at Oshawa today.... It's Oshawa, and no sour grapes....take it yourself.

ALSAB, 'WHIRLY' MEET IN $25,000 'GANSETT SPECIAL

'Dream Race' of the Season Scheduled to Entertain Uncle Sam's Boys

RECEIPTS FOR RELIEF

By FID FEDER
Associated Press Sport Writer

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 12—(AP) —The "dream race" between Alsab and Whirlaway—the race almost any track would have been willing to mortgage its grandstand to land —comes off a Little Narragansett today, strictly for Uncle Sam's boys.

The two "smashing-est" stretch runners of recent years tangle in the $25,000 Narragansett special—the race that made Whirly look like a bum just a year ago—and just about every nickel in the house will go to army and navy relief.

The program may make this Little Rhode Island track the biggest single war-relief contributor in the National turf picture. 'Gansett already has chipped in $58,227 from its Spring meeting and today's offering might bring the war chest jackpot well over the $125,000 mark.

The mile and three-sixteenths collision of Warren Wright's long tailed lightning bolt and Al Sabath's Chicago express tops any other turf dessert that could be cooked up this year.

Yet, there's no money-back guarantee that one of them will be first to the cashier's window. There are a couple of others in the field of nine who know more than one-and-one about the business of picking them up and laying them down.

This is particularly true of Rounders, a little Irishman out of Emerson Woodward's Texas barn and already the victor over Whirly in one race.

Whirlaway, trying to boost his $466,836 bankroll closer to the half-million dollar goal, is being asked to pack 130 pounds. Alsab will tote 122.

German Tanker Is Destroyed

Londan, Sept. 12 —(CP)— The Admiralty announced a German tanker was destroyed and an anti-aircraft vessel probably destroyed in an early morning naval encounter off the coast of Holland yesterday.

An enemy armed trawler and at least six other naval units were "severely damaged" while the British navy lost a motor gunboat, the communique said.

NO BACKWARD

Soviet strategy in that region now apparently is aimed primarily at protection of the port of Tuapse, 75 miles farther south.

Huge forces of tanks and infantry supported by roving squadrons of Stukas, were reported repulsed repeatedly yesterday by the defenders of Stalingrad.

The battle to wipe out Axis bridgeheads in the Terek River valley of the central Caucasus was maintained and the Soviet information bureau said 2,000 Germans were killed and 90 tanks burned in the last five days of that action.

Nazi Prisoners Taken

Red army troops probing at Nazi nerve centres on the central front were declared to have annihilated more than 500 enemy officers and men and captured several strong points.

Several villages, German war supplies and prisoners were reported seized during Soviet attacks on the Volkhov River front north of Lake Ilmen.

"The enemy, trying to regain his positions, counter-attacked," the communique said, "but was repelled with heavy losses, 26 enemy tanks being destroyed in the course of one engagement."

Heavy damage was inflicted on enemy shipping. The Japanese were turned back as in the first Coral Sea battle and their forces dealt staggering punishment but not completely knocked out. At this writing, a fight still is in prospect.

The Japanese planned to attack Guadalcanal by air and land thousands of troops under warship and air bombardment. But the Japanese air force was smashed out of the skies and the invasion fleet was turned back, and the United States grip on the southeastern Solomons now is firmer than before.

The Japanese invasion force consisted of two main groups; one containing carriers with battleships, heavy and light cruisers and destroyers, and the other centring on a small carrier escorted by one heavy cruiser and two destroyers. In addition, there were several other groups of transports under warship protection.

Four Separate Attacks

In the battle, United States aircraft made four separate attacks. The largest was by carrier planes on a Japanese carrier. The carrier planes also attacked two other Japanese warship forces while navy and marine dive-bombers from Guadalcanal battered the separate group of Japanese warships and transports this morning.

The battle started with an attack on Guadalcanal airfield early yesterday afternoon by Japanese carrier planes and land-based heavy bombers from Rabaul and Bougainville.

(Rabaul is on New Britain Island and Bougainville is in the upper Solomons, both northwest of Guadalcanal.)

A handful of marine corps pilots and army pilots soared to meet them and in quick, slashing fighting shot down 11 Zeros and 10 twin-engined bombers. Three American pilots were missing in this action, of whom one was known to have been killed.

Meanwhile, the weather, which had been stormy over the entire area for two previous days, had cleared, and American and Japanese airplanes sighted the respective forces about noon yesterday.

"In one sector of the Central (Moscow) front, fighting continued on the outskirts of a large inhabited locality".

"Southeast of this locality the Germans, one and one-half regiments strong and supported by tanks, counter-attacked".

"The Soviet troops withstood the attack and, in a long engagement, destroyed 40 enemy tanks. The Germans suffered heavy losses".

The late summer snowfall in the Caucasus Mountains was reported to have complicated fighting between Russian Mountain detachments and Axis Alpinists, mantling the slopes south of the perpetually ice-capped peaks. Cold rains fell earlier this week in the Lower Volga regions.

Destroy All Bridges

Field dispatches said the Russian army of the Central Caucasus had destroyed all bridges across a river in the Mosdok region (apparently the Terek) and was closing an iron ring around German forces crowded back to the south bank.

The invaders succeeded in making another crossing of the stream and launched a flanking blow against the Russians, but it failed, the dispatches said.

The army newspaper Red Star indicated the German losses before Stalingrad were among the war's largest, with the assault troops at times "walking knee-deep in blood".

Field Marshal Von Bock was declared to have expended 1,300 men and thirty tanks in a series of seven main assaults upon a Russian-held settlement west of the city. At one time, the newspaper said, 300 Nazi bombers cruised over the Russian positions, bolstering an artillery barrage with their bombs.

100 ENEMY PLANES

Between Aug. 9 and yesterday there have been frequent engagements as the enemy felt out American positions in preparations for a counter-attack. These included the Japanese air attacks on the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area and activity by enemy submarines against United States transports, plus the occasional shelling of marine shore positions by Japanese submarines or destroyers on hit-and-run raids.

Sub Surfaces Near Shore

I was at Guadalcanal at 2:30 a.m. yesterday during the latest such attack when a submarine came to the surface offshore and fired eight shells harmlessly.

But this was preliminary to this most recent battle, fought entirely by airplanes over the Guadalcanal area and the seward to the north and east of the Solomons.

In addition to 96 enemy planes known to have been shot down by planes and anti-aircraft fire, it is believed many more Japanese aircraft were lost in night landings or failed to return to their carriers.

Bombs Stop Carrier

Scouts located three enemy carriers and the attack group consisting of dive-bombers and torpedo planes found the small Japanese carrier at 4:10 p.m. escorted by two destroyers and one heavy cruiser. Bombs stopped the carrier nearly dead in the water.

Torpedo planes got one hit amidship on the heavy cruiser, and another torpedo which missed the carrier hit an escorting destroyer.

One dive-bomber shot down a Japanese torpedo plane which had just taken off from the carrier deck. The attack group escaped with minor damage to one plane. It was hit by a small group of Zeros circling the carrier.

Meanwhile the American force was expecting an attack momentarily. It came and developed into the greatest air battle of the Pacific war as fighter planes ripped into enemy dive bombers and escort Zeros. I watched the attack and the air battle from the bridge.

Japanese planes dropped all around in great flaming streaks of smoke. Of an estimated 70 planes in the Japanese attack group, only 10 got through to drop their bombs.

Never Reach Objective

The Japanese had planned a coordinated dive-bomber and torpedo-plane attack, but the torpedo planes never reached their objectives. Fighters intercepted 15 of them 40 miles from American ships and quickly shot down eight, one after another. The remaining seven fled.

Just before the enemy dive-bombers reached us another small attack group took off from our carrier. They encountered a strong enemy force of one Mutsu-class battleship, four heavy cruisers, six light cruisers and six destroyers.

United States planes attacked. One bomb hit the battleship just aft of the smoke-stack whole one torpedo hit a heavy cruiser. One of our torpedo planes was shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

Shortly after this attack, just before dark, two scout bombers located a Japanese carrier and dropped two bombs which fell within 10 to 20 feet of it and caused some damage, although probably not extensive. Later in the evening long-ranging army planes attacked the Japanese carrier and scored four near misses.

Retreated Northward

At dusk, the enemy carriers and accompanying warships retreated northward, and this morning they couldn't be located.

One or possibly two small Japanese ships sneaked into the Guadalcanal coast yesterday evening and attempted to land a handful of troops from small boats. The marines dive-bombed one enemy destroyer, while planes strafed the landing boats repeatedly. The marines reported that as far as they were able to observe, not a single Japanese soldier reached the shore.

During the night, one group of Japanese ships kept coming south. Marine and navy dive-bombers from Guadalcanal attacked them this morning northward of Florida Island. One transport and one heavy cruiser were hit by bombs and set afire. When seen later, both ships were stopped dead in the water. The other vessels fled northward.

This morning, a scout bomber attacked two enemy submarines found on the surface.

This afternoon, Japanese planes attacked Guadalcanal from an altitude of 27,000 feet in a hit-run raid but there was no damage.

Broadcasts Impartial

Elimination of Madgascar as a base for Axis agents and submarines was the announced aim.

Broadcasts from the Colonial government radio station at Tananarive, the capital, were described by British listeners at Port Louis on the island of Mauritius, as "curiously impartial and restrained."

Indignation was evident, however, in radio messages from both Vichy, where head-of-government Pierre Laval said the United States shared "equal responsibility" with Britain, and Nazi-occupied Paris.

Some Axis collaborationists in France demanded blow-for-blow resprisals and Jacques Doriot's French popular party urged adoption of "an active policy in the Mediterranean."

Doriot's followers also called for immediate closing of United States consulates in both unoccupied France and her colonies. Internment of British citizens at camps next to Allied bombing objectives was suggested by the pro-Axis Marcel Deat.

Three Columns Moving

Vichy reports said a British force advancing from Majunga had crossed the Betsiboka River and covered half the 200-mile road to Tananarive, fortified city of 92,000 upon a basaltic ridge 4,080 feet above sea level and linked to the port of Tamatave by a 135-mile railway line.

A second column pushed eastward toward Antsirabe from the beachhead at Morondava. A third moved southward from Diego Suarez toward Ambanja (apparently to supplement the newly-landed British detachments in that area).

The French also told of a fourth major approach to the west coast with the arrival of British warships off Tulear, southern-most of the big ports on the Mozambique channel.

Majeski 'Int.' Loop Batting Champion

NEW YORK, Sept. 12 — (AP) — Han Majeski of the pennant-winning Newark Bears is the International League's batting champion for 1942.

The slugging third baseman, who led hitters of the circuit from the middle of July after slipping in and out of the top spot earlier in the year, finished the season with 198 hits in 574 official times at bat for an average of .345.

Majeski succeeds Gene Corbett, who took the title with a modest .305 last year, finishing with Newark after playing most of the season at Baltimore.

The circuit's 10 leading hitters, based on 250 or more times at bat and including the Jersey City-Syracuse playoff for third place: Majeski, .345; Moore, .314; Johnny Walaj, Buffalo, .309; Ed Robinson, Baltimore, .308; Sid Gordon, Jersey City, .300; Frank Colman, Toronto, .299; Mike Rocco, Buffalo, .298; Bud Metheny, Newark, .295; Bill Johnson, Newark, .291; and Jack Graham, Montreal, .287.

Majeski also led the league in runs batted in with 117 and his total of 198 hits topped that department.

FELL BACK ON MACHINE

Lindsay, Ont., Sept. 12. (CP)—Eighteen-year-old Milton Webdale climbed unhurt from the wreckage of his car near here after an accident only to slip, fall back on the jagged metal of the machine, sever an artery and suffer other deep cuts.

Attention Air Force

Ottawa, Sept. 12 (CP)—The Ottawa Journal said in a newspaper story that the question whether the army will enter a hockey team to compete for the Allan Cup next winter now is under consideration at National Defence Headquarters.

The paper added:

"As early as last spring, when the Flyers were winning their way to the Allan Cup for the R.C.A.F., the army made a survey of hockey talent then at its disposal.

"It was found that a team comparable in quality to the Air Force Flyers could have been organized.

"Since then, the 'paper' team has been revised to take in more N.H.L. players, the army having enlisted good portions of last season's Boston Bruins, Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers.

"Whether the army will pull in these soldier-players from military establishments scattered across Canada to concentrate them at one centre as a team, is a decision currently being considered by five men."

The story said the five were Defence Minister Ralston, his Deputy, Col. H. DesRosiers, the Chief of Staff, Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, the Adjutant General, Maj.-Gen. H. F. G Letson, and the Quartermaster-General, Maj-Gen. J. P. MacKenzie.

Forgery Charge Is Admitted

Cornwall, Ont, Sept. 12. (CP)—George Mills of Cornwall pleaded guilty before Magistrate P.C. Bergeron here Friday to a charge of forging the names of eight original purchasers of War Savings Certificates to redemption cheques received. He was remanded for sentence till Sept. 16.

The charge was laid by Detective Corporal Herve Poudrette of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Magistrate Bergeron told Mills: "In a Nazi-occupied country you would be put on a stake and shot. You know that. If a racket is made of our war effort, what are we going to do about it?"

Mills testified that the people who sold him the certificates gave him permission to sign their names to the cheques.

Det. Cpl. Poudrette said the 21 certificates had been forged and the cheques signed, with signatures in the handwriting of the accused. He said the amount involved was $78.

Poudrette added that 271 War Savings Certificates valued at more than $1,500 were found in Mills' room. He said Mills had admitted filling in a number of them and signing eight of the cheques.

AT THE CAPITOL

Exciting new dance team in Columbia's sparkling new army camp musical, "You'll Never eGt Rich", Fred Astaire and Rita Hayworth come to the Capitol Theatre Sunday midnight. Cole Porter penned the hit tunes and Robert Benchley heads the supporting cast. On the same program "Hold That Woman" stars James Dunn and Frances Gifford.

AIR MARSHAL

They involve dollars and cents instead of pounds and shillings — dollars and cents going home to his wife or mother or saved for his marriage; they involve Canadian methods of promotion and discipline, on neither of which points we see eye to eye with others; they involve spiritual solace which he wishes to receive in the homely tongue of his fathers; they involve even the difficulty of finding baseball equipment in a country devoted to cricket.

Ease Airmen's Minds

All these problems we can solve for Sgt.-Pilot Morrison; all these worries large and small we can lift from his mind as he goes into that combat from which we hope he will emerge unscathed. We can solve them if we know where he is, if he is among enough of his countrymen to make his presence as a Canadian known to Canadian headquarters.

I think the All-Canadian squadron is best for these material and spiritual purposes. I think the All-Canadian wing or group is even better — and we should understand their problems after interviews we have with these boys, day after day, here in London and out on their stations. We see something else that may not be fully appreciated by either papers or public at home. We know these lads are very young by all our standards. If they were older they could not be air crew.

This is the first absence away from home for many of them — I would go so far as to say for most of them. They are not professional warriors. Any homesickness they have ever encountered in their young lives — that visit maybe to relatives not so far away or to school or job from which they could still phone home — is multiplied a thousandfold here.

Better Off Among Friends

Such vast distances lie between them and their homes, and their return can be dictated only by the exigencies of war.

Understand me again, I am not talking so much now as commander of these boys but as one who has tried to understand their problems as individual Canadians — and has tried to see too how their people at home must feel. I believe they will be happier if they can talk to other boys from Yarmouth or Mont Joli or Aurora or Portage or Chilliwack. Not only happier but far more efficient in the performance of their high task and that can happen only if we bring our overseas Canadians more and more together in ever-expanding battle formations; if we bring them "home" from the 700-odd R.A.F. units among which they are scattered today.

This is what I was saying in behalf of Sgt.-Pilot John Morrison. I take time off to answer a press attack only because such an attack might undermine the Canadian people's faith in the direction of their lads in battle overseas, and faith is vital to us all. These lads cannot, thank God, fight the enemy from the soil of Canada; but fighting where they are, let us do our utmost to bring a bit of Canada to them.

Icy Fear

Hillsacres was beginning to attract victors—the curious and the interested, who had read and loved Steven's book and the brief biography about its author. They tramped over the crisp autumn leaves, peered into the windows, frightened the horses in their stables until Jim Delaney was forced to put up signs ordering them off the property.

This proved unsatisfactory. The would-be visitors muttered among themselves. There was talk that success had gone to Steve's head and made him snobbish, and the idle gossip about his friendship with Brenda was to be far from favorable

Linda mulled over this problem as something to divert her attention from her own marital troubles. Then she inaugurated a plan which, in weeks to come, would prove successful. At book counters, bookstores everywhere, buyers of Steve's book received cards with a certain date stamped on them.

On these dates, Hillsacres was opened to the public. They came. They saw the rolling hills where Rusty, Steve's beautiful horse, had lived. They peered into the stables through specially designed doors where they could not frighten the horses; and final triumph— they were admitted into the house.

Mrs. Delaney led these curious processions from door to door and allowed the visitors to peer at the Baridon treasures. Then they sat in the huge, low-ceilinged living-room or library, or on the wide verandа, and drank tea, munched cookies and talked with awe and pleasure of Steven's home.

This pleased the readers. Linda's idea had been a successful one, and by having visitors conducted around the farm only once a week, peace was maintained for the balance of the week. Another problem had been solved.

Linda then gave her attention once again to her own troubles. Before long, she knew, Brenda would be returning to Chicago from Reno, and she would not hesitate to inquire of Steve how his affairs were progressing.

In fact, Linda could not help seeing the embossed envelopes which arrived weekly, addressed to Steve with purple ink in a graceful flowing hand. With their coming, Linda's hopes grew dimmer and dimmer, and soon—with an air of gay abandon—she gave Greg permission to call as often as he liked, to take her riding in his car and even to escort her to the theatre.

More often, they drove to the farm for luncheon, riding or just to escape from the heat and confusion of the city to the clean, cool country air.

The farm was beautiful in autumn colors. The countryside was rich with red and gold and copper-tinged leave, a golden haze lay over the hills. The horses grazed peacefully in pasture and the house was rich with the odor of baking, of pickling spices and preserves.

During the next month, Linda drove out nearly every day, sometimes with Mary, Steve's sister, and her husband Philip, sometimes with Dianne, but more likely with Greg. She had decided to ignore the gossip circulating through the social set, but in the face of Brenda's forthcoming divorce and the rumor that she was infatuated with Steve, Linda discovered her association with Greg was losing its value as tea-table conversation. This, despite the fact that Greg kept postponing his return to Brazil week after week.

Greg rode like a veteran and while his conversation was shallow in comparison with Steve's, his banalities amused Linda and helped her, temporarily at least, to forget that Hillsacres would soon be but a memory.

Linda's relations with Steve were dangerously near the breaking point. They had reached the stage where they avoided meeting each other for days at a time, taking their meals at different hours, and when—by accident— they chanced to meet in the apartment, they spoke only if it was necessary.

Linda knew that Steve had had trouble with his publisher in regard to making his story into a moving picture. Steve was holding out for a better price than the moving picture company was willing to pay, and transactions were at a temporary standstill. This information came through Steve's father on one of his infrequent visits to the apartment.

Marshall Baridon seemed to sense that things were not all they seemed to be, although whenever he was present, Linda and Steve managed to achieve a certain degree of harmony between them. On these occasions, the older man's eyes rested in puzzled fashion on his son's grim features, but he remained silent.

Finding Linda alone in the apartment one afternoon, he ventured a querry, but Linda was noncommittal. She waved one hand airily.

"Steve's just . . . just worried about his book. He's had to make so many trips, so many speeches recently that he's nearly exhausted".

They were seated in the cool, picturesque living-room before the tea-table. Linda, clad in demure white, her browned legs bare, her feet in ridiculous red sandals, looked unbelivably young and innocent, unlike the popular conception of an author's wife.

Watching her, Marshall Baridon felt a tug at his heartstrings. She seemed so frail, so dejected. The bright, happy look she always wore was faded now.

"Then—you're both happy? You haven't—well, quarrelled?"

Linda tried desperately to look surprised. "But of course we're happy, father Baridon. Why shouldn't we be? Haven't we everything?"

Suddenly because she was so lonesome, so bewildered by the trend of events, Linda was sobbing in his arms, sobbing out a story of grief and frustration to his sympathetic ears.

"So you see", she murmured brokenly when there was nothing more I can do, except to—to stand by and watch her break his heart again".

"Perhaps you'd rather I would say I'm surprised", the man said heavily, "but I can't do that. I've suspected something was wrong for several weeks now, and I couldn't put my finger on the trouble".

He sighed heavily. "I'm very fond of you, my dear. You're the kind of daughter-in-law I always wanted. I mean the real you, not the sophisticated person you're pretending to be. If Steve weren't so blind, he would see through this artificial front you're putting up. I've a good notion to talk some sense into that boy of mine".

"Please—you mustn't!" Linda was fraught with anxiety. "You promised, father".

Marshall Baridon patted the girl's trembling shoulder. "So I did, my dear, and you can depend on me to keep this little secret, but it will be hard. Hard'.

Tears welled again in Linda's eyes. "It's all — so—so sordid and degrading. I thought I could be so modern and broad-minded about everything, but I can't. I was brought up to have the utmost respect for marriage, not to make a farce of it. I thought Prairievale was smug and narrow, but it wasn't after all. The people there aren't mistaken about a great many things, although I believed they were old-fashioned and stogy.

"For instance, my parents are very happy together. They've been married for thirty years, and whenever things go wrong they face the music together. When I was at home and things were—well difficult—they didn't quarrel and haggle and abuse each other. Mother didn't wash her hands of the whole business and walk out on Dad. Instead, they weathered the storms because it was the natural thing to do".

Linda's face was passive and wistful. "I wonder what my parents would think of Brenda, and the wilful way in which she has destroyed Jerry Coleman's love and trust in her just to satisfy a whim? and what will they think of me—their own daughter—when this new scandal hits the front pages of all the newspapers?"

"What do you think of yourself, my dear? That is the most important thing of all. Nothing anyone can say will hurt very much if you know in your heart that you are right."

"But I'm not right", she whispered. "I've never done right, or I should never have married Steve as I did, to spite another man. I can see the headlines now, and the gossip columns smacking their chops over the story. There will be pictures and whispers and Steve's books sales will be doubled, because scandal mongers will try to find the same type of material in his book that will be dragged out of our private life together. I shudder to think what would happen if people knew how—how platonic our marriage really is. Sometimes I wake up in the night, wondering if anyone—suspects".

She caught the man's hand earnestly, her eyes filled with pain and misery. "Oh, I'm so ashamed of myself. I sometimes wonder if I will ever be able to live this down—to forget the past and look to the future".

"That," said Marshall Baridon quietly, "is for you to decided".

Linda was to find that time would pass. The hours slipped into days, the days lengthened into weeks and still she managed to keep her chin bravely tilted, to smile at knowing, questioning glances, to entertain guests and be amusing and interested, when all the time her dread of Brenda's sure return mounted, and her heart was dead.

The news was not long in coming. Linda was awakened one morning by the shrill ring of her telephone, and Mary's voice, in response to her querry, said anxiously—"Linda, have you seen the morning papers?"

"No, you wakened me. Is something—wrong?"

"I'm glad that I'm the first to tell you, because all the cats in town will ge gossiping. Linda—Brenda is back in town minus a husband and swathed in furs I'm afraid—" her voice dropped almost to a whisper. "—Linda she has her eyes on Steve, and she's—dangerous".

Icy fear clutched Linda's heart. So Mary—Steve's sister, her own loyal friend, knew, too, that Brenda had returned to claim Steve.

Freedom of. City Is Extended

Golden Key Presented to Moderator by Ald H. J. Clarke in Absence of Mayor Thompson

A gold key, emblematic of the freedom of the city of Belleville, was presented to the General Council of the United Church of Canada, now in session here, by Alderman H. J. Clarke representing Mayor Glencoe E. Thompson, yesterday.

The symbol of welcome was formally presented to the Moderator the Right Rev. J. R. P. Sclater after Alderman Clarke had briefly extended the official welcome of the city to the assembled commissioners.

The alderman outlined some of the beauties of the city and district and stressed the good financial situation of the city.

He then turned and handed the key to the Moderator, saying "We welcome you to a city, sir, that claims forty per cent of its population to be adherents of your church and mine".

The Moderator smilingly accepted the symbol and ended his brief appreciative remarks with a broad smile and the words: "I do not care what this Council thinks or what anyone thinks. This key is mine". And it disappeared beneath the folds of his gown as the commissioners applauded.

Bill McQuaid Reported Missing Since July 30

The name of another Belleville boy, Sergeant Bill McQuaid, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert W. McQuaid, 50 Geddes Street, had appeared in the casualty lists of the R.C.A.F., reported missing following air operations over Germany. He has been missing since July 30th.

"Bill" as the missing airman is known in Belleville, was very popular in local athletic circles during his school days at St. Michael's Academy and played on local hockey, football and baseball teams. He enlisted with the R.C.A.F. in September 1940 and trained at Manning Pool, Toronto, at Brantford, and studied wireless at Montreal. He was later stationed at Mountain View, where he took a course in air gunnery and has been overseas since August, 1941.

Two brothers, Joseph and Bertram, and three sisters, Mrs. H. Ryan, Mrs. Jean Rosinet and Mrs. James Tugena, and parents, are anxiously awaiting further word.

Discuss Canada's War Costs

WINDSOR, ONT.: HON. J. L. ILSLEY, Minister of Finance, right, discusses his $3,900,000,000 wartime budget with Wallace R. Campbell, president of Ford of Canada. Explaining features of the new income taxes and savings plans to Ford workers, Mr. Ilsley said the tax is not as drastic as many seem to think. He warned of the seriousness of the war situation and said that if Canada is to maintain her war effort at expected and essential levels that all citizens must be prepared to pay their taxes and to continue to loan their savings to the Government voluntarily. The 15,000 Ford employees were lauded on their enviable record of nearly $2,000,000 already invested in victory bonds while maintaining their regular purchase of war savings certificates at a high level. The great plant is entirely engaged in war production.

Registration of all unemployed women in the 20-24 year age group in Belleville and immediate district will take place at the city hall next week starting Monday, September 14th., it was announced this morning by Mr. H. H. Reed, manager of the Local Employment and Claims office, under whose direction the registration will be carried out.

Registration of women in the above age groups in the Belleville district is being held in conjunction with the national registration of women ordered by the National Selective Service and expected to place 50,000 unemployed women in essential war production jobs before Christmas.

Registration Requirements

Clearing up a misinterpretation of the order regarding the class of women to whom the order applies, Mr. Reed pointed out that all females born between January 1st, 1918 and December 31st 1922, and who have not been issued Unemployment Insurance cards, Form U.I.C. 411 and U.I.C. 413, or who on September 14th are not engaged in insurable employment, are required to register.

Members of any religious order or persons confined in hospitals for the insane or feeble minded, in penitentiaries, prisons, or hospitals, are not required to register under, it was pointed out by Mr. Reed.

Women coming within the limits of the order who are residing in Belleville or within a radius of five miles of Belleville will register at the local office of the National Selective Service on the second floor of the City Hall, while women in the rural districts will register at their local post offices.

In Alphabetical Order

Women in Belleville and within the five mile radius will register in alphabetical order to avoid congestion at the registration booth.

In the alphabetical breakdown women will be required to register by surname as follows: A to C on Monday; D to G on Tuesday; H to L on Wednesday; M to Q on Thursday; R to W on Friday and X to Z on Saturday.

Registration hours will be from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m., at the City Hall for convenience of the women coming under the order.

Encouraged to Take Jobs

The primary purpose of the registration of women is to encourage their taking jobs in wartime industry, according to Mr. Reed, who stated that following the sortation of registration forms the women will be called back for an interview by the National Selective Service representative. For the present there is no compulsion that registered women take jobs but the urgency of approximately 50,000 women being placed in industry to replace men required for the armed forces and for essential war production, will be impressed upon them.

Technical Schools Assist

Technical schools throughout the Dominion, operating in co-operation with employment officials, are lending wonderful assistance in placing women in war industry, it was stated by Mr. Reed. Industrial firms are sponsoring classes of women to take three months' instruction at schools and are guaranteeing employment at the completion of the course. All women taking the courses at technical schools are guaranteed positions in war industry at encouraging wages, and the need for more workers is being impressed upon unemployed girls seeking positions at employment offices.

Y.M.C.A. War Services

Belleville

One of the most outstanding contributions to our uniformed men is being performed by citizens who provide a meal or overnight accommodation for chaps on leave. Most requests for home hospitality are received on Friday and Saturday, but we can always supply interesting guests for any day in the week. In every instance that we have introduced these young lads to Belleville homes, the host has reported them most interesting, and no one need hesitate to share in this very necessary war work. Any family desirous of entertaining servicemen at any time should contact either T. Hill at the Red Triangle Club or leave name at the Y. office.

Tonight's dance in the Y gym. will, no doubt, attract an overflow crowd, so both hostesses and fellows are advised to be on hand at 8.30 p.m.

The Y. will be open all day Sunday, for servicemen. either to read, write, swim, etc., or just loaf, and all the boys are made welcome.

We had hoped to have Mary Forster again take over the Dancing Class, after the holidays, this Monday but are sorry to report that Mary is confined to hospital, following an emergency appendectomy, so the class will continue informally, as during the summer, until Mary is able to carry on. At latest report Mary expects to be up and around very soon, and we all wish her a speedy recovery.

The Y. Bowling Alleys have been reconditioned and will be re-opened this coming Monday.

The Quinte Dance, Tuesday, the 15th. will be held as usual with St. Michael's Hospitality Club acting as Host. Tickets for servicemen are only obtainable from the Y. office at Trenton and 5 I.T.S.

This week we were able to send some 600 magazines and books to the R.A.F. Station at Picton, thanks to those who keep turning their periodicals in at the Y. whenever convenient.

Included in the group of servicemen visiting the Red Triangle Club this week were chaps from the following countries: Lincolnshire, Carshalton, Leicester, Birmingham, Sussex, Tipton, Chelmsford, Coventry, Pontypool; three chaps from the West Indies and others from most parts of Canada.

CONTACT CLUB

Y.W.C.A. Activity for Airmen's Wives.

A busy time was spent by the members Thursday afternoon — sewing, knitting and swimming.

During a short business meeting final plans were made for a mixed party Tuesday evening at 8.15 when the members will entertain their husbands at the Y. Games, singing, mixed swimming and dancing should fill in a pleasant evening. All those interested in the swimming should bring their own suits. Arrangements for the entertainment will be under the direction of Mrs. Fahrni, Mrs. Watt and Mrs. Belanger. Mrs. Christensen, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Haines will be responsible for the refreshments.

Mrs. Michie has been the Club's active and efficent president since its formation last March. It was with regret that the members accepted her resignation. The following have been elected for the next two months. President, Mrs. McCallum; first vice-president, Mrs. Fahrni; secretary, Mrs. Miles, and treasurer, Mrs. Christensen.

POLICE BLOTTER

City police today were investigating an attempt to break and enter the premises of the Cunningham grist mill on Coleman St. Last night two prowlers were seen loitering around the premises and although police hastened to the scene when informed of the trouble, no signs of the prowlers were in evidence.

While returning from the above investigation police apprehended two men carrying a sack. Investigations proved the sack contained a motor tire tube. Following investigations the police released the men, held the tube for further investigation.

Dog Killed by Car

Maynard Cowles, of St. Catharines, reported to police he had driven his motor car over a dog and killed it on West Bridge St. Friday evening. Mr. Cowles was proceeding in an easterly direction when the canine ran out into the street and beneath the wheels of the moving vehicle.

Window-Peeper Reported

Clarence Bird, third concession of Thurlow, reported window-peeper at his home Friday night. Provincial police, who investigated, were told, that it was not the first occasion in which night prowlers had disturbed the slumbers of the Bird family.

Little Changes Noted in Prices On Local Mart

Little, if any, change was noted in the general price trend of farm produce on the local produce market Saturday morning, with Grade "A" eggs retailing at 40 cents the dozen, mediums at 38 cents and pullets at 35 cents the dozen. Chicken was quite freely offered at 30 cents the pound for well-finished birds, while the butter offering was small with vendors asking 40 cents the pound, or as in one or two cases, two pounds for 75 cents.

Peaches sold generally at 65 cents for specials, 55 cents for No. 1's and 45 cents for No. 2's; plums ranged from 40 cents for Damsons to as high as 65 cents for other varieties. Grapes brought 60 cents per six-quart basket and apples 35 and 40 cents for St. Lawrence and McIntosh. Cooking varieties such as Pippins and Wolf Rivers brought $1.25 per hamper. Melons both musk and water were plentiful and quickly bought up.

Tomatoes headed the list on the vegetable market and were freely offered at 75 cents the hamper; potatoes were $1.50 the bushel or 45 cents the peck, corn on the cob 25 cents the dozen ears, onions 40 cents the six-quart basket, cauliflower up to 30 cents per head and other vegetables at the usual prices.

Only whitefish were offered by fish vendors at 30 cents the pound.

Young porkers brought the usual $7 to $8 each, according to age and quality, while one load of mixed cordwood was offered at $8 per cord.

Mussolini Failed to Attack When He Had 300,000 Troops Against 7,000 British in Sudan

London, Sept. 12 —(CP)— Twitting Mussolini for his failure to attack the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan with his far greater forces in 1940, the War Office commented today that "any Italian general who looks back at that time must feel inclined to kick himself for the waste of those precious weeks."

Il Duce's costly procrastination at a time when he had 300,000 troops to throw against only 7,000 thinly-spread British troops in the Sudan was related in a 150-page booklet, "The Abyssinian Campaigns."

This illustrated account of the 16-month campaign which cost Italy her East African Empire set forth that Mussolini was in strong position by the end of August, 1940, for simultaneous drives from Ethiopia, Eritrea and Libya.

"There was nothing to stop him sweeping up through the Sudan," the booklet said. "If he had only known it, resolute and co-ordinated attacks might have closed the jaws and Italy might have contributed Africa as Germany was contributing Europe to Axis spoils.

But the attack never came, and British forces soon launched their own successful 11-month campaign.

To rub it in, the War Office placed on the back cover of its booklet an appropriate photograph—a bullet shattered statue of Il Duce, his jutting chin and smooth bald pate shot away in the Ethiopian campaign.

Washington Spotlight

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Sept. 12 — (CP) — When Donald Gordon, Chairman of the Canadian Wartime Prices and Trade Board, was in Washington 10 days ago, he was taken to the White House by Leon Henderson, Director of the Office of Price Administration. For 40 minutes, Gordon told President Roosevelt how Canada's price control system is averting inflation and keeping down the cost of living.

Gordon has much wider powers over the economic side of Canada's war effort than Henderson possesses. As a matter of fact, Henderson is almost powerless, in comparison.

When the White House interview was over, Henderson was telling a few friends how impressed the President was with Gordon and with the Canadian price control system and how he, Henderson, elaborated on Gordon's wide, almost unlimited powers.

He explained:—

"It's like the rooster that brought an ostrich egg to his barnyard and said: 'I ain't complaining — but I just want to show you what's being done in other places.' "

Incidentally, Gordon is expected to open a Washington office shortly, placing his own men in the war production board and the O.P.A. so that the Canadian and American price control systems, so interdependent on each other, can be integrated more fully and speedier.

Catalogues for Sugar

Reports have reached Washington through British sources that British manufacturers are complaining about Canadian competitors sending catalogues and advertising material to Britain, although realizing they cannot deliver the goods in wartime.

A British manufacturer recently estimated that one shipment of Canadian catalogues absorbed shipping space that would have supplied 13,000 Britons with sugar for a whole year.

Scarcity in Plenty

The silver policy of the United States is something weird and wonderful to behold in operation. The treasury has buried in the ground at West Point, N. Y., 3,270,000,000 ounces of silver, most of which, in view of tons of gold buried in another hole at Fort Knox, Ky., is not needed as a currency backing. Additional silver pours in each day, some from Canada but the great bulk from Mexico which now is being subsidized by the United States to produce more and more—to fill that big hole in the ground at West Point.

At the same time this process is going on, there is a definite and serious shortage of silver for commercial purposes in the United States, so serious that small amounts of free silver are being lend-leased by the treasury to industry but only on the understanding the silver will be preserved in the manufacturing process and returned later to the vaults at West Point. For instance, the metal cannot be used as a substitute for tin in solder but can be used as an electrical conductor in aluminum and manganese plants.

In recent weeks a widespread agitation against the silver policy —which was imposed in 1934 as a subsidy to western mining states—has developed. The policy has never been favored by the United States Treasury and maybe this time it will be wiped from the statute books — over the protests of the silver senators who put it there in the first place and who still are powerful.

Forgives and Forgets

No American has done more to assist Russia in this war than W. Averell Harriman who has been President Roosevelt's personal representative on several trips to Moscow and conferences on lend-lease supplies. Yet few Americans have lost as much money by expropriation of property in Russia as Harriman, the arch-capitalist and a son of one of the early "robber Barons" in the days of railroad development in the West.

The Harriman family owned mineral rights in the Caucasus that were worth millions but years ago, after the revolution, they were expropriated by the Soviets without payment of a dollar. Harriman carried on for years a fight for compensation but always lost.

Harrimon returned from Moscow a few days ago — he was there with Prime Minister Churchill — and is urging all his friends and particularly high government officials, not to let one day go by without asking this question: — "What have I done today to increase aid to Russia?"

Notes that Make News

Dehydrated foods for military and lend-lease use are gaining in volume but probably won't be introduced for civilian consumption until the end of the war ... astute analysts of election trends are predicting Thomas E. Newsman Describes Battle Between U. S. Planes and Japanese Warships

This is the first eye-witness dispatch direct from the Pacific sea battle northeast of the Solomons which resulted when Japanese naval forces attempted a counter-offensive after the United States Marines had completed occupation of the Tulagi area.

It is by a reporter on the bridge of a warship who saw 65 enemy planes shot down in ten minutes.

Clark Lee, who reported the defence of Bataan and then covered Gen. Douglas MacArthur's voyage to Australia, witnessed the Solomons battle August 24.

This was the action, reported in a United States Navy communique next day in which it was said American airmen also damaged two enemy aircraft carriers, one with four bombs, and hit a battleship and several cruisers. That communique said 21 Japanese planes were shot down at Gaudalcanal—apparently the same 21 which Lee says were shot down by marine and army pilots.

At Sea With the U.S. Fleet off the Solomons, Aug. 24.—(Delayed) (AP)—Without the loss of a single pilot, a small group of United States dive-bombers and torpedo planes damaged a huge Japanese battleship and a heavy cruiser in a daring attack today.

There were few dive-bombers and torpedo planes in the group which, while seeking enemy carriers, came across a big formation of Japanese warships just before sunset.

The dive-bombers got one hit on the battleship while the torpedo planes plunged through thick anti-aircraft fire and hit the heavy cruiser.

The torpedo attack was made in daylight by American navy planes against the large formation without any accompanying heavy attacks by dive-bombers.

In a similar attempt during the battle of Midway the morning of June 4 two army planes and five navy planes were shot down.

Lieut. Robert Elder, 24, piloted the dive-bomber which hit the battleship while Lieut. Harold (Swede) Larsen commander of the torpedo squadron, led the torpedo planes.

"There were four heavy cruisers, six light cruisers and six destroyers in the main formation", Elder said. "Over at one side I sighted a huge battleship trying to sneak away. . . .

"I picked my target and pushed into a dive. I held my sights all the way and released, then pulled out. My rear seat man saw a big burst of smoke and flame on the starboard side amidships just behind the funnel and between the forward and after gun turrets.

"We watched Ensign Robert Gordon's dive and his bomb hit just off the bow. The battleship was turning to the left and his bomb hit just to the right. It picked the entire bow out of the water and gave it a big shove over. There was smoke and fire from my hit.

"We pulled over out of range of anti-aircraft and watched Swede go in. He hit the cruiser amidships and a column of water spouted higher than the cruiser's masts and splashed over the well deck. It was a terrific wallop".

Ninety-six enemy planes were shot down in another far-flung battle over Guadalcanal Island at sea over a United States task force.

That is my destiny." She got the annulment.

Capital Closeups

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 12 —(CP)— The seven-day-notice rule which provides a cooling off period before an employee can quit or his employer fire him is widely considered one of the mose effective "big sticks" wielded by National Selective Service officials for enforcement of labor regulations.

Its first use in connection with a strike was earlier this week when orders went out to prevent issuance of job-seeking permits to 2,700 striking Imperial Tobacco Co. Ltd. workers in Montreal.

It wasn't clearly explained by the labor department at the time but the embargo would have lasted for seven days had the strike not been settled—the permits were withheld in lieu of seven days' notice. But even after permits were issued they might have restriced the worker to job-seeking in a restricted area, a certain industry, or even a certain plant.

Application of the seven-day rule it is thought, may sometimes have a discouraging effect on workers contemplating strikes which the labor department considers illegal. The seven-day rule does not apply in the case of workers involved in a legitimate strike.

The rule works both ways, too. More than one big employer already has been prevented from letting off large groups of workers without notice. The seven-day rule applies there—or selective service can refuse to fire workers for an even longer period of time if there should be flagrant cases of employers' disobeying the regulations.

Now that pay cheques are reduced by the amount of compulsory income tax deductions there is one marked change in the capital—people are talking much more than they used to about the way public funds are expended.

It's a popular subject around the restaurants where Ottawans throng at noon-hour. The general attitude seems to be something like one of Canada's leading industrialists put it when talking to a high government official: "How do my men like the new taxes? They're willing to do whatever they're called upon to do to pay for the war, but the money hadn't better be wasted."

Agriculture Minister Gardiner has a great tan after a month of work at his Lemberg, Sask., farm but he's not completely a westerner . . . He was talking to newspapermen about the amount of grain he had at Lemberg and said it encouraged him to feed cattle through the winter and sell them in the spring . . . "But it's a bit different in Ontario," said a reporter . . . "Well," the Minister came back, "I've got an Ontario farm, too" and went on to say it seemed good business to feed cattle there as well . . . The Ontario place is at Kirkton.

This sounds like an old story, but the man who told it to us says it happened right here in Ottawa, and he should know.

The postal censor thought he had something big when a letter came into his hands that started off: "Here are your instructions." What followed was many lines something like this: "1st row S1, K1, P5, K5," and so on. It was rushed to a code expert who sweated all day over it and took it home to work on it that night. His wife glanced over his shoulder. "Taking up knitting, dear?" she asked. It was instructions for making a sweater.

Saturday is shopping day for thousands of Ottawans. Women and girls in the civil service who can't get to the stores on week-days crowd into them every Saturday afternoon either to buy something or to see what's on sale. You'll find plenty of men there too, some of them scrutinizing the bargain counters as closely as the women.

Vichy, France, Sept. 12 —(AP) —Shooting up a Nantes courthouse in wild west fashion, four gunmen killed the presiding magistrate, wounded two courtroom attendants and made off with a defendant being tried on charges of terrorism.

The gunmen dashed from the courthouse, hopped astride bicycles and pedalled away with the accused terrorist and a group of accomplices.

One of the wounded attendants, a gendarme, was shot through the neck and his condition was serious.

FOCKE-WULF FACTORY AT BREMEN ATTACKED

Reds Push Back New Penetration S.W. of Stalingrad

BRITISH HALFWAY TO MADAGASCAR CAPITAL

Eastern Germany Also Raided By Russian Planes

Very "Strong Force" Of Bombers Visits Bremen And Much Damage Reported

19 BOMBERS MISSING

London, Sept. 14 (CP)—British, Canadian and Russian bombers, delivering a new twin blow to the flanks of the Axis 1,000 miles apart, smashed at the northwest German port of Bremen last night in an R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. attack probably hundreds of planes strong, and raided Bucharest and the Ploesti oil region of Rumania from bases deep in Russia.

Lone-flying British bombers were back over northwestern Germany again at dawn in follow-up attacks, the Air Ministry reported, announcing a total loss of 19 British bombers.

The Air Ministry said the 100th attack of the war on Bremen was delivered by a "very strong force," a phrase which was taken here to indicate that bombers by the hundreds were used. Three R.C.A.F. squadrons participated.

Unloaded in Light of Fires

Returning Canadian pilots reported visibility through rifts in the light clouds was good and said they unloaded their tons of explosives over the Weser River port by the light of raging fires whose red glow they could see for 100 miles on their flight back to base.

The Berlin radio, broadcasting the German communique, said Russian bombers were over eastern Germany during the same night, and quoted dispatches from Bucharest that the Rumanian capital and Ploesti region to the north were attacked by Soviet bombers.

The dispatches described the Ploesti attacks as ineffective and said Bucharest had two alarms during the night and some bombs were dropped but that no damage was caused

The German radio said the British raiders had caused "material damage and destruction to buildings, particularly in residential quarter" in an attack on a "harbor town", but did not otherwise identify the target.

An authoritative British statement said:—

"Last night a very strong force of our bombers went to northwest Germany.

"Bremen, their main objective, was heavily bombed.

"Nineteen bombers are missing".

It was the first R.A.F. attack on Germany since last Thursday night, when Duesseldorf was blasted by a powerful force of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. raiders.

The Berlin radio also disclosed that Russian bombers had, been over Eastern Germany, but it asserted that only slight damage at isolated places was caused.

Both the Berlin and Vichy radio station reported that Budapest and other points in Eastern Hungary, which the Russians bombed last Wednesday night, had air-raid alarms. The broadcasts reported no hostile planes had crossed the frontier.

During the alarms broadcasters in Czecho-Slovakia, and in Rumania also went off the air during the night.

There was no German air activity over Britain last night.

FEAR NEW WAVE OF TERROR

London. Sept. 14—(CP)—German reports of a revolt in Bulgarian Macedonia and the proclamation of a state of Siege in Skoplje in former Yugoslavia aroused fear in Yugoslav government circles today that a new Axis wave of terror against the civilian population in that area might be beginning.

The report, which came from German circles in Stockholm, was received with extreme suspicion by these sources, who pointed out there was nothing ti indicate any serious defection among the Bulgarian people themselves.

Three Canadian Bomber Squadrons Take Part in Raid On Bremen

VISIBILITY ONLY FAIR

(By LOUIS V. HUNTER)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 14 (C.P. Cable) — Canadian fliers participating in last night's attack on Bremen reported on their return that visibility was fairly good and crews were able to pick out the River Weser through a slight haze. Occasional breaks in the light clouds over the target permitted them glimpses of the city.

Three Canadian bomber squadrons took part.

"I saw three big fires and several smaller ones," said Sgt. Art Greene of Bear River, N.S., who flew with Sgt. John Probert of Montreal; Sgt. Jack Kitchen of Fredericton, N.B.; Sgt. A. B. Carter of Orillia, Ont., and Sgt. Ben Copeland of Moose Jaw, Sask.

"There was plenty of light flak and a lot of searchlights, but we were not bothered by them much," said Probert, who wound up his bomb doors by hand when the hydraulic system failed.

At Least One Destroyed

Sgt. Eddie Carleton, of Toronto, got a crack at a group of three enemy fighters which attacked a plane captained by Sgt. Nat Daggett, of Salmon Arm. B.C., over the Frisian Islands. While Carleton and Rear-Gunner Sgt. L. E. Thomas of Richmond, Va., were blasting at the Jerries, a red glow was seen from the first enemy fighter and the crew believes it was damaged if not destroyed.

Air-Bomber Sgt. E. J. Nickerson of Moncton, N.B., reported six big blazes seemingly joining together in the target area. Others from this Halifax bomber squadron included Sgt. Les Rogers, Toronto; PO. Cecil Anderson, Toronto; Sgt. W. J. Farrer, Newcastle, N.B., and PO. R. W. Griffiths of Toronto.

PO. Bill College of Vancouver, said the target was well alight when he and Sgt. John Karleff of Toronto; Sgt. A. Taylor of Vancouver, and Flt. Sgt. Joe Steward of Calgary, got there.

Saw Bombs Burst

Sgt. Bill Murray of Armstrong, B.C., captain of one crew, said "it was a straight-forward good show."

"I saw our bombs burst in the eastern part of the town."

His crew included PO. Kropf, Kitchener, Ont. (initials unavailable); Flt. Sgt. Joe St. Louis, Renfrew, Ont., and Sgt. C. A. Kitson, Austin, Man.

Flt. Sgt. Charles Palmer, Dundalk, Ont.; PO. George Sweaney, Toronto; Sgt. John Gravelet-Chapman, Saanichton, B.C., and Sgts. L. Lauckner and Hughie Anderson, London, Ont., said they could see the fires of Bremen from 100 miles away.

NAZIS POUR TANK RESERVES INTO BLOODY STRUGGLE

From All Reports Crucial Test For Beleaguered City Is At Hand

TERRIFIC AIR DUELS

(By EDDY GILMORE)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Fresh hordes of Nazi troops smashed today at the approaches to Stalingrad in an obvious all-out effort to storm the city whatever the cost in blood, but the Russians said that after yielding precious ground the Red Army halted and pushed back a new penetration southwest of the city.

Both to the west and southwest the Germans were pouring tanks and armored cars and new reserves into the bloody struggle, but the mid-day communique, indicated the Russians were holding.

Earlier the Russians reported the capture by the Germans of an unidentified "populated place" southwest of Stalingrad. From all reports it was apparent the crucial test for the beleaguered city was at hand.

(The German High Command claimed Sunday that German troops were fighting in the southern streets of Stalingrad and that siege lines about the city had been tightened.)

Tanks Halt Drive

A Soviet tank detachment was credited with halting the German penetration of the Russian positions southwest of the Lower Volga City. After the Germans had broken through, the Russian tanks moved into the battle, knocked out five German tanks and 11 armored cars

Rumanian Oil Fields Left in Flames By Russian Bombers

Moscow, Sept. 14 —(AP)— The Rumanian oil field centre of Ploesti was left in flames as a result of a bombing attack last night by Russian planes, the Moscow radio reported today.

Bucharest, capital of Rumania, and Koenigsberg in East Prussia also were said to have been Red air raiders' targets.

Thirty-three fires, accompanied by heavy explosions, broke out in Bucharest, the announcement said. Five blasts were observed in the vicinity of a military barracks, arsenal and the Rumanian War Ministry.

Tail-End Charlies on British Bombers Must Be On Alert at All Times

(By ALAN RANDAL)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England Sept. 14. (CP)—These fellows who handle the guns in the giant two and four-motored bombers of the R.C.A.F. are mighty important.

They are much more than just bullet-tossers. They are the 'eyes' of the crew and the general pepper-uppers when night fighters are about.

The pilot is the skipper of a bomber but there can be times high up in the darkness on the way to and from Germany in these big bomb-carriers when the gunners call the turns.

At this station in the midlands the gunners of one Canadian squadron have three Nazi fighters to their credit. They are scored up on the wall in the gunnery leader's office for Sgt. Don Morrison of Sherbrooke, Que., who now is back in Canada, Sgt. C. W. Robinson of Moncton, N.B., and Flt. Sgt. Pat Murphy of Halifax.

These chaps are rear-gunners, tail-ends Charlies. They sit out in the tail of a Wellington all by themselves with their four guns in a revolving turret. They've got a good view there—but not much future.

Sooner or later somebody calls them "Four-Gun Joe" or Bob or whatever their name is. It's because out in the back there they are jammed in with just about enough space to take a deep breath and their four guns. The front gunner has only two weapons.

Roosevelt Tells Congress U.S. Producing Only 50 P.C. Of Maximum War Production

Washington, Sept. 14 (CP)—President Roosevelt told Congress today the United States is producing only a little more than 50 per cent of its maximum possible war production and solemnly warned:-

"Not until we have reached the maximum—and we can do this only by stripping our civilian economy to the bone—can our fighting men and those of our Allies be assured of the vastly-greater quantities of weapons required to turn the tide.

"Not until then can the United Nations march forward together to certain victory."

The President's statement was in a letter transmitting the sixth quarterly lend-lease report in which he spoke of Britain as an "offensive base." The report showed such aid to the British Commonwealth of Nations and 35 other countries during the 18 months since the program began totalled $6,489,000,000 with actual exports amounting to $3,525,000,000. In the same time lend-lease countries purchased $5,800,000,000 worth of goods including munitions, from the United States.

Lend-lease help now is being provided at the rate of $8,000,000,000 a year, with the maximum aid possible under 15 separate appropriation acts reaching almost $63,000,000,000.

One-Third For U. K.

At present, the report said, about 35 per cent of lend-lease exports are going to the United Kingdom, 35 per cent to Russia, and 30 per cent to the Middle East, Australia and other areas.

"Aid to China," it added, "has been limited by the difficulty of transportation, but the development of other means of transportation will relieve this situation."

Compared with their available resources, he said, Britain and Russia had procured more weapons than the United States.

"And they are continuing to produce to the limit in spite of the fact that Russia is a battlefield and Britain an offensive base."

Must Have Best Equipment

The President went on to say that as American men moved overseas to battle "they must and will have sufficient quantities of the best equipment the United States can produce" and at the same time "we must provide more weapons to the armies of our Allies already in the fighting lines."

"Britain has been fighting the Nazis for three years, China is in her sixth year of war, and in Russia the war's greatest land front is more than a year old," he declared. "From the beginning they have carried on without enough guns or tanks or planes. It is through their uphill fight that the war has not been lost.

"Only by strengthening our Allies and combining their strength with ours can we surely win."

The report said lend-lease funds now are being spent for many special projects, including further tests of the "seamobile," shallow draft cargo vessel originally known as the "sea otter," and for saving shipping space and refrigeration capacity by the development of dehydrated foodstuffs. (The "sea otter" is described as being virtually immune to torpedo attack.)

Not One-Way Proposition

To show that lend-lease is not entirely a one-way proposition, the report said that in Great Britain 250,000 British workmen are engaged on construction for the American army in July alone.

In addition, British guns and cannon, aircraft and military stores have been turned over to United States expeditionary forces and reciprocal aid is being furnished American troops in Australia, New Zealand and by the "Fighting French" in Equatorial Africa and New Caledonia.

Of the $6,489,000,000 air furnished by the United States thus for, $5,129,000,000 represented goods transferred and services rendered, while $1,360,000,000 was the value of goods "in process."

During August, military items comprised about 58 per cent of total transfers, industrial materials 29 per cent, and foodstuffs 13 per cent.

FORCED LABOR DECREED FOR MEN, WOMEN IN FRANCE

Vichy Intimates Law Passed to Avert More Stringent Action by Nazis

CATEGORIES OUTLINED

Vichy, Sept. 14 —(AP)— French employers were ordered to stand by today to assemble crews of workmen—apparently for shipment to Germany—under a sweeping new compulsory labor law which the Vichy government intimated it had decreed to avert the possibility of even more stringent action by the Germans.

Subject to the law are all able-bodied Frenchmen between the ages of 18 and 50 and unmarried women between 21 and 35. Persons in these categories unable to prove they are engaged in work "useful to the country's needs" may be drafted "to effect all labors which the government will judge useful in the higher interests of the nation."

The law, effective with its publication this morning, also provides total state control of employment and working conditions, giving the government power to fix salaries and working hours. Untrained persons may be compelled to attend vocational schools which employers are obliged to set up.

SAYS BRITISH PUT DYNAMITE BENEATH ROMMEL'S TANKS

Reading, Pa., Sept. 14 — (AP) — A United States army officer, Lt.-Col. John H. Snyder, who escorted Wendell Willkie to Egypt, said today British forces are knocking out Gen. Erwin Rommel's tanks by placing dynamite under them.

PUBLIC ASKED TO STOP BUYING PORK, BACON, HAM

Shipments to Britain Must be Maintained—Quantity for Home Supply Cut

FOR NEXT 7 WEEKS

Ottawa, Sept. 14 (CP)— J. G. Taggart, chairman of the Bacon Board and Foods Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, appealed to consumers throughout Canada to refrain from buying fresh pork, bacon or ham during the next seven weeks.

Purpose of the appeal — issued through the Wartime Prices and Trade Board—is to enable the bacon board to maintain satisfactory weekly shipments of bacon to Britain so as to assure the continuance of the British bacon ration at the present leves.

With the co-operation of Canadian consumers during the next few weeks, until about Nov. 1, shipments of bacon to Britain can be maintained, Mr. Taggart said. It is expected that additional hogs will be marketed early in November.

6 AXIS AIRCRAFT DAMAGED

Cairo, Sept. 14 (AP)—British fighter planes damaged at least six Axis aircraft in four minor engagements over the El Alamein front yesterday, but land activity was confined to artillery exchanges in the southern sector, British Headquarters announced today.

During the previous night, the bulletin said, British patrols harassed enemy positions and working parties in the northern and central areas.

4 RCAF MEMBERS KILLED, PLANES COLLIDE IN AIR

Sole Survivor Of Crash Near Richmond Ont. Successfully Baled Out

PLANES FLYING HIGH

Ottawa, Sept. 14 (CP) — Four members of the Royal Canadian Air Force were killed and one escaped with minor injuries Sunday when two training planes collided in the air near Richmond, Ont., about 20 miles west of here, R.C.A.F. headquarters announced.

Following notification of the next of kin, the names of three of the crash victims were announced. They were Sgt. Stanley Victor Patterson, 35, of Eastview, a suburb of Ottawa; WO2 J. R. Shanks, whose mother, Mrs. Christine Shanks, lives at (125 Cameron St.) Sarnia, Ont, and Lac. W. R. Dean, student pilot whose father, Walter Kenneth Dean, lives at (3519 Country Club Road), Birmingham, Ala.

Sole survivor of the crash was PO. C. E. Cusson of Chelsea, Que., who with another flier "baled out" of the Harvard training plane in which the two were flying. PO. Cusson was taken to hospital for a check-up for possible other injuries.

His flying companion was seen to leap from the plane, but his parachute harness was empty when observers reached the spot. Searchers subsequently discovered his body.

The three occupants of the Oxford bomber, the other machine involved, crashed with the plane. Names of the other victims are withheld pending notification of their next-of-kin. Two were Americans.

Section of Tail Sliced Off

Residents of the district who saw the crash said the two planes were flying high when the Harvard seemed to dive at the twin-engined bomber, slicing off a section of its tail. The two planes then swirled and plumetted to the ground, landing about half a mile apart. Detached portions of the fuselage were scattered over a radius of two miles.

Sgt. Patterson was born in England, a son of D. C. Patterson who now resides at Smith's Falls, Ont. He joined the R.C.A.F. two years ago and came to Ottawa air station as a radio technician last May. During his training he was stationed at Shediac, N.B.

Both planes were from Ottawa air station at Rockcliffe. Cause of the accident has not been determined, but a full investigation will be carried on, R.C.A.F. headquarters said.

TOENAIL POLISH SCARES DOG

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP)—Porky, a part police-dog, went into seclusion after Iren Dahl, 12, decorated his front claws with red polich. Porky took one startled look, bounded from the house and disappeared. Finally after his views on toenail polish were moderated by four foodless days, he was coaxed out of a nearby cornfield.

Nazis Reported Making Preparations For Fortified Winter Line in Russia

London, Sept. 14 (CP)—The Germans were reported today to be making intense preparations for a strongly-fortified winter line in Russia even while the terrific frontal assault on Stalingrad is going on. Behind this line, apparently, Hitler hopes to regroup, rest and re-equip his badly mauled forces.

First disclosure of Hitler's winter plans, which he promised in his Reichstag address last April, was the Axis announcement of the appointment of Generals Franz Halder, Jacob and Wietersheim to establish an impregnable line and clothe Axis troops against the ravages of the Russian winter.

In London it was believed that these preparations were the imperative result of heavy casualties and material losses in Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock's frontal attack on Stalingrad, which the Nazi command earlier had hoped to avoid by its more familiar swift flanking movements.

The decision to sacrifice valuable shock troops before Stalingrad, London military quarters said, had been forced upon the Nazis by the Red army's retention of a Don bridgehead in the Kletskaya area which had robbed Von Bock of freedom of movement.

Halder, considered one of the ablest general in Germany, will direct military requirements, according to word reaching London. Jacob, who helped build the westwall, is to be entrusted with fortifications and Wietersheim will direct supply.

Advance Forces Within 150 Miles Of Tananarive

Allied Forces Which Landed South At Morondava Meeting Little Opposition

BRIDGES DESTROYED

LONDON, Sept. 14 — (CP) — British spokesmen announced today the capture of Maevatanana, 150 miles by road northwest of Tananarive, capital of Madagascar, and information reaching some military quarters here indicated that advance forces had pushed on to within 100 miles of the capital.

By this account British forces had covered fully half the distance to the capital — 230 air miles from the northwest Madagascar port of Majunga, one of three landings which they made last Thursday in an effort to prevent use of the French island by the Axis.

Weekend reports placing British troops 70 miles or less from Tananarive were unsubstantiated.

A communique said the forces pushing into Madagascar from three directions were making good progress, and that besides capturing Maevatanana, advance detachments were moving on across the mountains to the southeast toward the capital on another road.

The Allied forces which landed farther south at Morondava were reported meeting "little or no opposition" on the advance inland. From Ambanja, on the northwest coast, another column was reported "making good progress" southward.

The force advancing from Majunga encountered resistance from Vichy forces at a bridge over the river Betsiboka, but this was overcome Saturday.

The defending forces had dropped the middle span of the suspension bridge into the river to hold up the British forces.

The most serious fighting possibly still is ahead, for the 4,000-foot plateau on which Tananarive is located is said to be the best-defended area of Vichy-controlled Madagascar. It is approached by steep, winding roads.

The second column was coming up from the southwest of Tananarive after landing at Morondava, on the west coast more than 350 miles airline south of Majunga.

Sunday's communique said it was proceeding satisfactorily toward Ambositra, 300 miles airline east of Morondava and 100 miles south of Tananarive, but its exact location also was not given.

A third force, which went into action in northern Madagascar, was disclosed to have occupied Embanja on Saturday after overcoming slight resistance. No casualties were reported from either side.

A delayed message said British troops took Majunga in a three-hour fight before breakfast the first day of the campaign. The total cost to both sides there was given as between 30 and 40 casualties.

ALLIED FORCES HOLD JAP INVADERS AT BAY NEAR PORT

For Fourth Successive Day Advance From Mountain Range Stalled

SHIPS ATTACKED

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 14 (CP)—Allied forces held the Japanese invader at bay forty miles north of Port Moresby for the fourth successive day yesterday while medium bombers dropped 17 tons of bombs on the Japanese base and airfield at Lae and flying fortresses attacked three enemy merchant ships and a cruiser off New Guinea's coast, a communique said today.

Patrols were active on both sides in the Owen Stanley Mountain region where the Japanese have been stalled in their atempted advance on Port Moresby, but the situation "remains unchanged," a communique said.

In the air war against shipping, one Allied bomb blew the stern off a Japanese vessel near Seloe Island in the Tanimbar Island group between Australia and New Guinea and she was left in a sinking condition, the communique said.

Results Not Seen

Another ship was attacked with machine-gun fire in the same raid and farther north, off the Kai Islands, still another Japanese ship was bombed with unknown results.

Flying fortresses found a Japanese cruiser and destroyer southeast of New Britain on the eastern side of New Guinea and despite poor weather conditions and intense anti-aircraft fire attacked the cruiser. Results could not be seen, it was announced.

Allied medium bombers attacked Lae twice within a few minutes and the 17 tons of bombs dumped on the base destroyed two heavy Japanese bombers and started fires, the communique said. There was no opposition by Japanese fighters, but heavy anti-aircraft fire was encountered. Another bomber unit attacked the base at Salamaua. Lae and Salamaua are the two main Japanese bases on New Guinea.

The Moderator Speaks At Hay Bay

Following is the address of the Right Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, who spoke to the General Council, Commissioners and other visitors at the Hay Bay Church during the Council pilgrimage on Saturday, the 150th anniversary of the founding of this, the cradle or shrine of Methodism.

Dr. Sclater, probably the first dignitary of the Presbyterian persuasion who has ever officiated at this venerable shrine said at the beginning: "Nobody could possibly be here this afternoon and not be moved, I know there are those here to whom this is a shrine . . .

"There are three things I want to say at this time:

"I rejoice in the wisdom and the competency of those who have preserved this holy place as a witness to the strength of our work in the past. The Church of Christ is an ancient and historical institution and of greatest advantage to us that there should be a visible expression of that vital fact. The basis of world power has changed about seven times, but the Church of Christ and its act of worship, so simple, spreading of a table with bread and wine have continued to this day. Kingdoms rise and perish, but in point of historic fact the Church of Christ continues. This place witnesses to it and always will. In times of stress it is well to remember the lives of the heroes of the past. It was brought in from another land."

Dr. Sclater told of the Selkirk settlers who on way by boat north of Winnipeg already arranged for a church and schools and of the heroic age of the circuit rider of Canada. Here is its centre. There may be a new heroic age in Church, Indeed it must be a heroic age "if we are not to drift into a peace which is no peace and so have another war."

"On the whole, the period through which some of us have lived has not been one of the heroic periods. It was a period of comfort, intellectual experiment. There are times when men are called to stand out, resolute to die. The Institution of Christianity has to go on pilgrimages of faith and it is well to come to this place and remember. It is well that "Our fathers trusted and were not disappointed."

Dr. Sclater recommended the reading of history. "Go to the second century, B.C., and see a Hitler, the Gestapo and a concentration camp." They knew all about it in the time of Antiochus Epiphanes." In its trials it closely paralled this age and produced the Psalms which are an inspiration to us today.

No Life Trivial

The Sunday morning service of the General Council was held in Bridge Street Church with the Moderator, Rt. Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Sclater officiating, assisted by the Geeral Secretary, Dr. Sisco, and the pastor, Dr. Semple.

Rev. A. E. Whitehouse, B.A., D.D., of Metropolitan United Church, Victoria, and President of the British Columbia Conference, preached. Preceding his sermon he said his coming from the most westerly city of the Dominion spoke of the unity of the ministry from East to West. His would beb a new voice at least. Humourously referred to rivalry between cities. Vancouverites refer to Victoria as the city "Occupied by inhabitants that are mostly somnambulists." "We reply in kind," he added. His subject was "The Christian Imperative" from the text "Thou oughtest therefore." Likening some men to the one woh buried his single talent in a handkerchief because they just let things run their course, he said they lose the creative instinct, and the faith that moves mountains dies within them." He says "100 years from now it will be all the same anyway." Insead of a healthy introspection this man rails at God and looks for someone to blame. Great men like Winston Churchill and Franklin Roosevelt pay for their positions of honor far more than their critics pay if they had it to pay.

"We'll need to offer our brows to carry the crown of thorns if we hope to carry Christianity to others. Anent the man in the Bible who would have Jesus divide his inheritance, he said "Many reformers are frustrated reactionaries." "We ought to have done our best in obedience to God's imperative, he said, which makes us men and women worthy of the name, unique in God's creation. The parable of the talents was not only an indictment of the average men, but also an exaltation of him.

In the last twenty-five years life has been so depicted as to have lost its significance. He referred to a people dizzy for entertainment and said a change was sure.

"Elemental personal character never mattered so much as it does today." "Democracy is Christianity's gift to the world." "Let no man count his life trivial," was his final word.

Post-War Period Needs Men Who Can Win Peace as Well As War Says New Moderator

(By GEO H. CARVER)
(Staff Reporter)

RT. REV. J. R. P. SCLATER

"I'm afraid the press has not been very kind to me and my family. On two occasions it has pronounced members of my family dead, and who I must say are very much alive".

The Right Reverend J. R. P. Sclater, newly elected Moderator of the United Church of Canada, and minister of Old St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, smiled as he said these words. There was a decided twinkle in his eye.

He spoke with the rare lilting infection of the native Orkadian. His voice has a rich quality combined with warmth. There was sincere cordiality in his handclasp. You feel as if you know the Moderator a few minutes after he has talked with you.

Dr. Sclater has a rich personality, one that leaps out and holds men. His is the quiet unaffected manner of the born gentleman. His cordiality and friendliness are natural. He has an easy graceful manner, and talks convincingly without the pomp of flowery oratory. The lilt of the Orkadian makes his voice a delight to hear. There is no evidence of the "high-hat". He is a man's man, with a man's sense of humor.

I was immediately attracted to Dr. Sclater as I entered his room yesterday afternoon in the Hotel Quinte. He pointed to a large armchair. "Please make yourself comfortable", he smiled.

Mrs. Sclater Very Much Alive

"I see the press has a story that my wife died in 1904", he said. "Well, let me see, if I remember correctly, that is the year we were married. I talk to my wife over the air nearly every night, and—well—if she is dead I think the fact would be of tremendous importance to the Societies for Psychic Research. No, no, Mrs. Sclater is very much alive".

"And that reminds me", he added, "I am one of those rare men who have had the opportunity of reading their own obituary. Several years ago I was seriously ill in an Edinburgh hospital. The editor of a Glasgow newspaper, hearing of my illness, telephoned to find out my condition. Apparently there was a mixup in the conversation or perhaps a misconstruing of facts, for the next day I read of my own death in the Glasgow newspaper. The word was flashed to Canada, and I believe the story was published in an Ottawa newspaper".

"But here I am, very much alive, but I will forgive the press for their apparently determined efforts to remove one or more of my family from the earth".

In more serious vein Dr. Sclater stated that there are grave problems to be solved in a world of trouble, as vital as those in the 16th century when religion was the heart of conflic. "We must do our best to solve them and pray for God's guidance in so doing".

"I am proud to be the holder of the highest position in the United Church", the Moderator said. "But I recognize the fact that the great honor accorded me does not allow me as one person to express alone the mind of the Church."

Councils Govern the Church

"The church is governed by councils", he continued, "and therein lies the authority of the Church. I am simply the presiding officer of the Church Councils, and have no authority apart from the brethren. The authority of the Church resides entirely in its people".

"What part will the church play in the post-war period", I asked Dr. Sclater.

"Speaking as a private individual and a minister of the church", he answered. "I feel that the first supreme function of the church in the period of reconstruction will be to provide the opportunity for people to worship. The church means totality of the Christian people of Canada. It is the conscience of the nation, and its business is to point out on the basis of the Holy Scripture and teachings of Jesus Christ, anything in the body politic that is against the minds of Christians, and to ask the State, by that I mean the people organized for government, to set these things right".

In the past, the Moderator said, the first emphasis of the law has been the protection of property. "Again I am speaking as a private individual", he explained.

"The first emphasis of the law in the post-war period", he added, "should be the protection of personality. If we see anything in the system that will make it difficult for any section of the community to reach its full stature of manhood, then it should be changed".

"One of the problems will be how to keep the historical Canadian capacity for taking risks with a society in which man's living will be more secure. I have no doubt that problem will be solved".

"We need men who will live dangerously who can win peace as well as wars. It is the pioneer Canadian spirit. I am quite certain the country as a whole will give a chance to the least of the Christian brethren, to live a full dignified life".

Descendant of Norsemen

Dr. Sclater has a rich historical background. He is a native of the Orkney Islands, or as he puts it, an Orkadian. He is a lineal descendant of the Norsemen who lived in the Islands before they were ceded to Scotland centuries ago. The name of his Norse forebears was "Skluyter". Some centuries later it was changed to "Schlaitter". The name appears in the old Norse sagas.

"Has your name a meaning", I asked.

"No, I don't think so," the Moderator replied. "I believe it is a Scottification of an old Norwegian nickname".

Century-old tenure of land in the Orkneys is one of the characteristics of the islands, he said. He has relatives on farms which have been the property of the same family for nine hundred years. Landowners, or "uiterers" are the "bosses" in the islands. There is no such a thing as a labor shortage. Through the great depression period following 1929, the tenor of the Orkanians way of life was undisturbed. Farms average about fifty acres, and the uiterers do all their own work.

"I can tell an Orkadian by the lilt of his voice. Dr. R. G. Wallace of Queen's University, comes from the islands as have several other men high in Canadian life"

Padre in Last War

The moderator knows men. He knows their problems. He has had a rich experience in that he was the padre of the 9th Royal Scots Regiment of Edinburgh, during the last war. The way to know men is to live with them, he said. In the old days in the army he dined with the Colonel and with the drummer boy. He enjoyed the confidences and problems of the regiment. It was, as he puts it, one of the rare experiences of life.

Dr. Sclater is cognizant of the tremendous responsibility that now rests upon his shoulders. "I feel", he said, "that in these heavy times, no minister should be separated from his congregation for any length of time. Later, there will be heavy casualties. That is inevitable. A minister's place is with his people, for they are his friends, and will need his help and advice".

That does not mean, however, that the Moderator will not carry out his work as the highest officer of the church. "Travel will be limited somewhat", he said, "but I shall maintain my contacts with the brethren via the air whenever travel is impossible".

Dr. Sclater is a veteran of the airwaves. He broadcasts from his church in Toronto once a month and recently concluded a thirteen-week series of broadcasts, on a special subject.

But his radio work does not interfere with his relationships with his congregation. "After all", he said, "twenty years with the same family establishes warm feelings".

As I rose to leave he clasped me warmly by the hand. "We are all in this war", he said, "and with God's guidance must pursue it to the end and victory. Of that I am sure".

PET CAT AVERTS TRAGEDY IN HOME

Only the excited meowing of a pet feline averted a tragedy at the home of Miss Booth, 58 Purdy St., early this morning, is the belief of Assitant Fire Chief Gerald Vance, who reported that fire of an undetermined nature had gained considerable headway before the lone occupant of the home was awakened by the frightened tabby.

According to firemen the fire started outside the frame building underneath a short flight of steps at the rear of the dwelling and was blazing freely up the clapboards at the arrival of the fire brigade. The fire had not yet broken through into the inside but considerable smoke had filtered through when firemen arrived.

Miss Booth, who is an invalid and can only move about with the aid of crutches or by use of a wheel chair, stated to firemen there had been no fire in the home for over two months and could not understand how the blaze could have possibly originated.

She admits, however, that she owes her life to the fact she has always been a lover of cats and had fortunately kept her pet in the bedroom overnight.

Damage to the home was small, it was reported by firemen, altho' the outside of the dwelling was considerably scorched.

The social and recreational periods of Canada's fighting forces are of vital importance in the training of the armed forces of the Dominion. It is a recognized and appreciated fact that paramount to the armed forces in recreational facilities during the periods set aside for rest and exercises. At the No. 5 Initial Training School of the R.C.A.F. here a new Airmen's recreational room has been completed except for several articles needed to assure the pleasure periods of the airmen at No. 5 I.T.S.

Surplus radios, a large ruge and reading lamps are always welcomed by the airmen, while officials at the local Initial Training School intimated that a billiard table would be most acceptable by the airmen for the recreation room. MUST TAKE HAND IN EDUCATION OF OUR YOUTH

Rev. W. Harold Young Points Out Duty of Church

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

"The Church must have a definite hand in the education of our youth," declared Rev. W. Harold Young, Chairman of the Committee on Vacancies reporting to the General Council of the United Church, here on Saturday.

"The actions of Hitler in Germany should make us realize how important it is for religious education to be given to our boys and girls," he said. "The future of the Church depends on the religious education of the youth."

A complete revision of the existing set-up in Christian education was proposed by Rev. Young. He suggested the dividing of the responsibilities of the Secretary of the Board of Christian Education between two secretaries, a Secretary of Education and a Secretary of Religious Education. The former set-up of one man occupying the two positions was too great a load for one man to carry.

A Board of moderate size should be set up to direct the church's work in Religious Education, in the Sunday Schools, Young People's Unions, and Adult Education. Secondly there should be a Committee on Colleges and Secondary Schools to be composed of not more than fifteen members for the direction of the work of the United Church colleges and schools and for the development of a unified program of higher education on the part of the United Church.

The Board would consist of not more than three principals of Theological Colleges, two principals of Arts Colleges and one Secondary School principal, and nine other members who shall have complete responsibility for and authority over financial matters, including the determining of the amount of grants to the various institutions.

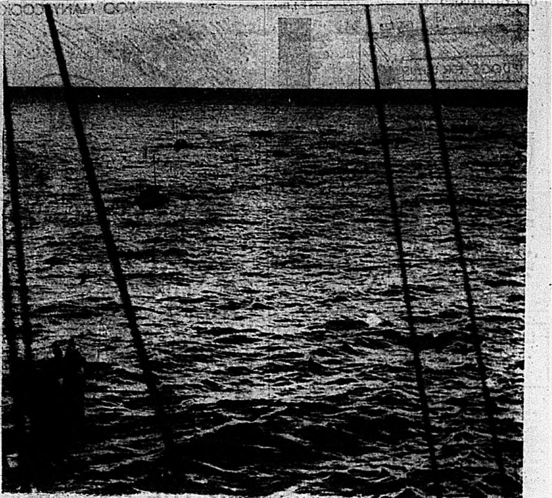
In support of the present campaign, Mr. Taggart added, the Bacon Board is reducing the quantity of pork and bacon that may be sold in the domestic market to 50 per cent of the normal weekly sales in 1940. Consumers in Canada, he said, can control the volume of hogs slaughtered on farms or by butchers for sale on city markets or in small shops in villages, towns and cities. If the consumer refrains from buying pork for the next seven weeks, many more hogs will be marketed through the plants producing export bacon.

11,500,000 Weekly

The present bacon agreement with Britain calls for not less than 600,000,000 pounds of bacon and pork, or average weekly shipments of approximately 11,500,000 pounds. Up until a few weeks ago, Mr. Taggart said, weekly shipments had been maintained at a satisfactory level. During the past four or five weeks, however, there has been a sharp decline in the shipments to Britain which Canada has agreed to make.

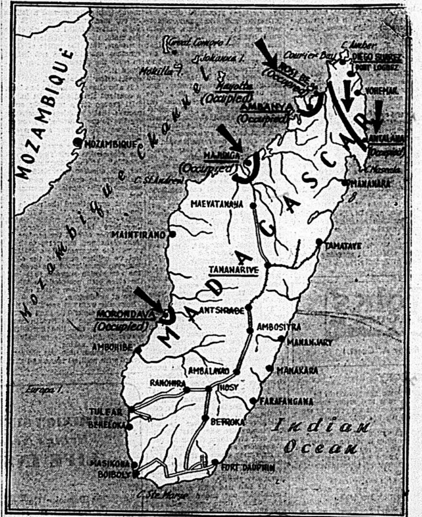
The shortage of bacon in recent weeks reflects the present temporary over-all meat shortage, the foods administrator explained. The statement said consumption of all meats has increased in Canada, due to the large numbers of men in training camps, the fact that the increase in employment has brought about greater spending power, and also because of the increased supplies needed for provisioning ocean-going vessels.

Officials of the Dominion Agriculture Department state there are large supplies of turkeys available in storage and more will shortly be coming to market. Fowl and chicken are also plentiful and will be marketed in volume during the next six or seven weeks. Eggs can be substituted for meats in many parts of Canada. Fish is available in those areas close to the source of supplies. Cheese can now be obtained in quantity because the British contract is almost filled.



Here is pictured the first boatload of survivors of H.M.S. Dorsetshire sunk by enemy action on the Indian Ocean. The boats are heading for the destroyer which rushed to the scene when word of the sinking of the British ship arrived. The boats fought against time to complete their task before nightfall. Some of the Dorsetshire's sailors are pictured in boats but many of them are struggling in the water, swimming, or clinging to anything that would keep them afloat. The men cheered as the rescue boats came into sight. The Dorsetshire was one of two British cruisers sunk by enemy action in the Indian Ocean.

BRITISH SEIZE THREE MADAGASCAR PORTS



Deciding to take no further chances on the activity of enemy agents in Vichy French Madagascar, the British have seized the ports on the west coast of the strategically important island, bringing overwhelming sea, land and air forces into play. They have also made a drive down the east coast with mobile forces. The map shows the three west coast ports occupied, Nosi Be, Majunga and Morondava, with arrows also indicating the drive down the east coast, from Diego Suarez 200 miles to Antalaha which they have captured.

Trenton and District

Trenton, (Special)—Several cases were heard by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Trenton Police Court Friday afternoon. Considerable time was taken in disposing of the cases. Lt.-Col. B. C. Donnan was present for the crown.

Philip Tice, 17, Frankford, charged with the theft of an auto, pleaded guilty. Evidence given by Serg. R. W. Probert revealed that Tice had attempted to steal a car owned by Colin Crows, Trenton, while parked on Dundas Street. Tice was trying to pull away from the curb when Crews came from his store and stopped him. Tice was later arrested and charged. In sentencing Tice the Magistrate stated that he was sorry to have to sentence him but due to the fact that he had been charged with the theft of a car from Frankford, in January of this year, and at that time given an opportunity to go straight, he felt that one year in the Ontario Reformatory would help him to be a law abiding citizen.

Edward Wallace, Marmora Street, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving and paid $5 fine and $2.50 costs.

J. S. McDonald pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication and paid the usual $13 fine and costs.

Stanley Cooney, Codrington, pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication and paid $13 fine and costs.

D. Taylor, Dundas Street East, appeared before the Magistrate charged with failing to attend a parade for drill at the Trenton Armouries, contrary to the Militia Act. Taylor pleaded guilty and assured the Magistrate that he would be present at future parades. He was fined $5 and costs of $1.

"What reason do you give for not attending parade", His Worship asked Joseph Chatrand, charged under the Militia Act with failing to attend parades. "I just refused", he said with a shrug of his shoulders. Col. Donnan asked for the maximum penalty in this case due to the fact that Chatrand had been charged with a similar offence before. When Chatrand promised that he would attend parades from now on he was assessed $5 fine and $1 costs. "You had better not appear before me again in this court, on another charge such as this", warned His Worship.

"This man was proceeding north on Marmora Street, about 10.45 p.m. Monday and thought he saw a parked car coming toward him—he pulled sharply to the right and went over the curb and onto a boulevard blowing three of his tires", Cons. F. J. Taylor stated giving evidence against Claude Waddell charged with reckless driving. "He had been drinking and should not have been driving", the officer stated.

He was found guilty and fined $10 and costs amounting to $5.

Abe Ostrom appeared on a charge of arson. Mr. Donnan told the court that Ostrom had been examined by Doctor MacGregor of the Ontario Hospital, Kingston, and that he had recommended that Ostrom be committed to the County Home where he would be properly looked after. Due to his years it was considered the best plan.

"I would like a week's remand", said Thomas Smith, Trenton, when a charge of refusing to work and thereby being a vagrant was read. Smith was summoned into court. "With the permission of the Magistrate that will be granted", Mr. Donnan replied. "In custody — this man is intoxicated now".

"I wondered what was the matter with him—remanded to jail", pronounced the Magistrate.

USES .22 RIFLE

Owen Sound, Sept. 14 —(CP)— Despondency over his failure to pass the army medical test is believed to have caused Allan Robinson, 27, to turn a gun upon himself and inflict injuries from which he is not expected to recover after allegedly shooting and killing his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Robinson, late Saturday at their farm home 10 miles south of Clarksburg.

A neighbor, John Knowil, discovered the tragedy Saturday night when he went to call upon the Robinson. He stumbled over Mrs. Robinson's body about 50 feet from the house, in a lane leading to the highway. Allan was at her feet, and a .22 calibre rifle was lying a yard away.

In the beam of his flashlight, Knowil saw the son was breathing faintly. Knowil ran into the house to telephone for help, and as he did so came upon the body of Mr. Robinson in the kitchen.

The bodies were ordered removed to a Thornbury undertaking establishment by Dr. Frank Moore of Clarksburg. Allan was not removed from the home, and phyicians regarded his death as certain in a matter of hours.

Dr. Moore, saying the tragedy was incomprehensible to him, remarked the Robinsons were "the type one turns to instinctively in time of trouble.

Both Dr. Moore and coroner Dr. Aberhart believed Allan Robinson's rejection for army service had so affected him he went berserk.

A neighbor said Allan was "crazy" about army life and "took it hard" when he was rejected because of poor eyesight.

Power Shortage Restrictions

The drastic reduction in the use of electric power which becomes effective on September 20th at sundown in the shortage areas of Ontario and Quebec is something which will be noticed. The situation is one calling for the attention of every citizen to do his utmost to conserve electrical energy so necessary in war production. The blacking out of advertising signs and show windows, the reduction of street lighting by at least twenty per cent, the appeal to the household users of electricity for a 20 p. c. cut are necessary under the situation.

Users of electricity which is universally in use will do their utmost to conserve energy. There was actual evidence of this even before the restrictive order was given for it was very noticeable that a few nights before that numbers of homes were using a minimum of electric lights for the one purpose of saving electricity.

The news of the shortage of energy and the necessity of steps to bring about saving of electric power does not seem as a surprise to the people for they have had the facts presented them in reports and statements from the Hydro and other authorities about the developing situation.

The restrictions will cause some change in the appearance of Ontario streets, particularly business streets and even in residential streets for residents will endeavor to get along with the least power for lighting their homes. But the changes will soon find the people accustomed to them.

What Democracies Fight Against

Prime Minister King in his review of the war from Canada's standpoint paid the Dominion a fine tribute as the strongest nation next to Britain fighting against Germany for a year after the fall of France, for its effort in raising half a million men and as the first nation in the New World which had entered the war and thus gave the New World leadership. He pointed to Canada's aid to Britain.

How necessary this was was explained by the Premier who said that the Nazi doctrine is more than world domination, the purpose of the Nazi is to destroy every belief and institution of the free world which men, women and children had learned to reverence, and that the Nazi aim was the total destruction of the Christian civilization.

The very manner in which the Axis nations have acted shows this, that they look upon themselves as destroyers, that they seek to seize the world's soul and to destroy the free spirit of men. To prevent them doing this, the enemies themselves must be utterly destroyed, Mr. King says. Mr. King stressed that the peoples of the New World should realize the issue as the people of the Old World do, so as to make the utmost contribution to the defeat of the enemy.

Helping Blind to Help Selves

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is this week making its annual drive in Belleville for donations for the maintenance of the work of this institution which was founded in 1918 by a group of Canadian soldiers who lost their sight in the first World War. The citizens of Belleville have always generously supported this organization and it is hoped that the results of this campaign will yield equal or greater support.

The Institute carries on a number of enterprises for aiding the blind to help themselves, their employment in workshops where brooms and other products are manufactured, the finding of jobs in ordinary industry which do not require the use of sight, (about 60 to 70 being employed in ordinary industrial plants many of which are on war work,) the setting up of blind persons in about 130 small businesses, as for instance the canteen in the Belleville Genral Hospital, and home-teaching by staff teachers who go into the homes and teach braille and handicrafts, knitting, basketry, leather work and also typing. For those able to read braille there is available a library of many volumes.

One of the other divisions of the work of the Institute is to help prevent loss of sight as among school children and adults.

There are about 35 blind persons in Belleville and one hundred in Hastings County including Belleville and Trenton.

"THREE YEARS"

"Three years! Three years! And it has scarce begun.
Three years of waste, and wretchedness
and woe,
Since one man's lunacy put back the sun:
Yet—were we happier three years ago?
Three years. Our swords were rusty—and our souls:
And this old lion was despised of men.
Were we the people to defend the Poles?
The very Wop was laughing at us
then.
He is not laughing quite so much, we hope:
We are not quite so economic as before.

HE HUNG OUT OF HIS BOMBER

The wounded bomb-aimer of a Lancaster returning from a big raid leant far out in mid-air, while the navigator held him by his harness, to try to find a fire which was menacing the plane.

The smell of burning seemed to be coming from underneath the aircraft—and the bombs were there.

Over the target the Lancaster had been badly hit and the bombs could not be got away. the bomb-aimer was wounded in the back.

No flames could be seen round the bombs so the navigator hauled his comrade back. But still smoke was entering the plane.

Home Safe.

The bomb-aimer continued his search, found smoke coming up from between the floor and the bomb rack. He played a fire-extinguisher through a hatch in the floor.

"This seemed to do the trick," the pilot said afterwards. The plane which by this time had crossed the Dutch coast, got home safely.

The Lancaster was on its bombing run over Hamburg, and the bomb-aimer had the target in his sights, and was just about to let go the bombs when a shell exploded right above the aircraft said the Air Ministry News Service.

"It sent us careening all over the sky," the pilot said. "We had been pretty badly hit. I saw that the flight engineer had been wounded. I told the bomb-aimer to fix him up and take over his duties.

"I then saw flames were coming from the starboard outer engine. I feathered the propeller, cut off the petrol, and pressed the automatic fire-extinguisher. But the flames went on, and did not go out for three-quarters of an hour.

"During all that time they gave away our position to the enemy; and the enemy gave us all he had.

"Even before we got away from the target area we had been held by six searchlights. Evasive action was very difficult with a damaged aircraft, but we did shake off these searchlights in the end.

"Well outside the target area, we were picked up by a cone of about 30 searchlights. No guns fired, so I realized that fighters must be about. I heard my rear-gunner's guns. I could not speak to him or he to me, because the inter-com. had gone.

"I only learned afterwards that a fighter had stalked us, but that my rear-gunner had scared him off bby firing at about 300-yards range." — Daily Mail.

FIRST MEMORY

Time was when I was two or three,
To prattle, scarcely able,
I placed, at grandma's house for tea
My foot upon her table.
My first of memories this appears,
Likewise my first correction,
And I've remembered all the years
My grandma's strong objection.

She promptly came at me apace
With manner terrifying.
She shook her fist before my face
And vowed she'd send me flying!
I only knew she seemed to be
With rage and anger choking,
For I was much too young to see
That she was only joking.

Lest age should infancy explore
Time hides it with a curtain.
Of nothing of my life before
That lesson I am certain.
But memory held grandma's "tut-tut"
As if with copper cable
And since that day I've never put
My foot on any table.

Disinterestedness; The First Need

New York, Sept. 14—A month ago the President appointed three disinterested and thoroughly competent men to investigate a problem which has been acute ever since the attack on Pearl Harbor. At that moment any child knew that the main sources of our rubber supply were threatened, and that immediate steps should be taken to find substitutes for crude rubber. But not until Aug. 6 was that done which should have been done the first day after the war; the appointment of an absolutely disinterested commission to investigate the situation and bring in recommendations.

This column has recommended for six long years that we take advantage of British precedent and set up equivalents of the Royal Commissions. Royal Cmmissions are temporary bodies of persons, selected without political considerations, purely on the ground of superior technical abilities. They are not beholden to the Government, which is not their employer. They have no power to enforce their recommendations. They are selected from the disinterested. Therefore, they have independent judgment.

Not Interested in Profits.

The President's committee—Mr. Baruch and Professors Compton and Conant—is an almost exact equivalent of a Royal Commission. None of these men is in the least interested in future profits to be made out of synthetic rubber processes, nor personally interested in which agency of Government should handle a gigantic new enterprise.

Professor Compton and Conant are completely competent in the field of chemical science, and have immediate access to all technical knowledge. They are also presidents of great educational institutions and, therefore, organizers as well as professors. Bernard Baruch is one of the great executives of this nation, and a man whose passion for winning the war takes precedence over everything else in his life.

Therefore, and for the first time, we have that which is the very life and soul of efficient democratic government; a disinterested and competent view.

If we had had such a National Commission one and a half years ago, when there was all the wrangling over the conversion of the automobile industry, we might have won the war this year.

If such a National Commission of geographers, experts on Arctic resources, had first investigated and then recommended on the subject of the road to Alaska, discussed for years and now under construction, we would not be building, as we are, another Burma Road, and we would be in an excellent strategic position vis-a-vis our enemy, Japan, and our ally, Russia.

The greatest need of this country is disinterested brains, in a position to exercise judgment, founded wholly on reason. The nation distrusts politicians, industrialists and trade union leaders—all three of them—and rightly. Because none of them have disinterested judgment.

The Baruch report consciously omits personal accusations. No national or scientific purpose concerning rubber is to be served by recriminating the past. But there is a national purpose to be served by observing what this report reveals.

It reveals all along the line rule of thumb procedures in dealing with the greatest national problem. It tells us quite flatly that if we don't solve it and solve it quickly, we shall have a breakdown of motor transportation and a failure of our mechanized army. It reveals that we failed to stock crude thermore, that the jungle of Government, that the jungle of Gevernment agencies had not helped to solve the problem, but has confused it.

Soviet Offer Disregarded.

It also shows that there has been a constant struggle between industrial groups for a monopoly on a process that promises immensely for the future—provided of course, that we win the war and have a future.

And it raises one question which the commission itself finds "inexplicable." If the Government leaves this question unexplained, we shall have to draw our own conclusions. The Soviet Government last February, that is to say six months ago, offered the people of the United States their own formulas for synthetic rubber, which they have been using for ten years. They offered the services of technicians and engineers to help us put the program into operation, and we neither accepted the offer nor even investigated the product. The commission suggests that had the offer been accepted we might at this moment have plants on the verge of production.

Now, why wasn't it accepted? Refusal was a diplomatic snub of the first order. Since the Baruch commission could not find out the answer, a journalist is unlikely to find it out by asking.

But the commission was not concerned with political ideas, and that may be a reason why they found it "inexplicable." We are concerned with political ideas, and political shenanigans, and my guess is that our politicians, pressed by interested groups, did not accept it because Russia is a Socialist State, and because the offer was made to the whole people of the United States and not to an industry. So the offer was no base for monopolizing the process or promising private gain. If this is not the answer, then let us have the right one.

The Baruch commission is for starting with that rubber process most advanced at this moment, but under no circumstances granting a monopoly. It is to be hoped that this report will be the basis for immediate action and that Mr. Baruch will be appointed rubber administrator.

Or, is he more necessary in another national commission, to investigate something else—for instance, the disposition of manpower for essential works, where also we need light and policy.

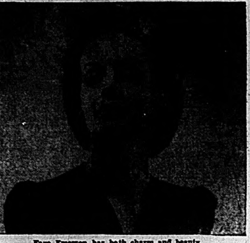
Girls Judged by Personality



Faye Emerson has both charm and beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

OUR FRIEND, Mr. Webster, says that personality is distinction of person, individuality. We sometimes wonder if personality is what you are, or what you are smart enough to make other people think you are? Maybe it is both.

We build up personality through speech, manners, our ideas of conduct. Others estimate us by what we say and what we do, although every Sweet Young Thing may fancy that rating comes through consideration of a flying coiffure, flirty skirts and drug store complexions. But we'll say this much; the young men of this particular day are clear-eyed and clear-headed. When you speak of a girl a fellow won't ask "Is she pretty?" He will want to know if she is interesting.

If a girl can't be sparkling and clever—and we get a bit fed up on the too-smarties—she can be amiable. Affability is a strong factor in the creation of charm.

There was once a girl who had a reputation for social graces. At a party, another girl said to her "How can you listen to that chap who is such a bore? He drives me crazy, always talking about himself and his business affairs".

The answer was "I don't listen at all. I just smile and look pleasant and nod my head now and then. I haven't heard a word he said. I've been planning my winter wardrobe."

When we say that a girl has personality we mean that she is vivid that she stands out in the crowd. The colorless girls can't help their shyness and retiring ways; they don't contribute anything in the way of entertainment.

She who has friendliness tolerance, gaiety of manner, has a pretty good chance to get a personality blue ribbon.

Airwomen Assume Duties At Trenton R. C. A. F. Station

The first group of airwomen to report for duty at Trenton R.C.A.F. Station arrived on Saturday, in charge of Section Officer H. G. Saprrow of Winnipeg, and Assistant Section Officer G. I. Ball, Saskatoon. They were welcomed by the Trenton station band at the main gates of station after which they formed up and paraded in front of the Administration Building where the Commanding Officer, Air Commodore F. C. McGill took the salute.

Welcomed by C.O.

Proceeding on to the parade grounds, they were formally welcomed to the Station by the C.O., in a brief address. Later in the evening the young ladies were entertained at a station dance held in the Sports' Hangar.

Today the members of the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) were busily engaged with the new duties they are undertaking at the station. These include such varied tasks as clerking, parachute rigging, motor transport driving, fabric working, acting as messwomen and hospital orderlies. The purpose of their presence at the stations is not to replace civilian employees but to assume the positions now occupied by men of the airforce who can be released for more arduous duties which could not be undertaken by women.

Those arriving on Saturday represented about one half of the number of airwomen who will be assigned to the station.

Good Resolution — Budget Expenses

IN 1942—PLAN YOUR SPENDING

So many bills! How can you get out of the red, have the things you hoped to have this year? Budgeting's the answer.

But, you object, that will mean pinching pennies, MORE things to give up! Not at all. An old-fashioned idea—that budgets tell what you can't have. These days your budget invites: "Come, decide what you want most. Let's plan your spending so you can have it."

So, today, take stock. Estimate your outgo by listing expenses like rent, insurance, clothing, food.

Comparing your own expenses with those of people on similar incomes, you may discover what items are too high. Rent perhaps is costing much more than 20 per cent. of your income.

And amazing to see how much money has just leaked away! You could have bought that new furniture or clothing twice over.

When you plan a use for every dollar, leaks are automatically guarded against. And if you buy at sales, order groceries in large size packages—your dollars buy more.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of "The Meaning of Dreams" to The Ontario Intelligencer, Home Service, 166 Front Street, Belleville Ontario. Be sure to and name of booklet.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

On Receiving Gift From Fellow Workers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have been working in the office of a defence plant for several months. But I am planning to leave soon to marry a young man in the Service, and then I am going to live near the camp in which he is stationed.

I have a definite idea that my co-workers in the office are going to get contributions to a fund to buy a wedding present for me, and I am entirely at sea as to what I should say when I receive the gift and am ready to leave. Will you please help me out about this?

N. C.

I think that it's a fine idea for you to be ready with some enthusiastic words of appreciation for this generosity of your co-workers.

If the gift is given to you in the office, you might say something like this: "You have made me very happy, happier than I really can express to you, by your goodness to me. I have enjoyed so much working with you all, and you have been so friendly to me that your gift will always remind me of your friendship and kindness.

"John and I will be very proud of this beautiful silver dish, and besides its beauty, it is of such a practical size that we will, I know, find many delightful uses for it. Thank you, every one of you good friends, for your thoughtfulness and generosity".

And besides this general expression of thanks, you should, as soon as you can, write a note of thanks to every contributor.

Thank You

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

When you are at a dinner which is being served by a maid, is it proper to say "Thank you" after you have served yourself from a serving-dish which she has passed?

V. M.

A "thank you", is never wrong, but it isn't strictly necessary to say more than perhaps a first thank-you to the maid. However, it is correct to say "No, thank you" whenever you refuse a helping from the serving dish the maid is passing. Just a "no" or a shake of the head is then not enough to suggest a gracious refusal.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Courageous Girl Jilted Into Success

Here's the story of a girl with plenty of courage. Declining to consider a broken engagement as a life-wrecking calamity, she picked up the pieces and kept right on.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Two years ago I was one of those girls who wrote to you from Heartbreak House. Instead of sympathizing with me, your personal answer to my letter was a much-needed dash of cold water on my head.

"I'm not going into that old affair here, but I had been treated abominably, rejected with cold deliberation. You told me to burn, give away or send to the second-hand store the dress I expected to be married in, not to leave it around or try to wear it, for it would be full of bitter reminder.

You told me to get new and attractive clothes, to take lessons in ballroom dancing at the best school my pocket-book could afford. Also, not to give up my job as secretary-stenographer but to stick it out even if everyone in the organization knew I'd been jilted.

"But let me say that if everyone knew, they were all lovely to me. Young men who hadn't shown a bit of interest in me before invited me to dine, took me to the movies. No they didn't make love. They just wanted to show they thought me a good sport; two became good pals. The girls in my division were simply grand. They invited me to their homes, got up week-end trips, and one of them actually taught me to drive her car.

"I went in for every form of outdoor life I could possibly manage and I had grown so proficient in my dancing that I offered myself as an instructor at one of the nearby camps.

"And here, dear lady, is where I met my fate. The officers had Saturday night dances, and he, saying his dancing was rusty, asked for a lesson He's a first lieutenant in the Army, and I can't begin to tell you what a splendid fellow he is. That crawling worm over whom I broke my heart only two years ago seems funny-paper stuff to me now.

"To make a long story short, we are going to be married in six weeks' time so that we can have a little honeymoon if he goes overseas.

"I hope you'll print this letter, so that any girl who's had my experience will not go around moping and mooning, but will pick up the pieces of her life, fill it with interesting things and go on. And I thank you heartily, Miss Fairfax, for not sympathizing with me when I wrote you from Heartbreak House.

Pilgrimage to Old Hay Bay Church Links Pioneer Days of 150 Years Ago With Present in Impressive Service

Church in Which Loyalists Worshipped in 1792 Again Scene of Devotions

'SHRINE OF FAITH'

By REV. A. MacLAUGHLIN

Fifty years ago two steamers the "Ella Ross" and the "Reindeer" crossed the Adolphustown Reach from Picton to Hay Bay near Adolphustown where a barnlike building in very dilapidated condition had been swept out for the hundredth anniversary of the first Methodist Church built in Upper Canada.

It had been abandoned as a place of worship since the year 1860 and since then used as a storehouse for grain and implements

It was the mother church of Upper Canada Methodism, built by United Empire Loyalists in 1792 as a result of a revival of religion which made the home of Paul Huff too small. The congregation authorized the preacher, an intinerant from the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States named William Losee to build a two-storey frame building 36 by 30 feet with a gallery. Paul Huff whose monument is across the road from the church gave the land and 20 subscribers gave 120 English pounds. These pioneer Empire Loyalist settlers were part of 400 who settled in this area under Major Vanalstine as refugees who left for Canada in 1783 after refusing to subscribe to the revolutionary government in 1776. As early as 1778 there had been preaching by a young school teacher named Lyons who established the work despite the opposition of the feelings of the time.

Pilgrimage by Motor

As the cavalcade of 50 cars left Belleville Saturday afternoon led by Sergeant Hunter Traffic Division of the Provincial Police and with Traffic Officer W. Milton in the rearguard with the Moderator, Rt. Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Sclater, his predecessor Very Rev. Dr. A. S. Tuttle, high digitaries of the church, Senators, Judges, Governors and Members of Parliaments and missionaries from all parts of the world, one thought of the story of M'Carty who for preaching the doctrines now so honored, was exiled and later lost track of in an island area of the Bay of Quinte. Surely these folk builded better than they knew.

In this ancient and venerable building on Saturday was celebrated the 150th anniversary of its opening, by a visit from the General Council, of the United Church as the guests of Belleville Presbytery in whose jurisdiction its lies, and whose Chairman, Rev. H. L. Morrison of Tweed presided at the service inside the ancient house of worship

On Holy Ground

The service was memorable in every way, and it was evident that folk from far away and near, were aware that they stood on holy ground. The history of the little church was read by Rev. A. J. Wilson, Editor of Toronto, who told of the little church, its repurchase by the Methodist Church in 1910 and partial reconstruction in 1911 when Dr. A. Carman, General Superintendent of the Methodist Church preached at the re-opening. At the Methodist Conference held at Picton in 1924, at which the writer was Secretary, under the influence of its President, Rev. R. A. Whattam of Toronto, a direct descendant of one of the original trustees, a pilgrimage was made to the old place at which Rev. S. D. Chown spoke and J. B. Allison the last surviving worshipper of the Church were present. The Methodist Conference, sensing the changes Union might bring, appointed a Committee to continue the work of restoration.

In 1927 when the Rev. A. J. Wilson was president of the Conference, he moved that the United Church of Canada, Bay of Quinte Conference, proceed to repair and conserve the Church in the form which our forefathers built it.

$1,000 Voted

The Conference voted $1,000 to which was added donations secured through Churches and friends and the late A. R. Davis and Mr. Wilson, then Minister at Napanee and Secretary of the Lennox and Addington Historical society, was asked to undertake the work of reconstruction. The work was done carefully so that now except for the seats which have yet to be purchased, the Church with its large timbers, plain cemented walls, high pulpit, and strange mill-like outer appearance, is weatherproof and creosoted outside to preserve the original boards which have been replaced after reinforcement within.

Pilgrimages were held in 1930 by the Church and the U. E. L. Society.

It is hoped to have a small house on the land to keep a caretaker during the summer to tell visitors its early history. Nearby is the historical site marked by a cairn. Its stones are from the home of Sir John A. Macdonald who worshipped with this congregation but in the newer building that replaced it. Not far from it is a shrine of Presbyterianism, the tower of a church built four years later than the Hay Bay Church. It was burned down while in process of reconstruction in 1920 but the tower has been preserved as the McDowell Memorial. It too is a trust under the same Committee that cares for the Hay Bay Church.

Tread Steps to Pulpit

Saturday afternoon minister after minister trod gently on the five steps that led to the pulpit and stood or a moment where Dr. Nathan Bangs, Egerton Ryerson, William Case, William and John Ryerson and many a saddlebag preacher like Darius Dunham, its first ordained minister, led many to the penitent bench in front. There the Secretary of the General Council, Dr. Gordon A. Sisico of Toronto gave out old Methodist hymns and without help of organ, acted as precentor. Deputy Governor Sir John Puddister of Newfoundland read the scripture. The Very Rev. Aubrey S. Tuttle D. D. led in a prayer that thanked God for those pioneer Chistians who witnessed so good a confession in establishing righteousness in this their new land, and pledged loyalty to their memory and asked for blessing on those present.

The only living Trustee of the property when it was purchased, F. L. Hooper of Napanee was present, a well as W. C. Mikel, K. C. of Belleville who is past president of the United Empire Loyalist Association.

Many Settlers From Army

The Moderator of the United Church Dr. Sclater introduced as a "Soldier of spiritual warfare sent from the old land"—made reference to the early settlers many of whom were from the army. He said "Nobody could possibly be here this afternoon and not be moved." He rejoiced in the wisdom of those who had preserved the building; said it was well men remembered the lives of early heroes in times of distress. The benediction was pronounced by a woman preacher, the Rev. Miss Lydia Gruchy, in recognition of the great work women did in early Methodism. The ladies of Adolphustown served a lunch at which water and milk replaced the usual tea and lemonade. Miss Annabelle Magee responded to the thanks extended to the ladies by Mr. W. W. Brown of Hamilton, General Secretary of the advisory Council of the United Church of Canada who said it was a great honor to have had the General Council hold a service in their church. Many of the delegates who came by the highway to Napanee returned by the ferry across to Glenora and back via Picton to Belleville past to Mountain View Air-School.

St. Louis Cardinals Head Loop Splitting With Phillies While Dodgers Lose Pair to Reds

Yankees Only Need One Game to Cinch Sixth Pennant in Seven Years

GIANTS WIN TWICE

(By SID FEDER)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers are beginning to look like a couple of playboys with empty pockets "fighting" for the check in a nightclub, and it might be that they've just discovered the Yankees are about to clinch the American League pennant.

You know, the National League winner has to take on the Yanks in the world series, and in five of the last six sets that has turned out to be an unhappy predicament.

Yanks now can put the clincher on the 1942 flag. A victory for the Bombers in Cleveland this afternoon or a loss for Boston Red Sox in Chicago means the sixth pennant for the Yanks in seven years.

The news may have affected the work of the Dodgers and Cards. Anyway, there were few signs yesterday that either the collapsible Flatbush follies or the hot-and-cold Cards were any too anxious to get in there as the Yankees' sparing partners—or targets.

As a matter of cold fact, the Dodgers, after three days of dropping their stitches one at a time, came completely apart at the seams, losing both ends of a double header to Cincinnati, 6-3 and 4-1. And it's probably a lucky thing they're able to close for repairs until their next start Wednesday.

Split Bargain Bill

Meantime, the Cards were somewhat better in splitting a bargain bill with the Phillies to take a one-game edge in the race.

But with a chance to make it a two-game bulge placed right in their laps, they handed the first game to the Phils 2-1. They did it on a couple of errors with two out in the ninth inning. After that they took the nightcap 3-2 when Terry Moore broke a tie with his fifth homer of the year.

Brooklyn's efforts weren't nearly as close. In the first game, Bucky Walters pitched their ears off with a six-hitter and then knocked the roof in on them with a jackpot three-run double. And in the nightcap, Ray Starr, who has been about as tough for Booklyn in the past as a walk in the park, tossed a five-hitter at them.

Fumbled Four in One Frame

This tied a modern National League record, but before the afternoon was over, the mark was broken. The "hero" in this case was young Lennie Merullo, Chicago Cubs' new shortstop. Apparently excited over word that he was a brand new father, Lennie fumbled four in one frame of the Cubs' second game with Boston Braves, but Chicago managed to hang on in spite of it to win 11-8. The Braves took the opener 11-6.

The Yankees arrived at the pennant doorstep by mowing down Cleveland 9-1 and 4-1 behind Red Ruffing and Hank Borowy. The Red Sox also clicked twice, over Chicago White Sox 6-1 and 5-0, with Bill Butland winning his seventh in a row in the first game and Tex Hughson collecting his 19th victory of the season in the afterpiece.

Playing Out String

Otherwise, the boys were just playing out the string. New York Giants knoked over Pittsburgh twice 5-0, as young Bob Carpenter tossed his second straight shutout, and 5-3. St. Louis Browns ran off and hid twice from Philadelphia Athletics 7-0 and 3-2. Washington and Detroit broke even, the Nats winning the first 5-2 and the Tigers taking the nightcap 8-0.

The Cardinals' 2-1 victory over the Dodgers that brought them into a tie for the National League featured Saturday's games. In other contests, Cincinnati defeated the Phils 4-1 and Boston won by the same score over Pittsburgh. The second game of the doubleheader ended in a 2-2 tie after 11 innings when darkness set-in.

In the American League, Washington went 12 innings to turn back the surging St. Louis Brown 7-6. Detroit had to go 11 innings to win 6-5 over Philadelphia. New York humbled the White Sox 7-1 and Boston beat Cleveland 8-6.

WITTIG BLANKS BEARS KEEPING GIANTS IN RACE

Allows League Leaders Only Two Hits, Both of Them Singles

CHIEFS BLANK ROYALS

By the Associated Press

Jersey City's forgotten man, pitcher John Carl Wittig, jogged the memory of many giant fans Sunday.

The 28-year-old righthander, handicapped most of the season with a bad shoulder, kalsomined the pennant-winning Newark Bears 3-0 on two hits for the Jerseys' first victory in the semi-final round of the International League's Governors' Cup playoffs.

While Wittig was handing the Bears their first defeat, Ewell Blackwell was blanking the Montreal Royals 6-0 for Syracuse Chiefs in the oft-delayed starter of the other semi-final series.

Wittig didn't allow a Bear to reach second and the only safe blows off his delivery were singled by Bud Metheny in the fourth and by Bill Johnson in the eight. He walked four and fanned seven.

He won his own ball game, too, hoisting a 360-foot fly that brought home Nap Reyes with the first Jersey tally in the third frame. The Giants scored again in the fifth on a walk to Joe Orengo, a sacrifice by Hugh Poland and hits by Reyes and Buddy Kerr. Nino Bongiovanni, Sid Gordon and Orengo connected in succession for the third tally in the sixth.

Blackwell, 19-year-old skyscraper, gave up six hits in registering his shutout. Two double plays helped him out of his difficulties, along with seven strikeouts.

BATAWA NINE ELIMINATED FROM O.A.S.A.

Frankford Team Drop Softball Playdowns to Eastdale in Successive Games

SCORE 8-5

Batawa "Shoemakers" faded out of the O.A.S.A. Intermediate "C" playdowns at Eastdale on Saturday afternoon when the homesters defeated the Frankford lads in the second game of their best-of-three series by a close 8-5 score. The defeat eliminates the Quinte boys from the playdowns as Eastdale defeated them by a 10-3 score in the first game of the series at Trenton one week ago.

Eastdale's veteran 43-year-old hurler, Roy Banks again assumed the pitching duty for the Eastdale nine on Saturday but was not as effective as in Trenton earlier in the week. Batawa hitters counted most of the extra-base knocks registered in the game, but with runners on the base-paths, Banks turned on the pressure. His feat of striking out Sammy Ellis in the fifth with the bases loaded possibly won the ball game.

Eastdale batters got to Istead who was hurling for the Batawa nine for three runs in the initial frame as the result of some timely clouting and through two costly errors on the part of the visitors' infield. From then on they were never headed, although Batawa came within one of tying the score on two occasions later in the game.

Batawa counted twice in the third inning and three times in the seventh while Eastdale scored three in the sixth and came right back with two runs in the seventh to retain teir early game margin.

Batteries: Batawa, Istead and Aquino; Eastdale, Banks and Cook.

WRESTLES McCREADY HERE

The above is John Katan, the powerful Calgary wrestler, who meets Earl McCready, of Regina, in the British Empire semi-final wrestling elimination at the Hume Arena on Wednesday evening. The winner of this important bout has been guaranteed a championship bout with "Whipper Billie" Watson, the present titleholder. Both Katan and McCready are former champions.

Of importance to fans Promoter Frank Tunney announced today he had procured new faces for Wednesday's preliminaries at the Hume Arena when George Duros, the 260-pound Greek from Chicago, meets Pedro Martinez, the rough Mexican, and Ali Aldali, the "Terrible Turk," wrestles the popular Jan Gotch.

Toronto, Sept. 14. (CP)— Johnny Greco, the Montreal lightweight, may get a fight with fading Lew Jenkins this fall. . . Ex-Champ Jenkins isn't getting much work these days, and probably could be had, but a frantic beating through the bushes by Greco's manager, Pete Audette, has failed to uncover a promoter to stage the fight. . . Greco could make the boys forget all about Dave Castilloux and Maxie Berger if he could beat Jenkins, even if the former titlist is on the way down.

All in the Family

The name Douglas is a big one in British Columbia lacrosse. Johnny, Ralph and Fred Douglas play for Norvans and Jimmy for New Westminster. Jimmy became famous with the old Adanacs out there. He's just 24, but he's uncle to Norvans' three members of the clan.

Incidentally:

Edmonton and Moncton, for two, are hoping the military will be able to turn their rinks back to civilian use for hockey matches this winter, but Regina fans have a more unusual problem . . . The roof of the Queen City Gardens there blew off in a mild storm, and will take both lumber and priorities to fix . . . Latest word is the work will be completed before winter. . . Football enthusiasm is high in Quebec, but slightly higher than the available supply of equipment. . . That factor may restrict what looked one week ago like a ten-team league.

Reds' Secretary Says Dodgers Have "Persecution Complex"

By GAYLE TALBOT
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—What the Dodgers have, in addition to a fight on their hands, is a persecution complex, says Gabe Paul, Secretary of Cincinnati Reds. He says it with grim satisfaction.

"We're not trying to beat them any harder than we're trying to beat any other team in the National League," Gabe insisted. "But they think we are, and that's what's getting 'em down. It's a wonder they haven't gone running to the league president about the way everybody's picking on them.

"You know the old saying, something about reaping what you sow, don't you? Well, that's what's happening to the Dodgers right now. All year they've been hollering 'teacher' every time something happened they didn't like. Some of them, like Coach Chuck Dressen, have said some pretty mean things to rival players, too. They're getting it all back now.

"Last time they came to Cincinnati they beefed that we pitched Vander Meer out of turn against them. We didn't, but it's a wonder they didn't take it up with the district attorney. Another time they yelled because we didn't remove the infield covering exactly when they wanted us to. It had been raining, see.

Scream About Pitchers

"And the way they've screamed about pitchers throwing at them! You wouldn't think they started it, would you? Goodness, no. But before the big shooting started this summer there was even a magazine article about how the Dodgers admired their pitcher Max Macon because he wasn't afraid to dust off a batter.

"What they want, is to throw at batters and not get thrown at themselves If they can't have it that way, then they get a persecution complex. They think everybody's persecuting them, when all that's really happening is the other clubs aren't laying down to them. Why should we do them any favors? We're trying to finish in fourth place.

"I'm not saying there aren't good Dodgers. Lew Riggs is a nice fellow. He used to be with us. And I like Durocher all right, too. A lot of people don't like Leo, but I believe in liking a fellow according to the way he treats me. There are worse fellows than Leo."

GEORGIE WOOLF TO RIDE 'WHIRLY' IN MATCH RACE

Alberta Boy Seems to Have Best Luck With "Mr. Big Tail"

MEETS ALSAB

(By SID FEDER)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Pawtucket, R.I., Sept. 14. (AP)—Georgie Woolf is slated to ride Whirlaway in his $25,000 match race with Alsab at Narragansett next Saturday, and it begins to look as if Mr. Big Tail's official family finally has become convinced that Georgie can ride the horse better than any jockey around.

It took a long time for Owner Warren Wright and Trainer Ben Jones to make up their minds about the crack Canadian saddle artist, rated by other jockeys as the best money rider in the business. Woolf had to win five out of six starts with Kentucky Cannon-Ball to convince them.

He topped it off Saturday by piloting the turf's top breadwinner through one of his greatest races to win the $24,300 Massachusetts handicap. Immediately afterward, Trainer Ben Jones told George he is "it" for next Saturday's shindig, in which Whirly—if he wins—will skyrocket well over his $500,000 money-winning goal.

Saturday's victory boosted his earnings to $491,136.

Georgie, native of Cardston, Alta., and Whirly first got together in the Walden stakes at Pimlico in 1940 and waltzed home by four lengths. They didn't hook up again until June 22 this year, when Woolf booted Whirlaway to a track record at Aqueduct.

In between, Eddie Arcaro was given most of the "juicy" assignments aboard the chestnut flier as a three-year-old and again this spring. One of these, however, was the suburban handicap, in which Eddie's work was none too impressive and Whirly was beaten. Arcaro handled him, too, in the Arlington handicap in which Little Rounders whipped him. Rounders finished last behind Woolf and Mr. Big Tail Saturday.

HULL VOLANTS BEAT ORDNANCE

Teams Battling for the Interprobincial Baseball League Title

Hull, Que., Sept. 14—(CP)—Hull Volants overcame an early Ottawa Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps lead Sunday as the two teams met for the first of a best-of-five finals for the Inter-Provincial Baseball League title, winning the opener 9-5.

Bill Leader, Rockcliffe air force ace, was shifted to the pitcher's box from his third-base position when Ordnance took the lead in the fifth, but Volants pounded in three more runs before he could bring them under control. L. Giroux topped the batting with three runs batted in.

CASUAL COMMENT
by K.J.C.

WHEN THE INTERNATIONAL League rang down its 1942 curtain a week ago today it marked the first time since 1908 that a Rochester club had finished in the "Int. loop" cellar slot. That year the Rochester club won 55 games and lost 82, while this year the Red Wings won 59 and lost 93 games. In 1908 Eddie Holley was manager.

The seventh-place outfit was Jersey City, which began the campaign with Joe Bean as pilot and ended with Gene McCann, now a Yankee scout, as skipper. The Skeeters finished three full games ahead of the Bronchos, as the Red Wings were known at that time. Holly took charge on July 7, and the Bronchos promptly put over a 5 to 2 win for him over Buffalo.

One of Holly's bits of masterminding was to tell one of his pitchers that he was to work the double-header against Toronto on September 9, for the reason that he hadn't won a game as yet and the season was nearly ended. The hurler, named Snyder, promptly lost the first game to the Leafs, 3 to 1, but came back and took the second, 5 to 1. It was his one victory of the year.

After finishing last in 1908, Rochecter won pennants in 1909, 1910 and 1911.

THE BELLEVILLE LADIES' Softball League heads hope to wind up their affairs and declare a league champion this week. Leo Barrett and Chuck Barnett agreed to play Monday night and in the event the Deacons win the fifth and final will be necessary. However, the squads can't expect to commence such important games as late as 6.30 o'clock and finish nine innings. Barrett's Deacons won the first game of the finals, but Barnett's champion Zellers, seeking their third consecutive league title, bounced back to win the next two while a fourth game was called on account of darkness with no decision handed down. Skipper Barrett will send "Stewie" Stewart to the Deacon mound while Bessie Doolittle is naturally Barnett's hurling choice.

LAST WEEK A MEETING OF wrestling big-wigs was held in Toronto with Paul Bowser, of Boston, Charlie Patek of St. Louis and "Toots" Mondt of Chicago sitting in with Frank Tunney. The pow wow was at the request of Promoter Tunney, whose chief complaint was the fact he needed new wrestling faces in Canada.

Apparently Tunney's appeal did not fall upon deaf ears as both Patek and Bowser promised to lend a helping hand. The influx of named wrestlers was not long wending its way into the Dominion, which is proven in today's announcement of preliminaries for Wednesday night's British Empire elimination here. Skipper Tunney is having George Duros, the 260-pound Greek from Chicago in the semi-final, while Ali Aldali, the "terrible Turk", is also slated to appear here. All of this is aside from the elimination bout between John Katan and Earl McCready, a scrap that reads like a perfect match.

REMEMBER WHEN JACK Dempsey picked himself up from the press table and flattened Luis Angel Firpo in one of the greatest modern-day heavyweight fights staged at New York 21 years ago tonight. Knocked down six times Firpo sent the champion through the ropes in the first round in one of the most thrilling fights in history Dempsey sprawled Firpo to the canvas twice more before the knockout came in the second round. The late Tex Rickard stated after the fight there had been more punches slung and harder hitting in the five minutes Firpo and Dempsey exchanged punches than he had ever seen in any heavyweight title bout before.

THE BOSTON POLICE STRIKE of 1920, which made Calvin Coolidge President of the United States, also made an umpire out of Bill Summers of the Harridge staff. Coolidge's dictum as Governor of Massachusetts that "no person can strike at any time, anywhere, against the public safety and welfare" made him the Republican candidate for vice-president in 1920 and President when Warren Harding died in 1923. Summers, one of the striking coppers, lost his job, and had to find some other means of a livelihood. He turned to umpiring and reached the majors by way of the Eastern and International leagues.

MAYBE LARRY MACPHAIL had something when he blasted the Dodgers and openly stated that Durocher and company were "laying down on the job." At any rate a torrid gang of ballsters from the Mound City of St. Louis are making history, as did the Cardinals of 1926, with a drive into the National League stretch that's interesting. On Friday and Saturday the Cardinals beat the Dodgers right in Flatbush to pull up even with the Brooklyns in as tidy a race as one could wish for. Yesterday the Red Birds split with the lowly Phils., but you ain't heard anything yet, because believe it or not the Dodgers were still kicking the ball around by losing two on the home lot and now Dem Bums are bums of the first water as the Cards, are leading the National League race by a full game. In defeat the Brooklyns ran their paid attendance to 1,006,-364, marking the second consecutive year they have crossed the million patrons mark.

THIS AND THAT—WITHIN A matter of hours the New York Yankees should be crowned American League champions for 1942 . . .Yesterday the Yanks beat the Indians twice, once with Red Ruffing on the hilltop and a second time with Hank Borowy on the firing line. . .The Cubs and the Reds have played seven overtime games this year and the Cubs won five of them. . .The Dodgers gave a slight edge on the Cardinals in the remaining scheduled games, which see Brooklyn playing all but two on their home lot, while with the Cardinals it's a large majority of road games. . . With Alsab out big Whirlaway coasted in to win the Narragansett Handicap Saturday and boosted his earnings to $481,136. . .By this time next week it should be well over the half million mark . . . Laval Obtains Control Over French Labor

By E. D. BALL

Snubbed in his campaign to coax Frenchmen into Hitler's service, the collaborationist Laval has clamped the yoke of forced labor upon the people of France, in effect placing them at his beck and call for toil under their German conquerors.

This great forward step in Axis collaboration, in the name of Chief of State Marshal Petain, came Sunday after the provisional French capital bristled with guns manned by troops and police called up suddenly during the week-end for mysterious "manoeuvres."

Vichy officially had dismissed this martial prelude as mere practice, but it took on new significance after disclosure of the Government's startling action. Laval was playing with dynamite and knew it.

By decree, the Petain-Laval Government made all Frenchmen between 18 and 50 and all unmarried Frenchwomen between 21 and 35 answerable to compulsory labor service. Every Frenchman must show that he is engaged in work for "the best interests of the State."

This latter phrase had a familiar and ominous ring. Aging Marshal Petain signed the law, but the hand of Laval was behind it.

It is Laval who repeatedly has trumpeted that it would be to the "best interests" of France for the Axis to win the war.

Studied side by side, these identical phrases may mean that thousands of Frenchmen, who thus far have resisted the blandishments of their Chief of Government, soon will find themselves working for Hitler, willingly or not.

As Hitler's chief labor scout in France, Laval proudly announced last June 23 that he and Hitler had cooked up a plan whereby one French war prisoner would be released for each three skilled workers who agreed to go to work in Nazi industry.

To date there have been few takers. Only one trainload of prisoners has come home, a mere corporal's guard out of the more than 2,000,000 being held by the Germans.

Besides the three-for-one factor, which weighed heavily in Hilter's favor, there was another catch in this magnanimous proposal foisted upon the French people by Laval.

For each of these skilled workers who would go to Germany the three released Frenchmen would be farmers—not an industrial worker among them.

In other words Hitler would be getting rid of a lot of mouths to feed and France at the same time would be reduced to the status of a country of farmers.

"Hold That Woman"
(First Belleville Showing)

Maybe you don't know what a "skip-tracer" is. In that case you'll be much enlightened if you make it your business to be among those present when "Hold That Woman", the big laugh-drama, produced by Sigmund Neufeld, flashes on the screen of the Capitol theatre. Not to keep you in suspense, however, it may be as well to state that a skip-tracing gent is a bill-collector, employed by a firm selling goods on the installment plan. When a customer skips, without paying up, its the duty of the agency sleuth to run him or her to earth, and re-possess the merchandise.

In the picture James Dunn, the well known comedian, is the skip-tracer, one Jimmy Parker, with the feminine lead of Mary Mulvaney filled by Mr. Dunn's pretty and talented wife, known to the screen as Frances Gifford. This, by the way, is the first time that a skip-traced hero has graced the films, and this hunt after fugitives from the easy-payment plan has materialized under the skilled direction of Sherman Scott into an undeniable riot of fun and pungent thrills that promises to take rank as one of the year's outstanding entertainments.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Quiet Wedding"

Sparkling comedy and delicately-etched characterizations, the two expertly blended serve to lift "Quiet Wedding" starring Margaret Lockwood, which is now on the McCarthy Theatre screen, into the "Don't Miss" class. Based on the stage success of the same title, the picture presents a story of domestic confusion that will bring laughter for all types of audiences.

Miss Lockwood, who is perhaps best known for her sterling performance in "Night Train to Munich" and who turns in an equally outstanding portrayal in this comedy, is surrounded by a highly-talented cast.

Heading the supporting cast is Derek Farr, a screen newcomer, whose initial start indicates that he is destined to become a popular favorite.

Miss Lockwood is seen as the bride-to-be who wants a quiet nuptial ceremony, while the members of her screwy family insist that the affair go to the full route. Included among these are the fussy mother, the helpless father, the designing aunt, the psychoanalytic fiance, the vicar and the stodgy village police officer.

"Quiet Wedding" was directed by Anthony Asquith, who was also responsible for the guidance of the great comedy hit "Pygmalion".

"Frisco Lil"

A splendid second feature "Frisco Lil" featuring Irene Hervey, Kent Taylor, Jerome Cowan and Samuel S. Hinds and the McCarthy Universal News of the world, in addition to "Quiet Wedding" makes the entire program one which will find favor with all. Don't let your friends tell you what a swell show it is, make a date now to see it first—we know that you will be eager to also recommend it to others.

AT THE BELLE

"Beyond the Blue Horizon"

Returning to the screen once again in a jungle role, Dorothy Lamour, looking as bewitching as ever, arrived Saturday at the Belle Theatre, as the star of the new Paramount adventure romance in Technicolor, "Beyond the Blue Horizon."

The new film features a standout cast including Richard Denning, Jack Haley, Patricia Morison, Walter Abel, Helen Gilbert and Elizabeth Patterson. In many ways "Beyond the Blue Horizon" is superior to the five previous jungle films starred by Dotty Lamour. Sandwiched in between the many thrills are some hilarious scenes that had last Saturday night's audience roaring. Much of the fun was engendered by an amazingly intelligent chimpansee named Go-Go.

This time it is tall, blonde and handsome Richard Denning, who is Dotty's jungle sweetheart. He's got the body beautiful, acts very well, and leaps through the trees in the best tradition.

The story concerns sarong-clad Dotty Lamour, whose parents had been killed in the jungle by Mabok, a wild elephant, when she was a child. Later she is brought to the United States by Walter Abel to claim a fortune belonging to her. It becomes necessary for her to return to the wilds for certain lost papers when her claim is disputed. Also disputed is her claim that she has a tiger which swims. This challenge is presented by Denning, a jungle-reared boy himself.

He goes back to the jungle with Dotty, helps her find the papers, after some thrilling adventures, and then polishes off Mabok for keeps.

In addition to the thrills and comedy of this beautiful technicolor production, you'll enjoy Dotty's singing of the new song hit, "A Full Moon and an Empty Heart," done in the best sarong style.

The Belle Latest Events from Home and Abroad, "Vitamin Hay," a funny color cartoon, a Robert Benchley comedy, "How to Take a Vacation," and "Women are Warriors," a timely Canada Carries On feature precede the feature attraction.

CHAPTER 25

A Mistake?

Conversing over the telephone with Mary, Linda tried to keep her voice cool and indifferent, although her heart was pounding.

"Linda," Mary said gravely, "Phil and I would like to see you. May we come over?"

"I was planning on driving out to the farm," Linda said. "Why don't you two come along? There won't be many lovely days left. October is nearly with us."

"That's a marvelous idea. Perhaps we could have a picnic luncheon somewhere."

Linda fell in with the plan eagerly. It would be so good to forget all her problems for a while. Mary and her husband were cheerful company. She was gayer than she had been for days as they left Phil's car at the farmhouse and started out on horseback through the country.

Seated on a hilltop overlooking Hillsacres, Linda relaxed in the golden sunshine and munched the chicken sandwiches Mrs. Delaney had carefully prepared for the outing.

"Bless you, my children, for suggesting a picnic," she murmured. "It's the first one I've been on in months."

"We're simple people, Philip and I," Mary answered, leaning contentedly against her husband's broad shoulder. "By the way, my worthy spouse, don't you think it's time we let Linda in on our little secret."

"Then prepare yourself, Linda." Mary's eyes were suddenly starry. "The Ross clan, meaning us, is going to initiate a new member next summer, meaning an addition to the family. Congratulations are now in order."

"Mary—Phil! Not really!" Linda said in surprise.

"But yes, darling. Isn't is wonderful?"

"Oh you precious people" Linda was nearly in tears. "I'm so happy for you both. I—I never dreamed—I mean—"

"You mean you're surprised." Mary laughed. "Linda, we're both overjoyed, but I am afraid it will spoil Dad's plans for winter horseshows. After today I'm giving up riding."

"Your father can get another rider," Linda said severely, "but think how proud he'll be—a grandfather!"

"And you'll be Aunt Linda," Mary said blissfully.

Aunt Linda. The color fled from Linda's face. Her eyes were tragic, as she thought, "By next summer I'll be only a memory in the Baridon family. I'll never see them again, never know Mary's youngster or share the thrill of having a grandchild in the family."

They rode slowly, lazily, still discussing the coming event, but for Linda some of the pleasure was gone, and as they rounded the drive in the direction of the stables, Steve's cream-colored roadster flashed up the drive, stopped before the door, and Brenda Coleman stepped out.

The little party on horseback stared at her silently, and Mary whispered bitterly, "That girl. How dared Steve bring her here!"

Linda looked reproachfully at Steve. Why had he brought Brenda to their home, when only a few weeks before the other girl had called it a broken-down farm? Then Linda remembered. Soon she would be gone and Brenda would be the hostess. It was only natural that Steve should bring his future wife to view their country home.

With that thought in mind, Linda slipped from her horse and approached the blonde model.

"Welcome to Hillsacres, Brenda," she said sweetly. "Isn't this your first visit to the farm?"

"Brenda became quite an outdoor lover while she was in Nevada," Steve said, "and she asked me to bring her out to look us over."

"Outdoor lover—nothing!" Mary hissed, and Linda silenced her with a glance. As Steve escorted Brenda toward the stables, Linda's eyes followed him longingly. It was the first time they had come face to face in days. She had been taken back by the weariness in his face, the dejected sag of his broad shoulders.

"If she's an outdoor girl, then I'm a glamor gal," Mary muttered angrily as they walked up to the house. "Did you see how she was dressed."

In contrast to their well-fitting jodhpurs and shining leather boots, Brenda wore a softly draped frock of turquoise blue, and a wide blue hat. She might have been on her way to a fashionable garden party.

Once they were inside the living-room, Mary gave vent to her outraged feelings.

"How can Steve be taken in by that—that cheap little hussy! That—that—"

"Hey, take it easy," Philip admonished his sputtering wife. After all, you aren't supposed to know a thing about this."

"Oh, Linda—I do know, and I'm so terribly sorry." Mary caught Linda's hand sympathetically. "Philip and I have known for weeks that something was wrong. I can't seem to get next to Steve, though goodness knows I've tried!"

"You've talked to Steve?" Linda was astonished.

Mary nodded unhappily. "Both of us. He shuts up like a clam whenever we mention Brenda. Oh, if there were only something we could do to straighten things out. It doesn't seem fair that we should be so happy when—when all the time, you and Steve—"

Mary lapsed into embarrassed silence, and a pall seemed to drop over the little group.

"I can't help feeling it's an act," Phil said finally. "I've gotten to know Steve pretty well, and it isn't like him to fall for Brenda after the dirty trick she played on him."

"Did I hear my name mentioned?" Brenda was standing in the doorway, her lovely face a mask. If she had heard Philip's words, she gave no sign.

"I was just saying we've got to get back to town," Phil said quickly, and seeing Steve appear behind Brenda, he went on smoothly: "By the way, Steve, there's no use putting you out when we can take Brenda into town."

Brenda's eyes flashed angrily, and Linda was conscious of sudden panic. This was a move she had not anticipated. What would she say to Steve if they were left alone together for the first time since the breach in their relations. What could she say?"

"What a marvelous idea, darling." Mary waxed enthusiastic. Her eyes were mischievous." It's been so long since Brenda and I had a really cosy chat, and I'm dying to know about her trip west."

Linda watched unamused as the conniving couple bundled Brenda between them in the car, and, waving good-bye, she stole a glance at Steve's profile. It was set in grim lines, and Linda thought, unhappily, "He wanted to take Brenda back himself, so they could be together."

The car was started. Mary called a final farewell, a satisfied smile on her face, and then they were gone.

"As if that could solve the whole mess," Linda told herself wearily, "instead of prolonging the renunciation scene once more."

With hardly a glance in her direction, Steve turned stiffly and entered the library. Linda stared after him with a heavy heart. "What's the use," she told herself bitterly, "in dragging things out any longer?" Why not get it over now, once and for all!"

Abruptly she turned and followed Steve, standing resolutely before him as he sat at the desk—the desk where they had labored so long and hard together.

"Steve?"

"Yes?" He lifted his dark, tousled head to survey her with narrowed blue eyes, eyes devoid of any humor and affection.

"There's something I must say to you—now." She was praying for strength to say the dreaded words.

"Shoot." He grinned suddenly, and the unexpected smile disturbed Linda. If only he wouldn't look so handsome, she thought wildly. So expectant.

Then, seeing her face, quick concern flashed over Steve's features. "Is something wrong?"

"Everything is wrong," she cried impulsively. "It's been wrong from the beginning, Steve. We made a mistake. A bad mistake."

"You're referring to our marriage, I presume?"

"Yes. Of course. The time for evading issues is past. There's too much at stake."

"I thought we'd done very well, Linda."

"Oh, you've been wonderful to me." She spread her hands in a gesture of helplessness, "But why prolong it when you—when we're both miserably unhappy?"

Hurt and angry, Steve said:

"I—guess you're right, Linda. Would you like a divorce?"

She caught her breath swiftly. "Yes."

Steve glanced at the small desk calendar. "Aren't we rushing things a little? We've still nearly two months left, according to our agreement."

"I'm perfectly willing to comply with our agreement," Linda answered, "but I wanted you to know I—I—" She turned her face away, striving to keep back tears.

"What will you do then?" he persisted. His eyes were tortured, but Linda was unaware of his misery.

"I—I'm going back home for awhile."

"And then—Greg?" he demanded grimly.

Linda hesitated. "Yes," she lied.

Steve rose wearily. "I'll start arrangements the first thing tomorrow. Naturally it will take several weeks to get things in order."

"I don't understand." Linda was puzzled. "Now that we have reached an understanding, couldn't I simply file suit when the two months are over?"

"I was referring to a settlement," he answered stiffly.

"But I don't want a settlement!" Linda cried desperately. "I don't want anything, except to be—to be free once more to go where I choose and do as I please!"

"We were partners in this venture," Steve said doggedly. "Naturally half of what I possess belongs to you. In the meantime, I suppose you'd prefer to stay in the apartment near—" he hesitated "—your friends?"

Linda nodded, her head was whirling. She had not expected Steve to be so stubborn about divorce arrangements, and yet she could not talk to him any longer without bursting into tears that would betray her real emotions. Impulsively she turned and ran out of the room.

Hunter's Bullet Shatters Window

Montreal, Sept. 12—(CP)—Msgr. Ilderbrando Antoniutti, Apostolic Delegate, pausing here today on his way from Saint John, N. B., to Ottawa, said that three weeks ago a hunter's stray bullet shattered his car window without injuring "even slightly" either his chauffeur or himself.

"The whole thing was only an accident," he said "liable to occur any day during the hunting season. A stray bullet from a .32 calibre hunter's gun shattered a window of the car in which I was going from Montreal to Ottawa about 3 weeks ago. Neither my chauffeur nor myself were even slightly injured."

Patrol Ship, 4 Merchant Ships Sunk

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—The British Consulate reported today a "most gratifying" response to a statement issued several weeks ago by the British government urging certain types of British men and women in the United States to return to Britain for war work.

A consulate spokesman said it was certain "we will be shipping a steady stream of British men and women back to England shortly. British consulates throughout the country are handling applications for the returns.

The navy statement said the Raccoon "had been presumed lost through enemy action while guarding a convoy of merchant ships, and that it must be presumed that all hands were lost with her."

"He also announced that there has been an increase in the tempo enemy activity on Canada's side of the Atlantic.

"He regretted to have to report that four merchant ships had been lost by enemy action, with ten of their officers and crew. The remainder of their personnel were rescued.

"'For security reasons, the Navy Minister refrained from giving details of where and when H.M.C.S. Raccoon was lost.

Obituary

WILLIAM THOS. MULLETT
(Huntingdon Township)

Following a brief illness William Thomas Mullett, one of Huntingdon Township's oldest and most highly respected residents passed away at his home at Moira on Saturday, September 12th. He was in his 88th. year.

The late Mr. Mullett was born in Huntingdon Township, the son of the late Arthur Mullett and Florence Elizabeth Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Williams of Bloomfield. While still a young man he left the homestead at Moira and for several years was engaged as a cheesemaker in Prince Edward County, following which he worked for a wholesale hardware company in London, Ontario.

After two years in London, Mr. Mullett took up residence in Toronto, where he opened a retail hardware business. Failing health, however, forced him to dispose of his business and he returned to the old homestead in Huntingdon township, where he was engaged in farming.

The deceased was very highly regarded in the Moira community for his many admirable qualities and his death will be a source of regret for his many friends and acquaintances. A member of the Presbyterian Church at Roslin, Mr. Mullett was a Liberal in politics but never took any active part in municipal affairs. His wife pre-deceased him on July 20th. of this year.

Surviving him are one son, Arthur P. Mullett, at home, and three grandchildren, Jarvis Clare and Doris, at home, and Fleda, of Windsor, Ont.

Funeral services will be held at Roslin Presbyterian Church at 11 a.m. Tuesday with interment at Moira Cemetery.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 14 (CP)—Gold stocks registered a drop and other stocks held about even with Saturday's close today.

Lake Shore, Teck Hughes, Leitch, Preston and Macassa were among the soft spots in the golds. In base metals Noranda and Steep Rock showed minor gains.

Gains of a point appeared in industrials for Canada Clanese and Western Grocers and fractions were added by Brazilian, Dominion Bridge and Massey-Harris. Ford A was off 3-8 to 18 1-8.

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 14—(AP)—Rails took a mild turn on the recovery side of today's stock market but many leaders remained notably apathetic.

Among stocks International Telephone was a lively performer, edging into new high ground since 1941. U. S. Distributing preferred jumped to a new top.

Attracting intermittent support were Santa Fe, Great Northern, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Western Union, Anaconda, Pittsburgh Coal and Eastman Kodak. Falterers were Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, Du Pont and Texas Co.

Livestock

Toronto, Sept. 14 (CP)—Prices were steady on cattle sales on the livestock market up to mid-session today. The supply was mostly stockers and plain butcher cattle. Veal calves, lambs and sheep were steady. No price was established for hogs.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 3,500, calves 1,030, hogs 969, sheep and lambs 1,700.

ADJUST MAXIMUM PRICES ON CANNED FRUIT, VEGETABLES

More Uniform Ceiling Expected to Result From Revised Order by W.P.T.B.

ADEQUATE SUPPLY

Ottawa, Sept. 14 (CP)—A more uniform ceiling on canned goods in Canada is expected to result from a revised order on canned fruits and vegetables, announced today by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Earlier price regulations had resulted in widely-varied prices as between different districts in the Dominion, and canners' maximum prices had been established on the basis of 1940 costs. The new order will overcome difficulties experienced by distributors of the 1942 pack who were "squeezed" by the prices fixed for canners, the board announcement said.

Also, through the former order, an artificial scarcity developed, the board statement said. The new regulation would ensure an adequate supply.

Canned tomatoes, tomato juice, peas, corn, green and waxed beans, peaches, Bartlett and Kieffer pears, plums and apricots, which together make up more than 80 per cent of the trade, have been subject until now to individual retail ceilings established in the basic period, while canners' prices were governed by specific maximum rates, fixed in a board order effective last July 1.

Margin Too Narrow

As many wholesale and retail prices at that time were based on 1940 costs, a subsidy was provided to take care of the time lag, and to maintain the retail price ceiling. It was expected that normal trading would adjust any differences which the flat regional prices and the subsidy did not take care of, but the margin to distributors proved so narrow that some lines could not be handled.

Wholesalers' and retailers' prices now are to be determined by their laid-down costs plus a percentage markup, which in the case of wholesalers is not to exceed 10 per cent of their selling price. This formula applies to canned fruits and vegetables in general and not merely the major lines already mentioned.

23 Varieties in "C" Lines Already Included

The schedule "C" lines of the former order, 23 varieties of canned fruits and vegetables, including strawberries, raspberries, cherries, fruits for salad, tomato catsup and puree, spinach, lima beans and asparagus tips, are already subject to the percentage markup plan by the previous order.

Retailers' markup was then limited to 25 per cent of their selling price, and that percentage still applies to schedule "C", but the new order places a limit of 20 per cent of selling price as the markup on the major products — tomatoes, peas, corn and so on.

The former order permitted wholesalers to increase prices after Dec. 1, 1942, by a consecutive monthly amount of one-half cents a dozen until next year's pack of such products is available for distribution. Under the amending order this permission to increase prices is restricted to schedule "C" items. Any such monthly price increase by wholesalers may be included by retailers in their laid-down cost for purposes of computing markup.

Maximum Levels Set

The statement said "The new order recognizes the prices in the former order as the Canners' legal ceiling and allows the wholesale and retail trade to take their normal markup as established in the basic period, but with a maximum in the case of the wholesaler of ten per cent and for the retailer of 20 per cent of their selling price.

'In effect, the wholesalers' maximum price will be 111 per cent of his landed cost and the retailer's maximum price will be approximately 139 1-2 per cent of the canner's maximum price as named in the former order plus sales tax and transportation. Actually, many wholesalers and retailers will sell at less than these rates, as they are still tied to their basic period markup".

Government reports this week the Board said, indicate a larger available supply of the major fruits and vegetables used for canning than were consumed in Canada last season. This will help offset the curtailment of certain fruits and fruit juices formerly imported, and of tin containers for certain domestic products formerly put up in metal.

The prospect is that supplies of the tinned fruits and vegetables essential to Canadian consumers will be adequate, and under provisions of the current order they will be enabled to move to retail outlets under an adjustment of price ceilings—upward or downward in different zones.

FEDERAL STUDY OF LIQUOR ISSUE IS UNDER WAY

6 Members of Cabinet Canvass Situation With View to Reducing Annual Liquor Bill

COUNCIL'S RESOLUTION

Ottawa, Sept. 14 (CP)—A committee of six members of the Federal Cabinet has been formed to study the liquor question in Canada with a view to reducing the annual liquor bill—estimated at $250,000,000 for the present year—it was learned today.

The committee is headed by War Services Minister Thorson and its other members are Resources Minister Crerar, Revenue Minister Gibson, Finance Minister Ilsley, Postmaster-General Mulock and Fisheries Minister Michaud.

The committee has already held some meetings and "is thoroughly canvassing the entire situation," Mr. Thorson said today.

The committee has the same personnel as one which studied the liquor question about a year ago. At that time it dealt with representations made by the Canadian Temperance Federation, asking that beverage rooms be closed, and sales of alcoholic liquor restricted to government liquor stores.

On Jan. 31, Mr. Thorson, as Chairman of the committee told the Federation that as their requests had to do with the regulation of the sale of liquor the matter was a provincial matter and therefore should be handled by the provinces, as no national situation existed beyond the power of the provinces to deal with.

General Council's Resolution

Mr. Thorson said the resolution presented last Saturday to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Mr. Crerar and himself from the General Council of the United Church was of a different nature. It asked that the quantity of alcoholic beverages produced in Canada should be drastically curtailed by limiting the amount of material which might be used by the distilleries, breweries and wineries.

The resolution further asked that the amount of alcoholic beverages released from bond should be reduced to two-thirds or one-half of the present rate in somewhat the same way as tea and coffee are rationed and, further, that the alcoholic content of beer, wine and spirits should be reduced, that liquor advertising and shipments of alcoholic beverages overseas should be stopped, and that a Federal-Provincial conference be held to carry on an educational campaign for temperance.

It was the opinion of the government, Mr. Thorson said, that these were requests which could be considered by the Dominion as likely to come within Federal jurisdiction.

It was learned that the Prime Minister plans at some future date to make a broadcast appeal for temperance.

FRACTURES REDUCED AT THE HOSPITAL

James Hanley, Read farmer, sustained painful injuries on Saturday when his feet became caught in the straw blower of a threshing machine. He was taken to Belleville General Hospital where it was found that he had suffered broken bones of both legs. The fractures were reduced by Dr. George H. Stoble and today Mr. Hanley is doing as well as can be expected.

Prime Minister King Assures General Council Delegation Action on Liquor Restriction

Assurance that the Dominion Government will take some definite action in the near future regarding the curtailment of the liquor traffic was given a delegation of the General Council of the United Church on Saturday by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The delegation was received by the Prime Minister at eleven o'clock Saturday morning in Ottawa after being authorized by the General Council to present to the government liquor curtailment resolutions presented to and adopted by Council by the Rev B. R. Mutchmor, chairman of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service on Thursday.

This statement was embodied in the report of the delegation presented to the Council this morning by the Rev. John Coburn, Toronto, assistant secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service.

The Government has a committee of the Cabinet now at work exploring possible ways in which effective action could be taken, Mr. King told the delegation.

He thanked the delegation for what he described to be a clear and convincing presentation. He accepted 100 per cent, he said and that every fact cited and argument used would be used by himself in discussing the issue.

Government Realizes Situation

Mr. King declared that the government fully realized the seriousness and urgency of the situation, and that prolonged negotiations with the provinces regarding certain financial arrangements had made action on this matter a difficult one on the part of the Dominion Government.

He announced his intention at an early date of making an appeal to the people of Canada on behalf of temperance by means of a national broadcast.

Dr. Coburn stated that he asked the Prime Minister "Do we understand that we are at liberty to say to the General Council of the United Church that the Government of Canada expects in the near future to take definite action restricting liquor consumption?"

"You may", replied the Prime Minister. "Before long I expect the Government will have a public statement on the matter to make".

Not Trying to Embarrass Gov't.

In his report to Council stated that he told the Prime Minister that the delegation was not trying to embarrass the government.

"Nor" he added, are we trying to exploit, as some people claim we are, the war situation to put over a temperance program which could not be put over in any other way."

As head of the delegation he told the Prime Minister that the reply of the government to similar requests in 1940 and 1941 was wholly inadequate and unsatisfactory.

He cited the enormous amount of money that was needed for war purposes. "Canada's liquor bill in 1942 is expected to be 290 millions of dollars."

Among the points mentioned in the delegations presentation was the waste of material in the manufacture of liquor which could be used for war purposes; the waste of labor in making and distribution; wastage of electrical energy and of transportation facilities.

Pointed Out

The lowering of efficiency in the armed forces and industry through the narcotic influence of alcohol, and the lowering of the national morale through debauchery of civilians and enlisted persons was pointed out by the delegation.

"If this does not constitute a national emergency, will the Prime Minister please indicate what does," Mr. Coburn said to Mr. King.

The delegation urged the government to severely restrict the liquor traffic by drastic limitation of materials used by breweries, distilleries, etc. It asked that beverage alcohol be reduced one-half or two-thirds the same as tea and coffee rationing and that alcoholic contents of beer, wine and spirits be dractically reduced.

It requested the banning of liquor advertising and that a Federal campaign of education to arrange for civilians and enlisted persons in all parts of Canada.

Express Various Angles

During the interview with the Prime Minister, several members of the delegation expressed various angles of the liquor question.

The Rev. Andrew Roddan, Vancouver stressed the effect of drink in the lowering or morale both in Canada and overseas through family disintegration. Reference to the government's recognition of the dangers from indiscreet speech imperilling both men and ships, was made by the Rev. H. S. Strothard, Lunenburg, who pointed out that nothing so disposed people to talk foolishly as did liquor.

Startling facts regarding conditions in his own constituency was given the Prime Minister by Mr. S. J. A. Branoni, K. C. police magistrate of Prince Albert, Sask., who also urged the banning of all liquor advertising for the duration.

Mr. C. W. S. Taylor, president of the Laymen's Association, Toronto represented the laymen of the church and gave some pertinent facts as regards enormous profits made by breweries and distilleries as evidenced by their published reports.

In his remarks, Dr. Coburn told the government that "No Nation engaged in a traffic of such magnitude can be engaged in an all-out war effort.

Adopt Report

Dr. Hugh Dobson, Vancouver, following the unanimous adoption of the report moved:—

That the General Council express its appreciation of the courteous action of the Prime Minister of Canada in arranging this interview on such short notice, especially in view of the great demands on his time and strength. The Council has learned with satisfaction that it is the intention of the Government of Canada to take definite action on this important matter and assures the Prime Minister and his colleagues that thorough going and effective action of that kind will receive the warm support of the members of this Council and of the great body of members and adherents of the Church whom it repesents.

The Council appreciates the effective manner in which the delegation interpreted its mind to the Prime Minister and his colleagues.

The Council instructs the Board of Evangelism and Social Service forthwith to send a copy of this report to each pastor in the United Church in Canada with the request that it be read in each congregation.

THE WAR TODAY

By De Witt MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Disclosure that the Nazis have developed new planes, including a sub-stratosphere bomber capable of operating from a height of 40,000 feet, lends substance to Berlin's threat last week that Germany is preparing to launch a new air offensive over Britain.

There's no reason to doubt that this threat accurately describes one of the Fuehrer's objectives and that he is getting set for the assault. To my mind, however, that doesn't tell the whole story, for the indications are that we also may expect a terrific dog-fight for supremacy of the air over Western Europe.

The steadily increasing British strength has put the Nazi chief on the spot — and a nasty one it is. The Allies already hold superiority (though not "supremacy") in the air, and he must answer this challenge to domination — for two reasons:

1. His vital industrial centres are being devastated systematically by bombing on a big scale. Moreover, his rail transport is being cut to pieces. That's a bad combination—loss of essential manufactures, and lack of transportation facilities for the supplies still available.

2. If Hitler is to protect himself against a land invasion of Western Europe, he must control the air, just as the Allies must control it if they are to put an expeditionary army ashore. He certainly doesn't dominate it now.

For long weeks now Hitler has stood by in apparent meekness and seen his resources diminish in the deluge of Allied bombs; he has seen some of his proudest cities all but wiped out. Only last night a strong forces of British bombers was over the great Port of Bremen again, while Russian planes were strafing eastern Germany. But his meekness has been seeming and not real, for there's nothing meek about this man who would be emperor of all mankind.

The cold fact is that Hitler has had to use virtually every available warplane in his efforts to subdue the volcanic Reds. A high Allied source recently told me of a certainty that the Nazis are short of planes, short of gasoline and oil, and very short of pilots, additional proof of this is seen in the fact that Field Marshal Rommel wasn't able to get the air support he needed for his new drive against Egypt, although that operation is an essential part of the Nazi pincers movement against the middle east.

However, approaching winter will see a slackening of the fighting in the Caucasus, and Hitler will be able to release planes for operations elsewhere. He also will have recently manufactured machines ready for action. Besides the sub-stratosphere bomber, these include a four-motored Heinkel 177 which carries eight tons of bombs—the equal of Britain's biggest planes. Then there is the Focke-wulf 190, which is a fast, bomb-carrying fighter.

Argylls Carry Out Field Manoeuvres

Stressing the importance of soldiers using every bit of available natural cover during attack movements, the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) reserve unit under the command of Lieut.-Col. A. B. Gribble demonstrated various phases of sham battle in a field scheme held on the western outskirts of the city Sunday afternoon.

The members of the unit made a complete day of it; they were out all day and made their lunch in the field, simulating the conditions of active field duty as much as possible. Armed with rifles, the attacking force "captured" machine gun nests which were barring their advance. They also put into practice the instructive and useful part of Reserve Army work. Lieut.-Col. Gribble referred the exercises.

Names of Belleville Men Going Overseas Wanted For Kinsmen Fag Fund

With Canadians going overseas to the combat scene of battle with regularity no doubt Belleville boys are being included in the increased numbers of Canada's overseas fighting forces. It is the names of these Belleville boys, who have been transferred overseas of a recent date, that the Kinsmen Fag Fund wish to have included on the "cigarettes for Belleville boys overseas fund," Chairman Matt Currie urged today. Such names should be provided to Mr. Currie at the Bank of Montreal or to any member of the Belleville Kinsmen Club.

Reply letters from overseas urging the Kinsmen Club to continue its great work in supplying our native sons with smokes continue to pour across the expanse of the Atlantic, each and every one adding words of appreciation for Canadian "smokes" already received. Those shipped packages of 300 fags each this week included:—

R. W. Armitage, J. Bly, A. C. Broad, E. J. Clarke, J H. Clarke, R. W. Clarke, R. Cook, C. R. Crosby, W. F. Diminie, Jack Dracup, J F. Finkle, G. D. Fraser, Douglas S. Glapin, R. J. Gilmour, A. G. In Again-Out Again

Bars do not a prison make—at least insofar as a teen-aged Belleville youth is concerned.

On Thursday city police authorities apprehended a local youth, who had escaped from the Bowmanville Boys Training School. On Friday morning the boy was given into the custody of a training school official and returned to Bowmanville. Imagine the surprise of the local constabulary, when they saw the identical same lad walking across the market square Friday night.

Yes, the police took him in for questioning and he admitted he had escaped again.

"You go home and remain with your parents until Saturday and report to me," cautioned Acting Chief Harman.

The lad reported to Acting Chief Harman Saturday morning and was then placed on probation until such time as the Bowmanville authorities desire him—if and when.

C. P. Correspondent Rests After Tour

Somewhere in Quebec, Sept. 12—(CP) — Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, "holed up" here today for his first rest in almost a month. Last night at Hamilton he ended a two-week series of addresses on what he saw at Dieppe.

Since he landed at Dieppe Aug. 19 with Canadian troops, Munro has been on the move. After "cleaning up" his eye-witness copy, Munro went back to his "Somewhere in England" beat to interview Canadians who had returned from the operation. Then he flew the Atlantic, reaching New York Aug. 29.

His speaking tour in Canada took him to home towns of the units that assaulted Dieppe — Windsor, Ont., Toronto, Montreal, Weyburn, Sask., Calgary, Winnipeg and Hamilton.

Now he's just "somewhere in Quebec" to rest before returning to Britain and his assignment with the Canadian troops.

Canadians Graduate From Paratroop School

Ottawa, Sept. 12 —(CP)— A Canadian group of six officers and 20 enlisted men graduated Friday after a rigorous four-week's course at Fort Benning, Ga., Paratroop School, and according to word received in official circles here, their instructors said the Canadians "had done exceptionally well."

Their course was climaxed Friday morning when the men bailed out of a large transport plane to make their fifth and qualifying jump which won them their silver wings. The wings were presented by Brig.-Gen. George P. Howell, commandant of the paratroop school.

Friday's jump followed a series of jumps, one each day during the past week, made by the Canadians and the United States forces also training at the school. Reports here said the instructors were particularly impressed with the showing the Canadian troops made.

Trenton Man Suffers Fracture of Legs

William Stevenson, Ontario St., Trenton, sustained multiple fractures of both legs as the result of being struck by a motor car on Highway No 33 north of Trenton late Friday night. Stevenson was rushed to the Belleville Hospital where the fractures were reduced on Saturday.

The injured man was standing behind a motor car assisting in the repairing of a damaged tire, when he was struck from behind by a motor car driven by Gerald Wickens, Glen Miller. Wickens informed Traffic Officer J. H. Hatch, who investigated that his vision had been obscured by a second parked motor car left behind the vehicle where Stevenson was repairing the tire.

NAZIS POUR TANK

and supported the infantry in restoring the Soviet position, the Soviet Information Bureau said.

West of the city, too, the Russians were held on the defensive by masses of troops and tank forces. In the one phase of this fighting described by the communique seven German tanks were disabled by artillery and anti-tank fire while 13 others turned and fled.

The Red Army was fighting hand-to-hand over a broad area west and southwest of Stalingrad, Pravda said in a front dispatch.

German air units which went up to bomb the Russians were forced to turn back without carrying out their mission when it became obvious that bombing of the massive close-quarter struggle below would destroy Germans as well as Russians, it was reported.

Pravda said the present battles were as bloody as any so far experienced.

Trying to Ease Position

A bitter fight apparently has developed in the Sinyavino area east of Leningrad where the Russians seem to be trying to ease the position of Leningrad in preparation for the second winter of Siege.

(Sinyavino does not appear in available maps but apparently is on the railroad east of Leningrad. From Russian dispatches it appeared that the Russians were attempting to drive the Germans from a 12-mile stretch of the line.)

The High Command announced that Soviet forces had "smashed strong enemy defences and occupied a populated place" in this region, killing about 1,000 enemy troops. The Germans smashed back in a counter-attack, but were repulsed and suffered further losses, the communique said.

Fighting at Voronezh

At Voronezh, on the Don river some 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, the Germans yesterday launched an offensive with one infantry division supported by 100 tanks but in the severe fight which developed on the western bank of the river, 2,000 German officers and men were killed or wounded, the Soviet information bureau said.

In the Mozdok region of the Caucasus, where the Germans are trying to drive eastward to the Grozny oil fields, the Russians said a battalion of German infantry had been destroyed and the news agency Tass said German forces were "withdrawing northward."

In the Leningrad area Russian forces were moving aggressively to tighten their hold on the city and heavy fighting was reported on the Volkhov front near Sinyavino. There the Russians apparently were attempting to snatch a stretch of railway line held by the Germans and dispatches said several Germans-fortified points had been taken.

In the Central Caucasus, the Russians said their forces in the Mozdok sector had halted the German drive toward the Grozny oil fields but that the Nazis were bringing up strong reinforcements and that a new assault was expected momentarily.

Field dispatches said Soviet marines had been brought into action on this Inland front and had played a big part in stopping the enemy.

News was lacking on action along the Black Sea coast south of fallen Novorossisk where the Germans were believed feeling out Russian strength in preparation for a thrust down the coastal road leading to the oil Port of Batum.

At the northern end of the front the Red army offensive continued in the Volkhov sector toward the rail town of Sinyavino. This fighting was taking place in heavily-fortified zones where the Nazis have been entrenched for almost a year.

FORCED LABOR

Dictated by Necessities

A semi-official statement said the measure was dictated by "hard necessities, both national and international," and that labor would be called upon to make many sacrifices, but it recalled that "even more serious measures have been taken in other countries of very recent date."

"The present law," it said, "will permit us to prevent their being extended to us."

(This may have been a reference to the action taken by the Germans last week in instituting conscription of manpower in the conquered Duchy of Luxembourg.)

There is no limitation on where persons drafted for labor under the law may be sent, although full details on how it would be applied were not published at once. Still uncertain was the question of how foreigners resident in France would be affected.

Infractions of the law are punishable by prison sentences ranging up to five years and by fines up to 30,000 gold francs. These penalties may be doubled in the case of second offenders.

The law contains a clause declaring that "every head of an enterprise will be obliged to conform to instructions which he may receive from competent secretaries of state, notably for constituting crews of workmen."

Employers are forbidden to hire any workers except those provided by the government labor service, and are enjoined from discharging any employees without government authorization.

Promulgation of the decree follows a government campaign to recruit skilled workmen to be sent to Germany in exchange for the release of French war prisoners in a ratio of three workers for one prisoner.

Only One Trainload

Thus far, however, only one trainload of "relieved" prisoners has arrived in France.

The absence of the prisoners—estimated at more than 1,250,000—has confronted France with a shortage of labor, particularly in agriculture. To obtain their release in the three-to-one ratio, France would have to send to Germany between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 skilled workers—or more than half her total supply.

Apparently the government is hoping to achieve better results by adopting a rotating system whereby crews of trained workers will be sent to Germany for a specified period of time, after which they will be relieved by other crews from the same factory or industry.

Fighting French sources in London said the new Vichy decree appeared to be a camouflaged move under which workers could be sent "collectively" to Germany to work in Nazi war industries.

These quarters said Pierre Laval, collaborationist chief of government at Vichy, had been obliged to institute a system of forced labor by the "ghastly failure" of his efforts to provide Germany with 300,000 workers on a voluntary basis.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to eat breakfast with pop, and he said, Well, what goes on here?

Meaning ma standing in front of the window breething deep breaths in and out and raising her arms up and down instead of sitting down and eating her grapefruit diet, and she said, It's a little suggestion I'm taking from the health talk that Dr. Emery Pratt gave on yesterday's air. His whole idea was so refreshing that I determined to give it an unpredjudiced trial. Dr. Pratt insists that Nature is the background for all cures, including the illusive cure for overweight. In other words, instead of rigorous dieting without exercize, why not turn the tables and exercize moderately without excessive dieting? ma said.

By gollies he was really giving out with something there, pop said. All you have to do is help Nature a little bit and the good old girl will repay you a hundred fold and be glad of the chance. The ancient hermits who lived on nothing but roots and sunshine knew a thing or two he said, and ma said, Exactly, William, that was Dr. Emery Pratt's entire point. These simple breething and bending exercizes before and after moderate meals are simply to help Nature to help you, she said.

The man ought to be awarded some kind of a medal of the air for not trying to sell you a thing, pop said, and ma said, Isn't it wonderful? His only ulterior hint was a suggestion to buy a bottle of Slimmerine, which after all is only a natural product intended solely as a further help in helping Nature to help you. I telephoned our drugstore and they're going to get some for me, she said.

And she touched the floor with her fingers without bending her knees much, and pop unfolded his paper and got in back of the headlines.

Three airoplanes flew over while us fellows were talking and arguing, and Skinny Martin said, This world is going to be an entirely different place when this war is over, I heard my father talking about it and anyways it's been in the papers.

Well how, how's it going to be different? Sid Hunt said, and Skinny sad, Everything is going to be changed and made better, that's how.

Well good night I can think of a lot of good ways to change certain things while they're on the subject? I said. Making us go to bed before we're sleepy for instance for example, just because the clock strikes a certain time, I said, and Puds Simkins said, Sure, if they had to go to bed just because some clock says so instead of waiting till Nature says so, I bet they'd be the first ones to complain.

Yeah, and how about table manners? Skinny Martin said. Why cant we act like our own age at mealtime instead of having to spoil a good hungry appetite by wondering every second whether any of our elbows is on the table or if we're holding our fork too much like a club and a lot of stuff? G wizzickers we've got our whole life left to be uncomfortable in, he said, and Lucky Leroy Shooster said, Sure, what's a hurry? And where will free speech come in? Free speech is suppose to be one of the main things, but how is it possible as long as a guy cant argue 5 words without being accused of sassing? he said.

And how about dogs? Sid Hunt said. If the world is going to be run for the equal good of everybody, a fellow ought to always be allowed to have his dog in the house, and he ought to be allowed to have him in bed with him too, instead of having to treat him as if he was some stranger, he said.

Which just then some more of the fellows came up and we went around to the firehouse to see if Mr. Riley the hooken ladder driver felt like talking.

2,547 Missing In Operation, Says Defence Dep't

170 Known Dead And 633 Wounded Names of Missing Now Made Public

MINISTER'S SYMPATHY

Ottawa, Sept. 15 (CP)—Canadian casualties at the battle of Dieppe aggregate 3,350 dead, wounded and missing, the Department of National Defence announced today.

The announcement was made along with a list of the men officially reported missing whose names have been held up from publication until now for security reasons, and with a statement from Defence Minister Ralston expressing sympathy to the relatives of the men who were killed, wounded or taken prisoner.

Along with casualties previously reported, today's list brings the total number of known dead to 170, including 40 officers, the wounded to 633, including 41 officers, and the missing to 2,547 including 130 officers.

"Canada's total casualties in the Dieppe attack aggregate 3,350 dead, wounded and missing," said Defence Minister Ralston's statement.

Minister's Sympathy

"In releasing these figures and the long list of those described as missing, I wish again to express the sympathy which all Canadians will feel with those who must endure sorrow and anxiety, and the deep pride which belongs to our country in the courage, the fighting gallantry and the proof of victory to come which Canada achieved at Dieppe."

The list issued today is a complete list of the missing at the Dieppe operation when Canadian soldiers, previously trained in combined operations, stormed ashore on the coast of France and battled Nazi defenders for nine hours, withdrawing after achieving heavy destruction, taking prisoners and obtaining information.

It includes the names of some 120 men previously officially reported missing in casualty lists, within a few days after the operation and before the department decided to withhold all further reports of missing men until after a period which would give them time to escape capture by the enemy if they were still free and on French soil.

More Costly Than Hong Kong

Dieppe thus goes down in history as the most costly Canadian military operation of the second Great War, even more costly than the defence of Hong Kong, where a force of some 1,900 men was lost. All the Hong Kong men have not yet appeared in official casualty lists as precise information on those who were killed and those taken prisoner has not been available.

The number of men officially reported killed and missing by the army since the start of the war now stands at 3,511 but does not include the Hong Kong fighters.

Chinese Forces Recapture Wuyi

Chungking, Sept. 15 (AP) Chinese forces recaptured Wuyi, about 20 miles southeast of Kinhwa in Chekiang Province, yesterday, a Chinese army spokesman said today.

The Chinese had forced the Japanese out of the city Aug. 31 in their sweep north from Southern Chekiang Province, but lost it the next day, the spokesman said. Wuyi is about 30 miles north of Lishui, an important air base recently wrested from the Japanese.

At Lanchi, about 35 miles northwest of Wuyi, the Chinese spokesman said large fires are raging and it is unlikely the Japanese there can hold out much longer against the strong Chinese pressure. He estimated about 4,000 Japanese troops are holding the city.

World Series Opens Sept. 30

Chicago, Sept. 15 —(AP)— The world's series will open in either St. Louis or Brooklyn on Wednesday, Sept. 30, three days after the close of the regular baseball season. This was decided today at a meeting presided over by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball.

If St. Louis Cardinals win the National League championship, the first two games will be played in St. Louis Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, with Oct. 2 left for travel. The next three games will be played in the Yankee Stadium Oct. 3, 4, and 5, with Oct. 6 left open for travel to St. Louis for the remaining games, if necessary, Oct. 7 and 9. The teams would be idle Oct. 8 so the St. Louis club can manage its ticket sale.

If Brooklyn Dodgers triumph, the first two games will be played in Brooklyn and the next three in the Yankee Stadium Oct. 3, 4, and 5, with the teams returning to Brooklyn without interruption in the schedule for a game Oct. 5. The next day will be left open so tickets can be sold for the game of Oct. 7, if necessary.

All games will start at 1:35 p.m., with the exception of Sunday games in New York and Brooklyn, which would start at 2:05 p.m.

ADMIRAL J. H. TOWERS NAMED TO COMMAND AIR FORCE PACIFIC FLEET

Washington, Sept. 15 — (AP) — Rear-Admiral John H. Towers, Chief of the United States Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, has been appointed to the newly-created post of "Commander Air Force, Pacific Fleet," Secretary Frank Knox announced today, in a move giving new recognition to the navy's air arm.

Towers, 57, will become a Vice-Admiral in his new position and will be replaced as Chief of Aeronautics by Rear-Admiral John S. McCain, 58, who now has an air command in the Pacific.

American Forces Hold Balance Of Striking Power Over Japs in W. Pacific

Washington, Sept. 15 (AP) — Rear-Admiral W. H. Blandy, just back from a 26,000-mile inspection trip, said today that United States forces presently hold the balance of striking power in the Western Pacific.

Rear Admiral Blandy, navy ordnance chief, who talked with reporters at Navy Secretary Frank Knox's press conference, said he is not "bold enough" to make any forecasts of the future Pacific situation but that "for the time being, most certainly," the United States hold the balance of military and naval striking power there over Japan.

He had been asked "are we in position to hold the Japs against anything they might throw?"

"Yes," he replied, "I think we are. But we can't do it by merely holding. We've got to keep pushing. The best defence is a strong offence. We can't remain static."

PLACE CAPTURED IN 3-DAY FIGHT, KILL 4,000 NAZIS

Germans Plot Terrain In Squares for Stukas So Way Can Be Cleared For Tanks

TERRIFIC SLAUGHTER

(By HENRY C. CASSIDY)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

MOSCOW, Sept. 15 — (AP) — Backs to the Volga, the defenders of Stalingrad stood to their guns today under the heaviest of pattern bombing and still held hills looking down upon the heart of the city against the redoubled assault of Nazi troops and tanks.

"It is impossible to retreat any farther," a Russian correspondent reported from the war's bloodiest battlefield.

But even while the bomb-splattered city fought for its life, the Red Army kept up its own dogged punching at the German defensive lines on the Moscow front to the north, and announced the annihilation of about 4,000 Germans and capture of a fortified town in a three-day fight.

Russian planes and Russian tanks still played their part in the fight to save Stalingrad — badly outnumbered though they are. And the Russians reported that although their lines sagged again and again under terrific onslaught, the German gains now are being held to a costly 300 to 400 yards for a whole day's fighting.

Whole blocks of the city smouldered in bomb-strewn ruins. But the smoke of war factories rose with the smoke of devastation as workers toiled within sound of the firing from the battleline to keep the troops supplied.

German bombers struck heavily at Volga River crossing at the rear of Stalingrad's defenders, seeking to cut them off from reinforcement and supplies.

Field dispatches said the frontline terrain evidently had been plotted in squares for the stukas, with the pilots assigned to exterminate every living thing within them to clear the way for tanks and motorized infantry.

The mid-day communique told of the repulse of attacks both west and southwest of the industrial centre and details of scattered engagements indicated more than 2,000 Germans were slain in that critical area yesterday.

Red Army men fighting west of Stalingrad killed 700 Germans in a series of defensive engagements and destroyed two tanks while Soviet artillery "dispersed enemy infantry concentrations and blew up six ammunition trucks", the communique said.

PLANE DIVES INTO ST. LAWRENCE

Cornwall, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP) — A Royal Canadian Air Force plane was seen to dive into the St. Lawrence River eight miles east of here today, sinking almost immediately. One man was rescued and a fleet of boats was quickly on the spot searching for others of the crew. The plane was believed to have been carrying five men.

Re-establishment of War Veterans Now Being Planned

Toronto, Sept. 15 (CP)—Pensions Minister Mackenzie told the War Amputations Association of Canada convention today it is the "national purpose" that men who have served in the forces shall be able to return to civil life in a condition to hold their own in private employment, "and be able to pull their weight with any person anywhere."

The minister reviewed arrangements made for the care of the injured after the war, provisions for rehabilitation and re-establishment, and programs for training for employment and completion of education.

When a man is discharged from the forces as physically unfit his fyle is automatically transferred to the Canadian pension commission which is able to make an award at once without waiting for an application from the man concerned. The cases where the commissions did not make an award the man was notified of the procedure he may adopt to bring additional evidence to the commission for a second hearing. Beyond that again there is a right of appeal.

Right to Care

The discharged man who at any time within a year of his discharge was suffering from some physical handicap whether or not it was due to service will have the right to receive treatment from pensions department medical officers with hospital care which will restore him to better health.

The federal compulsory reinstatement act could be greatly broadened in its effect by similar legislation in the provinces, and ex-servicemen should bring this matter to the attention of provincial legislatures. The act provides for the return to their jobs of the men who have seen service, the minister continued.

Welfare Officers Placed

In each employment office a welfare officer has been placed with the duty of meeting the discharged soldier and assisting him. Such officers had received the assistance of a Citizens' Committee in most cities.

"I cannot over-emphasize the importance of these Citizens' Committees," said Mr. MacKenzie.

"No matter how complete and effective the official program may be, the vital problem of welcoming and assisting our returned service men is one for the whole people.

"There must be the personal sympathetic touch of a friendly hand. I appeal for your co-operation as a body of successfully re-established ex-service men."

To meet postwar problems, Canada had a vision of timed public works, co-ordinated municipal, provincial and federal effort, a sound and progressive agriculture policy, the development of natural resources and progressive development of highways to link the people of the Dominion more closely and open scenes as scenic beauty for the visitor.

"Above all and transcending all we envision the development of a great national scheme of social security, by which the masses of our people shall never again know those fears that come from insecurity and poverty and want and ill-health," said Mr. MacKenzie.

"I believe with all my heart that we shall—after blood and sweat and tears are to be our portion for many continuing months—we shall conclusively win this war upon which we have engaged as crusaders of Chritsianity," the minister concluded.

NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE ALLOWED TO RUN THIS YEAR

No Special Consideration Will be Given to Professional Athletes

STATEMENT ISSUED

Ottawa, Sept. 15 (CP)—Canadian and United States manpower authorities today put their stamp of approval on continuation of professional sport in wartime but said no special consideration will be given under mobilization regulations to professional athletes.

The decision was reached following a request from the National Hockey League for information as to its status in light of the manpower regulations.

Today Elliott M. Little, Director of National Selective Service, issued a brief statement—scheduled for simultaneous release at Washington:-

Larry Allen Believed Prisoner of Italians

New York, Sept. 15 —(AP)—The Italian radio broadcast an announcement today that an American newspaperman was taken prisoner in the British raid on Tobruk Sunday night and there is a strong possibility that it was Lary Allen, Associated Press cor-Winner. respondent and 1941 Pulitzer Prize winner.

The Italians withheld the name, but Allen has not been heard from since the British fleet landed the commando-type raiders at Tobruk.

The 34-year-old Allen, a native of Mount Savage, Md., has been an eyewitness to almost every action involving the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

His work, notably is story of the fierce German bomber attack on the aircraft carrier Illustrious, won the Pulitzer Prize for international reporting in 1941.

Later he survived another brush with death on the line of battle when the British cruiser Galatea was sunk.

DAMAGING BLOW STRUCK SUNDAY NIGHT AT TOBRUK

Sea-Borne Army Detachment Disrupts Rommel's Key Supply Base

SUPPORTED BY NAVY

London, Sept. 15 (CP)—A seaborne British army detachment, supported by light naval units and heavy R.A.F. squadrons, was reported by the Admiralty today to have struck a damaging blow Sunday night at Tobruk, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's key supply base.

While this raid was executed against the rubble-littered Libyan port 75 miles west of the Egyptian frontier, another light naval force "successfully bombarded enemy lines of communication in the El Daba area" about 20 miles behind the Axis front across the Egyptian desert, the Admiralty said.

British losses were announced in the withdrawal from Tobruk, but the action against El Daba was declared to have been concluded without damage or casualties.

Landed Against Strong Opposition.

"Our forces landed in the face of strong opposition and inflicted casualties and damage on the enemy before retiring, the Admiralty said. "The withdrawal was not carried out without losses, which, in view of the strength of the defences, were to be expected."

The Admiralty made no comment upon Italian communiques of yesterday and today claiming that three British destroyers, a cruiser and several patrol boats were sunk during and after the operations and four other ships damaged.

403 KILLED IN AUGUST

London, Sept. 15 — (CP) — The Ministry of Home Security announced today that 403 persons were killed or reported missing and believed killed and 509 were treated in hospitals as a result of air raids on the United Kingdom during August.

Revised figures for July showed 411 persons killed, or reported missing and believed killed, and 871 treated in hospitals.

WILHELMSHAVEN HEAVILY POUNDED DURING THE NIGHT

British Officials Say Air Armadas Will Help Destroy The Axis Enemies

R. C. A. F. TAKES PART

London, Sept. 15—(CP)—A strong force of British and Canadian bombers last night attacked Wilhelmshaven, chief German naval station on the North Sea, and kindled fires which one participating Canadian pilot said were left spreading "right bang in the middle of the docks."

From this assault—by perhaps hundreds of bombers—only two raiders were lost, the air ministry said. The Wilhelmshaven attack was the second in as many nights and the ninth this month upon Germany.

Wilhelmshaven, 50 miles airplane northwest of Bremen, the main target the night before, is the chief German naval station on the North Sea.

The constant pounding of Germany marked a full swing of the pendulum from two years ago when it was Britain which underwent successive smashing attacks.

Today is the second anniversary of the battle of Britain's climax and Allied air chiefs commemorated the event with the promise that their air armadas would help destroy and defeat the Axis enemies.

Berlin Gives First Word

The Berlin radio gave the first word of the new assault on Germany, the second in as many nights, without naming the exact target. An authoritative source here said only that British bombers were over Germany.

The Berlin report said "fires were started and some damage was caused to buildings, mainly in the residential district." Four attacking bombers were claimed to have been shot down.

Last night's raid followed by 24 hours a double blow by the R.A.F. and the Russian Air Force at Germany and her Axis partners, Rumania and Bulgaria.

Several hundred R. A. F.-R. C. A.F. bombers scourged Bremen for the 100th time with tons of bombs aimed at U-Boat yards, the Focke-Wulf airplane factory, railways and industries. The Russians said their bombers started fires in Bucharest and the Rumanian oil centre of Ploesti and Axis reports said Budapest, Berlin and Koenigsberg, East Prussia, were other targets of the Red raiders.

U. S. Nearing Halfway Mark in Fight To Destroy Jap Carrier Strength

By CLARK LEE
Associated Press Staff Writer

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, Sept. 15 — (AP) — The United States now is nearing the halfway mark in its fight to destroy the Japanese navy's aircraft carrier strength, which is the most important immediate objective of the war in the Pacific.

It now can be reported that a small 7,500-ton Japanese carrier, first identified as the Ryljo, possibly was sunk in the big battle between carriers off the Solomon Islands Aug. 24.

United States pilots got four bomb hits and one torpedo hit on this ship. Patrol plane pilots several hours after the battle saw the carrier dead in the water and listing.

Pilots who were on the spot also believed two Japanese destroyers and one submarine were damaged in the battle in which United States losses were minor.

In addition two Japanese cruisers, one battleship and one transport were severely damaged. One of the cruisers and the transport later were seen abandoned.

All these facts were compiled on the spot by an Associated Press reporter from personal observation and from all the available official information and the reports of pilots who participated in the attacks.

Three Great Battles

This was the third great carrier battle in the Pacific in which carrier-based airplanes did almost all the fighting. It compares with the Midway Battle in the size of the forces involved, although the damage inflicted on the enemy was smaller than at Midway. As at Midway and the Coral Sea engagement, the Japanese invasion forces were turned back short of their objectives.

In addition to the damage to enemy surface ships listed above, the U. S. forces shot down 96 enemy airplanes on Aug. 24 while losing only a few pilots.

It was the sixth enemy carrier disposed of. The other five were the Ryukaku, in the Coral Sea May 7, and the Ssoryu, Hiryu, Kaga and Akagi at Midway June 4.

That leaves the enemy eight knonw carriers, the Hayataka, Shokaku, Zuikaku, Hitaka, Yunyo, Zuihzo, Kasuga Maru and either the Ryujo or the Hosho.

In addition to the Hosho or Ryujo the enemy had three large carriers in the Solomons battle, of which two may have been damaged.

Plane Operating From Sub Attempts To Fire Forest

Vigilance of Forest Service Lookout And Alert Warning Thwart Effort

PLANE SOON SPOTTED

San Francisco, Sept. 15 (AP) — The first aerial assault upon United States home soil, possibly by a seaplane operating from a submarine, was announced by the army's western defence command today.

The attack, just before dawn Sept. 9, was an apparent attempt to set fire to a valuable but isolated forest on the southern Oregon coast. The effort was fruitless, however, thanks to the vigilance of a forest service lookout and the efficiency of alert air-raid warning system volunteers.

The army's communique said fragments of metal found near a crater by forestry patrols which quickly snuffed out the fire, bore Japanese ideographs.

A small seaplane, without identifying markings was seen to come in from the sea and circle the Mount Emily area and shortly after the craft returned toward the sea.

Several hours later an army patrol plane sighted and bombed a submarine 30 miles off the Oregon coast with "unobserved results."

The army communique noted: "It is possible a plane of this type might have been carried on a submarine."

Lieut. R. J. Runyon, area supervisor of the air-raid warning system, said the plane was spotted on the filter centre control board within seconds of its appearance over the coast, and observed: "It was an excellent test, and the system proved fully effective."

Chicago, Sept. 15 (AP)—There's at least one Chicago motorist who apparently doesn't intend to wait for country-wide gasoline rationing. The following advertisement was placed in the "barter and exchange" column of a Chicago newspaper: "Will trade—1938 Packard with good tires, for horse and buggy".

CANADIAN PATROL VESSEL PRESUMED LOST WITH CREW

Raccoon Reported Attack by Sub-Search Reveals No Trace of Ship

4 MERCHANTMEN LOST

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Royal Canadian Naval Headquarters announcement last week that the Battle of the Atlantic in which Canadian warships are bearing one-third of the burden is "Now of far greater scope than ever before experienced" was grimly underscored with the announcement late yesterday of the loss of the Canadian patrol vessel Raccoon, former Canadian pleasure yacht, formed part of a convoy escort which was attacked by one or more enemy U-boats and is presumed lost with all hands—four officers and 34 ratings.

The tight-lipped announcement also said four United Nations merchant ships, with 10 members of their crews, had been lost, but did not indicate whether these had gone down in the same engagement as the Raccoon.

No Trace of Raccoon

Just where the Raccoon was sunk was another secret kept from Canadians as well as the enemy, but it was believed likely, following as it did the headquarters warning last week against undue optimism over loss shrinkages in the Atlantic battle, that the announcement indicated renewed U-boat activity in the North Atlantic.

During the action the Raccoon signalled that torpedoes had crossed her bows, but sister ships of the escort, edging to her assistance while maintaining a guard over the convoy, heard only explosions muffled by the thick fog as they worked their way up to her position.

Close search failed to show any trace of the Raccoon or any of her crew. A Royal Canadian Air Force plane which swept the area later reported sighting a lifeboat and two Carley floats with no sign of life upon them.

IMMINENT ACTION MAY BE IMPENDING

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 15—(CP)—There were signs today of possibly imminent action in the Owen Stanley mountains where the Japanese driving for Port Moresby have been stalled for five days, but the day's communique said the general situation remainded unchanged.

The communique noted the patrol activity is increasing in the mountains where the invaders have advanced to within 40 miles of Port Moresby, the principal Allied base in New Guinea.

SCHOOLHOUSE RANSACKED AT MARYSVILLE

Provincial Police investigated the ransacking of School Section No. 10 schoolhouse one mile north of Marysville on Monday. Joseph McGurn, secretary-treasurer of the school, reported that the building had been entered over the weekend with the result that text books and school sundries had been strewn about the classroom. Provincial Constable Stanley Batt investigated and it was quite evident, that mischievous scholars had doubtless been responsible, as nothing of value was removed from the premises. The damage was negligible also.

CITY EMPLOYEES FIND PAY DAY HAS BEEN CHANGED

City employees, especially members of the Police and Fire Departments, appeared at the City Hall this morning seeking their semi-monthly salary cheque. However, they were not aware of the fact that at last night's initial fall meeting of the city council a motion had changed the pay day of all city employees from the 1st and the 15th, to the 5th and the 20th of each and every subsequent month commencing as if today. All city employee cheques will be issued on Saturday.

Situation Grave Says Governor Of Madagascar

Vichy, Sept. 15 (AP)—The situation in Madagascar is one of "extreme gravity", Armand Annett, Governor-General of the island, advised the Vichy government today as British columns drove closer to Tananarive, the capital.

Annett said a South African motirized column pushing southeast from Majunga, its landing place, had captured the village of Antalafabositra after occupying Maevatanana, 150 miles by road from Tananarive.

The Governor-General said resistance is continuing and that British forces now are in difficult mountain terrain.

There was no report of activities of British forces moving inland from Morondava, 350 miles airline south of Majunga, and from Ambanja, in northern Madagascar.

Jack Parsons Lost on Raccoon

Ordinary Seaman John George Parsons, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parsons of this city, has been reported "missing, believed lost at sea," according to a cable received by relatives on Saturday and confirmed today by an official casualty list.

The youthful seaman was a member of the crew of HMCS "Racoon" Canadian patrol ship which was sunk recently in the North Atlantic with four merchant ships by enemy action.

He is one of three brothers serving in the Royal Canadian Navy. The others are George John and Harry serving at an Eastern Canadian port and Kingston respectively.

Prior to enlistment last December in the navy, George was learning pattern-making in a war industrial firm near here. He is wellknown in the city and was a popular young man with all with whom he came in contact.

Another Belleville Boy

Stocker Ernest Frank Howe, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Howe, Centre Street, Sidney Township, who was reported missing following sea operations in Monday's edition of this paper, was also a crew member of the "Raccoon", it has been announced from Naval headquarters in Ottawa. The first word received by Mr. and Mrs. Howe that their son was missing did not give particulars, but it is now revealed two of Belleville's sailor boys are missing following the "Raccoon" sinking.

Entrance Fees Not Necessary At the Fair

Many Outstanding Competitions at Belleville Fair Open Without Cost to Exhibitors

BABY SHOW ONE

There are outstanding features at the Belleville Fair this year for which no entrance fees are necessary and belated entries will be received, according to Secretary Eric Denyes. Such events are entirely non-professional, but still stand to tend to provide keen competition and interesting exhibits.

Of special interest to farmers alone is a special competition in the Horticultural phase of the fair, when a class for gladoli and asters will be featured. No entrance fee is needed and this class is for farmers only with valuable cash prizes to be awarded the respective winners in each group.

There is no entry fee in the baby show on Monday where prizes amounting to $15.50 have been given by the McCormick studios and George H. Stokes M.P.

Other features at the Belleville Fair to open next week include a horse shoe pitching contest on Wednesday under the direction of Wm. Leslie and also cash prizes for the best exhibit of model aeroplanes, the cost of which is not to exceed 50 cents. In these two competitions entry fees are not needed, Secretary Denyes pointed out as he added the prizes in all these events are equally as valuable as those offered in professional competition.

Aldermen Marshall, Wotten, Clarke and Armstrong: Nays: Mayor Thompson, Aldermen Allin, Butler, Rollins, Jeffery, Follwell and Clapp. Aldermen Potter, Pringle and Harvey were absent due to business reasons.

There were no speakers to the motion excepting the mover and seconder and as soon as they had finished, the Council called for the question. Before Ald. Marshall started to address the Council on the Motion, Mayor Thompson intimated, that if there was any discussion, the Aldermen would be allowed to speak only once to the motion. Ald. Marshall then took the floor and stated he was in favor of the motion for the sake of economy. "We have been preaching economy a long time in this council", said Ald. Marshall, "and here is a chance to prove it. With thirteen members of the council as at present it is costing the ratepayers approximately $3,020 per year, whereby with the other arrangement of eight Aldermen and a Mayor, the cost will be about $2,000, which in itself is a saving. If no action is taken the city will be up against the proposition of providing probably more Aldermen according to the statute and there is a possibility of the number being 21, as the city is 15,000 population, which would make the council unwieldly and would slow up the business of the city".

Question of Democracy Broached

Ald. Marshall also argued for the motion by broaching the question of democracy. He asked the question "Are you going to allow the people to vote on this question? If we allow the people to vote then we are practicing the democracy of which we preach and are trying to uphold but if we refuse the people the right to vote on this question, then we are practicing dictatorship, a thing we are fighting against with all over might".

The seconder, Ald. Wotten, stated that he believed eight members and a Mayor were quite sufficient to handle the business of this city. He cited the Board of Education as an example, that body reducing the membership of the Board from 21 to 10 members and "I think the work was done as well, quicker and more efficient", said the Alderman. He also showed that Prince Edward Island with a much larger population than Belleville, had only 32 members in the Legislature and the business was done in a room, not much bigger than the Council Chamber. In conclusion he stated, that he agreed with the motion and hoped, that the council would see their way clear to adopt the same.

Members Call For Question

At this point the Mayor asked if there were any other members, who would like to speak to the question and in unison they answered "question" and it was put with the above results. At the conclusion of the meeting Ald. H. J. Clarke gave Notice of Motion: "I hereby give Notive that at the next regular meeting of this Council I will move or caused to be moved a motion instructing our Solicitor to prepare a by-law in accordance with the powers concurred upon us by Section 79 of the Municipal Act said by-law to apply to the next elective council if that is possible, the same to be submitted to the electors at the forthcoming election after receiving two readings of the council". The notice of motion means that the council wishes the expression of the people with regard to the elected council of next year serving for a two-year term in accordance with the wishes of the Ontario Legislature.

Action of Mayor Upheld

By-Laws Passed

A number of by-laws were presented all for the transferring property that had been purchased by citizens and upon which houses will be erected and they passed the Sinclair Street Sewer was also various stages. A by-law to borrow $2,878.00 for the completion of the passed. A letter was received from the owners of the mink farm on Isabel Street in answer to the petition against its location by residents of that district at the last regular meeting. The letter was tabled and ordered filed and was as follows:

"Belleville, Ontario,
"September 5, 1942.

"His Worship Mayor Thompson,

"Aldermen, City of Belleville,
"Belleville, Ontario.

"Dear Sirs:—

"We are sorry to learn through the newspaper that the residents of Cedar Street have entered a petition against our mink.

"During the depression, and owing to circumstances over which we had no control, we were forced to do something that could be looked after at home and we got some mink. In order to make a success of mink raising, they have to be kept clean and sanitary. They are housed in wire bottomed pens and any refuse falls through and is raked up and removed. These mink are a little larger than squirrels and have a cage of their own each.

"On complaints received, the late Mr. McGinnis examined our ranch several times and found no fault. Mr. McCabe, Inspector of Game and Fish, said it was fine and clean. The Board of Health of the City of Belleville examined it and they did not find any fault. Then Dr. Ball from the Provincial Board of Health came down and examined it and he said it was not unhealthy or unsanitary and that these people could not make us move on that account.

"One of our nearest neighbors, who is an invalid, told us these mink did not bother her and her window is always open next to the ranch when the weather is warm and suitable. We have also as well asked a lot of our other neighbours and they tell us these mink do not bother them. Not one of these people concerned have ever complained directly to us about our mink.

"The income from these mink is needed. During the depression and owing to being too reasonable with unfortunate tenants, our taxes got behind. This year about $500.00 was paid to the City on account of our taxes and about the same last year. We have our aged father and a great aunt of 92, who has no income and cannot get a pension owing to residence in the United States, (has only been with us and in Canada 13 years), and one of us has to be at home to look after them, as there are no other relatives able to look after this aged lady.

"The ranching of mink is of great interest to the Government and mink are protected in every way. One cannot send them from the Province of Ontario to the Province of Quebec without getting an export permit from the Ontario Government and they are protected in every other way possible by the Government.

"We believe these complaints are unreasonable; one can see people out on their verandahs almost anytime when the weather is suitable in the evenings or on Sundays. We know for a fact that some of these people complained to Dr. Cronk and Mr. McGinnis about us for which some of the other neighbors around were responsible for; for instance one of the things was one of the neighbours bonfires, not ours at all, so you can see that the complaint in this case was neither reasonable or true.

"We feel that anyone who could start anything that would produce an income during this last terrible depression is to be commended, and not hindered and there are lots of businesses that have an occasional odor, such as stores that sell fertilizers and people who keep chickens, etc. We cannot think these people would sooner have had us on relief or see us lose our property on account of not having money to pay the taxes.

"We believe that you will give us every consideration and thanking you,

We remain,
Yours very truly,
Ella M. Rowland,
Mabel Rowland,
19 Isabel, St., Belleville, Ont.

Visitors Welcomed

Judge Forin, who is attending the General Council of the United Church and Ernie Baldwin, recently returned from overseas and both exaldermen of the city were present as visitors at the regular session of the council and were warmly greeted by His Worship. There being no further business the council adjourned.

Trenton and District

S. A. Drive For Funds

Trenton, Special—A drive by the Salvation Army on behalf of its Red Shield centre is being conducted in Trenton during the present week, and it is earnestly hoped that all citizens will give it their hearty support. The Trenton centre has proven to be a most popular place for rest and recreaton among Air Force personnel particularly. Army personnel also make use of its facilities but these in this locality are greatly out numbered by the greater R. C. A. F. of the Trenton Station.

All boys of the different branches of the services are made welcome at the local Red Shield, which is supervised by Captain F. W. Hewitt and Mrs. Hewitt, and eagerly partake of the many privileges offered through this service. The lounge room is comfortably furnished and books and games are provided, as well as material for the boys to write to their loved ones at home.

Masons Attend Service

Members of Trent Lodge A. F. & A. M. paraded from the Masonic Temple to St. George's Anglican Church for divine worship on Sunday morning. Some seventy members participated in the service with the Rev. J. L. Hutchinson vicar of the church, as the speaker.

Next Sunday Harvest festival services will be held by the congregation of St. George's.

$3,000 Raised by Carnival

Approximately $3,000 was realized by the Rotarian Benevolent Fund from the recent carnival. Some of these funds will be allocated to the promotion of Trenton Air Cadet Corps now being organized.

Repair Docks

The repair and rebuilding of the docks on the old Squire property north of the bridge crossing the Trent is an object of considerable attention by the passing public. It is rumoured that ship-building will be in progress there before long. This is an ideal site for this type of business as boats could be finished and launched from the premises.

Three Nominated For General Council Treas.

The evening session of the Tenth General Council of the United Church of Canada opened with a humorous note on Monday night with a commissioner from the council body claiming the floor for a few moments protesting against the "Caledonian Mutual Admiration Society."

The protest was aimed at the Moderator, Rt. Rev. J. R. P. Sclater, who, with commissioners, thoroughly enjoyed the mild criticism. The Moderator discreetly disclaimed any association with the society in question, however, claiming he was an Orcadian who had received his education in England.

Nominations for the position of Treasurer to the Council were heard as the first order of business with three names being placed before the Council. Nominees were Rev. Denzil Ridout; Mr. Harold Arnup, and Rev. Dr. W. J. Gallagher. Election of Treasurer will be made some time this week.

Considerable time was taken up during the evening session through discussion on the motion by Mr. A. E. Kerr of the Maritimes to raise the status of Rev. M. McDonald, Assistant Secretary of Home Missions to Associate Secretary. Rev. Lloyd Smith of Montreal, Chairman of the Board of Home Missions, spoke in behalf of the Board and a lengthy discussion on the matter followed. The matter was finally referred to the sessional committee with the mover and seconder of the motion and the Chairman of the Maritime Missions to decide the question.

Reports on U. C. Publishing House

Rev. George Dorey presented the Report of the Commission on the Publishing House to the Council, the report revealing the financial condition of the publishing house and stating its operating loss since the church union. Mr. Dorey gave a lengthy report of the publishing house business in all its departments and forwarded several recommendations for more efficient operation and for the betterment of its financial condition.

Discussion on the technical aspects of the report followed with commissioners deciding to go into certain parts of the report more thoroughly at a later session of the council.

dented in its ferocity", two Axis infantry companies were wiped out by mortar fire and eight tanks of a Nazi column stalled by anti-tank barricades were destroyed or disbanded, the Russians said.

A German tank formation broke into another Russian town in the battle of the Central Caucasus, but is under the fire of an elite Soviet detachment which is seeking to annihilate it, the communique reported.

The scene of the Red Army men's triumph on the Central Front was not announced, but presumably the attack was made in the Rzhev-Vyazma salient west of Moscow.

"In three days of fighting they wiped out about 4,000 Germans, disabled or set fire to several dozen tanks and destroyed 11 guns and six mortar batteries", it was declared. "We captured 15 guns, one tank, 19 machine guns and other war material".

Increase Plane Strength

A dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star said the Axis now is using twice as many troops and tanks against Stalingrad as in earlier assaults and has increased the number of planes in the action.

Nevertheless, the defenders were said to be passing at times to counter-attacks.

Stalingrad lines, although battered and threatened as never before, still held in the 21st day of an epic battle and mounds of new dead were added to the thousands of casualties previously suffered by the invasion army of Field Marshal Von Bock.

Soviet soldiers also repulsed assaults in the Upper Don sector and gained in a Volkhov front action, but were reported to have lost the initiative at least temporarily before German tanks in the Central Caucasus.

A German pilot captured in the Stalingrad fighting was identified by the Russians as a great grandson of Prince Otto Von Bismarck, "The Iron Chancellor," and they quoted him as saying:—

"This war has cost us enormous losses. My great grandfather was right in advising us against a war with Russia."

The Moscow radio said 100 bombers were used to blast one narrow segment of the Russian lines southwest of Stalingrad and Nazi tanks and riflemen streamed into the gap. Then Soviet infantrymen struck from the flank, it reported, and the wedge was hurled back.

Cavalrymen Slaughter 500 Nazis

Red Army cavalrymen were credited with the slaughter of 500 Germans and the repulse of two assaults upon the Volga river industrial centre from the Northwest.

Russian artillery batteries are roving, truck-mounted destroyers were reported to have wiped out nine tanks and about three companies of infantry in turning back a thrust by two armor-supported regiments from the west.

Soviet counter-attacks against German forces menacing the Grozny oil fields and a Transcaucasian highway through operations in the Terek River Valley near Mosduk were reported to have faltered and finally collapsed under the hammering of Nazi tanks newly transferred to the south bank of the stream.

"After stubborn fighting," the midnight communique said, "our troops retreated to new lines."

Hungarians Suffer Casualties

It was announced, however, that snipers of one Red Army unit had killed more than 1,000 German officers and men recently and the implication was that this took place in the Mozdok area.

Hungarians thrown against Russian positions in the Upper Don region south of Voronezh were declared to have suffered heavy casualties in five vain attacks.

"Our troops wiped out about 2,000 officers and men and destroyed 30 tanks and 30 motor trucks," it was announced. "Prisoners were taken."

Red Army men fighting in the area of Sinyavino, on the Volkhov River between Lakes Ilmen and Ladoga, were declared to have dislodged the Germans from a settlement, killing about 600, and destroyed five tanks, six guns and 40 dugouts and blockhouses.

SEAPLANE

Saw Fire Break Out

Howard "Razz" Gardner, forestry service lookout, observed the plane and saw the fire break out from his post on Mount Emily, nine miles from Brookings, Ore.

Looking into the darkness at 6 a.m. Sept. 9 when he heard the sound of a single motor, Gardner saw a circling plane overhead—saw it so closely he identified it as a small seaplane.

Shortly afterwards he saw flames break through the tree roof below —in the same general area where a disastrous fire in the middle of 30s destroyed a great forest and most of the coastal city of Bandon.

Gardner sounded the alarm on the forest telephone, gathered some equipment and plunged through the forest by a shortcut to battle the flames single handed. He had them under control by the time the forest fire suppression crew arrived —a 4 ½-hour battle through brush and over rugged terrain from their station.

Heavily Timbered

So isolated is the spot that Ed Marshall, federal forester, was sure the Japanese had chosen it for the assault. The countryside is heavily timbered, mountainous, sparsely settled, with few trails and no highways into the interior.

Before the war Japanese worked extensively through the Chetco River country, buying logs and rafting them downriver.

The Japanese, the plane and the fire became linked together shortly after Gardner had controlled the flames.

He found bomb fragments and a "sizeable crater." The bomb sheared a six-inch tree and set fire to a stump, he said.

Marshall dug out of the crater what he said was the nose of an incendiary bomb. Attached was a steel shank bearing Japanese characters.

Allows Publication

Then the army began investigating. Today it announced th results of its inquiry which it indicated still is progressing and for the first time allowed the stories of witnesses to be published.

In a communique issued by Lt.-Gen. John L. Dewitt, commander of the 4th army and the western defence command, it cautiously reported the sighting of the plane, the fire that followed, discovery of the bomb crater and bomb fragments carrying "marking of Japanese ideographs which may have been part of a code indicating the arsenal, where the bomb was manufactured." It related that on the same day, only 30 miles off the coast in the vicinity where the plane was seen, an army patrol plane bombed the submarine.

Japanese submarines shelled an oil well area in southern California Feb. 23, causing slight damage, and a beach near Seaside, Or., June 22, but last night's report was the first evidence of an actual air bombing of the continental United States.

(An attack on Canadian territory occurred early June 20 when a submarine of unknown nationality shelled Estevan pointt, Vancouver Island. Broken windows in the Estevan Point lighthouse was the only damage caused in the brief shelling.)

(The submarine never was spotted despite an intense aerial search.)

CANADIAN PATRON

H.M.C.S. Raccoon, eighth Canadian naval vessel reported lost since the outbreak of war, was under command of Lt.-Cmdr. John N. Smith of Halifax. Her crewmen, reported "missing, believed lost at sea," came from nearly every province in Canada — 12 from Ontario, nine from Nova Scotia, six from Quebec, three from Prince Edward Island, two each from Saskatchewan, New Brunswick and Manitoba, and one each from British Columbia and the United States.

Survivors of Allied Merchant Ships Arrive

Montreal, Sept. 15—(CP)—Almost 80 survivors of Allied nations merchant ships arrived in Montreal yesterday and spent last night in a local consulate. Then men will remain in Montreal until new berths are found for them aboard other vessels.

The survivors were from four vessels sunk along with the naval patrol vessel, H.M.C.S. Raccoon. Announcement of the sinking of the ships was made in Ottawa yesterday.

Meanwhile officials were considering a request from the seamen that they be paid two months' pay due them in one lump sum. The general practice is to allow the men $1.25 per day while they are in port.

One man said the boat he was on was torpedoed Sunday, and survivors were picked up by a corvette which later picked up some men from the Raccoon. They said there were 127 saved from the sinking of the five vessels.

The convoy was reported under continuous attack for more than 24 hours.

Husband Not on Board

Montreal, Sept. 15 —(CP)— Twelve hours after she had been advised of the death of her husband, an electrician aboard the H.M.C.S. Raccoon, Mrs. Philip F. Brady of Montreal last night received a wire from her husband saying he was "O.K. and fit."

Mrs. Brady, who had a "hunch" that the official announcement telling of her husband's death was wrong, wired to his last shore address asking if he were all right.

Mr. Brady was not aboard the Raccoon when it was sunk. Injuries to two ribs, suffered in a sparring bout with a shipmate, kept him ashore when the Raccoon last left port.

DOGS EAT CHIN TAGS

Brantford, Ont., Sept. 15—(CP)— Brantford's dog owners are complaining their pets now eat their tags — something which never happened when the animals wore metal tags before the war. The dogs appear to find something appetizing about the plastic discs they wear, and steps are being taken to see that next year's non-metallic tags are free of whatever it is which now tickles the dog's palates.

DIEPPE INCLUDED eleG

Windsor, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Dieppe is to be included in the battle honors of the Essex Scottish Regiment, and the name will be inscribed upon its colors. It is considered possible the gallantry of the Essex Scottish at Dieppe will gain some special insignia for the regiment.

WILHELMSHAVEN

Ninth in Fourteen Nights

The attack last night was the ninth carried out over Germany by the R.A.F. in the first 14 nights of September.

It came after Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal, Commander-in-Chief of the R.A.F., promised that British, Russian and Allied air armadas would "overwhelm our enemies and bring about their final destruction."

He made his prediction in a message commemorating Sept. 15, 1940, when the R.A.F. and anti-aircraft gunners shot 185 German planes out of the sky over Britain and the English Channel. The message answered a tribute to the R.A.F. by Lt.-Gen. H. H. Arnold, Commander-in-Chief of the United States army air forces

"Airmen of the United Nations are converging on Germany from the east and west, obliterating her war potentials and striking terror into the hearts of her people," Sir Charles said.

Gen. Arnold said the deeds of the R.A.F. two years ago "turned the tide of war, ending forever the Nazi hope of world conquest, and made possible the final United Nations victory that is to come."

"Free men everywhere will ever observe this day in remembrance of those brave men who gladly gave their lives to secure freedom and liberty," he said.

RCAF Ground Crews Perform Valiant Work Servicing Bombers in Britain

(By ALAN RANDAL)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Sept. 15 (CP) — You've got to talk to the men who fly to appreciate the job the men on the ground do in servicing the bombers that Canadian crews fly to Germany night after night.

At this Royal Canadian Air Force station in bomber command, just like all bomber stations, the ground men work in crews, so many riggers and fitters to each plane.

Riggers take care of the outside of the plane. The fitters look after the inside. Armorers such as Lac. George Plumb of London, Ont. take care of guns and bombs and kindred things.

The Squadron Engineer Officer, PO. Bob Scott of Toronto and Ottawa, says there can't be too many nice things broadcast about the ground men. Without them there just wouldn't be any flying.

Douglas Moores of Coleman, Alberta, moaned the loss of a plane called "R for Robert." He worked on that plane for a long time. It came back from Germany all right but it didn't pan out so well and they sent it back to the factory.

Grease-covered but smiling, Doug tucked his screw-driver into his belt and climbed down from the trestle where he'd been working on the engine of a Halifax bomber. The new "R for Robert" was all set to go to Saarbrucken.

But about the old "R for Robert". That plane made 14 trips into Germany and back. The ground crew painted a Ricket locomotive on the fuselage and they added a bomb-filled freight car for every trip.

Doug looked up at the bare face of the new plane and said his crew were thinking up something new in the way of insignia. They'd thought of drawing William Tell and adding a new arrow for every trip. But the plane's skipper didn't like that idea much.

Moores explained there were aero-engine mechanics assigned to each Halifax, air frame mechanics, a corporal rigger and a sergeant fitter to push the gang. Toughest job for the fitters is when there is need for a complete engine change.

Then there are others among these "men behind the men who man the guns" who go on day after day doing such prosaic things as driving trucks and tractors and nobody ever hears anything about them.

They are men like Julian Scheeler of Strome, Alta., a big, happy farm boy. He's only an AC1, but if fellows like Julian weren't around to drive a tractor for the R.C.A.F. those long trains of bombs just wouldn't get from the bomb dump to the belly of a bomber—and eventually to Germany.

How to make the most of your Coffee

WHATEVER type of coffee-maker you use, follow these rules to prevent waste and to use coffee to best advantage.

1 Use good coffee — correctly ground for your method of coffee-making.

2 Measure ground coffee and water carefully so as to provide just the number of cupfuls you need and no more. Use freshly drawn water.

3 Make coffee at just below boiling point. Boiling develops bitterness and spoils flavor. Remove grounds as soon as coffee is made.

4 Serve immediately, if possible. If necessary to keep hot, use only low heat.

5 Keep coffee maker scrupulously clean. Stale odors and sediment affect flavor. Preheat by scalding just before use.

MAXWELL HOUSE is a blend of the world's finest coffees, roasted by a special process to capture all its extra goodness. It offers precisely correct grinds for each type of coffee maker—Drip and Regular. Maxwell House reaches you absolutely roaster-fresh because it is sealed in a Super-Vacuum tin. This is important because roasted coffee, once ground, loses flavor rapidly when exposed to air. The best way to retain its aroma is to keep it in the tin.

Wheat for Greeks

Canadians feel their obligation to the great race of the Greeks. From the abundance of Canadian farms will go the universal cereal, wheat, which will help to feed the Greek people, fifteen thousand tons per month being the Canadian program of shipments.

Here is a race which saved the western world twenty-five centuries ago against tyranny. Without Thermopylae, Marathon, Salamis, the western world would have taken a different development for it was the Greek people of that time which stemmed the advance of aggression and gave the western world a chance to develop. After twenty-five centuries descendants of the men who fought at Thermopylae and other famous battlefields sought to stem the advance of the most savage and brutal military force of history and out of the Greeks' courage and sacrifice came to the world an opportunity to strengthen the Near East. Through Greek effort Hitler was belated in attacking Russia last year. The devotion of the Greeks in 1941 has still had its effect in the delayed calendar of Hitler's army's achievements.

To add another crime to the brutal catalogue of villainies which the Nazis have perpetrated wherever they have gone they forced the Greek people to suffer inhuman privation because the Nazis and their associates the Italians grabbed all the food they could lay their hands on. Stories have come through of terrible suffering of the Greeks and of the deaths of many of them for lack of food.

Canada is doing her duty by planning to aid this people, who in time of their supremacy used their opportunity to bring blessings upon the world. What the ancient Greeks did in every field of effort particularly in their gift of a noble ideal of life and in their achievements has made every nation of the western world their debtors. And Canada as one of the new nations with plenty of wheat sees to it that fifteen thousand tons a month must go to the ancient Greeks' descendants who burn with the fire of their ancestors for freedom. Canada is fortunate to be able to do this little service for the descendants of the noble people who have forever honored humanity by their lofty ideals and mighty accomplishments in the noble way of life.

Time Passes on East Front

One of the cities the name of which will go down in history is Stalingrad, named after the Russian leader, Joseph Stalin, the premier of all the Russias. The heroic citizens of this city and the resolute Russian soldiers have here written one of the greatest sagas of a free people fighting for their right to retain their native soil against a marauding foe. Here those who battle in defence have linked their names with what has been called by some the greatest battle that has ever been fought on earth. The Huns are throwing everything they can from other sectors into this struggle for the key Volga city. Stalingrad will be known as the scene of one of the greatest stands for the continuance of the freedom of mankind.

Meanwhile comes word of the first snow in the Caucasus. The very thought of this must seem like the doom of fate to Hitler. Yesterday there was a story that the Germans were planning to build a powerfully-fortified winter line behind which the battered Germans would try to patch up their forces and hold back the Russians in the winter. The season for Hitler is short in Russia. This year his headway has been much slower than his advance of last year and much more limited. And now he is planning a winter line as a result of the terrible German losses which have been the consequence of the extravagance and desperation of Hitler's throwing his forces in for a blow at Stalingrad. So it is the Germans who have to build an eastern front wall or line. The Russian people stand as adamant. They have the memory of last year's successful winter assaults on the invaders.

To do an evil act is base. To do a good one without incurring danger is common enough. But it is the part of a good man to do great and noble deeds though he risks everything in doing them.—Plutarch.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS . . .

WITH HIS LITTLE HIND LEGS

The scientific men are wonders
Beyond the shadow of a doubt.
In their voices, wisdom thunders;
Where truth hides, they find it out.

Back from those dark, mystic portals
Through which only they can go,
They bring all us minor mortals
Hints of all we ought to know.

They explain our dear illusions,
Leaving knowledge gray as dust;
Our most comforting confusions
We surrender, for we must.

Once I heard the cricket's singing
Was an amorous refrain—
His minute heart-bells were ringing
To an elfin lover's pain.

I was fond of that romantic
Misconception; I rejoiced
In the febrile, futile, frantic
Yearning which his chirping voiced.

Long I held the thought, but vainly;
It joins my relics on the shelf.
Science tells me calmly, plainly,
All he does is scratch himself.

TWO BOYS GAVE LORD LOUIS A "COMMANDO PLAN"

Young Guy Wilkin, 13-year-old schoolboy, told, in his English home, how, with another embryo military expert, 14-year-old David Griffiths, of Rochester, he "wangled" his way past a sentry in the Admiraltyy.

There they put before a high official the combined "plan of operations," complete with maps and plans, which they had drawn up at school, "to help the Commandos."

Because this interview did not bring quick results—"After waiting three weeks we got fed up," said Guy—they wrote to Lord Louis Mountbatten and succeeded in meeting a brigadier, two colonels, and four majors in a Whitehall office.

"Our plan was discussed with us for more than an hour," Guy said.

"Officers made criticisms and suggestions on the plan, most of which we had typed—until the typewriter gave out. They didn't give away what they thought of its possibilities."

"A Genius."

The plan was worked out during term-time and holidays by three boys at the same school, the third partner being John Cooper

Guy said modestly: "Of course, I made suggestions, but the idea really belongs to David Griffiths, who is a genius, and who tookMiddle School mathematics prize this year.

"We got busy on our plan after reading about the Commando raids. We had to persevere to get any attention and we've used our pocket money on previous trips to the city. We've made lots of 'phone calls too.

"It was no trouble finding the Admiralty. David knows his way about, and I just went along.

"We told the sentry at the Admiralty that we had brought some plans along, and though he said we'd better go to another office, we insisted on seeing an expert in the plans department.

Secret Kept.

"A colonel of Marines saw us. He didn't laugh when we told him of our plan. He was quite serious.

"Well, after we'd worked the plan out in more detail we wrote to Lord Louis Mountbatten. We had a telegram fixing an appointment.

"They were waiting for us, and as soon as we arrived we were ushered in. The officers treated us like gentlemen—though they didn't offer us any drinks."

The boys have kept the secret of their idea so closely that even their parents do not know what it is. All three are clever at mathematics.

They spent hours of research in the school library, bought and borrowed mathematical text-books and maps, and built up their Commando plan with scientific thoroughness since they started work six months ago.

THEIR LETTERS, AND!

They write so bravely from afar
With witty lines and quaint!
And if at times they lonely are
They pencil no complaint.
Sometimes the censor snips away
Great news they shouldn't tell,
But since we're deep in war today
Perhaps that's just as well.

Not one of them bemoans his lot
Or writes a whimpering line.
All letters from some war-torn spot
Begin: "Am feeling fine!"
And every missive we have seen,
From north or east or west,
Has glistened with a faith serene
In simple phrase expressed.

But here at home are doubt and dread
And often many a sneer.
Some bitter tongues there are that spread
Suspicion, scorn and fear.
Thus, with no censor to restrain
Or blot their words away
They hurt the cause they should sustain,
With things they shouldn't say.

They write so bravely from afar
They shame us all who stay,
However stern their duties are
They joke their fears away.
And we who read the notes they write
To courage should be spurred
And never utter, day or night,
One mean, disheartening word.

Hitler Starting To Fashion, Equip A Winter Line

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Reports that Hitler has designated a trip of his top-flight generals to fashion and equip a winter line for his troops in Russia from the lower Volga to the Baltic sound highly credible.

They tend to explain, also, why he is lavishing his resources in manpower and material, regardless of losses, to take Stalingrad. Even though the city's strategic value as a base for future Nazi offensive action would be strictly limited, the bombed and shell-battered ruins of Stalingrad could be invaluable as a pivot of a defensive winter line.

They could be used to improvise winter shelters for powerful forces. And weather-proof shelters for many thousands of men at the apex of the Nazi Don-Volga salient must be available if German 1942 gains are not to be risked when winter comes. Caught by as severe a winter as the last in the open steppes of the Don bend and below it, the Nazis might be forced to abandon much of the salient so freely watered by German blood — just as they abandoned wide segments of hard-won territory last year about Moscow.

Poor Shelter Elsewhere

There is no prospect of good shelter for Nazi invaders anywhere in the Don bend. Winter conditions there and along the whole length of the Volga are bitter even in relatively mild years. Except for Stalingrad, the Donets basin has the only populous Russian towns and cities to provide housing in winter on the scale German forces must have if they are to halt and refit for a new campaign to destroy Russia's fighting power next year.

Unless he can anchor his lines to Stalingrad for the winter, Hitler's 1942 campaign can be written off as an even greater and more costly failure than that of 1941. The Russian successive stands on the Don and now on the Volga have balked his hopes of a decisive victory that would permit him to turn westward against Britain or centre his winter campaign on Egypt.

The German sweep to the Volga at Stalingrad has left the Nazis holding a dangerous salient. They have by-passed Russian-held bridgeheads south of the Don far in the rear of the advance on Stalingrad. Only urgent necessity of taking the city before the winter closes in could warrant that risk.

It seems certain that the seemingly inevitable fall of Stalingrad must be followed by a Nazi turn north and west in the Don-Volga corridor to outflank Russian bridgeheads. They are in the Kletskaya area on the upper face of the Don bend nearly 100 miles northwest of Stalingrad. A Russian winter advance southward even halfway across the bend toward its lower face could render the Nazi hold on the Stalingrad salient precarious.

Main Objective

The first Hitler necessity, therefore, must be to get possession of the ruins of Stalingrad to anchor his winter line and that all important salient. It is the protective screen for his operations in the Caucasus. Should a miracle save Stalingrad, a Nazi retreat into the Donetz Basin for the winter and evacuation also of much of the ground taken in the Central Caucasus to threaten the Grozny oil field would appear likely. Weather conditions in winter are comparatively mild in the Caucasus except in the mountains, but without a Stalingrad salient to support and protect it, the German push down the Rostov-Baku railway to the vicinity of Grozny would be open for hundreds of miles to flanking attacks.

Hitler wound up his campaign belatedly last year against Moscow with dangerously exposed salients thrust deeply in both north and south of the city. He was compelled to relinquish both by the amazing Russian winter offensive.

This time he seems to be heading his generals and preparing in time to revert to the defensive to hold his gains until another fighting season comes.

THE RIGHT OF PETITION

"Congress," says the first Amendment to the Constitution, "shall make no law . . . . abridging . . . the right of the people peacefully to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Under the Senate rules, a petition before being persented must be signed by a member, indorsed with a brief statement of its contents and referred to the proper committee without debate.

It is entered in the official Journal and printed in the CongressionalRecord according to the following formula:

"Mr. Capper presented a petition, numerously signed, of sundry citizens of Baxter Springs, Kans., praying for the enactment of Senate bill 860, to prohibit the sale of alcoholic liquor and to suppress vice in the vicinity of military camps and naval establishments, which was ordered to lie on the table."

No petition signed by a citizen or subject of a foreign nation may be received by the senate except through the President.

Under the House rules, members having petitions or memorials to present may indorse them, mark them for proper committee reference and deliver them to the clerk. The Speaker then has them entered in the official Journal and has them printed in the Congressional Record, unless in his judgment they are of an insulting or obscene nature, in which case he has them returned to the member who presented them.

House petitions and memorials are printed in the Congressional Record under the heading "Petitions, Etc." according to the following formula:

"Under clause 1 of rule XXII, petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

"3265. By Mr. Merritt: Resolutions of the American Legion in Kings County, Department of New York, that suitable recognition of the valiant services rendered by Father Peter B. Duffee, O. F. M., associated with the Church of St. Francis d'Assisi, New York City, be given by the government of the United States; to the committee on naval affairs."

In 1836 John Quincy Adams, to test the "Gag Rule," almost started a riot in the House by offering a petition purporting to come from 22 slaves. After a three-day debate on a proposal to expel the Massachusetts abolitionist, he revealed that the petition was not for emancipation, but for a continuance of slavery.

The Canadian Red Cross Asks for Blood For the War Wounded - - - YOUR BLOOD IS NEEDED!

JOHN J. TRUDEAU
President of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville, sponsors of the Canadian Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic in this city.

JAMES A. BARCLAY
Chairman of the Auxiliary War Services Committee of the Kiwanis Club. This committee has the responsibility of securing donors for the clinic.

The Nazi sky raiders had gone, fought off by British interceptors, but not before they had dropped their deadly eggs. So that London street was a reeking ruin, its shattered houses leaning crazily together, when a man emerged from one with a small, still form in his shaking arms.. . "He'll die for sure," he yelled as he laid his son on what was left of a cellar door. "He's so badly shocked he can't speak. .Look at his legs". Then a Red Cross ambulance came clanging up the blitzed street. A doctor and a nurse leaped down from it. "He needs a transfusion," declared the doctor after a brief examination, and grabbed a bottle from a rack. In that bottle was a substance that looked exactly like brown sugar. The doctor added water from another bottle, shook the mixture vigorously. It now looked like orange shellac. Then he and the nurse rigged up a rubber tube which ran from the bottle to the boy's arm. The contents of that bottle and another and another flowed into the boy's veins. A flush came to the pale cheeks and in a minute or two the child stirred. "Thank God!" exclaimed the father. Miraculous rescues like this are being staged every day in this war-torn world. But the earthly benefactor may be you or your next-door neighbor or the man who delivers your milk, for such victims—not only civilians injured in air raids but soldiers and air-force men and sailors aboard ships engaged in hunting down U-boats—owe the new grip on life supplied by that stuff which looks like brown sugar but is in reality dried human blood serum.

F/L. Nicholls of No. 5 I.T.S., and Mrs. B. C. Sisler, one of the volunteer nurses taking blood from an airman. This procedure usually takes from 8 to 10 minutes.

Several airmen from I.T.S. being served refreshments by Mrs. C. A. Cameron after giving their blood as donors. Notice the smiles on their faces. They are almost saying, "Well, that wasn't hard to take, after all."

All "red-blooded" Canadians have an interest in efforts which are being made to assist those who are really in the front line in this war. Since the middle of June when the "Canadian Red Cross Bloor Donors Clinic," sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, opened in Belleville,, over 950 citizens showed tanglible assistance by voluntary donation to this great cause. They have come from near and far, from air-force, navy and army, from factory and office, from schools and clubs, all eager to help by giving their blood.

But, we need more and more to carry on, WON'T YOU HELP? Study the pictures on this page, Yes, you know them all. They are citizens you know, all giving their services willingly and freely—as you can see by the expressions on the faces of the donors, there is nothing to it. It doesn't hurt, it leaves absolutely no after effects, and it only takes one half-hour of your time. Clip out and mail the coupon on this page, to the "Canadian Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic." Make it one more effort on your part to help in this great cause, and do it NOW.

The four attendants wore picture gowns of faille; in lovely fall shades of green, gold, cocoa and rust. The long fitted basque bodices and the new drop shoulder were outlined as were the little mob caps of matching material, and the extremely full skirts had slight trains Each carried a large sheath bouquet of Fall flowers.

The best man was William Newby and the ushers were Albert Hopkins, brother of the bride, Lieut. John A. Deacon, Lieut. J. O. Smith, Squadron Leader M. Wilson and Douglas Sutherland.

The reception was held in the lovely grounds of "Valley View", home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Hopkins was gowned in a raspberry-red crepe with French sequin trimmings of the same shade. Her small sailor hat of matching material had a pleated brim and veil dotted with the sequins, and she wore a corsage of large white rubrum lilies with pink centres. Mrs. Newby, mother of the bridegroom, was smart in seagold crepe and small shirred hat of matching material with veil. She wore a corsage of fall shaded blooms.

For her honeymoon to the Laurentians, the bride wore an ensemble of moss-green, woollen dress, hat and coat trimmed with mink, and rust brown accessories. On their return the couple will live at 1 Cheritan Avenue, Toronto, temporarily.

After graduating from Havergal College the bride spent one year at school in London, England, and had the honor of being presented at Their Majesties' Court in Buckingham Palace. The bridegroom, who attended Belleville Collegiate Institute, is a graduate of Queen's University.

WASN'T TOO WORRIED

East St. Louis, Ill., Sept. 15—(AP)—When Mrs. Margaret Rutledge received a letter from the Veterans' Administration containing information that her husband, Robert B. Rutledge, was dead, she didn't let it bother her. She knew that her husband, following the routine he had for many years, would be home for dinner as usual after his daily duties as a salesman. The Washington bureau was notified that Rutledge, a 69-year-old veteran of the Spanish-American war, was very much alive.

Bride, Not Fiance, Buys Wedding Dress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1.—Is it proper for an engaged girl to buy her own hope chest, or is her fiance supposed to buy this?

2.—I am to be married in December, and I am uncertain if I am to pay for my wedding dress and going-away outfit, or if my fiance pays for these.

3.—What about the bridesmaids' gowns—who pays for these?

Babs

.—The fiance may properly give his fiancee the hope chest, but it is not necessary for him to do this, and it shouldn't be expected unless he suggests it.

2.— Under no circumstances should the prospective bridegroom give his bride-to-be her wedding dress and going-away outfit. Either the bride herself or her family pays for these.

3.—Each attendant of the bride is expected to pay for her own dress and accessories, and each attendant of the bridegroom pays for his own attire. The bride plans every detail of her attendants' costumes, but they pay for their costumes. This is why the bride must be very thoughtful about the cost of these costumes, so that being an attendant will not be too much of a financial burden.

Relatives Never Gives Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if it is proper to give a stork shower for the prospective mother of a second child? Some of my friends have told me that a stork shower should be given only for a first baby.

I have a sister who has one child, a girl of eight and now she is expecting her second baby. Would it be proper for me to give her a shower for this second baby?

N. G. T.

Your friends aren't right on the information they gave you, that it is not proper to plan a stork shower for any child but a first child.

But I am wondering if they gave you this information instead of the correct information they might have given you, that it is not correct for a close relative to plan any kind of shower. Perhaps they did not want to tell you this, but it is true that when such a close relative as a sister plans a shower it certainly gives the unattractive impression that the shower is too obviously a "bid" for gifts.

The best plan is for a group of your sister's close women friends to plan a stork shower for her, either before the baby's birth, or, better, several weeks afterward.

Question For Husband to Decide

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been married 13 years and have three children. My husband has been employed at the same job for the past fifteen years. Now he has a chance at a much better paying job and he doesn't know whether to take it or not. The conditions of the new employment are such as he's wanted to work in all his life. Yet we're both afraid it would be only for the duration.

Would it be unwise to give up an old job for a new one which, while paying more, wouldn't last.

Worried.

Many letters on this very question have come to this column. Boiled down to "yes" and "no", it's a question for individuals themselves to answer.

If people own their own homes, have a comfortable life insurance, expectation of inheriting money, they can afford to take a job in a more congenial environment at better pay. If a man is apt at his work, such a job is likely to lead to another, after the duration. On the other hand, if the head of the family has nothing put by for a rainy day and he hasn't plenty of initiative, it might be unwise to give up a steady job for short-time employment, even though it pays better.

Three Lonesome Girls

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We live in a big city; we all like to dance but yet we don't like to go to dances without escorts. When we go down to town to a show or window-shopping, we see so many nice-looking young men talking together, but as nice girls we can't go up and start a conversation.

We happen to live in a district where there are no young people's clubs for us to join we enjoy sports but we don't want to go to these events alone. We correspond with some boys in the service, but just on a friendly basis.

Date

As the city from which you write is one of the largest in the world, it's a little hard to understand your difficulty in making friends. If you had only told me the district in which you live, I could have been of more help to you. Almost every church in your city is engaged in making things agreeable for soldiers, and there's a crying need for girls to talk to these men, dance with them and serve them suppers.

Medical World Disagrees on Care of Nail-Puncture Wounds on Feet

In the good old summer time when many children go barefoot, puncture wounds of the feet occur quite often. Of ocourse this kind of wound may often happen when persons wearing shoes step on an up-pointed nail in a board, or a nail whose point is exposed in some other way.

There is a great difference of opinion, Dr. Fred H. Bowen of New River, N.C., points out, concerning the way these puncture wounds of the foot may best be treated. Some physicians have suggested that the wound be probed, or be opened wide by cutting it, or be injected with an antiseptic solution.

Dr. Bowen thinks that any such treatment is unnecessary, painful and harmful. He does not think that dirt or other material is carried very deep into the tissues by a nail, but rather that these substances collect at the point of injury in the skin or just beneath it.

By the time a patient walks from the place where the nail puncture wound occurred to the doctor's office, the wound is no longer a straight opening, Dr. Bowen says. Hence, to use a probe in the wound will injure the tissues and will tend to cause infection.

The treatment which Dr. Bowen suggests for these wounds is to soak the foot for from 15 to 30 minutes in hot water to which tincture of green soap or a soapy solution of cresol has been added. Then the foot is carefully dried and the skin around the wound for about two or three inches is painted with an antiseptic substance. Following this, the edges of the wound are grasped with forceps and the skin is cut away for a little distance around the edge of the wound. In this way any sand or particles of sock, leather, rust or rubber which can easily be removed by grasping them with a forceps will be gotten rid of, or they may be wiped away with a piece of cotton soaked in an antiseptic solution. Probing of the wound to a depth greater than one-fourth of an inch is not done A dry dressing is applied and an injecion of tetanus antitoxin given to prevent lockjaw. If the wound is made by a large nail the patient is instructed to skip work for a day or two. But if it is caused by a small nail the patient is allowed to return to his work at once. He is instructed to soak his foot in hot water for thirty minutes when he reaches home and to repeat this at bedtime.

In more than 650 patients in this way no ill results occurred. No tetanus developed and the average period of disability was about one-half day.

Council Rejects Jap's Application

Saskatoon, Sept. 15 (CP)—An application from Y. Takahachi, British Columbia Japanese now in the farm service camp at Petrolia, Ont., to live in Saskatoon so that he could attend the University of Saskatchewan was rejected by the city council last night.

On a motion of Alderman A. M. Eddy, Takahachi will be advised that "in view of the very considerable opposition to the admittance of Japanese to Saskatoon" his application will not be granted.

Salvation Army Always on Hand To Help Families in Distress Now Needs Funds to Carry on Work

The work of the Salvation Army is as complex as human nature, human experience and human problems. Most people know something of the work of this well-known service organization, but primarily the aim of the organization is to persuade people to live Christian lives.

But they have found too that often the people who need leadership in the Christian way of living, are also hungry, physically sick morally outcast or completely helpless.

Just a few of the public services in which the local branch of the Salvation Army is constantly engaged includes interviewing prisoners in jail with religious services being conducted for their benefit, as well as assistance given to them in courts. Thansients are assisted with meals, beds and clothing, while emergency relief is also given out by willing Army workers.

They also do yeoman service in assisting in family relations and in helping to keep the home together when friction between the principals appears leading to the disruption of the home.

Possibly the most outstanding of Salvation Army activities during wartime is their work among the men of the armed services in non-military areas. Many a soldier, airman or sailor has had his leisure hours brightened through the kind consideration of Salvation Army members or by the facilities offered through their organization.

Visit Bereaved Soldiers' Families

With casualty lists beginning to contain the names of more and more Canadians as the intensity of all phases of activity on the various war fronts increases, the visitation by Salvation Army members to bereaved and wounded soldiers' families is assuming added importance. This sympathetic gesture on the part of what may well be a stranger to the family, is greatly appreciated when a loved one is reported missing or has given his all in the defence of his country and loved ones.

Money is needed, however, to help carry on the many phases of welfare activities with which the Salvation Army is associated. It is for this purpose that the united campaign for funds by the three social organizations will be opened in Belleville next week. A donation to the coming drive will help support the hand outstretched to help the unfortunate.

Young People's Union Of Baptist Church Opens Season With Banquet

The B.Y.P.U. of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church held their opening banquet on Monday night in the Sunday School rooms. Guest speaker for the occasion was F/L Inman of Trenton R.C.A.F. Station, who gave a fascinating and inspiring address. He told the young people that they had great opportunities for service today and they could make a contribution in the church that older people, with all their experience, could not make.

"People have different ideas of God," stated the speaker. "Various impressions have been gained through reading, through teaching given, and what has been seen in the lives of other folk. Many people today are not sure about the old ideas of God when they see the headlines in the daily paper and read what the tremendous power of evil seems to be accomplishing. We must have a sure conviction about God if we are to help people in these panicky days.

"The highest conception of God is heightened by adversity. Many people have the idea that the eyes of God are searching out to convict people and make them miserable. Rather, God is searching out to find those whose hearts and minds and wills are in harmony with Him. He seeks to show Himself strong toward those whose hearts are strong in Him.

"Evil can never prevail," the speaker assured his hearers. "It is always being undermined by the righteousness of God, even when it seems to assume its most gigantic, exaggerated proportions. The power of Hitler will decline and fade away even as did the power of Napoleon."

Urging the young people to be loyal to the group and to be willing to assume their responsibilities as Christians in the life of the church and community, F/L Inman added: "The facets of our lives can flash back Christlikeness when heart and purpose are in harmony with the will of God."

The evening's program was in charge of the president, Mr. Ed. Burn. After the satisfying repast Mr. Eric Naylor led a hearty sing-song of favourite choruses. A beautiful duet was sung by the Misses Katherine and Anna Hogle. Miss Jean Cook was heard in two humorous readings, "Aunt Sylvia's First Geography Lesson", and "Peeking".

During the devotional exercises Scripture was read by Miss Helen Thompson, while Miss Edna Jobson offered prayer. A solo "My Father Knows" was sung by Mr. Nial Eastman." The benediction was pronounced by the pastor, Rev. H. O. Eastman.

C. W. L. Opens Fall Season Activities

At the first meeting of the Fall season of the Catholic Women's League held last evening in St. Michael's High School, John Street, there was a splendid attendance and plans were made for the coming season. Mrs. George Wilson, president, presided over the business of the meeting.

Discussion of the winter schedule had special reference to the restrictions in tea, coffee, sugar and meat. Nominations for offices in the diocesan executive, the convention being held in October, were presented. A letter was read from the Navy League announcing that magazines and books would be greatly appreciated and should be sent to the old Deacon Shirt Co., Building on Front Street. All those who are sending gifts to sailors were asked to include a ditty bag.

Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., referring to the large number present stated this was indicative of the deep interest manifested by the members in the work of the League whose activities are greatly increased by war work. He spoke of the lofty ideals of the United Nations in their battle for truth and justice against the intrinsic forces of evil of the Axis powers whose downfall is inevitable. Rev M. Murphy, O.M.I., who was present described the work of the League in Western Canada.

It makes a lot of difference when everyone answers the telephone promptly

Seconds are Valuable in speeding wartime communications

"A few seconds delay in answering my telephone—what difference does that make to telephone service?"

The answer is—plenty.

For instance, if everybody had been just two seconds faster in answering the more than two billion calls carried over this Company's lines in 1941, it would have meant a time-saving of 75 years!

And even that doesn't tell the whole story. Your calls travel over wires and cables and through central switching apparatus designed to serve many users. This interlocking system is carrying more calls, and more important calls than ever before. The time you save on your office or home telephone speeds other messages—may help some hard-pressed production man, army officer or government official to get his hurry-up call through without delay.

So—please help keep communication lines clear—answer your telephone promptly, avoid making unnecessary calls, and be brief,

Canada And China Drawn Closer Together in Friendship By Action of the Aggressor

Dr. Liu Shin Shun, Chinese Minister To Canada, Addresses United Church General Council

MUCH IN COMMON

The stubborn resolute determination of the Chinese people with the moral and other support of the United Nations will in the end defeat a long-harbored Japanese design for conquest of their nation, Dr. Liu Shin Shun, Chinese Minister Plenipotentiary to Canada told the United Church General Council here yesterday.

The distinguished Chinese in an address "China and Canada". poin pointed out the many things the two nations have in common and stressed the admiration his country and countrymen have for Canada and things Canadian.

For five years his country has fought the Chinese aggressor, Dr. Shun said. "Unfortunately much of our territory has been occupied; millions have lost their lives, have been founded and are homeless. Churches, hospitals, schools and factories have been ruthessly destroyed. Yet," he said, "China is forging ahead and enduring hardships with indescribable fortitude".

Must Drive Enemy Out

"China is firmly convinced that the aggressor must be driven out before her people can live happily. They have the choice between life and death and have made up their minds to fight resolutely to the end".

"They would sooner die for their country than live in bondage".

On the side of the Chinese is their capacity for hard work and resisting hardships, Dr. Shun said. He cited the thousands of Chinese works and students who have walked hundreds of miles after factories and universities were moved to the hinterland.

"My people have implicit faith in their generalissimo, General Chang Kai Shek. His sterling qualities as a soldier and a statesman is guiding his people through the most critical stage in their history. He is a source of unbounded insoiration and courage".

The moral and other support provided by friendly powers has enabled China to carry on her war effort more effectively, the speaker said.

"Canada is now in the same boat and is contributing an all-out war effort, one that gives ample evidence that she is one of the ramparts of Empire. Her achievements at Dieppe inspired the deepest admiration of her Chinese allies

Relations Improve

Both lovers of peace, Canada and China have seen their relations steadily improve during the last half-century, Dr. Shun said. Since the Japanese invasion of China, the assistance rendered her by Canada has synchronized with her indignation at Japanese aggression. This assistance and sympathy is seen in the vast shipments of wheat, flour and other materials sent to China, and by the springing up of many Chinese Relief Societies in the country.

Greatly significant was the fact that Canada was the first nation to declare war against Japan after the dark treachery of Pearl Harbor. "She was the first ally to rally to our side. Urgently needed military supplies were rushed to my country from yours".

Trade relations between China and Canada for the duration, Dr. Shun said must of neessity be lessened because of difficulty of transport. They wil, however, be resumed on a vast scale when peace finally comes.

Cultural life of both countries has been the reason for exchanges. Chinese students reap the benefit of Canadian education while Canadian missionaries and others have learned much from Chinese culture.

"There is no truer statement than that made some time ago by a distinguished Canadian, that the Pacific does not separate China from Canada but is a connecting link and a natura affinity between the two countries."

Caught Unprepared

Both countries are lovers of peace and do not believe in encroaching on the rights of others the distinguished Chinese stated. "We both are firm believers in the policy of 'live and let live'. We believed in peace and played into the hands of the aggressors who caught us wholly unprepared. But he reckoned without our fortitude, and now our potential strength is becoming greater and we have every assurance of victory in the final knockout'".

Both countries are truly democratic, Dr. Shun said. The Chinese admire the Canadian democratic principles while Canadians have long known of the democratic principles evidenced in the Chinese classics.

"My country has lied under these principles for time immemorial and has always showed a marked tendency toward the democratic system.

A mutual love of benevolence and right permeates both peoples, Dr Shun pointed out. The Chinese are lovers of honesty, wisdom and benevolence. They were shocked by the Japanese atrocities at Hong Kong and Shanghai. It merely proved that the Japanese have neither learned nor forgotten anything.

Always Good Friends

'Chinese and Canadians have much in common because they are always the best of friends, and will collaborate greater than ever before as members of the United Nations. They are today welded in the common struggle against aggression and are resolutely marching unswervingly toward the bright goal of victory", Dr. Shun concluded.

The distinguished visitor was introduced to the General Council by Secretary Dr. Gordon Sisco. He is the first Chinese Minister to Canada and comes from beleaguered Chungking. He is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University; Master fo Arts of Yale and Doctor of Philosophy of Columbia University. His appointment to Ottawa was his first diplomatic post outside China.

Second Carrier Pigeon Comes to Stay

For tre second time a carrier pigeon has come to Mr. Fred Gauthier's at 106 Moira Street East.

Four or five years ago one came and would not leave. A few days ago another came. It has decided to stay too, though Mr. Gauthier would like the owner to get it if at all possible. Other persons have reporter carrier pigeons coming to their premises but no one has claimed any of them.

Both birds seemed hungry when they came, said Mr. Gauthier The first one wore a steel band on the leg and has never been claimed. "It drew my attention when it tried to get the chicks' feed. It was hungry. I fed it and it followed me all over the place", said Mr. Gauthier. Though it has its freedom it has never gone away.

About the bird which came last week, he said "It went into the hen coop and I shut the door and grabbed it and looked at the numbers on the rubber band. I fed it and it seemed anxious to stay about". This bird has the marks CU 42, then 2308, and also the figures 355. It evidently likes the company of the carrier.

Allan Mills

Allan Mills—The 12th Line school opened on Tuesday with Miss Doris Reid as teacher for the year.

Mr. Reg. McGee and Donna of Harold, Mr. and Mrs. R. Rowe, motored to Pembroke on Sunday to spend a few days. Mrs. Rowe will remain at her school again for the next season.

Misses Ilene and Jean McInroy visited Mrs. R. Wellman on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt visited Mr. and Mrs. H. McAdam of Mt. Pleasant on Sunday.

Several from this locality attended the shower in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thomson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Locke on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Reid, Joan and Diane, Mrs. Flintoff and Joyce of Oshawa, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Reid.

Mrs. Gussie Stiles and Mrs. Wm. McInroy spent a few days in this vicinity.

This vicinity was well represented at the miscellaneous shower in honour of the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reid held at the groom's home on Thursday evening.

Mr. Fred Barnum acted as chairman and called on Mr. Garland Irwin and Isabelle Irwin for a duet.

Mrs. R. Heath and Evelyn Gibson sang a duet. Several made speeches. Mr. Charles Heath read a very appropriate address, the bride and groom graciously replying. The beautiful gifts showed the high esteem in which the young couple are held. All joined in wishing them many years of happy wedded life.

Miss Betty McKeown visited her sister, Mrs. W. J. Barlow.

Mrs. Lorne Barnum's residence was the place of meeting of the Rylestone Women's Institute on Wednesday afternoon, the day being dedicated to social welfare, with Mrs. Hector Arnold presiding.

The roll call "One thing to remember in case of an accident", was answered in turn by the members.

Many interesting tips were forth coming on this subject.

Mrs. Lorne Barnum, Reg.N., gave the topic, "Common emergencies in the Home", and she spoke of the various occurrences such as burns, poisoning, shocks, frost bites, nese bleeds, etc., and their proper treatment. A special prize of $3 was offered to Campbellford Fair. Some socks were handed in and Mrs. E. Irwin was authorised to procure an additional supply of wool from the Campbellford Branch at the Red Cross. Several quilts are being prepared; some sewing was done by members during the past month. A number of accounts were passed. The motto was by Mrs. Thomas Fry, "The Institute Ode" in which she urged all members to pay dues and attend meetings regularly. She also said that while it is the duty of all to be willing to die for one's country. It is also a glorious thing to live well for one's country.

A reading entitled "The man we pass by" was capably given by Mrs. John Simpson.

NOW WE RECOMMEND ALL-BRAN TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

Says Mrs. Joseph Pare, Montreal, Quebec: "I find KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN much more satisfactory than pills or powders. Nearly all our family suffered from constipation. Our friends suggested pills and powders, but relief was only temporary. Now we eat ALL-BRAN regularly and recommend it to our friends."

Instead of waiting until you suffer and then dosing yourself with harsh purgatives, try ALL-BRAN's "Better Way" to correct the cause of constipation due to the lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet. Eat it daily and drink plenty of water, but. remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like a cathartic; it takes time. ALL-BRAN is sold at your grocer's in two convenient sise packages; at restaurants in individual serving packages. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

General Council Highlights

Conference opened its Monday sessions by hearing Dr. Henry Van Dusen make his last address which was an argument from history that religion has risen and waned. This is one of seven great transitional periods. No one can possibly predict what life will be like in twenty years hence. "Ours is an age of the great recession of religion in the older spheres where it has had sway. The outcome is unpredictable, but the evidence of history is that the new wave of expansion and recovery of vitality will be in those new countries where the indigenous Church is the latest contribution to Christian Mission. Our tasks is to keep the candles burning where lights seem to have gone out.

Fraternal delegates were heard. Rev. Dr. J. Shackleton Dauerty of Morrestown, Pa., brought greetings from the Western Section of the Reform Churches holding the Presbyterian form throughout the world, of which the United Church of Canada is a constituent member, and of which Dr. George C. Pidgeon has serviced as president and Principal Richard Davidson as chairman of one of its main committees. He reported on the generous aid given by churches for relief of victims of war's distress in a fellowship of mercy. No funds were lost in transit and relief has been extended throughout Europe and parts of Asia and Africa. The United Church was thanked for its donation of $50,000 and Drs. Pidgeon and Davidson praised for their work.

Rev. Luther A. Weigle, dean of Yale Divinity School and president of the General Council of Churches of Christ in America, who also belongs to the Congregational Union, also brought greetings from the Federal Council. The United Church of Canada is the only Canadian Church linked with the 34 religious bodies of the United States, who work in concert representing a membership of twenty-five millions.

Dean Weigle said there would be need of 10,000 chaplains within the next year; 5,000 are now on duty.

Council received the report of the delegation that was received by Premier King on Saturday, with great enthusiasm and promised him full support in any action that would be effective.

Mrs. L. F. Stevens, president of the Dominion Board of the W.M.S. was heard and told of the problems war has brought to their work at home and abroad. She said that the willingness of missionaries to go to other fields has been an epoch of self forgetting fortitude which they share with Christians in occupied countries. Three missionaries are still in Japan and three in occupied China. North China, Korea and Japan has been evacuated. The "End of the Beginning" not the "Beginning of the End". "We stand ready to return when the way opens". Money diverted from Foreign fields has made possible new types of expansion of services at home.

Mrs. J. R. Solomon, Dominion president of the newly formed Dominion Association of Women's Associations reported for that body which represents membership of 149,591 members who are grouped into 5,268 units assisting the Church across Canada. It has 3,268 units doing war service work in Canada. Appreciation of this work was recorded by vote.

In view of the discussion that is to take place on the future of the United Church Publishing house in a later report of a Commission of enquiry, the report of the Book Steward, Rev. C. H. Dickenson, B.A., B.D., was heard with great interest. He traced the services rendered the church both financially in the funds it has made available to the Pension Fund according to constitution, the services it provides the church in its printing of its papers and use of Wesley Buildings which cost the church nothing and are valued at two millions. He quoted the list of Canadian authors whose works have been published; and told of his efforts to solve some of the difficulties that have come about by change. There had not been a definite policy about book publication, but there was one evolving. Labor relations has been difficult, but he reported that two unions were established and a third only lacks one detail. He agreed with the right to have unions but just as emphatically to the right of the individual. The report was well received. . .and the Book Steward got an ovation.

The Committee on Vacancies presented their nominations for the four officers authorized on Saturday. For the Treasurer, Rev. Victor C. Mooney, Fairmount-St. Giles Church, Montreal, a most brilliant and capable young minister, aged 53, whose financial record in Woodstock and Lincoln Road. Walkerville, has been outstanding. Secretary of Pension Fund: Rev. Dr. J. C. Cochrane, D.D., of Northern Ontario fame, long the Superintendent of Home Missions, and a former minister in North Bay; for Secretary of Dept. of Christian Education: Rev. C. A. Myers, D.D.; and for the new office, Secretary of Department to administer colleges, Rev. Dr. W. H. Sedgewick, D.D., Westminster-Central Church, Toronto.

Difficulty arose about the procedure, and a resolution of Dr. H. Dobson secured delay of twenty-four hours after nomination before any vote

Discussion was long and many nominations from the floor were made until time for adjournment closed the session without a vote.

United Church Missionaries Continue Work Amongst Japanese in Canada

The United Church missionaries are grateful that the church has come through the years to fill so large a place in the lives of Japanese on the British Columbia coast. Mrs. L. F. Stevens, president of the Women's Missionary Society told General Council Commissioners yesterday.

"Missionaries," she said, "have followed Japanese removed to other parts of Canada to continue their ministry among these people.

"In the crisis they are now facing, we have not only a great opportunity, but a serious responsibility. Since December 7th., we have felt that our missionaries must continue their ministry increasingly, and follow these people to their new homes, wherever they are", Mrs. Stevens declared.

Mrs. Stevens in reviewing the missionary situation in West China pointed to the fact that the missionaries have become entrenched as the friends of the Chinese and done much to open wide the gates of Christianity.

"When the Honan field was evacuated we were able to enlarge our staff in West China with a medical and four field missionaries", she stated. "Living expenses increased twenty times its normal level and it was necessary to make an extra grant of $8,000 in order to make possible to the continuance of schools which had been planned to close".

In Africa and India, the work has been enlarged with increased staff and grants. The mass movement in India and the Unevangelised villages of Africa present a tremendous and constant challenge to the missionary movement and to the Home Church.

There is a great need for candidates in training who will be ready to reinforce our mission staff in all our foreign fields when the end of the war will permit, she stated.

Evacuation of fields in East Asia and the consequent lessening of expenditures there has resulted in the transfer to larger fields in Canada. Twenty foreign missionaries last year were at work in the Home field in community, Indian and hospital work. These missionaries who have been evacuated from fields in North and South China, Korea and Japan stand ready to return to these fields when the way opens.

This year the whole membership of the Women's Missionary Society will be studying Canada not Home Missionary work, but "The Church in my Community", said Mrs. Stevens to make a Christian Canada—a church in every community —Christian Homes, Economic Security, Christian Education wholesome recreation, community neighbourliness democracy.

Jas. H. Robinson Visits Home After Surviving Torpedo Attack in Atlantic

Trenton (Special)—Another of Trenton's men who go down to the sea in ships has arrived safely home from convoy duty after his ship was torpedoed in the Atlantic recently

Mr. James H. Robinson, Francis Street, Trenton, a veteran marine engineer who has sailed many types of ships up and down the great expanse of Canadian waters, and more recently the Atlantic ovean, narrowly escaped death with eighteen others of a crew when they were attacked by submarine somewhere in the Atlantic. When the torpedo struck the ship immediately broke in two and sank within two minutes. All nineteen members of the crew were able to get into one lifeboat and pushed themselves clear of the stricken vessel just previous to her sinking. They were picked up twenty-five minutes later by an escort ship and rushed to shore where it was found that none suffered any serious injury.

Was Working on Engines

Mr. Robinson, who is first engineer, had just relieved his second engineer whom he had sent below to adjust some minor trouble. No sooner had he taken over than a huge explosion occurred and he told reporters he knew immediately what had happened. Just previous to this the Captain had given the order "Full Speed Ahead" as if he had sensed that all was not well.

Mr. Robinson was loud in his praise of the conduct of the men on his ship who all stood to their posts until the command was given to abandon ship then each man took up his position with the speed and precision that only long hours of training can accomplish.

Mr. Robinson is resting at his home after this harrowing experience but is most anxious to return to duty where he can again serve his country.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Mackinson and son of Dundas Street East who have spent the past year in Trenton have left for Toronto where Mrs. Mackinson and her son are to reside for the duration. Mr. Mackinson has joined the Veteran Guard and is to be stationed at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Sgt. Pilot Jackson of Malton spent the weekend at his home on Shuter Street.

A.C. 2 Bill Rupert of No. 5 I.T.S. Toronto spent the weekend with friends and relatives in town.

Child Assaulted

A five-year-old girl was assaulted on Sunday afternoon at the rear of the main business block in downtown Trenton. Her assailant stuffed the child's skirt into her mouth to keep her from screaming, however, she made sufficient noise to scare the culprit. The child ran screaming to her parents who immediately notified the police. A search was quickly instituted of all likely places without result. The child was examined by Dr. Byrne and police are still searching for the man whom the child described.

Sidney Twp. Council

The September session of Sidney Council was held on the 7th instant.

The Deputy Reeve was appointed to provide transportation for Mrs. Finnegan to and from the Clinic in Belleville, for treatment. Mr. Lewis Bird, teacher of Centenary School, was present and addressed the Council re a dental survey and treatment of children throughout Sidney Township soliciting the co-operation of the local Board of Health and the various school boards to that end. He stated that a dental survey in his section revealed a great need for action in order to safeguard the health of children. In support of this statement, he said that in his school of twenty-five pupils there were only five whose teeth did not require the attention of a dentist.

A vote of thanks was tendered by the Council to Mr. Bird for his instructive address.

The Reeve was appointed to make an investigation as to the residence of Mr. C. R. Livingstone before assuming any hospital charges on his account.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid Ontario Intelligencer $7.23, Hastings Co., $72.63, A. Clare, $7.70, M. Dodds, $5.00, F. J. Woods $3.65, E. W. Hough $182.94.

Cancellation of Mr. J. S. Coleman's Hydro contract was authorized by the Council.

New York Yankees Capture Sixth Pennant in Seven Years By Defeating Cleveland 8-3

Joe McCarthy's Team Not as Good as Other Teams in Past

CARDS WIN AGAIN

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sport Writer

The Yankee team that clinched another American League flag by beating Cleveland yesterday undoubtedly is not the best that has worn the Bronx livery since Manager Joe McCarthy began winning championships in the bulk.

But, as Marse Joe points out with comfortable satisfaction, it is "plenty good enough." Its great pitching and greater defence will make it a pronounced favorite to win the fall title again, whether its opponent in the series is Brooklyn or St. Louis Cardinals. From looks of things today, it probably will be the Cards.

In some respects, the Yankees who won their sixth pennant in seven years through yesterday's 8-3 victory over the Indians look definitely less formidable than they did a year ago. Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller have not hit as they did in '41, and Tommy Henrich, third member of the championship outfield, is lost to the Coast Guard.

Borowy Pitching Star

On the other hand, the team has a brilliant new pitching star in Hank Borowy, and Ernie Bonham is better than he was last year. Bill Dickey has made a nice comeback with the willow, and the infield looks even a little slicker, if possible, than it did a year ago. The Yanks, in other words, will do.

Bonham had the distinction of pitching two of his team's prize victories during the year. On May 6 he pitched the Yanks into first place to stay, and his 20th victory yesterday settled all bets. With 98 wins and 47 losses, McCarthy's beauties could lose all their remaining nine games and still finish ahead of Boston Red Sox, who were blanked by Chicago White Sox yesterday, 4-0.

Browns Finish Third

The Yanks were not the only club to do some clinching, incidentally. St. Louis Browns sewed up third place in the American League when they put over an unearned run in the 16th inning to nose out the Athletics 5-4. This is the highest the Browns have finished since 1928.

In the one other American League, Sid Hudson relief-pitched and batted Washington to an 8-6 verdict over Detroit.

The Cards, by pushing across four runs on as many hits and three errors in the ninth, racked up a vital 6-3 victory over the Phils and stretched their advantage over the idle Dodgers to a game and a half.

With Morton Cooper, their 20-game winner, ready to pitch the final with the Phillies today, the Red Birds stand a fine chance of moving on to their next stand at Boston with a two-game margin over the Brooklyns.

The Giants, safely ensconsed in third place, socked the Pirates 6-1 to sweep their three-game series at the Polo Grounds. A four-run outburst in the eighth, climaxed by Max West's 14th homer with one on, gave the Braves a 4-2 decision over Chicago.

ERNIE LOMBARDI BATTING LEADER OF NATIONAL LOOP

Passes Reiser and Slaughter With Mark of .333 in 98 Games

TO BAT 228 TIMES

New York, Sept. 15 (CP)— Big Ernest Lombardi of Boston Braves, who is the slowest man in baseball without much doubt, bounded blithely into the batting leadership of the National League during the last week, waving in passing to Pete Reiser, Enos Slaughter and Stan Musial.

Big Ernie, with an average of .333 in 98 games, came to the fore suddenly when the statisticans recalled that the National League leadership was decided among those players who had taken part in 100 games or more, whereas the American League works on a basis of 400 times at bat.

With nearly a fortnight of play remaining, Lombardi is certain to go over the 100-game mark.

True, Ern had been to bat only 282 times through yesterday, while most of his league rivals were over or close to the 500 figure. Also he had made only 94 hits to Slaughter's 173. But he was the leader, nevertheless.

Reiser, who was out ahead a week ago with a mark of .324, held second place, even though his average fell to .318. Slaughter and Musial, the Cardinals' twin terrors, were tied for third and fourth at .314.

Ted Williams of Boston, with the lofty mark of .353, still had no deal rival for the American League leadership, but he was being pursued earnestly by his rookie teammate, Johnny Pesky. Pesky, after climbing into a tie with Joe Gordon a week ago for runner-up honors at .331, took over the spot all by himself with the lusty average of .339. With 199 hits to his credit, Pesky virtually was certain to be the first big leaguer to pass the 200 mark.

"Y" Athletes Hold Athletic Meet

Boys of the Prep and Junior Divisions of the Y.M.C.A. held a meet at the Fair Grounds on Saturday morning. Due to the rain during the week it was impossible to run any field events. However, a program of track events was closely contested.

As usual there were surprises and upsets. The most remarkable was the running of little Jimmie Calnan. Jimmie is only ten years old, stands 4' 3" and weighs under 60 pounds, but, after winning the sprints for his age, and taking the half mile run for boys under 12 with about 150 yards over Bobby Taylor, he entered the open mile, running against boys up to 14 years old, and some of them in High School and beat out such good milers as Harry Abbott and Bill Jackson who were expected to take the event with ease, with about 50 yards to spare, sprinting the last 150 yards in fine style.

Jimmie also managed to pile up more points than anyone else, to win the meet championship.

A feature of the meet was a half mile relay with eight runners to each team, won by Jack Campbell's runners.

Events

100 yards, 10 year olds: 1 Jimmie Calnan, 2 Keith Cameron, 3 Bobby Taylor.

Toronto, Sept. 15.—(CP) — The Ten to Ace brain trust (H. Giddings, president and general manager; C. W. Smith, executive assistant) may yet make a champion out of the big colt. . . .When Ten to Ace won at Toronto Thorncliffe last Saturday, he was paced as he never has been before. . . The system in previous races including the King's Plate and Canadian Derby, was to let Ten to Ace hit the front on top, take him as far out as he would go, then let him coast home. . .An ordinary thoroughbred, Little Kingpin, outbroke the Ace in his trial last Saturday and Jockey Smith let his chestnut charger run second for four furlongs, then took him into a half-length lead and finally shook him out four lengths on top . . . The opposition was quite ordinary, but Ten to Ace showed he can run from behind. . . . There had been some doubt about that . . .

RAIN, DARKNESS PREVENTS GAME BEING FINISHED

Zellers Leading 12-5 When Umpires Declare "No Contest"

LUSTY HITTING

Rain and darkness left the Belleville Ladies Softball League finals in the lurch for the second time within a week, when last night's attempt at a fifth game resulted in the game being terminated by the umpires in the top half of the seventh with Zellers leading Deacons 12 to 5. As seven full innings must be completed before a winner is declared, Convener Barney Smith announced after the game that another attempt would be made on Thursday night commencing at six o'clock.

In a best-in-five series the Zellers lead Deacons two games to one, with two additional attempts being terminated on account of darkness. Last night the league champions scored runs in every inning, including the top half of the seventh, before the officials called "no contest", while Bessie Doolittle seemed to improve on the Zeller mound as the game progressed, Deacons failing to score after the third inning.

Pauline Colden, with four hits in as many trips to the plate, lead the slugging Zellers, while Wilma Clarke, Helen Garrow, Irene Douglas and Pete Haslip had two hits each, the latter adding a second-inning triple to her batting prowess. Joyce Woodhouse paced the Deacons with a brace of singles, "Stewie" Stewart getting a second inning triple and M. Moreland a double as the Deacons only collected six hits in all, while Zellers counted 15 safeties. Zellers also provided a fast double play of Colden to Donovan to Garrow for the only two-ply killing of the game.

The line-ups:—

Zellers: Colden 2b, W. Clarke rf, Haslip cf, Garrow 1b, Donovan ss, Bennett 3b, Flindall c, Douglas and B. Clarke lf and Doolittle p. Deacons: Freeman 2b, Samain ss, Sword 3b, Corneal 1b, Woodhouse c, Hansey cf, Green rf, Stewart p and Moreland lf.

MELE HITS HOMER WITH TWO ON TO BEAT ROYALS

Syracuse Enjoying Two-Game Lead in Playoffs Over Montreal

GIANTS EVEN SERIES

(By The Associated Press)

Syracuse discovered during the International League season that a stingy pitching staff was a valuable asset, the Chiefs climbing from seventh place in midseason to third at the end of the year with hardly a base hit.

But they are discovering in the semi-final round of the governors' playoff series that a heavy hitter also can come in mighty handy. Last night at Montreal Dutch Mele swatted a home run with two mates on base in the first inning to start the Chiefs toward their 4-2 victory.

It wasn't until his final turn at bat that Mele was retired, the outfielder reaching first base each time in eight appearances at the plate in the two games.

Several hours before Mele put on his one-man show Jersey City Giants, with Hugh East on the mound, levelled their semi-final series with the pennant-winning Newark Bears at two games each. East stifled the Bears with a five-hit performance and triumphed 3-1.

All four clubs will be in action again today, Jersey City continuing as host to the Bears but Syracuse taking over in that role in the other bracket.

CASUAL COMMENT
by K.J.C.

ALTHOUGH THERE HAS BEEN a sinister silence surrounding Kingston's hockey intentions for the future, outside scources have long since predicted the Limestone City puck moguls would make overtures to gain admittance into the Ottawa and District Senior Hockey League. Scribe Bill Walshe, Kingston demon sports advocate, says the Kingston hockey interests have been forced to seek affiliation in the Ottawa District owing to transportation difficulties in making trips to Niagara Falls, Port Colborne and other senior O. H. A. cities in Ontario last season. However, there's one thing the Kingston scribe doesn't fully explain and that is how a Kingston hockey team can travel to Ottawa with increased additional gasoline rationing a foregone conclusion. As far as playing material the Limestones are assured of plenty of tried and proven pucksters through the various armed services stationed in Kingston, while it is rumoured that Wally Elmer and company also enjoy a working agreement with the Cleveland Barons.

REGARDING KINGSTON'S APplication into the Ottawa and District Association, the Ottawa Journal sport pages had this to say:"

"Strong possibility of Kingston operating a team in an Ottawa senior city hockey league setup featuring teams of the Armed Services started hockey men discussing the coming winter's operations. Kingston with a great many Army players to draw from has made application to the Ottawa and District Amateur Hockey Association for a playing berth under the jurisdiction of that body.

Kingston played last year in the O. H. A. but is anxious to take part in the Ottawa circuit. While the Senior City League has not met yet to organize for this year it is practically certain that Kingston's application will receive sympathetic treatment. One informed source declared that plans are already under way to make the city league this year an entirely service loop.

The Kingston entry may introduce a team of combines such as played in the O. H. A. last winter. There are a number of outstanding hockey performers posted there and it is also reported that there is a tie-up with Cleveland Barons of the American League. Word from the Limestone City is that there will be no trouble in forming a very strong squad to represent them in the Ottawa circuit."

SOME OF THE LARGEST OF the mat tribe have been included on Promoter Frank Tunney's Queensbury A. C. weekly show at the Hume sports palace tomorrow night. Skipper Tunney will toss into the same ring behemoths like George Duros, the 260-pound Greek from Chicago; Ali Aldali the 251-pound "terrible Turk," Big Earl McCready, who doesn't weigh an ounce under 245 pounds and meets the villianous John Katan in the British Empire heavyweight elimination bout billed as the feature attraction of the show. Never in the history of the muscle-bending business have so many pachyderms been included on the same card in Belleville. The qualitative results of such a show are too fearsome to predict, but in quantity the customers are sure to be provided with plenty. Hume Arena wrestling faithfuls, who have been clamouring for new faces, have had their desires fulfilled for this show at least.

IT IS QUITE EVIDENT THERE is little use starting a softball game after six o'clock these Autumn evenings. In their last two attempts to complete the fourth game in the City Girls Softball loop finals darkness has crept upon the contending clubs before seven inning could be terminated. Last night rain held up the game for sometime before Zellers resumed their attack to lead Deacons 12 to 5 before Umpire St. Louis was forced to halt hostilities on account of darkness in the top half of the seventh. Five times the Deacons and Zellers have crossed bats in the City gals' finals with only three games being completed in a best-in-five series, that sees Zellers lead two games to one. Many of the girls are engaged in vital war industry and cannot obtained time off to play softball. However, last Sunday afternoon a baseball game was played at the Fair Grounds, just as a suggestion of course. In the meantime the lassies will try it again night.

IN THE EVENT THERE'S AN odd billiard table lurking about a city garrett or even in the some person's private recreational room and not being utilized, the Airmen at the No. 5 I. T. S. would appreciate the same for the duration. Officials at No. 5 I. T. S. assured us such a table is urgently needed for the Airmen recreation room and will be kept in good repair and returned to the owner after war. The Airmen could do with an old radio for their recreation quarters also.

REMEMBER WHEN DICK Chapman scored the most impressive victory in 45 years in the United States Amateur Golf tournament on his home course at Mamaroneck, N. Y., two years ago today? Chapman defeated Duff McCullough of Philadelphia, eleven and nine. McCullough, a week end golfer, defeated two former champions and a two-time finalist on his way to the championship.

MAYBE LARRY MACPHAIL knew thereof what he spoke when he accused the Dodgers of playing lackadasical and listless ball last month. At any rate a jittery baseball nine from St. Louis is leading the National League by a scant one and one-half game margin today. The Cardinals showed outward signs of strain when they were pressed to score four runs in the ninth before beating the lowly Phillies 6 to 3 yesterday when they used 13 players, including three pitchers, to turn the trick. If the Cardinals showed signs of strain we wonder what the Phillies were going through—they kicked the ball around for 6 glaring errors, three of which came in the ninth when the pressure was on. There is only one game scheduled in the National League today—St. Louis at Philadelphia.

THIS AND THAT—WHILE THE National League is supplying the ball fans with pre-world series thrills in their current race, the New York Yankees slipped quietly in to clinch the American League flag for 1942.....It was their second consecutive pennant and sixth in the past seven years....Joe DiMaggio to four hits against the Indians yesterday, one being his 19th homer and his first circuit blow in a month....Leo Durocher says unless the Dodgers snap out of their present losing streak he'll inject himself into the lineup.... See where Van Lingle Mungo is through pitching for the current season....Mungo returned to the majors —by the Giants, twisted a knee last Friday and was ordered to refrain from pitching until next spring.....FO. Lew Hayman had over 100 ambitious airmen answer the call to the first practice of the R.C.A.F. senior O.R.F.U squad last night....Don Crowe, Peterboro's hockey and softball star, was one of them....Pick 'em up, left, right.

Brooklyn Fans Hold Faith In 'Dem Bums'

By JOHN K. MURPHY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 15 —(AP)— An embattled Brooklyn fandom chafed under activity of its Dodgers, but held tight today to a faith in them as strong as the waters of the Gowanus, and twice as deep.

"Dem Bums ain't dead, dey're only hoit," the consensus along Flatbush Avenue after St. Louis pulled 1½ games ahead in the National League by whipping Philadelphia yesterday while the Dodgers were idle.

From the top of the borough's social and political scale to the lowermost floor of the elevator operated by Jeremiah Francis Looney, partisans muttered encouragement for the men of Ebbets Field.

Said Looney: "Us guys in the stands is buildin' up reseive lung power so's we can yell our brains out rootin' the Bums in. They's takin' a setback, soitenly, but Grant didn't get to Lee wit'out trouble, did he?"

Judge Samuel Leibowitz rendered this verdict: "Brooklyn licked? Hah, little you know. Brooklyn never quits. Brooklyn is synonomous with dynamite. Watch us go."

The spirit even spread across the river to Manhattan, where one soda clerk posted on the mirror behind a sign saying: "The Cardinals are leading."

It was hung with black crepe.

Football Training In Full Swing

Toronto, Sept. 15 (CP)—Football training is in full swing in Toronto these days, with three senior Ontario Rugby Football Union teams warming up for the start of the season on Sept. 26.

Balmy Beaches have six former Argonaut players in their lineup and coach Alex Ponton is working overtime these nights whipping the club into shape for the opener against Hamilton Wildcats, eastern Canada finalists last year.

Jack Young, good Argo lineman of some years ago turned up at last night's workout and other imports from the Scullers are Annis Stukus, Ed. Jakubowski, Len Staughton, Dave Ferris, Bill Zock and Jim Young.

The boys from H.M.C.S. York are out hustling. Besides a backfield, including Hughie Cuddie, Elwin Morris, Bob Goldham and Russ Merrifield, naval coaches Teddy Morris and Jim Palmer have a hefty line with former Argo wingmen Steve Levantis, Jack Wedley and Pat D. Reid acting an anchors.

Meanwhile PO. Lew Hayman, coach of the Royal Canadian Air Force entry from No. 1 Training Command, has a host of talent, including such names as Art West (from Argos); Eddy Thompson (Balmy Beach); Harby Moores (Balmy Beach); Truck Langley (Ottawa); Jake Gaudaur (Argos and Hamilton); Don Durno (Montreal); George Oliphant (Argos and University of Western Ontario).

RUGBY STAR KILLED

Sarnia, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP)—Warrant Officer James R. Shanks, one of three airmen killed in a collision near Richmond, Ont., Sunday, was a member of the Imperial senior football team in 1938.

He was quarterback for the Sarnia Collegiate team when it won a W.O.S.S.A. championship a few years ago and also participated in baseball and basketball. The funeral will be held here probably Thursday.

GOOD DEDUCTION

Milwaukee, Sept. 15 —(AP)—The dog that didn't bite the burglars solved a robbery case today. It was all clear to John O'Connel when he found his house ransacked and the family terrier sleeping peacefully. He figured that if the dog had made no commotion the burglars must be nearby residents. He was right—two neighborhood boys, 14 and 16, admitted the robbery.

NATIONAL HOCKEY

"While neither country (Canada or the United States) has any intention of granting exemption from military service to hockey players or other athletes, there is no objection to allowing any man who are not subject to military service to continue their professional athletic activities unless and until they are requested to engage in some non-military war duty."

This statement apparently leaves selective service officials free to direct professional hockey players, or other professional athletes, into other work if such action is deemed necessary in future. But the announcement from Selective Service Headquarters here said: "In the meantime there would be nothing to hinder the National Hockey League from engaging in the winter schedule of international games."

Amateurs Also Considered

Consideration also has been given to a request from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for a ruling on the position of players and teams in its organizations, said Mr. Little. The statement from his office said:—

"The ruling means that professional hockey can continue with no special considerations having been granted.

"No representations will be made in behalf of a hockey player by National Selective Service if the player seeks deferment when he is called up for military training.

"And hockey players will be subject to our regulations which provide that any person in Canada may be requested to transfer from one job to another of equal or greater essentiality.

"The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has undertaken to arrange its schedules, particularly travelling schedules which occur during playdowns and playoffs to allow for a minimum of lost time from work.

"This co-operation is necessary, because every adult amateur hockey player, like every other able-bodied citizen, must have a job and must remain on that job the maximum possible time."

On Voluntary Basis

Transfer of workers from one industry to another is on a voluntary basis. If an individual is wanted for work considered more essential in wartime, the procedure is for a National Selective Service official to approach him and ask him to change his employment. The decision then is up to the individual. He may take the more essential job or remain where he is, as he may see fit.

After conferences with Mr. Little some weeks ago Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, submitted a brief to the Selective Service Director outlining the manpower requirements of the league during the coming season.

It was on the basis of that survey—and after consultation with United States Selective Service officials—that the decision, announced today, was made.

After the original conferences with the N.H.L. president, Mr. Little said: "It may be necessary to give some consideration to maintaining the N.H.L. in some form, or on some basis, or else we would face the problem of replacing what it at present means to hundreds of thousands of Canadians in entertainment and maintenance of morale."

Submitted to Washington

At first it was thought possible Mr. Little would reach his own decision on the matter but because of the international aspect of the N.H.L. he submitted the league's position to Washington officials as well.

It was understood here that Canadian players would be permitted to go as usual to the United States to play with United States teams. The possibility was seen, too, that selective service—which soon is to take over the calling up of men for military service—might institute a more uniform policy in this regard than was in operation last year by Regional War Services Boards. Some boards last year permitted issuance of passports to men of military age while others refused them.

"Danger In The Pacific"

Streamlined action thrills and a tense, up-to-the-minute mystery story will be presented next at the McCarthy Theatre in the new hit "Danger In The Pacific."

Leo Carrillo and Andy Devine are starred. Don Terry and Louise Allbritton are other vividly characterized featured players in the absorbing drama.

Plot Moves Rapidly

The excitement really gets under way when Carrillo, Devine and Terry arrive, to be followed later by Miss Allbritton, on a tiny island in the Pacific. Carrillo and his companions are seeking a suspected terrorist gang in the interior.

As an Intelligence Officer, Carrillo presents his usual convincing, good-humored performance. The actor, generally thought of as essentially a character comedian, rises to new dramatic heights in his face-to-face scenes with the ruthless conspirators on the island.

Devine is, of course, the lovable blundering personality upon which his screen popularity is founded. Terry plays a believeable type of hero, roughly handsome but not too debonair. Miss Allbritton has a warmth and fresh beauty that, along with her apparent dramatic ability, portends stardom in the not too distant future.

"Hi Neighbor"

Featuring such entertaining personalities as Lulubelle and Scotty, Jean Parker, Don Wilson, Vera Vague, Roy Acuff and the Smoky Mountain Boys, Janet Beecher, John Archer, Marilyn Hare and Harry "pappy" Cheshire the added feature "Hi Neighbor" promises to be one of the most delightful musical comedies of the season. A four star short subject entitled "eaceful Quebec At War" will also "Peaceful Quebec At War" will also be presented at each performance.

AT THE CAPITOL

"You'll Never Get Rich"

Supporting the principals in this joyous filmusical of army camp life are such well-knowns as Robert Benchley, John Hubbard, Osa Massen, Frieda Inescort, Guinn Williams and Donald McBride.

Against the framework of a strong romantic story, by Michael Fessier and Ernest Pagano, "You'll Never Get Rich" provides ample opportunity for entrancing dance routines. The co-stars, of course, are superbly seen, but a brilliant background of Hollywood's finest dancers lends eye-ravishing effect to the spectacular sequences.

The year's greatest star team in the year's greatest bombardment of songs, laughs and girls, Fred Astaire and Rita Hayworth dance and romance their way through Columbia's delightful, spectacular musical, "You'll Never Get Rich," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre. A comedy of army camp life, with a singable, swingable background of music by Cole Porter, "You'll Never Get Rich" belongs well up in anybody's list of motion pictures worth seeing.

"Hold That Woman"
First Belleville Showing

Something brand-new in the comedy and thrills line came to the screen of the Capitol Theatre last night, when "Hold That Woman," produced by Sigmund Neufeld and distributed by Producers Releasing Corporation, made its debut in the film entertainment field. That the audience thoroughly appreciated the picture's original slant, its bright, breezy action and clever acting of principals and supporting cast was amply testified to by the storms of applause it evoked.

James Dunn, well-known comedian, and his wife, piquant and pretty Frances Gilfford, are the principals.

An interesting new Canada Carries On featurette "Women Are Warriors" and news events of the day completes the double feature attraction.

AT THE BELLE

"Beyond the Blue Horizon"

Dorothy Lamour, whose pictures always turn out to be solid entertainment hits, is now on the Belle Theatre screen—and that's good news!

Dotty makes her return to the screen in a new Paramount jungle film in Technicolor, "Beyond The Blue Horizon." Yes, folks, she wears a sarong in this one!

Her new jungle mate is Richard Denning. He's tall, blonde and handsome, is a first-rate actor and reports describe him as ideal for Dotty's romantic partner.

The Belle latest Movietone News described by Lowell Thomas, a color fun cartoon, Robert Benchley in "How to Take a Vacation" and "Women are Warriors," a Canada Carries On feature, completes the program.

"Wings For The Eagle"

A timely film, crammed with action, romance and excitement is coming to the Belle Theatre when Warner Bros. "Wings For The Eagle" makes its local debut. The picture features Ann Sheridan and Dennis Morgan in the top roles with a impressive supporting cast made up of Jack Carson, George Tobias and Russell Arms. The realistic setting is the huge Lockheed Aircraft Plant where the constant fight against time surpasses all personal conflict.

Ann Sheridan, Dennis Morgan and Jack Carson are all workers at the Lockheed Plant who constantly are at odds among themselves until Pearl Harbor puts their own problems into the background. Lloyd Bacon, who has directed many a hit film, comes across with another in "Wings For The Eagle."

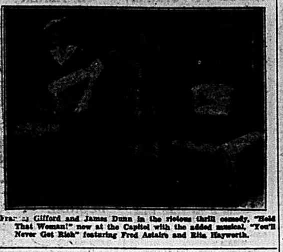
Pitches Are Perfect

When a pitcher can be knocked out of the box twelve times in one hour, and right after that strike out 28 men in a row, you know he can be pitching for only one team —Brooklyn.

Here's how it happened. George Holmes, young movie recruit, was playing a star pitcher for the Brooklyn ball club in 20th Century-Fox's "It Happened In Flatbush," a story of big league love, and laughs, which is the worthy added feature attraction, was supposed to "blow up" and be removed by Lloyd Nolan, who plays the Brooklyn manager. He went through the sequence twelve times before it was okayed.

Right after this, Director Ray McCarey photographed a subsequent scene, of a different game, in which Holmes strikes out three men in a row. He pitched strikeouts 28 times before the movie cameras finally recorded the sequence the way it was wanted!

Walt Disney's latest Hunk of Joy, "Donald's Gold Mine," will also be exhibited.



Frances Gifford and James Dunn in the riotous thrill comedy, "Hold That Woman!" now at the Capitol with the added musical, "You'll Never Get Rich" featuring Fred Astaire and Rita Hayworth.

DAMAGING BLOW

bombing and torpedo planes, in pursuing the expedition, sank the cruiser and damaged the four ships. The Cairo announcement said long-range British fighters forced these large formations of enemy bombers to jettison their bombs.

Nazis Support Italians

In the second-day Italian communique, Italian troops were given most of the credit for the Axis defence of the port. After reporting that the San Marco Marine Battalion had particularly distinguished itself, the Italians acknowledged that it was "later supported by German troops in the fighting."

"Within five hours time we Italians were masters of the situation" the communique boasted.

The Italians claimed that 576 British prisoners were taken, including 34 officers and that a large amount of British equipment was captured.

British sources declined to comment on Italian reports that parachutists were used in the raid.

The Cairo communique said large formations of Axis bombers attempted to intercept British warships returning from the commando-type raid on Tobruk but long-range R.A.F. fighters "obliged them to jettison their bombs and inflicted casualties."

Over the Egyptian battle front, air activity was on a small scale yesterday, the bulletin from general headquarters said. Except for daylight artillery exchanges and night patrol operations, the land front also was quiet.

Saturday night, however, the communique said that heavy, medium and light bombers of the Allied air forces carried out three attacks "in force"—against shipping and port installations at Bengasi, airfields at Sidi Heneiah and picked targets at Tobruk.

"Explosions and fires were caused, anti-aircraft and searchlight batteries put out of action and encampments attacked," the announcement said.

U.S. Airforce Assists

Headquarters of United States Army Air Forces in the Middle East (AP)—United States bombers backing up the British assault on Tobruk, carried out "one of theor most extensive operations" of the Middle Eastern campaign Sunday night, the United States Air Force Command announced today.

Both heavy and medium bombers participated in the American air attack, centred primarily on waterfront and airfield targets where the Axis defences against the commandos might be hardest hit.

"In Tobruk, one particularly violent explosion was caused and fires started which could be observed for many miles," the communique said.

Shipping and shorefront at Bengasi also were hammered and fires were set among grounded planes at enemy air bases, it reported, with the United States forces encountering heavy anti-aircraft fire but no Axis night fighters.

John Archer and Jean Parker featured with Don Wilson and "Pappy" Cheshire in the musical-comedy "Hi Neighbor" coming to the McCarthy screen next with the thrill hit, "Danger in the Pacific" starring Andy Devine and Leo Carrillo.

Veterans Say Jap Soldiers Fought Like Tigers in Milne Bay Battle

Associated Press Staff Writer

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 15 — (AP) — Australian veterans who fought the Germans at Tobruk and the Japanese at Milne Bay agreed unanimously today that the Japanese soldier is a wily fighting man more dangerous than any Hitler threw at them.

"It was like fighting tigers down in that jungle and it was a question of kill or be killed," said one Aussie who got a bullet wound in the neck at Milne Bay, in southeatsern New Guinea.

"There was no quarter given and no prisoners taken on either side."

He was among the first wounded to arrive in Australia from the Milne Bay action which started Aug. 26 when a Japanese convoy moved in a naval landing force under cover of darkness in a pelting rain.

One Australian unit clashed with the invaders about 3 A. M. and by afternoon had driven the enemy more than a mile back toward their landing place.

The Aussies encountered a bag full of Japanese tricks, from firecrackers to infiltration.

This is the story one of the wounded told:—

Created Much Noise

"The Japanese noise tactics were alarming, to say the least, during the first engagements. They set up a hell of a clatter and chatter, blew trumpets and whistles and set firecrackers to popping.

"Many of the crackers appeared to be a ind of delayed-action grenade which was lobbed behind the lines and caused a racket that gave the impression we were surrounded.

"And how those babies could talk English!

"You'd be on patrol and a voice in the clearest fashion would greet you with 'Hey Bill, is the Corporal there?'

"Some of the boys fell for it. They lifted their heads and were shot to pieces.

Fight Until End

"If a dozen of us were moving toward a single Jap he'd stand there and be shot and he'd just as likely get one or two of us before he went down.

"His parties working through the jungle sent one or two men forward to draw fire and be killed just to discover where our machine-guns and other weapons were hidden.

"If we fired a shot we'd be plastered by half a dozen tommy-guns from point blank or even behind."

One favorite Japanese trick, he added, was to play dead among the wounded, wait for advancing Allied troops to pass, then shoot them from behind.

CHAPTER 26

Futile Mission

For a long time after that final scene with Steve, Linda sat in her bedroom attempting to regain her composure. She was badly shaken by the ordeal and her head ached.

"Oh Steve", she whispered pitifully, "if you had said only one word—one word that might have showed you cared a little!"

She started from her reverie as someone tapped on her door. Steve's voice said curtly, "I'm driving back to Chicago. Can I give you a lift?"

Linda hesitated. She had driven to the farm with Mary and Phil, and only the station wagon was available. She thought suddenly, "Maybe we can talk things over as we drive back to town".

"Thank you", she answered clearly. "I'll be right out".

But while riding back to Chicago, Steve maintained an icy indifference, and Linda sat huddled in her corner of the car, too miserable to break the silence between them. Again and again she opened her lips to protest—to cast her pride to the winds and tell Steve that she loved him; to implore him for another chance. But each time she caught a glimpse of Steve's grim profile her determination crumbled.

Was this the man who had been so gentle, so understanding Linda wondered sadly. He was like a stranger, engrossed in his own thoughts. Linda blinked back the tears and sat unrelaxed beside him until they had reached the apartment house.

When the roadster came to a stop before the door, Linda turned pathetically.

"You—you're staying here, aren't you, Steve?"

He hesitated. "I'm leaving at midnight for New York. I'll be gone several days".

"Then you've agreed to the moving picture contract?" Linda asked eagerly.

Steve nodded. "They called me at the farm to say they had agreed to my price".

"Oh, I'm so glad!" In her happiness for Steve's success Linda had forgotten that she would soon be gone soon have no part in his good fortune. "Is it—is it a great deal of money?"

Steve looked at her coldly, his eyes flickering from her flushed face to rest on a far-off object. "I imagine your share will be sufficient for you to live in luxury. That's what you want, isn't it?"

Linda gasped at this new outrage. She knew Steve would never say anything that unkind unless someone had made him believe she was like that—greedy and scheming. And who would be cruel enough to utter such a falsehood—who else stood to profit by making up untruths about Steve's wife, except Brenda Coleman?

Linda shrugged indifferently. "No one likes luxury better than I", she said flippantly. "See you later, Steve".

Tossing restlessly through the night, she tried to think of some way to find out Brenda's plans for the future. Linda's heart ached for Steve. Would Brenda destroy everything that she, Linda, had helped him create—confidence in himself and his future? Or was it possible that Brenda had changed —that she would make Steve happy?

Linda hoped fervently that this was true, although her heart told her relentlessly that Brenda was still willful, still selfish, and would again ruin Steve's life.

With a sinking heart, Linda realized the only course now open to her would be to see Brenda, and plead with her to make Steve happy.

"And if that fails", Linda told herself wearily, "I'll have to give up—to let Steve find out for himself that there can be no happiness with Brenda. But one thing is certain—I'll never marry Greg. I'll never marry again. I couldn't love anyone but Steve—ever!"

When morning came, Linda dressed carefully, determined to see Brenda Coleman before another day had passed. She glanced in the mirror for assurance that her eyes were not swollen by tears. Her suit and furs were chic and lovely. She left the apartment and headed for the hotel where Brenda was staying.

Pausing outside the door of Brenda's expensive suite, Linda drew a long breath. Would Brenda be willing to listen to her? And, if she did, who could Linda say to the former model that would not sound too awkward, too gauche? Brenda was shrewd and quick-witted. She had a way of pouncing on words and by a simple inflection of her voice or a lifted eyebrow giving them a different meaning.

Linda's trembling fingers rapped on the door, and after a long time a petite, satin-clad maid admitted her into a hotel suite she saw only vaguely, because her eyes were blurred by fear. All of the well-chosen words in her carefully-prepared speeh she had rehearsed in the taxi as she rode downtown were forgotten.

Then Brenda's husky voice floated from another room, saying with exaggerted sweetness:

"Please come in, Linda".

Linda was nonplussed by this unexpected move. She had not been announced from the desk downstairs. She had not given her name to the maid. How then, did Brenda know it was she who waited anxiously for an interview?

Perplexed and dubious, she walked into the other room and stared in amazement.

Brenda Coleman was lying in a large satin-covered bed, adorned by a profusion of dainty lace and silken pillows. A bed-jacket of fluffy maribou covered her shoulders, and a baby-blue satin ribbon was tied around silky curls.

The walls of the bedroom seemed banked with flowers roses, masses of them. They filled the air with their heavy sweetness. In that heady atmosphere, Linda felt weak, and her knees shook so that she could scarcely stand. She had expected nothing to compare with this scene of magnificent luxury. Brenda smiled secretively, as though she knew the reason for Linda's amazement.

"I'm just having breakfast", she pointed airily to the breakfast tray over her knees. The dishes were silver-covered. "Won't you join me?"

Linda shook her head uncertainly. She took a chair near the bed and stared at Brenda. In the midst of this luxury, the model looked like a well-fed cat.

"How did you know it was I who was calling?" she blurted out, because silence had become unbearable and Brenda was eyeing her speculatively over her coffee cup.

"I've been expecting you for several days", Brenda replied lazily.

"I—I understand you're free now." Linda went on desperately. "Will you resume your maiden name?"

Brenda smiled faintly. "Temporarily", she said.

Linda winced, knowing what Brenda wanted her to believe. Had it been obvious, she wondered? Then Brenda began speaking rapidly. Gone was the well-modulated voice, the expression of innocence. Instead, Brenda was completely herself—coarse, ugly.

"I said I'd been expecting you," she said, "and I know why you've come. You never fooled me—not from the first, sister. Just look at you, so sweet and innocent—Steve's little helpmate. What a laugh! Where has it gotten you? Greg wouldn't have you if it hadn't been that Steve struck it rich.

"It didn't take long for you to get wise to which side your bread was buttered on. You found out all you had to do was get a fat share of Steve's money and you could have anything you wanted—even Greg Hollister, if you call that a prize".

"That isn't true!" Linda was on her feet, her face red with anger. "You know it isn't true, even when you're trying desperately to have everyone believe I'm like that—like you'. Never had Linda expected to make so vituperative an attack. She raged on:

"I won't listen to you any longer, but I want you to know that I don't want Greg Hollister, and I don't want Steve's money either—not a penny of it!"

"Of course you don't", Brenda laughed shortly, relaxing against her satin pillows. She seemed to be enjoying the scene immensely. Linda's suffering seemed to make Brenda happier.

"Linda, you're as transparent as glass. Why Steve doesn't see through this front you're putting up is beyond me. You marched yourself up here as the spirit of injured womanhood, to ask what my intentions are toward Steve, because you discovered, after it was too late, that you were madly in love with him. It's written all over you.

"Well," Brenda snapped, "all I can say is that it's none of your business now what happens to Steve. You had your chance and muffed it. What I choose to do is my own concern, and I'll thank you to keep out of my way".

"I'm still Steve's wife", Linda said, but all defiance had left her. She looked tired and bewildered. "What if I should go and tell him the truth?"

Brenda laughed mockingly. "Which of us do you think he would believe?" she queried. "The woman who is leaving him for another man, or the woman he loves?"

Linda's final hope died as she realized the significance of Brenda's statement. From the beginning, Brenda had held the winning card —Steve's love. Even he had admitted readily that he had loved Brenda since his earliest college days. He had declared he could never love anyone else.

Now that she was free, it was only natural that Brenda should reclaim Steve. The girl was entirely without scruples. She was wealthy now, established in Chicago's most exclusive circles. She would not hesitate to ruin another man's life by lying about Linda if she thought it necessary to suit her own whim.

Linda shrugged in despair. Furthere argument would be futile. Linda started for the door. Then she paused:

"I hope—" There were tears in her eyes Brenda was only dimly visible. "I hope you two will be . . . very . . . happy." Suppressing a sob, Linda fled from the bedroom.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

USE OF MANPOWER REACHES HIGHEST PEAK IN BRITAIN

Two Out of Every Three Men and Women Doing Full Time War Work

BOYS WORK ALSO

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Sept. 15 (CP)—Mobilization of manpower in Britain is at a peak never before reached in history.

Two out of every three men and women, between the ages of 14 and 65—22,000,000 out of 33,000,000—are doing full time war work, in the services or in vital war industry.

In addition there are at least 2,000,000 voluntary workers, apart from more than 1,750,000 home guards, more than 5,000,000 part-time civil defence workers and fire-watchers and 260,000 women working part-time in industry.

Between January and May, 1942, the Ministry of Labor and National Service placed 757,845 women in all forms of industry, including 387,000 in the munitions industry. And Britain is the only country in the world which conscripts women for its uniformed services.

More than 77 per cent of the boys of Britain between the ages of 14 and 17 and more than 67 per cent of the girls between the same ages are doing wartime work.

In the engineering trades alone more than 1,000,000 people are working for the Ministry of Supply in April, 1942. By February of this year the labor force in shipbuilding has been doubled since the start of the war.

In Royal Ordnance factories 50 per cent of the employees are women, 32 1-2 per cent semi-skilled or unskilled men, and only 7 1-2 per cent skilled men.

And when Britons work they do work. Imprisonment of workers for absenteeism under the essential works orders at the rate of only one in every 50,000.

100 WOMEN REGISTER AT LOCAL OFFICE ON THE FIRST DAY

There was no undue rush of women in the 20-24 year-old age-group seeking registration yesterday at the local office of the Employment and Claims Office, it was reported this morning by Mr. H. H. Reed, under whose direction the compulsory registration of women is being held. All women in the above age groups not engaged in insurable employment must register under the terms of the order.

The first day's registration at the local office saw approximately 100 women seeking registration, but as the week progresses increased numbers are expected. Registration is by alphabetical order.

The number of registrations noted for the first day at rural post offices, was not known at the central office in Belleville this morning, but it was pointed out by Mr. Reed that farm women in the above age groups are required to register under the order.

Head of United Church Publishing House Defends His Management Against Criticism of Inefficiency

United Church Commissioners today referred a report of the Board of Commission of the Publishing House which charged "serious inefficiency" on the part of the Rev. C. W. Dickenson, United Church Publishing House head, to the new incoming Board.

The report also charged the Publishing House had shown "substantial losses."

Mr. Dickenson in defence of the House and staff stated that the Commission had taken the auditor's report, "written by one man" as its own and added the "report is not comprehensive enough to give the General Council a true picture.

"Any firm that shows a profit of $30,000 with a turnover of one-half million dollars is not guilty of "serious inefficiency" he said.

The House had taken some losses, he said, but these were the cause of heavy machinery repairs, increased cost of living bonuses, and the fact the price ceilings had affected business amounting to $70,000 on hand before the ceiling was clamped down.

The church printing had always taken precedence, he said. "Many times profitable printing had been laid aside because of the urgency of the demand of the various boards.

"These charges," Mr. Dickenson said, "should be substantiated by clear evidence in defence of my staff and myself."

Says Charges "Too Sweeping"

"My conclusion is that the charges made by an auditor are too sweeping for an auditor to make. They should not be regarded as a last word."

The report stated that the Book Steward Mr. Dickenson should study reports made from time to time but auditors to the Commission on observances made by the auditors.

"Am I to be an office boy between the auditors and the commission?" Mr. Dickinson asked. "He wanted to know if the Publishing House had to be policed"".

The Rev. E. M. Howse, Winnipeg, told the council that "if this report is correct, it should have recommended a new manager".

Urges Investigation

G. W. Mason, K.C., Toronto, United Church legal adviser urged a complete investigation into the reports. The Commission based its report on the findings of one man "who may be wrong". "We should not join in the condemnation of these people until they have had an opportunity to present their case".

Sir John Puddester, Newfoundland, stated that the presentation of the report to the incoming Board would be a great injustice to the Book Steward. "It is not fair to pass the censures of the old Board to the new one without substantial proof".

Dr. A. Lloyd Smith, Westmount, Que., told the council that the audit had been prepared by a firm of specialized cost accountants, the audit had been made by a junior partner but a senior partner had studied it and added his advice.

Senator John Haig, declared that the Church as a whole should have a voice in matters of this kind and not pin them down to one committee. "Bring these things out in the open", he said. "We ought to have the gumption to settle these things ourselves".

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The startling decree issued by the Laval Government at Vichy, establishing forced labor on French men and women, is held by fighting French sources in London to reflect Hitler's determination to add more slave labor to the millions over whom he already is master.

However, without ascribing ulterior motives to the decree in advance of proof, we still can say with definite knowledge that the Nazi conqueror has been doing his utmost to swell the ranks of his unwilling chattels with more Frenchmen. The scheme whereby Laval was to provide Germany with 350,000 voluntary workers has failed miserably because, forsooth, the liberty-loving Frenchmen wouldn't sell their birthrights.

I am employing that shocking word "slave" deliberately as representing the exact position created by the Nazi Pharaoh who is trying to build his pyramid of conquests by use of the lash. He already has impressed millions of unhappy peoples of the subjugated countries to serve the Reich, and he has taken more from his Allies —even from the once-proud Mussolini, who long since has ceased to exercise a free will.

Countless thousands of these unfortunates have actually been collected within the borders of Germany to toil for Hitlerism. But that isn't the half. Workers in the subjugated countries have been placed under the most severe Nazi military discipline, in order that the last ounce of strength may be squeezed from the undernourished bodies.

Up-to-the-minute figures aren't available, but six months ago the foreign workers actually within the borders of Germany were close to 3,000,000, apart from about 1,600,000 prisoners of war who were working there and other hundreds of thousands of Russians reported captured. At that time the Nazis were bragging that they were going to increase these figures greatly, and undoubtedly this has been done.

Field Marshal Goering, Hitler's Crown Prince, also announced that prisoners of war would be used, which wasn't surprising in view of the fact that they already were at work.

The largest groups of foreigners were Poles and Italians, of whom there were more than a million each. Then there were 140,000 Czechs, 250,000 Belgians, 109,000 Yugoslavs, 200,000 Hollanders, 80,000 Slovaks and 269,000 others of various nationalities among these workers were great numbers of women, including 250,000 Polish and many Italians.

Felt Tired, Nervous, Rundown; Back Ached; Stomach Rebelled

Recommends Syntona to All Who Suffer Similarly. Says Stomach Felt Better from First Few Doses. Then Nerves Relaxed and Pains Went Away.

MRS. WESLEY HARRISON

"There has been such a definite improvement in my health since I've been taking Syntona that I will be only too glad to have others know about this medicine," said Mrs. Wesley Harrison, 151 Tragina Avenue North, Hamilton, in a recent report.

"In the last year I was troubled constantly with a dull ache in my back, and, no matter what I tried, I couldn't get rid of it. I had become rundown, my nerves were bad and I couldn't sleep, so I felt tired and worn out right from the beginning of each day. My appetite wasn't very good and what little food I did eat just seemed to sour in my stomach and cause gas, bloat and cramps. I was subject to frequent headaches and I often felt light-headed and dizzy.

"My husband was using Syntona and it seemed to be helping him, so I decided to take some, too, and it helped my stomach right from the first few doses. Now, after a few weeks, I am feeling ever so much better. My nerves are relaxed and the pains have gone from my back, so I can get a good night's sleep and I arise mornings feeling rested and ready for the day's work. I am free of those dizzy spells and headaches and I can enjoy my meals without all that gas and indigestion."

Syntona produces these results without the aid of harsh drugs or depressors. It is made only from the pure extracts of herbs, roots and barks that have long been known for their medicinal value. Make up your mind to take Syntona yourself. See how much better you can be feeling in just a short time.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop is an air raid warden now, and he was feeling bum at breakfast on account of having been called out of bed at 2 o'clock this morning on a false alarm, and he took a third cup of coffee without ma pretending to notice, and she said, Well after all, William, mistakes will happen in the best regulated emergencies, and after you have the general satisfaction of knowing that if you weren't the warden for this block, that awful Mr. Slocker would be, much as you detest him, and we'd be at his mercy at whatever overbearing tone of voice he chose to assume.

I only gave way to you and accepted the post because you told me that mug Slocker was angling for it, but just a same it would be nice if I could fix it so he'd get all the false alarms, pop said, and ma said, I'm sure he deserves them, the old crab.

Oh well, cheer up, I'll probably fall asleep at the office and lose a thousand dollars worth of business, pop said.

And he left for his office and I walked to the buss with him on my way to school, and who was waiting at the buss stop but Mr. Slocker, saying to pop, I hear you were let in for a little useless excitement last night.

Oh well, excitement is always exciting, pop said. I understand you had an idea of being warden yourself, he said, and Mr. Slocker said, Not me, thanks. I turned down the offer when it was first being passed around. Why who said I wanted the post? he said.

Nobody, pop said. It's a great thrill, I can tell you, it has to be experienced to be appreciated, he said, and Mr. Slocker said, So does a boil on the back of the neck. Here's the buss, aren't you taking it? he said, and pop said, I'll wait for the next one.

Which he did, me saying, What's a matter, pop, it wasn't crowded, and pop saying, Any buss with Slocker on it is crowded for me.

THE WAR RISK INSURANCE ACT, 1942

EVERY CITIZEN SHOULD BE WELL-INFORMED CONCERNING the DOMINION GOVERNMENT'S PLAN FOR WAR RISK INSURANCE

In the following Questions and Answers may be found information, in part—but every Citizen, Property Owner, Director of a Company, Trustee, is urged to seek full particulars regarding the Government War Risk Insurance Scheme.

Q. THE PURPOSE OF THE SCHEME?

A. To implement the Government's responsibility to the people of Canada. The Scheme provides a means of insurance at low rates—in the case of War Damage to Property.

Q. DOES THIS GOVERNMENT PLAN COVER PERSONAL INJURY?

A. Not at all. It is confined only to Property.

Q. WHAT IS MEANT BY "WAR DAMAGE"?

A. In brief—damage by, or because of, enemy action; and by accidental explosions of munitions.

Q. IS NOT THIS ENTERPRISE ONE THAT COULD BE UNDERTAKEN BY THE FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES OF CANADA?

A. No. This type of War Risk is not being sold by private insurance companies, because of the magnitude of the risk involved.

Q. IS THIS WAR RISK INSURANCE AVAILABLE TO ALL PROPERTY OWNERS?

A. Yes. The Government has established a national scheme to make it possible for each citizen in Canada to purchase the sense of security that comes from knowing that if his property does suffer war damage (and the war has come much closer to Canada in the last twelve months) he can call on the resources of Canada to help him make good his property loss.

Q. HOW DOES A PROPERTY-OWNER GO ABOUT SECURING THIS GOVERNMENT WAR RISK INSURANCE?

A. To save costs of Administration, and to avoid setting up an extensive organization, the Government has accepted the services and facilities of the organized Fire Insurance Companies and their Agents, on a non-profit basis.

Q. I UNDERSTAND THERE IS A PROVISION FOR FREE COMPENSATION IN CERTAIN CASES OF WAR DAMAGE. WHAT KIND OF PROPERTY IS INCLUDED IN THIS CATEGORY?

A. War Damage to owner-occupied homes—and to the chattels of householders and others.

Q. WHAT IS THE AMOUNT OF "FREE COMPENSATION"?

A. Up to $3,000 for owner-occupied homes; $800 to a householder for chattels (personal effects); $400 for those of his wife; $100 for those of each child under 16; $200 for others.

Q. IS AN INSURANCE POLICY NECESSARY TO QUALIFY FOR FREE COMPENSATION?

A. No. Such home-owners and citizens are insured automatically for the Free Compensation feature.

Q. BUT SUPPOSE THE AMOUNT OF "FREE" COMPENSATION IS NOT DEEMED SUFFICIENT TO COVER THE DAMAGE?

A. Then the property-owner should contract with the Government now for an additional sum at a low rate of Premium.

Q. WHAT ABOUT OTHER PROPERTY—NOT BEING OWNER-OCCUPIED HOMES?

A. Owners of Factories, Stores, Offices, Farm Buildings (other than the Farm House) Stock in trade, etc., may contract for Government Insurance at low rates.

Q. IS THERE ANY DIFFERENCE IN RATES IN DIFFERENT TERRITORIES—SAY AS BETWEEN THE COAST AND CENTRAL REGIONS?

A. No, this is a National matter—a risk undertaken by the Government for all Canadian citizens across Canada. The rate is the same for similar properties in any part of the Dominion.

Q. IS INSURANCE OF PROPERTY COMPULSORY UNDER THIS GOVERNMENT SCHEME?

A. No. The Scheme merely sets up the plan and provides the opportunity for property owners to secure this Government Insurance.

Q. THEN DIRECTORS OF COMPANIES OWE IT TO THEIR SHAREHOLDERS TO PROTECT THE PHYSICAL PROPERTY OF THEIR COMPANIES UNDER THE GOVERNMENT SCHEME?

A. Yes, as the Insurance Companies cannot jeopardize their financial strength by undertaking so unpredictable a risk—and as consequently it has become the Government's obligation, it is surely unwise for Directors to jeopardize their own assets by inaction on this important matter.

Q. THEN THE SAME INJUNCTION WOULD APPLY TO TRUSTEES AND GUARDIANS TO INSURE THE PROPERTY FOR THOSE WHOM THEY SERVE IN TRUST?

A. Yes, if they do not insure they might be wrong; if they do insure, they can't be wrong. You see no Country, or person, can foresee the future or be sure of immunity from enemy attack. The world-wide spread of war zones in the last twelve months proves this.

Q. I SUPPOSE ALL PROPERTY OWNERS AND CITIZENS SHOULD GET ADVICE FROM THEIR INSURANCE AGENTS RIGHT AWAY?

A. Yes—every Citizen should consult his Fire Insurance Agent immediately and get fully informed about the Government War Risk Insurance. There are definitions of property, exceptions, rates and so on, that cannot be dealt with in this space.

It will be seen from the above that, simple and direct as are the provisions of the Scheme, it is in the interests of every citizen to enquire how it affects him, or her, personally. Your Fire Insurance Agent or Company will gladly acquaint you with details.

The information given above is not intended to be a complete resumé of the Scheme. Full information regarding conditions, exclusions, etc. is available elsewhere.

19,900-Ton Vessel Sinks After Attack By Japanese Sub

Few Casualties Result From Action—Ship Was Being Towed to Port

SUB BELIEVED SUNK

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—The navy announced today that the United States aircraft carrier Yorktown had been sunk after the battle of Midway as a result of Japanese bombs and torpedo attacks.

Loss of the 19,900-ton carrier, with very few casualties, had been a well-kept naval secret.

The department said that destruction of the ship apparently was not known to the enemy and that the knowledge was vitally linked to the operations which have been in progress in the South Pacific since early August.

Attacked by Aircraft

The Yorktown first was successfully attacked by enemy aircraft with bombs and torpedoes on the afternoon of June 4, after the battle of Midway Island had reached its full fury.

The vessel, which had a normal complement of 85 planes and 2,072 men and was only five years old was put out of action at that time.

Tugs and salvage vessels succeeded, however, in getting her under control and she was removed, slowly but surely, from the battle zone.

Presumably the withdrawal was eastward toward Pearl Harbor. The navy said in its communique reporting the loss today that by the morning of June 6 the prospects of saving the great ship "appeared brighter."

They had been slender at first for the vessel had listed heavily, and, abandoned by her crew, was in imminent danger of capsizing.

Destroyer Torpedoed as Well

But shortly after noon on June 6, an enemy submarine suddenly attacked the stricken carrier, scoring two torpedo hits amidships.

The sub put two more torpedoes into the United States destroyer Hammann which was escorting the Yorktown.

The Hammann, loss of which had been reported by the navy department on June 14, sank shortly after being hit and the condition of the Yorktown "became critical," the navy said.

Early next morning, June 7, the communique continued, "the Yorktown capsized and sank as the result of the cumulative damage from aircraft bombs and torpedoes on the fourth, and submarine torpedoes on the sixth."

Before the end came, however, the navy said the submarine which had delivered the fatal attack was hunted down by American destroyers in the Yorktown's escort and repeatedly attacked throughout the day.

The results of these depth charge assaults, the navy said, "indicated that the submarine was certainly damaged and possibly sunk."

As for casualties, the navy said, they were few and had been included in the total personnel losses previously announced for the Battle of Midway as 92 officers and 215 men.

Only Two Vessels Lost

The Yorktown and the Hammann were the only United States ships lost at Midway while the Japanese had lost at least 10, including four aircraft carriers, sunk and at least 13 others, including three battleships, damaged.

The Yorktown was the second aircraft carrier lost by the United States, the first being the Lexington which blew up and sank in the Coral Sea after being attacked by Japanese dive bombers and torpedo planes in the great battle in those waters a month before the Battle of Midway.

Buckmaster in Command

The navy said that at the time of its sinking the Yorktown was commanded by Captain Elliott Buckmaster, 52. He has since been assigned to command the naval air station at Norfolk, Va.

The Hammann was commanded by Cmdr. Arnold Ellsworth True, 41, who now has a command at sea

Invasion of India Or Attack on Siberia Hinted in Speech

London, Sept. 16. (CP)—The BBC's Monitoring Service reported today it had picked up a Tokyo broadcast quoting Gen. Shunroku Hata, Japan's commander-in-chief in China, as declaring that "the East Asia war is about to take an important step in co-operation with the European war".

(Such a step might be a Japanese invasion of India, one purpose of which would be to form a junction with the Germans driving into the Middle East, or it might be an attack on Russian Siberia timed to coincide with a Nazi victory at Stalingrad.)

The Broadcast said Hata, speaking from his headquarters at Nanking, added:—

"Asia in co-operation with Europe is about to take simultaneous action toward realization of a new world order."

AUSSIE PATROLS WREST INITIATIVE FROM JAPANESE

Several Thousand Jap Troops Engaged in Drive on Port

SITUATION STATIC

By DEAN SCHEDLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Somewhere in New Guinea, Sept. 14 — (Delayed) — (AP) — Australian patrols in the towering Owen Stanley mountains appeared today to have wrested the initiative from the Japanese, but delayed reports showed that the enemy probably has concentrated considerable forces for the push that carried him over the peaks toward Port Moresby.

Information available here suggested that the Japanese have several thousand troops engaged in the drive, with more than half of them between their base at Buna and Efolgi, only about 40 miles from the Port Moresby outpost.

Loss of initiative in patrol operations in the first phases of the battle evidently paved the way for rapid Japanese advances. With Australians again aggressive, however, 25 Japanese were reported killed with no Allied fatalities in a patrol clash today.

Although the situation has remained static for the last few days, both Australian ground forces — alive to the type of guerilla warfare of their enemy — and Allied air forces have been active.

'We Cannot Fail' Says Norse Princess As Roosevelt Presents Sub Chaser

Washington, Sept. 16. (AP)—President Roosevelt turned over a new submarine chaser to the Norwegian navy here today and Crown Princess Martha accepted it as a symbol of America's vast war production which means, she said, that "we cannot fail".

The ceremony transferring the sleek, gray, 173-foot ship was held at the Washington Navy yard. The President and Norwegian Crown Princess heard the National Anthem of their countries and saw the American flag hauled down and the Norwegian flag raised, while the old and new crews stood at attention.

Mr. Roosevelt praised Norway's democratic ideals, fighting spirit, and contribution of vital sea forces to the United Nations' cause.

"The combination of treachery and brute force which conquered Norway", he said, "will live in history as the blackest deed of a black era".

In turning the new sub chaser over to the Crown Princess under lend-lease arrangements, Mr. Roosevelt voiced a hope that the day would come when the vessel would carry the Norwegian flag into a home port in a Free Norway.

The Crown Princess, who had just returned from London said in reply:—

"The tiding of America's rapidly increasing mobilized manpower and war production, of the flaming spirit of America's fighting forces already manifested in engagements on land, sea and in the air, are everyday telling our hard-tried people that with such an ally we cannot fail".

WEARY RUSSIAN ARMY LINES REMAIN INTACT

Red Sailors And Marines Athwart Axis Path Down Black Sea Coast

BITTER FIGHTING

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Sept. 16 (AP) — The indomitable defenders of Stalingrad, under a grinding assault by land and air, wavered slightly but held their lines firm today, the 23rd since the German besiegers lunged at the Volga city with every weapon at their command.

The Soviet command said heavy concentrations of Nazi tanks and infantry, preceded by large air forces, had inched ahead slightly in a narrow sector on the west of Stalingrad's defence wing.

Other advices said the gain probably was no more than a few hundred yards and that defiant Red army lines apparently were intact. It was the only change reported in 12 hours.

Heaviest of War

The Germans' dive-bombing was some of the heaviest of the war, and Red Star, attributing most of the enemy successes to its air might, conceded the gravity of Stalingrad's plight because of mass bombing raids.

But Russia definitely felt the first bite of winter. In Moscow, the inhabitants donned overcoats because of the coolest autumn day so far. Virtually the same weather prevailed at Stalingrad.

Red Navy sailors and marines athwart the Axis path down the Black Sea coast from Nazi-occupied Novorossisk were declared to have flung back an attack in one sector and wiped out enemy infantry forces elsewhere during a three-day fight.

Airman Finds N.Y. More Dangerous Than Flying Over Germany

New York, Sept. 16 (CP)—Patrick Murphy, 26-year-old bombardier with the Royal Air Force, was beaten and robbed in the heart of New York City early today and remarked ruefully:—

"For two years I flew over Germany and Occupied France where there was plenty of excitement, but I have to be walking down Fifth Avenue to get my brains knocked out".

Murphy was attacked, he told police, by four negroes who robbed him of $1.18 and his identification tag.

Two youths were arrested later and the pockets of one, police said, yielded the $1.18 and identification tag. They were charged with assault and robbery.

Mighty Force Gathering to Give Allies First Evidences of Victory Says Lyttelton to War Workers

Sheffield, England, Sept. 16 —(CP)— Oliver Lyttelton, Minister of Production, told war workers here today that the Allies are approaching "the breathless moment when, if Russia can hold on to her present positions for a few more weeks, the balance will begin to swing in our direction."

"The gathering force of the greatest alliance which the world has ever seen is going to give us the first evidences of victory," he said.

Answering what he called "a feeling in the United States that we are carrying on the war with weapons supplied by them and marking time until American forces gather in a successful offensive," Mr. Lyttelton went on:

"The total production of weapons of war produced in this country during the past three years far exceeds the total volume achieved in the United States. The output per man is far above what it is in the United States.

"But they are catching up: They have already surpassed our current production and their vast resources will soon change the whole complexion of the Anglo-American balance sheet."

The alliance between Britain and the United States is far closer than in the last war, Mr. Lyttelton said, and "will, I believe, survive the actual struggle in which we are engaged."

U. S. Will Consider Act as Violation Under International Law

HULL CRITICAL

(By WADE WERNER)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Sept. 16.—(AP)—The Pro-Axis Vichy government of Pierre Laval has notice today that any wholesale transfer of French manpower to Germany's war factories will be regarded by the United States as aid to the enemy and violation of France's obligations under international law.

Notifying the Vichy Ambassador to this effect yesterday, State Secretary Cordell Hull also took occasion to express the United States' unqualified condemnation of mass deportation of Jews from unoccupied France.

Text of his remarks to Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye was not made public, but Mr. Hull bluntly told reporters the attitude of the United States and added emphasis to his statements by authorizing direct quotation.

He characterized the mass deportation of refugees as 'revolting and fiendish', pointing out it involved "delivery of these unhappy people to enemies who have announced and in considerable measure executed their intention to enslave, maltreat and eventually exterminate them under conditions of the most extreme cruelty".

Language Seldom Applied

In the language of diplomacy such adjectives as "revolting and fiendish" are seldom applied to the measures of any but an enemy government.

CEILINGS HOLD OFFICIALS SAY REVIEWING YEAR

Some Adjustments Made to Meet Special Circumstance

PRICES COMPARED

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 — (CP) — Without knowing it, Canada just a year ago began laying the foundations of the price control legislation which has been effective since Dec. 1.

The prices charged through the Dominion in the period from Sept. 15 to Oct. 11, 1941, are basically the ceilings on costs which have to be borne by the average Canadian in the business of living.

Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials said today that in general the ceiling holds, although in some cases adjustments had to be made to meet special circumstances and to ensure adequate supplies would be available.

Statistics of retail costs showed how prices have been levelled out by the price control legislation. The nearest comparison available between the prices of last year and those of the present year was shown in a table of average retail prices in 69 Canadian cities on Sept. 1, 1941, and on Aug. 1 this year.

A pound of lard in 1941 cost 16.2 cents and in 1942, 16 cents. Between Aug. 1 and Sept. 1 last year the price of lard rose by 2.2 cents from 14 cents, but in the 11 months to Aug. 1 this year it declined .2 cents.

Eggs Are Down

A dozen grade "A" eggs cost 42.1 cents on Sept. 1 last year and 39.8 cents on Aug. 1 this year. Between July and September last year, their price has risen almost five cents a dozen.

The 1942 price of milk was up slightly, averaging 12.1 cents a quart in August this year against 11.7. Butter was down almost three cents at 38.7 cents a pound, but cheese was almost six cents higher at 34.6 cents.

Bread in August was down a fraction of a cent at 6.5 cents a pound, against 6.8 on Sept. 1, 1941. Flour was stationary at 3.6 cents a pound, and rolled oats were up .4 cents at 5.7 cents a pound.

Sugar Unchanged

The sugar price was unchanged at 8.5 cents a pound but black tea was higher at 84.9 cents a pound against 77.2 cents, coffee had risen .2 cents at 47.9.

GUM BEING RATIONED

Newark, N.J., Sept. 16 —(AP)—A chewing gum shortage is developing in Newark and users are urged by dealers to help "stretch" the available supply as far as possible. Shutting off of deliveries of the necessary gum base, which comes from Burma and The Netherlands East Indies, is blamed for the shortage. Some dealers are rationing packages, one to a customer.

BATTLE DEVELOPS FOR CONTROL SOLOMON ISLANDS

'Heavy Fighting' In Progress By Sea, Land And Air Since Saturday Night

MARINES HOLDING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 — (AP)—Japan's expected grand-scale drive to recapture the Solomon Islands and again point a dagger at the Australian lifeline appeared to be developing with do-or-die fury today.

American forces were fighting back savagely and thus far successfully.

The navy said last night that "heavy fighting" has been in progress by land, sea and air since Saturday night and that while details are lacking "Reports received to date indicate the Marines are maintaining their positions."

Creation of a new air command for the United States Pacific fleet and a shift in command of the Southwest Pacific Allied air forces indicated a tightening of grand strategy as the battle began to join.

The changes in command gave weight to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's warning: "Do not for one minute assume that we have the Japanese on the run."

25 Officers Decorated

Decorating 25 officers and men at Pearl Harbor yesterday, the Commander-in-Chief of the Pacific fleet said the Japanese are "dangerous antagonists," but "they have learned by now that we also are dangerous antagonists who are willing and know how to fight."

Despite counter-attacks on Japanese bases to the north and northwest of the main American stronghold on Guadalcanal Island, the navy said the enemy is bringing pressure to bear with apparently increasing force, and has succeeded in landing small detachments of troops who tried vainly to recapture the Japanese-built airfield under cover of shelling by surface craft offshore.

Personal Statement Given by Governor Of His Intentions

Plenipotentiaries Will Ask "Cease Fire" Order, Opening of Negotiations

BRITISH MOVE FORWARD

London, Sept. 16 —(CP)— A new British landing on Madagascar has caused the surrender of remaining Vichy French forces in one northwest coast area, British East Africa Headquarters announced today, as radio reports from the Vichy-controlled island, still lacking official confirmation, said its government is seeking terms with the British command.

Governor-General Armand Annet the reports said, has asked for a cease-firing order and terms to end the hostilities.

This was not mentioned in the British communique, which reported the invading troops proceeding steadily toward the island capital with more than half the distance covered.

Of the new landing, it said only: "On the northwest coast, the pressure of our column moving down from Ambanja, combined with a further successful landing from the sea in the Maromandia area further south, has resulted in the surrender of remaining French forces between those two places."

Maromandia is 35 miles south of Ambanjo, northernmost of the British landings last week on the west coast of the island.

The communique described obstructed roads as the principal barrier to British penetration which it said, has reached Andriba, about 100 miles northwest of Tananarive, inland capital.

The reports of the intended French capitulation were heard by British stations at captured Diego Suarez, Madagascar, and at Port Louis, Mauritius. Military circles said such a French move was not unlikely.

(German broadcasts denied that Madagascar authorities had made peace overtures. Vichy itself was silent.)

Morale of Canadian Airmen Serving In the East Found to Be 'Very Good'

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Flt. Lt. Burt Johnson of Windsor, Ont., back in London after a 22,000-mile flight through the war zones of the Middle and Far East, reported that morale of the hundreds of Canadian airmen serving on these fronts is "very good."

An ace photographer with the Windsor Star and now head of the R.C.A.F. photographic section at headquarters here, Johnson said he found Canadians in every R.A.F. squadron he visited during a four-month tour that took him to Egypt and the Western desert, Palestine, Iraq, India and Ceylon.

"They are even serving in squadrons of the South African and Royal Australian Air Forces," said the desert-bronzed officer. "Of course, this is in addition to our own two squadrons, the Spitfire unit in the Middle East led by Sqdn. Ldr. Paul Pitcher of Montreal and the Catalina Flying Boat squadron in the Far East under Wing Cmdr. Johnny Plant of Victoria."

Johnson made the flight east in Catalinas flown by Sqdn. Ldrs. J. C. Scott of Galt, Ont., and Toronto and L. H. Randall of Bristol, N. B., Flight Commanders under Plant. He spent two months photographing the work of Canadian airmen in the Far East and was attached to the Duke of Gloucester's party during his tour of Ceylon.

Like the Life

An able reporter as well as a master photographer, Johnson prepared for the local newspapers a lot of material in connection with the visit and was instrumental in introducing to Cingalese many Canadians serving in Ceylon.

"The boys live in cocoanut huts with roofs and walls thatched with cocoanut leaves," Johnson said. "They eat lots of curry and rice, the native dish, and since there is no rationing they get plenty of fruit, meat and tropical vegetables. The airmen like the life even if they are very busy patrolling the Indian Ocean and the Bay of Bengal."

Johnson met seven Canadian fighter pilots with an R.A.F. squadron near Colombo. Among them were PO. Donald A. MacDonald of St. Thomas, Ont., Sgt. Jack Hurley of Vankleek Hill Ont. and Granville Murray of Penetanguishene, Ont.

They shared in the destruction of 27 Japanese aircraft during the Easter Sunday attack on Ceylon. Hurley got 1 1-2 confirmed and a damaged. MacDonald one 97 bomber.

Johnson's tour afterwards took him to Bombay, where he arrived the day Gandhi and some of his followers were arrested, and on to Cairo and the western desert. He made the desert trip with Sqdn. Ldr. Don Patterson of Montreal, and R.C.A.F. welfare officer.

There were 45 Canadian in one R.A.F. squadron Johnson visited. They were out almost every night bombing Tobruk.

"I was within 30 miles of the front and could hear the guns rumbling night and day," Johnson recalled. "I spent several nights in slit trenches during air raids. But we didn't mind much because our men were twice as active over enemy lines as Jerry was over ours."

Get Lots of Beer

Johnson found desert life tough.

Whistles to Warn Port Hope Citizens Of Power Shortage

Port Hope, Ont., Sept. 16.—(CP)—Port Hope Public Utilities Commission have set up a plan whereby citizens will be warned of an impending power shortage by three signal blasts on factory whistles in the town, it was announced today.

This will be the signal for shutting off every electric appliance in use, except those absolutely necessary. When the power goes back to normal, a series of two blasts on the whistles would signal the "All Clear".

Failure of citizens to co-operate might mean blackout of sections of the town until the power shortage has been cleared up, the Commission warned.

OIL FOR HEATING CUT 25 PER CENT IN THIRTY STATES

Coupon System To Be Set Up Will Vary In Different Areas Affected

Washington, Sept. 16 (AP)—Fuel oil rationing—possibly 25 per cent below normal use—has been ordered in a 30-state area for the coming heating season.

In addition to the 17 United States Atlantic seaboard states in which gasoline already is rationed supplies of fuel oil will be curtailed in these 13 middle western states:-

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Kentucky.

In an order last night authorizing fuel oil rationing Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board said the shortage of oil "remains serious," despite shifts in transportation and conversions to coal.

WARKWORTH BOY LISTED MISSING

Sergeant John Wilce Dudley of Warkworth is among those reported missing in the Dieppe operation. His parents Mr. and Mrs. Clayton O. Dudley received official notice on August 24th and the name appeared in the long list of missing in the announcement by the Department of National Defence on Tuesday, Sept. 15th. He was born in Alberta in 1918 and came to Warkworth 15 years ago, with his parents. After schooling he worked with his father in the grist mill and driving truck and on the second day after war was declared he enlisted at Cobourg in the 14th Field Battery, attended military college at Kingston and received his sergeant's stripes. In Sept. 1940 he landed overseas. He was much interested in sports. He has five brothers and four sisters.

SEVENTY-FIVE AIRMEN DONATE THEIR BLOOD

Again the station personnel of No. 5 Initial Training School have given their blood for their countrymen's wounded. Holding the second special clinic in the past two weeks for airmen, approximately 75 officers and men from the Belleville training school visited the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic on Tuesday night and donated the usual five-sevenths pint of their blood. Two station doctors, Flt.-Lieut. Harbert and Flt.-Lieut. Riddell were in charge of the clinic while the volunteer staff at the Kiwanis Centre served the boys with refreshments.

PARENTS ANXIOUS ABOUT 15-YR.-OLD SON

Believed to have left home with intentions of joining the Royal Canadian Navy, the whereabouts of 15-year-old William Archer, 70 Lewis St., is being sought by anxious parents, according to city police today. The lad has been missing from his home since late last week, but the family did not notify P. C. Arnott at the police station until today. Threats that he would join the navy if at all possible lead the Archer family to believe their son journeyed east in an effort to join the naval forces.

STOLEN BICYCLES SOON RECOVERED

Two bicycles were reported stolen Tuesday and before nightfall had been recovered by city police. Mr. E. McGouran, 15 Jones St., informed the authorities his bike had been stolen from the vicinity of the city fire hall on Sunday. This bike was soon found abandoned and returned to its owner. Harry Wheeler, 8 Grier St., reported a similar incident and within a short space of time his bicycle was also recovered.

Attended Conference Resulting in Union Of Methodist Groups

Revisiting his native Belleville after an absence of many years, Judge J. Forin, of Vancouver, B.C., well known among the older residents of this city, is attending the Tenth General Council being currently held at Bridge Street United Church.

One of the oldest commissioners attending the General Council, an interesting feature of Judge Forin's visit to the city is that he is the only commissioner attending the present council who was present at a former church conference held in Bridge Street Church in 1883, at which four branches of Methodism in Canada were united into one body.

Taking time out from his duties as commissioner to the conference Judge Forin is renewing acquaintances in the city in which he was born and where at one time he was an alderman in the city council. During Monday's meeting of the Belleville council body he visited the council chambers and was welcomed by Mayor Glencoe Thompson.

Recently having celebrated his 82nd birthday Judge Forin is vitally interested in the course of the war. One son, Douglas, of Vancouver, is a Lieut.-Col. in command of the Seaforth Highlanders who went overseas with the 1st contingent.

Wallace's Service Station Broken Into

Trenton — (Special) — Wallace's Service Station was broken into on Monday night or early Tuesday morning, but fortunately the intruder found only 83 cents in the cash register. On opening the station at 7:30 a.m. Mr. Leo Vassaw reported to police that he found a stone had been thrown through the glass in the door and from this opening the lock on the door had been turned and the building entered.

Police Court

Magistrate J. L. Lloyd presided over Trenton Police Court on Tuesday afternoon with County Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., prosecuting.

Thomas Smith charged with vagrancy, case enlarged till Sept. 29.

Herbert White was charged with vagrancy but his case was enlarged till Sept. 22nd. White had been found wandering in the vicinity of Wallace's Service Station which was broken into on Tuesday morning.

Ross LaMorre charged with failing to attend parade for drill was fined $5. and costs. The magistrate warned that the next man to come before the court on a similar charge would be severely dealt with.

Bert Crosby paid $10. and costs for having liquor in an illegal place.

Robert Nadow paid $10. and costs for obstructing a police officer.

Ira Mountenay charged with using insulting language failed to appear at court and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Red Cross Work

Red Cross work rooms opened on Tuesday afternoon this week and will continue to be open on Tuesday instead of Thursday as previously. A number of women were present but there is still a great demand for workers as there is much work which must be done at once. Ditty bags were given out to be made at the homes and these are to be shipped as soon as possible after they are completed and filled. Large quotas of knitting and sewing are still to be finished before the end of September, when the new quotas are scheduled to arrive.

During the afternoon a beautiful bouquet of gladiolas which was donated by the Misses Beatrice and Jean Robertson was raffled and won by Mrs. J. Anderson.

OIL FOR HEATING

Two additional states, Tennessee and Oklahoma, were considered for rationing, but passed over because of their small number of oil burners.

Under a coupon system to be set up by the office of Price Administration rationing will vary in different regions. Details will not be announced until the O.P.A. has completed plans.

Can Fill Tanks Now

During the period Sept. 16-30, fuel oil deliveries in the rationed area will be under control. Any fuel oil tank used for heating, cooling, or water heating equipment in a private dwelling (one designed for the occupancy of fewer than four families) may be filled to capacity, provided the tank does not exceed 275 gallons. In other than private dwellings, deliveries will be limited to 50 per cent of capacity.

Beginning Oct. 1, no deliveries may be made without the written guarantee of the person receiving oil he will surrender coupons when issued.

Nelson said rationing might reduce normal winter use "as much as 25 per cent," but he added that a severe winter, transportation difficulties, or other unpredictable developments "might even increase that figure substantially."

The rationing system will make provision for supplementary allowances in emergencies and in cases of unusual hardship, but persons able to convert to the use of coal and omit to do so will not be eligible for extra rations.

Status Quo of United Church Theological Colleges Will Not Be Changed Council Says

Rejects Report of Board of Christian Education and Amendments; Sustains Motion of Dr. E. A. Kerr

LONG DEBATE

The status quo of the eight United Church theological colleges in Canada will remain practically the same, the General Council decided here last night.

Commissioners strongly endorsed a motion referring to the report of the Board of Christian Education headed by principal R. G. Wallace, Queen's University, moved by Principal E. A. Kerr, Pine Hill College, Halifax, that present grants to the colleges be continued, that the amounts be whatever possible in view of Missionary and Maintenance Committee receipts; that grants to students be maintained as usual and that the Committee on Colleges deal with any unforeseen emergency arising from the war in the life of the colleges.

In short, the General Council rejected all amendments and the report of the Board of Christian Education, sustaining Principal Kerr's motion by a strong majority.

Dr. Kerr's motion was made last Friday after Principal Wallace presented his report to Council. It was recorded as an alternative motion and not an amendment.

Amendments Lose

The Board of Christian Education Committee, headed by Principal Wallace, advocated a reduction of staff by one professor in each college; re-allocation of grants; elimination of deficits and the reduction of students' aid from $60 to $50 per year for three years.

Another defeated amendment was that of Chancellor W. T. Brown, of Victoria College, Toronto, which urged that two-thirds of the usual college grants be applied on the basis on the number of certified students for the ministry, and the remaining third be allocated to colleges without sufficient endowment.

He believed in the elimination of deficits, he said, stating that he had reduced the deficit of Victoria College in two years from $39,000 to $3,200. Since union, the colleges had been brought together. Victoria had been given so little that it had been found necessary to raise $27,000 yearly to pay the theological salaries.

Third Time

It was learned later that this is the third year that the General Council refused to accept amendments to the status quo of the colleges and students.

An attempt on the part of Mr. Elmer Davis, Kingston, to introduce an amendment calling for a reduction of the number of colleges to four during the war period, the General Council to decide the locations and the Board of Colleges to make the necessary adjustments when the locations are determined, was ruled out of order.

Principal Wallace, whom, the presiding Moderator stated, had made certain additions to his report, was unable to present them, the call for the vote preventing him from taking the floor.

Professor J. A. Irving, University of British Columbia, said the report was too drastic. He did not agree with the restriction of deficits, while the proposed reduction of staff meant only two professors in the Western Colleges. The suggested method of reducing costs was not practical, he said.

Student Decline

"The Church has a right to know what provisions are being made for the ministry," he declared. "If the present rate of decline in student ministers continues, there will be nothing but laymen in the future."

"It is essential that all colleges be continued in order that the ministers of the future be recruited."

He supported the Brown amendment stating that it provided the best opportunity for the maintenance of the colleges for the present and development in the future.

Dr. Basil W. Thompson, Kingston, stated the Church was now passing through a crisis and it would be wisdom to speed all adjustments to meet the exacting needs of the crisis. He hoped the Council would not place its educational policy on the low level of what it costs. "We can never be Christians if we are going to nag about a dollar here and a dollar there."

"We are not paying half enough for the maintenance of our colleges and faculties. If I had my way I would set up colleges equal to the best on the continent."

He blamed the church for the scarcity of student ministers declaring that they were not available because they were not being challenged by sermons from the pulpits. "We as ministers, must present Christianity not as a funeral procession, but as an army marching to the glory of God."

"When the United Church presents a program which will interest young men, then we will have students for the ministry."

He did not think that it was low salaries that prevented young men from entering the ministry. "The Church," he added, "ought to provide for every young man entering its service, a comfortable allowance. There should be a theological college in every university centre, controlled by its own board."

The basic problem, he said, was not one of finance but scarcity of students.

Lengthy Debate

W. Branion, K.C., Prince Albert did not agree with the Brown amendment. The allocation of grants on the basis of the number of students was fundamentally wrong. The basis of grants should be, first, the need, and second, placed on the funds available.

A Neepawa, Manitoba, commissioner charged that under the proposed reallocation of grants, the east would get far more than the west. He stated that Victoria College grants had been increased $4,000, Chancellor Brown denied this, stating the increase had been $3,000.

The Rev. L. M. Outerbridge, Regina, produced statistics showing that there were more students in the ministry now than there were five years after union. He declared the financial basis of the report not sound.

The strong must be prepared to relieve the burden of the weak, Dr. Hugh Dobson, Vancouver, said. The colleges in the western provinces are all needed as there will be a great migration to the west when the men come back from the war.

Commissioners rose to their feet near the end of the prescribed time limit in an effort to be heard in the debate. A motion limiting speakers to five minutes was carried, and a motion to adjourn defeated at ten o'clock. The debate continued until a motion for the vote was made and carried.

Moderator Sclater called Dr. E. L. Pidgeon to his aid as "procurator" and the votes regarding amendments were taken. Brief addresses regarding the debate were made following the final vote by Drs. Wallace and Kerr.

Moderator Will Be Heard on Radio At 9.30 Tonight

Members and adherents of the United Church in all parts of the Dominion will hear the heads of the eleven conferences speak tonight over the air.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will carry a coast-to-coast network story of the Church's effort to liquidate its debt. Conference leaders will appeal to their constituents to expedite the work of finishing this important task by the end of the month.

The broadcast will emanate from Bridge Street United Church at nine-thirty sharp tonight. It will open with the entire General Council singing "The Church's One Foundation" after which the Moderator, the Rt. Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Sclater will address the nation followed by the conference leaders.

The church gallery is being reserved for the general public and it is expected a large crowd will witness the first nation-wide broadcast to originate in this city.

Beef and Pork Shortage Helps The Poultrymen

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 — (CP) — With a few pithy remarks about "it's an ill wind . . ." Canadian poultry raisers today could view the prospect of a lively demand for poultry meat and supplies with which to meet it.

Beef shortages continue in several Canadian areas, and plentiful supplies are considered unlikely for some time by authorities. The bacon board has asked consumers to do without pork for about seven weeks in order that British bacon requirements may be met.

And so the trend has been to poultry.

Agriculture department officials said quantities of poultry meat have been increased largely by the campaign to produce millions of dozens of eggs for Britain. Farmers enlarging their flocks of laying birds are feeding the males and marketing them as soon as possible.

Stocks of poultry in storage on Sept. 1 were 5,924,894 pounds against 2,842,467 pounds on the same date last year. Turkeys made up a large proportion of the holdings this year, being 3,641,431 pounds against 1,234,886 a year ago, but during August turkeys in storage were reduced by about 900,000 pounds.

The short supply in other meats has brought a heavy demand for poultry, officials said. Both Montreal and Toronto reported that in spite of heavy receipts of both fowl and chickens the arrivals were not sufficient to meet the demand and prices tended to strengthen.

"Stocks of poultry in the country to be marketed are extremely heavy, but it is questionable whether the killing and packing facilities either on the farms or in commercial establishments are adequate to take care of the volume if it is all left for marketing during a few weeks in November and December," an official said.

"The fact that this poultry meat is needed now should encourage early marketings which will help relieve a congestion which otherwise will come in November and December."

Obituary

LATE FRANK SIFTON
(Picton)

Picton, Sept. 16 — The funeral of Frank W. Sifton was held at the residence of his grandfather, Rev. F. M. Wootton, Barker Street, Tuesday afternoon. Though of a private nature, a very large number of relatives and friends attended, with a great number having previously called at the home to offer their condolences to the sorrowing family.

Banked around the coffin and along the walls of the room were a profusion of beautiful floral tributes.

Among those attending the service were Miss Doris Sifton and Mr. Vivian Sifton, Montreal; Mrs. Dimick, Aurora, Ohio, and Miss Helen Wootton, Toronto.

The service was conducted by Rev. J. F. Reycraft of the United Church who spoke of the sudden cutting off of a promising young life, and gave a message of hope and comfort for those who mourn. Rev. F. M. Wootton assisted in the service, impressive in its very simplicity. Interment was in Glenwood cemetery, the pall bearers being collegiate school friends, Larry Bell, Robert Blakely, Bert Algar, Jack Ward, Roger Wright and Cyril Miller.

WILLIAM THOMAS MULLETT
(Huntingdon Township)

Following a brief illness William Thomas Mullett, one of Huntingdon Township's oldest and most highly respected residents passed away at his home at Moira on Saturday, September 12th. He was in his 88th year.

The late Mr. Mullett was born in Huntingdon Township, the son of the late Arthur Mullett and Jane Baker. His wife, formerly Florence Elizabeth Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Williams of Bloomfield, predeceased him on July 20th of this year.

While still a young man, Mr. Mullett left the homestead at Moira and for several years was engaged as a cheesemaker in Prince Edward county, following which he worked for a wholesale hardware company in London, Ontario.

After two years in the hardware business in London Mr. Mullett took up residence in Toronto where he opened a retail hardware business. Failing health, however, forced him to dispose of his business and he returned to the old homestead at Moira where he was engaged in farming.

The deceased was very highly regarded in the Moira community for his many admirable qualities and his death will be a source of much regret for his many friends and acquaintances. A member of the Presbyterian Church at Roslin, Mr. Mullett was a Liberal in politics but never took any active part in municipal affairs.

Surviving him are one son, Arthur P. Mullett, at home, and three grandchildren, Jarvis Clarence and Doris, at home, and Fleda of Windsor, Ontario.

The funeral services were held at the Roslin Presbyterian Church on Tuesday morning, with Rev. J. W. MacDonald conducting the service both at the church and at the graveside in Moira Cemetery. The bearers were: Frank Emerson, Clayton Vanderwater, Fred Ketcheson, Freeman Howe, Morrison Montgomery and Donald Leslie. Flower bearers were Nelson Welsh and Milton Thompson.

LATE MISS VADA M. COOKE

The funeral of Miss Vada M. Cooke, late of Belleville, took place from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Cooke, at Harold on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 15th. The service in the home and at the graveside in Stirling Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell of the Anglican Church at Marmora.

The bearers were Messrs. Percy Runnalls, George Runnalls, Robert Runnalls, Clare Tanner, George Tanner and William Fleming.

General Kai-Shek Back in Chungking

Chungking, China, Sept. 16 — (AP) — Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek has visited northwest China, it was announced today.

Chiang returned to Chungking Monday after an absence of several weeks and immediately conferred with Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commander of Allied forces in China.

His visit to the northwest, in which he was accompanied by his wife, was stated to have been exceedingly important and to have covered a wide range of matters.

It was stated that Chiang is resting after his strenuous trip preparatory to meeting Wendell Willkie.

VICHY IS WARNED

Nevertheless his strong language was not unanimously interpreted as an indication the United States will shortly break off diplomatic relations with Vichy.

Observers familiar with the turbulent course of these relations are inclined to view Mr. Hull's bluntness as one more challenge to the pro-Axis chief of government to break off relations with the United States if he dared.

Information available here from Vichy indicated that for Laval to take upon himself such a responsibility would involve grave risk of internal disorder. The recent protest of former Premier Edouard Herriot against the Laval government's drift toward war against the democracies was regarded as one indication of this risk.

No Effort to Protect

In any event it is doubly clear the United States government is making no effort to protect Laval's regime from loss of "face" in his own country. Yesterday's denunciation came scarcely a week after the United States' blunt rejection of Vichy's protest against American air raids on Rouen, and only five days after its wholehearted approval of new British military action against the Vichy French in Madagascar and its reiteration of a pledge to help British forces there with ships and troops if necessary.

PERSONAL

There was no indication of the size of the new British landing.

Informed British sources said the landing forces probably came from ships which had been held in reserve.

British forces which seized the naval base at Diego Suarez in northern Madagascar last May sought complete occupation of the island to prevent its use by the Axis. Local French administrations in areas thus far occupied have been left in charge.

Annet's decision to ask for an end of hostilities was reported broadcast by the Tananarive radio.

The broadcast, picked up at Port Louis Mauritius, said Governor-General Armand Annet of Madagascar is sending plenipotentiaries to the British commander asking for a "cease fire" order and the opening of negotiations.

The broadcast was in the form of a personal statement by Annet of his intention.

Fifteen minutes later the same news was confirmed by the radio station at Diego Suarez, which is held by British forces, Reuters said.

While there was no confirmation of the report from other sources, Annet advised the Vichy government yesterday the situation there was one of "extreme gravity."

British forces, he said, had captured the village of Antsiafabositra after occupying Maevatanana, 150 miles by road from Hananarive, the capital.

The British landing on the island was made last Thursday. One column drove southeast from Majunga to end hostilities on the island, Reu-

Another column headed northeast from Morondava, 350 miles south of Majunga. Still a third landed on the northeastern shore of the island.

MORALE

"It was sand, sand, sand" he said, "but the food is good though, and the boys get lots of Canadian and American beer."

Morale in the desert was exceptionally good and most of the airmen spent their leaves in Alexandria or Cairo.

"They have to do that to get a good clean-up," Johnson explained, "because they are rationed on water in the desert. The flies are terrific. Everybody walks around with a stick with horse-hair at the end of it."

BATTLE DEVELOPS

While bombers sought to distract possible supporting moves by attacking enemy shipping and supply bases over a wide area from New Britain to the Tanimbar Islands, about 300 miles North of Darwin, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced the appointment of Maj.-Gen. George C. Kenney, 53, as commander of Allied air forces in the area.

Gen. Kenney, a native of Dartmouth, N. S., and hard-bitten veteran of combat flying who began as a private in the first great war, succeeds Lt.-Gen. George H. Brett. Gen. Brett is in the United States to undertake another assignment.

Maj.-Gen. Ralph Royce, Commander of the 29th Bombardment Wing of the United States army air corps and Chief of Staff to Gen. Brett, also was relieved and given an assignment in the United States.

At the same time a change in fleet organization was announced in Washington, apparently designed to give air officers greater responsibility for actual battle operations. Navy Secretary Frank Knox appointed rear-admiral John H. Towers, 57, Chief of Naval Aeronautics, to the newly-created Air Command for the Pacific Fleet, with the rank of Vice-Admiral.

Towers will be Principal Air Advisor to Admiral Nimitz.

165 Planes Destroyed since Aug. 7

In its report on the development of what is becoming the second battle of the Solomons, the navy listed the destructions of five enemy bombers, 13 fighters and three seaplanes since the attacks on Guadalcanal were stepped up. Total Japanese plane losses since the Solomons campaign began with the marine invasion Aug. 7 rose to 165.

In addition, an enemy warship was damaged when marine shore batteries replied to its shelling on the night of Sept. 12-13 making at least 20 Japanese ships sunk and damaged in the campaign to date.

"During the past few days the Japanese have increased the intensity of their bombing attack by aircraft and the bombardment by surface vessels," the communique reported.

Army bombers carried the fight into enemy territory when they strafed shore installations on the island of Gizo last Friday and again Sunday when they attacked seaplanes on the water at Rekata Bay, about 140 miles north of Guadalcanal on the northwest shore of Santa Isabel, destroying one plane and damaging a second.

OVERALLS FOR SOLDIERS

Montreal, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Headquarters of military district No. 4 announced yesterday that Canadian active army men serving in Canada may soon wear overalls for normal routine military training and other duties. The move was considered to conserve stocks of serge materials.

WEARY RUSSIAN

crews brought down 35 German planes in 24 hours, the mid-day communique said.

The Germans lodged their new wedge in Stalingrad's western defences only at heavy cost and artillery and anti-tank rifles alone accounted for half-a-dozen Nazi tanks, the communique said.

"Southwest of Stalingrad," it reported, "Red Army men repulsing enemy attacks destroyed two tanks, and several guns and wiped out about a battalion of German infantry. In another sector the men of one unit wiped out 200 Hitlerites, destroyed five tanks, 10 trucks and an artillery battery."

40 German Tanks Destroyed

Stalingrad mortar batteries yesterday destroyed 40 German tanks and killed a large number of infantrymen in holding a narrow sector against an attack by hundreds of tanks and several rifle regiments seeking to advance at all costs, the Moscow raido said.

Armament plants were reported maintaining production and smoke from their chimneys blended with the fumes from bomb-blasted areas of the Volga River industrial city.

It declared:-

German troops were thrown from two settlements in the Mozdok area of the Central Caucasus; the invaders lost 1,000 men and seven tanks in an attack upon Russian positions in the Upper Don Basin south of Voronezh; tank-borne Nazi infantrymen in Red Army uniforms were detected and routed as they sought to move to the Red Army rear of the central front; Soviet patrols derailed three German railway trains.

Russians fighting to hold the Mozdok area, a key to the Grozny oil fields and a trans-Caucasian highway, were reported to have wrecked 12 armored vehicles and captured a Nazi troop train bearing both officers and soldiers.

"Our reconnaissance units," the communique said, "penetrated into enemy positions from the south and, with tommy-gun fire, wiped out two platoons of German infantry."

Under Constant Attack

Railways of Stalingrad are under constant attack, but they operate on a 24-hour basis even when bombing requires frequent halts, Red Star said.

Stalingrad has rail lines northward in the direction of Moscow, westward across the Don Bend and southward through Kotelnikovski and a belt line connecting these three outside the city.

Battlefront reports said the Germans lost 3,000 men in a single sector where they attempted in attack after attack to capture a hospital building in an outlying section of Stalingrad. The fighting there lasted for hours, Red Star reported.

The army newspaper said that in several places west of Stalingrad fierce attacks gained the Germans some wedges in the Russian defences, but in most of these salients Russian forces closed in again and forced the Nazis out.

"The Proof of Victory to Come"

Defence Minister Ralston has paid tribute to the Canadians who took part in the assault at Dieppe beaches four weeks ago. This was given as he released the long list of missing and the total figures of casualties in that battle and offered his sympathy on behalf of the Dominion "with those who must endure sorrow and anxiety" and expressed "the deep pride which belongs to our country in the courage, the fighting gallantry and the proof of victory to come which Canada achieved at Dieppe."

"The proof of victory to come which Canada achieved at Dieppe" was made possible by the devotion of the Canadian units which served in that fight at the Nazi-held Channel port. Col Ralston says that Canadians achieved "the proof of victory" at Dieppe—that is what every person feels. The bitterness of that struggle is shown in the casualty lists, in the communiques at the time and in the stories which have been told by eye-witnesses, correspondents and soldiers themselves, but these also reveal the glory of the wholehearted service the Canadians gave there to the cause of Canada, the United Nations and freedom throughout the world.

The nation feels with those who are sorrowing and those who are anxious for war demands great sacrifices from those who serve in the post of danger, from the relatives and friends at home and from the nation at large which supports the cause for which the gallant fighters of Canada battle.

Dieppe gave "the proof of victory" and Canada there achieved that proof through the young men who on the beaches showed their courage, devotion and initiative.

3 Air Forces Batter Germany

More and more the growing power of the United Nations' air attacks on Germany is being felt by Hitler and the people of Germany. Now Russia has joined in the hammering against Germany and Nazi-held Poland. Hungary and Rumania have felt the battering of these raids and the Rumanian oil fields are reported as left blazing after a Red air assault. In German-occupied countries the Russian airmen smite the forces and the material resources of the enemy.

At this same time American Flying Fortresses are winging their way over the land of the Huns from the west while the Royal Air Force of Britain carries on with intensified blows.

"Theoretically the pulverizing of German war industry is held to be possible" is the comment of the Montreal Herald which quotes a survey from Time magazine indicating that Britain and America could drop 30,000 to 50,000 tons of bombs a month on Germany. "In six months everyone of the thirty-one key cities could thus receive 6,000 to 10,000 tons of bombs or twenty times the total dropped on Birmingham, the most bombed British city, and destruction of these thirty-one cities would render inevitable the defeat of the German armies."

The Herald remarks that "it would look as though the Allies are working on that theory in earnest. Germany, we may be sure, is frantically working on counter-measures. What happens on the battle fronts will determine whether or not she can put those counter-measures into effect."

Enemy war production is steadily being pounded as factories are blown up or almost completely wrecked in the key cities of Germany.

It was just this time two years ago that Britain's R.A.F. gave so heavy a blow at Germany's air might in spite of Nazi superiority in numbers that Hitler desisted in the attack. Now nightly over the German cities the Allied airmen from two fronts smash at Axis installations, factories, railways and other communication lines. This is a new development of the war.

"INFERIOR" RANK

Most of the time the men in the Canadian services are glad of the privilege of being able to wear the uniform of their country. They like to feel that it is a privilege to wear the uniform. All of us who do don uniforms realize that our new dress, is to have a levelling effect on our status—in many respects. We do expect to be disciplined by our superior officers. This is a most necessary part of military life where great numbers of men have to be dealt with. If an officer wishes to address a rating by his surname, it is expected and accepted. When a rating is asked to carry out a duty it is conceded that the request should come in the form of an order—that is naval discipline. Ratings are not surprised if their presence in public as "chums" of naval officers is frowned upon. This again is accepted as being a practice that has a direct bearing on the discipline of the service.

It is to be remembered, however, that the majority of the men in the armed services today are nothing more than civilians temporarily employed in the defence of the Empire. It is to be remembered that only in their service rank are they inferior in any way to their fellow man and the fact that they do not hold commissions is no criterion of their status in the business or social life of this Democracy.

It is unfortunate then, that they are on many occasions treated as inferiors by those civilians whom they would protect. On not a few occasions a man who has held the respect and perhaps admiration of an entire community in which he lived previous to the outbreak of war, finds himself being spurned socially now that he is in uniform, not being accorded the title "Mr." or the rank he holds as a non-commissioned combatant and being given direct orders, by male and female civilians.

Day after day they long for the time to return when they may once again put on nice civilian clothes and take up their lives, not as numbers or 'bodies' but as individuals. So don't forget they are where they are today in the hope of saving that 'finer' type of life that you enjoy and to which they too hope to return one day.—Crows Nest.

VERY FAT WOMAN

Probably the fattest woman who ever lived was Mrs. Ruth G. Pontico. She died recently after an operation to remove a fatty tumor in her left thigh. Dr. David P. Willoughby presents a study of her in Human Biology. Five feet five and a half inches tall, she tipped the scales at 800 pounds.

Though she held the record for her sex, Miles Darden, a ..orth Carolina giant who died in 1857, beat her by 200 pounds. Nevertheless, Dr. Willoughby gives the blue ribbon for fatness to Mrs. Pontico, and this because of the relation of her height to her weight. Her mother weighed 720 pounds, and her father, a six-footer, 250.

Despite her enormous weight, Mrs. Pontico consumed only about 50 percent. more food than a normal person of her height.—New York Times.

Some Words On Inflation And Farm Prices

New York, Sept. 16 — In taking any economic measures, it is well to consider all the objectives and consequences.

In fixing all farm prices as they were at some former date—that is to say at "parity" as of average 1919-'29, or as of Oct. 1, 1941, or as of Dec. 15, 1941—the results can be only to keep our farm economy in the same status as it was on those dates. It is proposed to put the same ceiling over all farm prices. The object of this is to prevent inflation.

But this will have another consequences. It will prevent inflation, but it also will hamper the adaptation of our agricultural economy to war necessities. Both the question of inflation and the question of war necessities must be taken into account.

Is there an imminent contradiction between the elimination of inflation and the development of our agriculture along necessary lines?

Although agricultural prices have been under various Government influences and controls for years, the law of supply and demand has nevertheless continued to function. It is this which threatens us with inflation. Therefore, the proposal is to eliminate this functioning entirely by rigid "ceilings."

Supply and demand.

But could we not put the law of supply and demand into anti-inflationary regulations and make it work for the development of agriculture in the directions we desire and thus prevent the freezing of the agricultural economy, while, at the same time, heading off inflation?

It is always a disastrous mistake to supply a simple and rigid formula to a highly complicated situation. We want farmers to produce more than ever in American history. But we do not want them to produce things in the same proportion to one another as they have in the past. We want, specifically, more meat, more eggs, more fats, more high protein foods in general. Here we have shortages, not everywhere.

The present proposal is to curtail consumption of certain commodities by a highly complicated system of ration cards. But a rise in the price of certain commodities, with a stabilized or even lowered price in others, automatically will have the same effect. If beef needed for the army is very high, families will purchase pork instead, or other protein foods, to take its place. The average family requires a certain amount of calories of food per day and has a certain budget to spend for it, and the housewife tries to get the most for her money. So it has always been.

Regarding Ceilings.

So why should not ceilings be set at different levels for different commodities? High on those things which we wish farmers to produce, thus affording an incentive. High on those things which we wish consumers not to eat, thus discouraging consumption. Low on those things which we have a plethora of, thus discouraging farmers from producing them and encouraging households to consume them.

There is a profound difference between the markets for manufactured and agricultural products. The market for the former is, by nature, unlimited. There is no limit to the amount that the individual person can consume of manufactured goods—no limit but his purse. But there is a distinct limit on the potential consumption of agricultural commodities — namely the capacity of the human stomach. So the problem is to persuade the public to eat this instead of that, and the easiest form of persuasion is to make one thing expensive and the other cheap. The most unintelligent way is to create an enormous bureaucracy to control every stomach.

In European countries such rationing has been unavoidable because there was a shortage of everything. Here that is by no means the case.

A war necessity and also an anti-inflation necessity is greater production. Any ceiling on prices is discouraging to farmer producers—even differential ceilings, such as I have proposed. But these can be offset by encouraging factors, provided we have the imagination and audacity to try new things.

Labor the Chief Problem

The greatest single problem of the farmer today is labor.

Under no conditions can he compete with the wages in industry. And things are occurring which should give the leaders of this nation pause. Despite high prices, there is a danger that the small independent farmer will pass out of existence in this country. The economy will suffer from this more than people dream. For instance, the great bulk of egg production comes from farmers who raise eggs as a side line.

This problem cannot be solved inside normal economics.

It can be solved only by regarding food production as an essential national service and organizing land armies of women, and youth to serve their country on farms. This has been done in other countries, and to some extent in this country. City people are able to do farm work, as I have personally seen demonstrated this summer. But there are certain conditions of organization, supervision, and esprit de corps essential to success. These I will consider in another column.

There is also the question of priorities on farm equipment which, as presently managed, is complicated, wasteful, and cumbersome. But the discussion of this also must be postponed to another article.

BRAZIL NUTS

There is an increasing demand in the United States for Brazil nuts to take the place of cashew nuts formerly imported from India.

The United States is now receiving more than 95 percent of the 45,000 tons of Brazil nuts harvested yearly in South America.

All commercial Brazil nuts are still obtained from wild trees growing in the jungles along the Orinoco and Amazon rivers, chiefly in Brazil.

Little has been done in the way of producing Brazil nuts on plantations. The trees on two plantations in the Amazon basin are still too young to demonstrate the practicability of the experiment.

The trees, which have enormous glossy leaves and bear cream-colored blossoms, attain heights of 75 to 125 feet and generally tower above the rest of the jungles.

The Brazil nut industry is operated almost exclusively by natives, who carry the product to market in canoes.

It is estimated that nuts are now gathered from 100,000 trees, while the nuts from several hundred thousand trees are never harvested because of their inaccessibility.

Brazil nuts are really the seeds of the fruit of the tree.

The fruit is a large pod or capsule about the size and shape of a coconut and so hard that it requires the blow of a hammer to break it.

Because of their great weight the pods, when ripe, fall to the ground like cannonballs.

Each pod contains from 12 to 20 large, dark-brown, angular, wrinkled nuts arranged radially like the sections of an orange.

The white, sweet meat of the nuts is rich in oil. Under the name "wild oil fruit," the Dutch began to export Brazil nuts to Europe as early as 1633.

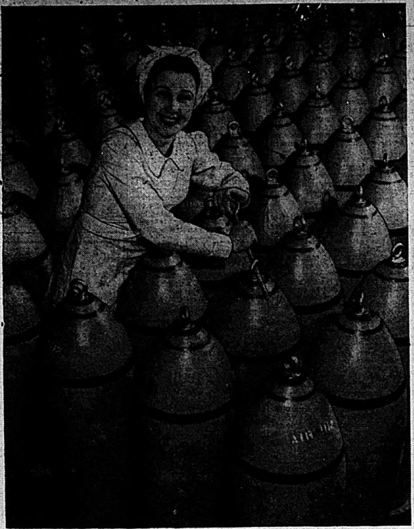
In the United States, Brazil nuts are often called nigger-toes.

The wood of the Brazil-nut tree makes good saw timber, and the bark is used in making oakum and a coarse native cloth.

Until about 1800 Brazil nuts were used largely as a livestock feed.

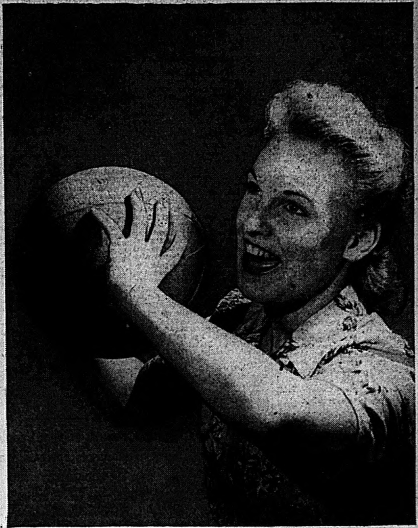
For many years the United States imposed an import duty of one and one-half cents a pound on unshelled Brazil nuts and four and one-half cents a pound on the nuts when shelled. These duties were cut in half by the trade agreement of 193 .

The Brazil Nut Advertising Fund has been carrying on an intensive advertising campaign to acquaint American confectioners with the uses of shelled Brazil nuts.



Women had a big share in filling these Bundles for Berlin in a Canadian plant. Evelyn Ghartrand, tightening nose plugs on 500-pound aerial bombs, knows the accident rate in this type of plant is lower than in many commonplace trades.

Typical of munitions workers is Rena Turner who went to Ontario from Merigomish, Nova Scotia. University graduates, teachers, debutantes work in war plants.

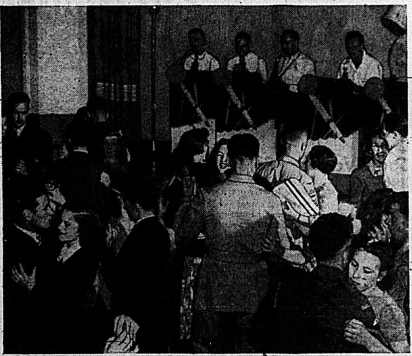


On courts in a recreation hall provided by the plant, pretty Irene Brayley plays basketball after her eight-hour shift is finished. Several types of recreation are provided. Irene placed fourth in a "Miss War Worker" contest.

Plants realize relationship between war production and health of workers so medical staffs keep close check on employees. This girl is having an eye test.

Dormitories house single employees at this shell filling plant. Two girls to each bedroom. Comfortable common rooms are open to workers' friends. Emma Akerley, Moncton, N.B., relaxes on bed while Joy Proctor tells her about a tennis game. Courts, bowling alleys, recreation hall, movies, are provided for workers by management.

Reine Davis gets "permanent" in modern beauty parlor on plant property. Joy Proctor looks on. General Store on grounds stocks necessities. Girls pay $7 room and board.



Twice weekly dances are held in large recreation hall which is community centre at this plant. Men in uniform from nearby camps are popular guests. Stage in background serves amateur dramatic society. Curtains hide movie sound equipment.

Plant cafeterias supply nourishing meals at reasonable prices. Irene Brayley pays 25 cents for hot lunch. The latest National Film Board movie, "Women are Warriors", is now showing at many theatres, emphasizing role of womanpower.

Popular Ivanhoe Couple Observes Their Golden Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Mitz, well-known Ivanhoe couple, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday, September 13th., the event being marked by social gatherings on Saturday and Sunday. On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Mitz entertained about fifty of their relatives at their home, the event being in the form of a banquet with an interesting program.

A Toast to the King was given by Burson Mitz, to which all responded by singing the National Anthem. Mr. Will Shaw, a close neighbour, gave a Toast to the bride and groom of fifty years in which he recalled the wedding day. He referred to the help the couple have always been to the community. Mr. and Mrs. Mitz were presented with some lovely gifts at this time, among which were a lovely bouquet of flowers presented by a three-year-old granddaughter; a lovely lace table cloth; a beautiful table lamp and a fine sweater for Mr. Mitz.

The honored couple responded to the Toast and thanked the guests for their gifts.

Mr. Clifford Mitz gave a Toast to the guests to which Mr. Blake Ketcheson responded. Many beautiful and appropriate songs and fine instrumental numbers rounded out the program.

On Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Mitz were at home to their friends and neighbours. The large crowd which gathered to wish them well and the many gifts and messages of congratulation from a distance proved the high esteem in which they are held by all who know them.

Variety of Activities To Be Undertaken In Red Cross Society's Winter Schedule

A sample of the comfort bags which the Navy League has asked the Red Cross in Ontario to furnish arrived at the local Red Cross headquarters yesterday and was on display. Twelve thousand of these bags were promised by the Ontario Red Cross to the Navy League and Belleville branch will look after their quota. The comfort bags all contain one knitted article and all kinds of comforts for the sailors and those wishing to send them can arrange with the local headquarters on Campbell Street.

3,000 Sheets Shipped

Over three thousand sheets have been shipped from Belleville to Toronto in connection with the Russian Red Cross. The material for the sheets was supplied from the Russian Relief Fund to which Canadians subscribed in a campaign some months ago.

The tearing of the material which comes in bolts to the Red Cross rooms has been a major job and among those who have undertkaen this work is the group of business girls which meet on Monday nights at the Red Cross workrooms. Any business girl in the city is welcome to come to this group meeting and there is plenty of work of various kinds to be done.

Summer Visitors Help

Visitors to this district during the summer months, coming here from Hamilton, are Mr. and Mrs. M. Logan ho have a summer home across the Bay. For the past three years they have associated themselves with local Red Cross efforts and have been enthusiastic and tireless workers. Both assisted in measuring and tearing sheets while Mrs. Logan, all summer long cut out garments ranging from women's suits to boys' underwear, ready for sewing which will be undertaken this winter.

Ends from the sheeting for the Russian hospitals, if measuring forty inches are madeinto surgical gowns, and the remnants go to Russia as cotton remnants for use in hospitals.

Other Activities

Work on the four pound tins of honey and jam has been rather slow. Groups wishing to help in this may get the special recipes from Red Cross headquarters, Campbell Street, and can also obtain special permits for extra sugar to make up the jam.

It is hoped that the work on the sheets for Russia will be completed by the end of the month and the workers will direct their energies to the many other Red Cross projects scheduled for the Fall and Winter.

The most urgent need is for six hundred articles of clothing for British boys. These included boys' longs, shorts, coats, shirts, underpants, caps, in sizes 2, 3, 11 and 12. Then too, the emergency articles which each branch is to have on stock in case of sudden calls will have to be completed.

With the sewing rooms open night and day each week day, the women of Belleville and district will doubtlessly give as fine account of their patriotic efforts this Winter as they have in the past.

Nurse's Treatment a Boon To Paralysis Victims

Elizabeth Kenny, an Australian nurse, has received recognition for her method in the treatment of infantile paralysis. The Kenny treatment is exactly the opposite, in some ways, of treatment that has been used in the past.

The new treatment has been carried out for a sufficiently long period to definitely prove its value.

According to Miss Kenny, the only cause for pain in infantile paralysis is spasm in the muscles affected by the disease. Other muscles which are not affected become stretched because of the abnormal condition in the affected muscles. The muscles not affected by the disease, however, may become paralyzed because they are not used. It is important that treatment for the infantile paralysis be started as soon as a diagnosis is made. The Kenny treatment is aimed to get rid of the muscle spasm.

The treatment is as follow:

The patient is put in a naturally restful position in the bed. The feet are allowed to rest against a footboard. Hot applications are made to the muscles to relax the spasm. In some cases these applications are given every half hour. In others they are given every two hours from 8.00 a.m. to 8 p.m. In some instances they may be used during the night also, depending on the severity of the symptoms. Massage is not used. Fatigue must be avoided. Miss Kenny advises that the use of all splints on the legs be given up and that no respirators be used.

Difficulty in breathing is caused by spasm in the muscles used in breathing and one of the objectives of Miss Kenny's treatment is that this spasm be relaxed by the use of hot packs. The patient must be taught to breathe properly. In using the hot packs it is suggested that a tub of water be kept at the patient's bedside, and that there be a means of keeping the water hot. The cloths are dipped into the water and run through a wringer. They are then quickly applied to the affected muscles but not over the joints. The dressings are covered with oiled silk and then wool and they are changed every half hour in the very severe cases. The treatment is continued until the period of great sensitivity of the muscles has passed.

The results that have been obtained by Miss Kenny's treatment indicate that it is of great value, and that when it is employed recovery from paralysis is more likely to occur than with other methods of treatment. The patients who have this, treatment are more cheerful and more comfortable than those who are treated in other

FASHION FLASHES

THERE'S A BIG DEMAND for the silk suit. A nice model is in black faille with scattered discs of black velvet woven in. Black velvet ruffles finish the high neckline of the snug jacket and form cuffs of the long tight sleeves. Skirt has slight fullness in front.

A new high has been reached by some of the new hat crowns. The Cossack hat is the inspiration for an after-dark hat of sapphire blue velvet, its height accentuated by a feather fancy with long sweeping tall feathers in parrot colors.

Frankly pretty is the sole excuse for a dinner dress of deep American Beauty and silver lame. The long slim skirt has a pegtop line and is slashed in front. Bracelet sleeves are shirred through the elbow and there are jewel buttons and a novel roll collar.

Plenty of applause at a recent fashion showing for an afternoon-into-evening dress of black crepe with all over black silk tassel fringe. High neckline, pegtop silhouette and rhinestone buckle at the waist.

Pretty cold is what it is going to be come winter, so cosy jackets will be important. Black taffeta quilted in silk cord and lined with deep red velveteen makes a cosy jacket. Big red velvet bow under the chin of the high neckline.

Back to school frocks lend consolation to the vacation-end season. A nice two-piece frock has a skirt of rust-colored corduroy with a jacket top of corduroy plaided in rust, beige and tan, with collar and shoulder yoke of the rust corduroy.

Unmarried Teachers Sometimes Suffer From Unflattering Self-Hypnosis

A little while ago this column published a letter from a girl who had, to use a bit of slang, "thrown up the sponge" at 28 years of age.

She wrote she was "through with life" because she felt life was through with her. She sent me a photograph of herself and the picture was that of a charming girl. She had taught school for five years—and that seemed to be what I may call the worm in the peach.

I haven't a word to say, against the ancient and honorable profession of teaching, but only too often it gives to women queer and unflattering ideas about themselves. If a woman marries before she begins to teach, she escapes this complex. But, be she ever so attractive, clever, well-equipped educationally speaking, and with rare gifts for home-making, if she begins to teach immediately after her graduation, she's apt to get this complex. Not all do, of course and, curiously enough it's the finer type of girl who begins, a few years after teaching, to imagine that her attractions as a woman decrease with the number of her classroom years.

It's unbelievable to note the letters I get from women, 28, 29, 30 and thereabouts, who wrote me that life has passed them by. Life hasn't passed them by at all; they have done the passing. They are like people walking through an orchard full of golden fruit and heavenly smells, with nose high in air, declining to enjoy and pick up even a windfall. Sometimes these girls ask me about books on personality classes in charm and such like, for means of acuiring instruction in those things Nature has implanted sometimes too abundantly in others.

A change of environment is the thing needed by women who shrivel under a self-imposed hypnotism into the belief that they are no longer attractive. They need green fields and pastures new, even if they bring in smaller pay envelopes. The situation has been solved for many by joining new war units.

Lunching in the ladies' dining room of a Club a young friend of mine came up to say goodbye. She was embarking with the Red Cross under sealed orders; she didn't actually know whether she was going to Iceland or North Africa. A suitable wardrobe for either emergency was ready. Think of the thrill of that sort of thing. Something as good is open to you.

Tea in Honor of the Bride-to-Be

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother's engagement was announced last Saturday at a buffet party given at the home of his fiancee. This party provided a delightful opportunity for the members of our family to meet the relatives of the bride-to-be.

Now, I am wondering if I, or perhaps my parents, should give a tea or a similar informal party in honor of the engaged couple, so that the prospective bride and her family will have the opportunity of meeting our relatives and friends. What do you think about this plan?

If you agree with this plan, when do you think we should give this party? The wedding is to be in November.

Kaye

It's a perfect idea for your mother and father and you to give a tea (preferably, I should think, on a Sunday afternoon, for the greatest convenience to the greatest number of guests) in honor of the bride-to-be. The party should be given in the names of your mother and father since they are the hosts of your home, although you, of course, would be co-hostess. It will give a perfect opportunity to complete the establishment of the relationship between the two families.

If you send the invitations on cards, like a tea-invitation, it would be gracious to write, "To meet Miss Dorothy Robinson".

I suggest that you give this party as soon as possible. There is every advantage in having the relatives and friends of the two families know each other at the earliest moment.

Marking Linens

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should I have my linens marked: Should I use the initials of my maiden name, or those of my name-to-be? Some of my friends advise one way, and others insist on the other way. I thought that I had better get an authority on such subjects to tell me the proper way.

Joan

The only "authority" on this question of how the bride's linens are to be marked is the bride's own preference. Either marking is correct, and the bride-to-be must decide for herself which she prefers.

The traditional style is the use of the initials (or monogram) of the maiden name on linens. Most of the linen shops report that the majority of brides choose to abide by this traditional form.

However, the bride-to-be may consider it more practical to use her future initials.

Collective Bargaining Issue Will Be Defined by Committee Appointed by General Council

E. E. Mahon's Resolution to Set Aside Sum as Special Fund Referred Back

BUDGET PREPARED

The United Church General Council is not in a position to properly define collective bargaining, General Secretary Dr. Gordon A. Sisco told that body here Tuesday, prior to a discussion on the subject.

The brief debate ended with a special committee being formed to meet representatives of organized labor to clarify the definition as it affects the church's Publishing House.

Dr. Sisco suggested that a special committee be appointed to draft a definition and present it to council for discussion, but Senator John Haig, Winnipeg, warned the body that its definition may not be in keeping with that of organized labor.

A resolution moved by C. E. Mahon, Vancouver, that ten per cent additional of the $1,510,000 Missionary and Maintenance Budget be collected and set aside as a special fund to avoid bank overdraft as referred to the new Finance Committee.

Set Aside For Ten Years

Mr. Mahon's plan was to set aside ten per cent for a period of ten years so that at the end of that time a complete budget for the following year would be on hand.

The Rev. Charles Endicott, Secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance Committee, in placing the budget before the Council stated that it "meant five cents per capita per week for the 700,000 members of the church. We should give five millions", he said, "so that we can work and place in the hands of the coming generation, the tools to fashion the new world order."

The Fund, he said, is $36,000 ahead of this time last year. Five conferences, namely Newfoundland, the Maritimes, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have paid in sufficient money to place them ahead at the end of the month.

The resolutions of the committee as embodied in the report are: That inasmuch as it is of vital importance that the interests and co-operation of more people in all pastoral charges be enlisted in the support of the great work of our Church more general use be made of:

(a) The Missionary material appearing regularly in our Church publications.

(b) The Annual Reports of the General Boards as incorporated in the Year Book.

(c) The Special Leaflets and other Missionary literature issued from time to time. We wish to point out that up-to-date literature is always available upon request from ministers and Churches.

(d) We specially commend "The Observer" as a splendid medium for material of missionary interest.

We would urge the use of the weekly Church calendar for publishing items of missionary interest.

That the financial objective of the year 1943 be $1,510,000 and apportioned to the Conferences as follows:

Newfoundland	$ 20,000
Maritime	150,000
Montreal and Ottawa	210,000
Bay of Quinte	120,000
Toronto	335,000
Hamilton	185,000
London	180,000
Manitoba	98,000
Saskatchewan	62,000
Alberta	60,000
British Columbia	90,000

We would like to emphasize the point that the success of the financial support of the Missionary and Maintenance work of the Church depends upon (a) the enthusiastic leadership of the ministers of our churches; (b) the earnest co-operation of the laymen with all charges.

BLACKOUT SANDWICHES
Emergency Food For Hungry Families

ALL the family will praise your sandwiches if you will just avoid "flat taste" by the addition of H. P. Sauce. This is the secret to appetizing sandwiches.

"Blackout" Sandwiches are the latest wartime "newey". To make them, whip together ½ lb. of cream cheese with 1 tablespoon of H. P. Sauce and ½ tablespoon of horseradish; then sauté a 3½ oz. can of chipped beef and a tablespoon of butter until frizzled. Break up fine and add to cheese mixture. Spread on buttered brown bread.

H. P. is a fine old English type, thick, fruity sauce. It is economical because it is concentrated. Try it on meat, fish, fowl, salads, soups, stews, etc. You'll be surprised at the wonderful flavour it gives foods.

United Church Will Have Only One Moderator in Next Two Years Council Decides

Standing Vote in Favor of Dr. Sclater Acting Until Next General Council

A CLOSE VOTE

Commissioners of the United Church General Council, by a close vote, defeated a motion of the Rev. A. Lloyd Smith, Westmount, Montreal, Tuesday, to elect two Moderators with tenures of office to run one year each consecutively. No nominations were made.

The motion presented to General Council, was one laid over last Wednesday night when tenure of office of the Moderator was deferred following the election of the Right Rev. J. R. P. Sclater as head of the Church.

Prior to debate on the motion, the Moderator turned over the chair to the Very Rev. A. S. Tuttle, former Moderator, with these words to Council. "I am seeking to evade nothing; nor am I seeking to clutch something. Please forget about me."

Need of Continuity Urged

The Rev. F. B. Ball, Saskatchewan, replying to the motion stated there is need for continuity of leadership in the church. If possible say lengthen the term of tenure to three years, and not shorten it."

"The other man will just shuffle into office, and after all he will only be the other fellow".

Dr. Smith speaking for the motion stated, that he would rather protect the Moderator "to save him longer for the church, because I feel a man from the pastorate is taking on a tremendous job when accepting the Moderatorship".

No greater service is being rendered in these days than that of the minister, who stays at home with his congregation. "It is impossible to be both a minister of his congregation and do his work properly, and be a Moderator at a time like this. We are injecting a strain of burden that would have a disadvantageous effect".

"The time has come, when we should realize the strain on the physical strength of those we elect from the pastorate", he said.

He urged action on the motion be taken. "It is much easier for two moderators to handle the affairs of church than one", he argued.

The Rev. G. H. Glover, Moosejaw, predice a divisive element if two moderators were elected. He suggested pastorates from which Moderators are elected supply ministerial help during the church head's absence across the country.

Against Two Moderators

"Two Moderators, of whom the West will see only one, does not appeal to me", he said.

Amos Vicond, The Rev. J. E. Strotherd, Lunenberg, N.S., Principal R. G. Wallace, Queen's University, supported the motion for two moderators while the Rev. W. G. Martin Winnipeg, urged a deputy moderator. Principal A. Kerr, Pine Hill College, Halifax, stated that it was "presumptuous on the part of the Council not to accept the "judgment of the church, when it had been so emphatically expressed".

He was referring to the General Council of 1940 which did not take any action on the question after the church presbyteries had by a nearly two-thirds majority endorsed a similar motion.

Dr. Smith speaking before the vote was taken pointed out to the Council the physical effects the office had had on former Moderators. 'I leave it with your conscience", he said.

A standing vote was counted.

Air-Raid Alarm In Budapest But No Bombs Drop

London, Sept. 16. (CP) —Radio stations in Central Europe went off the air last night, indicating that Russian bombers again were active or that air defence authorities in the Nazi domain were becoming increasingly jittery about the two-way British-Russian bombing schedule.

Early today there were no reports from any source of actual air raids on the continent. The customary early-morning report of R.A.F. activities against Germany was not given, indicating that bad weather had kept the bombers at home.

There was an air-raid alarm in Budapest after the Budapest radio left the air, but no report of bombs dropped. Subsequently radio stations at Bratislava, Luxembourg, Bremen, Breslau, Kalundborg and Calais closed down and the Bucharest station wound up its program earlier than usual.

Monday night the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. gave one of its powerful jolts to the German naval base and shipbuilding centre of Wilhelmshaven. Yesterday afternoon R.A.F. bombers escorted by fighters attacked shipping at Cherbourg in Occupied France and other aircraft raked factories, railway yards and other targets in Northern France with gunfire.

German planes raided the coastal districts of Eastern England last night, but it was authoritatively stated that only a few bombs were dropped, causing but one fatality and damage.

Dogfight in National League Resumes as Brooklyn Tries To Overcome Cardinals' Lead

St. Louis Has Two-Game Lead But Begin to Look Groggy

BEAT PHILS 3-2

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sport Writer

The dogfight in the National League became a two-ring circus again today as Brooklyn Dodgers took up the chase of the St. Louis Cardinals after two days of idleness during which the Redbirds managed to entrench themselves in first place by two full games.

There was a possibility the open dates might favor Brooklyn in the long run because the fiercely fought series in Philadelphia took so much out of the Cardinals that they appeared groggy yesterday even though they dragged down a 3-2 victory over the Phils in 14 innings.

Morton Cooper, winner of 20 games, was on the mound but did not have his customary wares. His teammates gave him a two-run lead in the third inning and ordinarily this would have been enough for the husky righthander. However, it wasn't yesterday. Cooper was behind almost every batter, allowed the Phils to tally once in their half of the third, to tie the score on Nick Etten's homer in the eighth, and finally retired under fire with no one out in the ninth after he had given up 10 hits.

Murry Dickson took charge and pitched six scoreless innings after that. But the Redbirds were so feeble Dickson himself had to set off the winning spark by hitting a double after two were out in the 14th. Jim Brown then brought him home with a single.

The Redbirds obviously were in a hitting slump as they moved into Boston to close their Eastern campaign with two games against the Braves today and tomorrow. They were outhit in three of their four games at Philadelphia and were moving in low gear even before they reached Shibe Park.

Besides the Cardinals' contest the only other major league game yesterday brought together Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox in the American League, but weather halted play in the fourth inning, forcing cancellation of the game. Chicago was leading 4-3 at the time.

New York, Sept. 16—Frank Frisch, whose Pirates may be the ones to knock Brooklyn clear out of the pennant race, figures the Dodgers still have a good chance if one hitter can get hot enough to bring the rest of the club to a boil. . .But apparently the only place the Dodgers are hot is under Larry MacPhail's collar. . .Canada's green light (with reservations) for Pro hockey gives Americans an idea what to expect in baseball next year. . .By the time players eligible for military service and those useful in the war effort have been eliminated, the teams likely will be made up of creaky-kneed old timers and young inexperienced kids . . , But don't look for much Minor League Hockey—Expect that played by major league teams. . .

Three Tons Rubber Salvage Turned in By Rural Mail Carrier

Approximately three tons of rubber tires and other rubber articles comprised the collection made by local rural mail carriers during their recent rubber salvage campaign, it was revealed yesterday when the rubber was turned over to the Belleville Salvage committee and sold to local salvage dealers. One full truck load of tires was included in the lot, with the total weight of the material amounting to slightly over 5,800 pounds.

Although the campaign for rubber in the rural areas is now officially over, tires and other rubber articles are still being brough in by carriers, it was revealed this morning when the Madoc bus driver delivered 300 pounds to the chairman of the local salvage committee.

Approximately six tons of salvage, much of which was rubber, was turned over by the local committee on Monday. This included the three tons from the Post Office, 3,400 opunds from Coleman Ward, this week's area for regular collections, and 3,700 pounds from the Trenton Air Station. The Public Utilities Commission truck with the assistance of personnel from the local fire department made the collections.

DODGERS LOSE FIGHT AND LOOK BEWILDERED

Team Even Celebrated Winning Pennant on Last Road Trip

CAN'T FIGHT BREAKS

By GAYLE TALBOT
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Sept. 16 (AP)—A thing so strange and baffling that it almost defies description has happened to the once-debonair Brooklyn Dodgers in the closing stages of the National League race. They look tired and bewildered and the fight seems to have gone out of them in the face of the Cardinals' remorseless drive.

The reason, a member of the Dodger family explained weakly, is that it is somehow numbing to see a thing slip away day after day and feel powerless to prevent it. After a time you begin to feel dazed, he said.

"I remember the night we started our last western trip," he quavered. "We had the pennant won. We even celebrated to the extent of a tub of beer on the train, because it was a Sunday and we were passing through Pennsylvania, which is dry on Sunday.

"Not that anybody over-drank. How is a whole team going to break training on one tub of beer? But, I mean, that's the way we felt. World series, here we come! Sure, we were in a little hitting slump, but we had a seven and a half game lead over the Cardinals, so what did a little slump amount to?

Breaks Against Team

"I still can't believe it's happened. Even when they cut us down to a three or four-game lead we kept thinking any day now we'll get started again. But we didn't. Seems like when a thing like this is happening every break goes against you. Did you see that third strike Barlick called on Camilli Sunday with two on base? Things like that."

He said, finally, that he hadn't had more than an hour's sleep the previous night and didn't anticipate any better luck on the night in question. He looked terrible.

All the Dodgers look more or less the same. Manager Leo Durocher is subdued and President Larry MacPhail virtually has conceded the pennant to the Cardinals. After the two games Cincinnati won at Ebbets Field last Sunday, Secretary John McDonald said, morosely, that he believed that had done it. It was as though a catastrophe that had long been dreaded finally had happened and there was nothing further to worry about.

Many Theories Advanced

The town is full of theories about what caused such a good ball club to lose an apparently impregnable lead. Those who have followed the Dodgers closest say they simply began getting tired about a month ago: Possibly because they began training long before the other clubs last spring, and because they trained in Havana, where the sun is supposed to be especially sapping. But more probably because a lot of the Dodgers are veterans, approaching the fag end of their careers anyway.

By SCOTT YOUNG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Sept. 16 — (CP) — An Australian airman, W. L. (for something) Webster, turned out last week for practice with the R. C. A. F. team in the Winnipeg City Senior Football League. He had been a rugger star in Australia, and a good light heavyweight boxes. He was stocky and tough, and perhaps because of that his approach to the game was unusual.

First, he thought all the armor other players wore was nonsense. He didn't think the game was that rough. He also thought the way to go through a line was heads-up, see-where-you're-going. He scorned the necessity of detouring around an enemy tackler. His alternative was simple: just run right over him.

He revised his ideas about armor after his first tough scrimmage. About the same time he decided that one should save one's head for the war effort, instead of having it knocked off going through a line. So he started to tuck it in when he plunged. And a little later he found out about tacklers. They really were worth eluding. About that point, the Australian was becoming quite a football player.

Last night, about a week after his introduction to football, W. L. Webster wore heavy padding, kept his head down when he hit the line, treated tacklers like social outcasts, and scored the only touchdown as R.C.A.F. beat Winnipeg Bombers 6-0 in the first game of the 1942 Canadian football season.

Incidentally:

LAC. Dave Castilloux gave the boys a little lesson in sportsmanship the other night in Montreal.. he refused to be introduced to a fight crowd at an outdoor boxing show because lightweight Johnny Greco, also of Montreal, wasn't given the same invitation...Greco has been bowling them over in the United States, is a likely contender for Castilloux's Canadian lightweight crown ... Sqdn. Ldr. Lionel Conacher is charming the Western populace these days ... his reception has been warm everywhere since he started his jaunt to survey hockey prospects ... his word on the aim of R.C.A.F. sport is enlightening, and encouraging: — "There are 160 former professional hockey players in the R.C.A.F.," he told Ken (Edmonton Journal) McConnell. "We are not worried about the morale of civilians. We want these boys to play for the entertainment of the troops — the airmen themselves."

If there is a shortage of football players in the country, at least two Eastern coaches won't believe it .. FO. Lew Hayman had 100 candidates attend the first workout of his Toronto Air Force team ...... Coach Fred Veale combed over 50 at Hamilton Wildcats' first practice ... plans are being made for two Royal Air Force soccer teams from Saskatchewan air stations to visit the Pacific Coast for exhibitions.

GIANTS, CHIEFS SURPRISE CLUBS OF THE PLAYOFFS

Jersey City Has Bears Behind Eight-Ball and Royals Well-Beaten

PLAY SMART BALL

By The Associatde Press

International League baseball fans probably are wondering if somebody isn't kidding them, now that the pennant-winning Newark Bears have lost three straight games in the semi-final playoffs and have scored only two runs in that time.

They began the Governors' Cup playoffs in grand style, walloping the fourth-place Jersey City Giants in the first two encounters but since then the Giants have beaten them, 3-0, 3-1 and 3-1 again yesterday.

Meanwhile, Syracuse was handling Montreal in similar fashion, pounding out an 8-1 triumph for the Chiefs' third victory in a row.

Ken Jungles survived a shaky first inning to hang up his first victory in the playoffs and his third of the season over Newark. Bill Johnson started the fireworks with a double and scored on a single by Hank Majeski. That was all the scoring the Bears did.

Jersey City tied the score in the third on Buddy Kerr's single, a sacrifice by Jungles, a wild pitch and a long fly by Johnny Rucker. Tommy Byrne, Newark hurler, handed the Giants the contest in the sixth by loading the bases on walks to Connie Ryan, Gibby Brack and Sid Gordon and then allowing Hugh Poland to single in two runs. The Bears outhit the Giants, 914.

Jersey City moves back to the scene of all its defeats as it engages the Bruins at Ruppert Stadium for the sixth contest today.

Charles (Red) Barrett notched a five hit 8-1 triumph as his Syracuse mates pounded Chet Kehn, Bob Chipman and Ed Spaulding for 11.

Barrett had a three-hit shutout until the ninth when he lost it on an infield hit, a walk and a run-scoring single by Alex Kampouris.

Wildness on the part of pitcher Kehn and three mechanical errors and a few mental ones by Montreal helped the Chiefs' cause greatly.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 16 (CP)—He's 40 and not liable for conscription as a married man with four children, but Lerrupin' Larry Gains is fighting in the Middle East—a bigger fight than any he ever had in the ring.

The Toronto Negro, who came to Britain on a cattle boat nearly 20 years ago and left the mark of his iron fists on many a British heavyweight, arrived "over there" recently. A sergeant-major in the Pioneer Corps, he joined up a few hours after war was declared.

Once heavyweight king of the British Empire, Gains never was recognized as British titlist because of a British Boxing Board of Control ruling that "men of color" may not hold a British title, although they can be Empire champions. He lost the Empire crown to Len Harvey many years ago and hasn't done much boxing of late.

The color ruling also applies to Stoker Tommy Martin, Britain's present-day "Brown Bomber" who it attempting to get the ban blasted. Before leaving port as stoker on a merchant ship a few days ago, Tommy issued a challenge to all leading boxers in the heavy and lightheavy classes, including the lightheavy champ, Bashing Freddie Mills, and appealed to the board against the ban.

Another Canadian in Britain's sport spotlight is Lieut. J. W. (Johnny) Loaring of Windsor, Ont., who's going to make an attempt—conditional on leave—on the British 440-yard hurdles record at a big athletic meeting at Portsmouth Sept. 17. The record of 53 seconds was made four years ago in London by J. Patterson, an American.

Johnny, on loan from the Canadian to the British navy, has been hitting pretty close to that figure in practice timber topping, although he's not quite in the running shape he was in the last Olympics. In the only organized meet in which he hos completed this season, he won the two events he entered. He ran an easy 15.8 seconds for the 120-yard hurdles and sped 300 yards in a shade outside 30 seconds.

"..Nor Iron Bars a Cage."

A bunch of the boys made practice nets from Red Cross parcels string, then played England-Australia cricket "Test" matches—in a German prison camp. While Nazi guards who never had seen a cricket match looked on in perplexity from outside the barbed wire, the English side walloped the Aussies two straight games.

Sgt. R. J. Hoyle of the Army Medical Corps told of the "Tests" in a letter home. He said "the barracking was terrific," and that "when I was not bowling they (the Austalians) yelled 'put Hoyle on,' and when I was on they cried 'take Hoyle off.' It's all part of the game in Australia."

SCHACHT TO OPEN CAFE

New York, Sept. 16—(AP)— Al Schacht, Baseball's Clown Prince, said today that tire and gas restrictions had force him to abanon his diamond antics and that he would open a cafe in New York shortly.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

JUST WHAT THE OUTLOOK for Interscholastic football will be in and around the Bay of Quinte sector cannot be determined until after the district C. O. S. S. A. moguls convene. Annually this conclave is held the second week in September, but owing to the belated opening of secondary schools throughout Ontario the sports heads of district high schools and collegiates will be a month later this year. Rugby football was carried on in the third war year by the Interscholastic groups with two distinct styles of the fall classic being provided the public. Senior Interscholastic football saw the Belleville Collegiate triumph over Albert College, only to be soundly beaten by a courageous twelve from Tweed. However, for home consumption a strong junior Interscholastic six-man group operated with St. Mikes winning, the other three squads being the Collegiate, Albert College and Picton C. I. No doubt a junior six-man loop along these lines could function among the three local secondary schools again in 1942, but senior football is practically out for the duration.

FOLLOWING THE SUCCESSful operation of the Belleville and District Softball League this summer some of the club sponsors are toying with the idea of operating a six-man football loop along the same lines. Tilly Donihee, chairman of the Reliance Sports Committee, is highly in favour of such a group and so is FO. Ray Barrett over at the Mountain View Bombing School. FO. Bob Hunter, in charge of sports at No. 5 I. T. S., says his boys would like nothing better, but his department is faced with the lack of adequate football equipment at present. There's little doubt but FO. Buff Horton, over at Trenton, would welcome with open arms an opportunity to enter a team in such a compact loop, but as pointed out before the situation today seems to hinge around whether or not the N. 5 I. T. S. will join the fold. Rumours have all available football talent at N. 5 already slated to be transferred to Toronto to line-up with FO. Lew Hayman's R. C. A. F. entry into the senior O. R. F. U. ranks.

DOWN IN KINGSTON SCRIBE Walsh is helping to line-up a strong four-team city football league, of the conventional 12-man game. Already Queens University has entered along with the Ordnance-Headquarters "Combines," a Vimy Barracks squad and a team composed of officers now training in all military and naval centres in the Limestone City. Incidentally Don Mumford, former Varsity grid star, is coaching the Kingston Officers, while Johnny Manson, aggressive Balmy Beach quarterback, is lining up the Vimy Barracks squad and we wouldn't be surprised to hear our old friend Bob Elliott will head one of the two remaining clubs in Kingston, preferably the Ordnance-Headquarters team. It is expected the Trenton R. C. A. F. base will sponsor a conventional football squad if only to play exhibition games and if such is the case Skipper Buff Horton might do worse than look over the Exhibition Park grid iron here for the site of his home games.

LOCAL WRESTLING FANS may not appreciate the fact that Belleville replaced Hamilton last spring in the Canadian grappling circuit. Although the Ambitous City boasts of a population nearly ten times as great as that of the Quinte City the weekly attendance at the Hume Arena was so that Promoter Frank Tunney gave Belleville the nod and has struck Hamilton from his circuit. Skipper Tunney has fulfilled all of his promises to local wrestling fans in bringing to Belleville some of the best wrestlers on the continent. This was proven when "Wild Bill" Longson, the recognized champion, played here, but perhaps his crowning effort will be the staging of a British Empire heavyweight championship bout here in the near future. Tonight sees the semi-final elimination for the Empire crown between John Katan and Earl McCready, a pair of Canadian grapplers who are recognized as tops in their avocation. To assure a perfect score Tunney has added "The Terrible Turk" and the 260-pound George Duros, the Chicago Greek, as new faces tonight.

REMEMBER WHEN LEN KOENECKE, Brooklyn Dodger outfielder, was killed in an aeroplane flight over Toronto seven years ago today? Struck over the head when he allegedly molested the pilot, Koenecke was dead when the plane landed just north of the city. The plane carrying Koenecke was enroute from Detroit to Buffalo.

Although he was wearing uniform No. 21 Mort Cooper's pet superstition failed to respond yesterday when the Cardinals eked out a 3 to 2 win over the Phillies after 14 long innings of a struggle. Cooper has been wearing the uniform number of the game he needs on his current list of victories and yesterday was wearing Johnny Beazley's No. 21 shirt, but it was "no soap" as Cooper had to be relieved by Murry Dickson, who got credit for the win. However, the Cardinals are quite happy about the whole thing as they're two full games out in front of the second-place Dodgers. All of the National League clubs swing into action today with St. Louis at Boston and Pittsburgh at Brooklyn for the more important games.

THIS AND THAT — Seems Jersey City and Syracuse are really taking Newark and Montreal over the jumps in the International League play-offs ... See Art Scarlett got himself a hit for Hollinger Mines, who lost the opener of the Northern League play-offs to Falconbridge yesterday ... The opening game of the 1942 world series will be played at either Brooklyn or St. Louis on Sept. 30th .... In the event Brooklyn plays the Yankees there'll be six games played without a break, with Oct. 6th open for the sale of tickets in the event of a seventh game ... However, if the Cardinals finish on top there will be a day for travelling after each series is over .... All weekday games are slated to commence at 1:30 p. m., Sundays 2:05 o'clock.. Leo Barrett's Recreation Alleys swung open for the trundlers to get in some practice games before their lengthy schedule commences next month ... Both Ottawa and Washington gave professional hockey the "go-ahead" signal yesterday, but still the N. H. L. has to replenish its depleted ranks as a majority of the boys are in the armed services ... As a matter of fact 74 of last year's roster are in uniform ...... Action afront.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Henry Aldrich for President"

"Henry Aldrich for President", opening next at the Capitol is a real joy, better even than its predecessors, "Life With Henry" and been ably aided by a superlative cast which includes June Preisser, Mary Anderson, Charles Smith, Martha O'Driscoll, Vaughan Glaser, John Litel, Dorothy Peterson, Rod Cameron, Kenneth Howell, Lucien Littlefield and Irving Bacon.

In the picture Henry runs for president of the student body at Centerville High under the inducement of a blonde vamp. June Preisser, who figures he'll be a push over for her boy friend, Kenneth Howell, the rival candidate. Howell's plans go awry when Henry astounds everyone with an impressive speech which he believes was written by his campaign manager, Dizzy. Trouble pops with hilarious results when it turns out that the speech belongs to the rival candidate who, incidentally, had the election boxes stuffed with fake ballots and made it appear Henry's doing.

Henry, to prove his innocence, flies an airplane for the first time in a side-splitting sequence. He brings the printer of , the phony ballots to Centreville to pick out the person who gave the printing order. All this leads to Henry discovering that his true love is Mary Anderson, a winsome little brunette whose performances you may recall in "Cheers for Miss Bishop."

"Twilight on the Trail"

Six guns roar again in "Twilight on the Trail," newest and swiftest-moving of the Paramount "Hopalong" Cassidy action dramas of the wild west, opening next at the Capitol Theatre. William Boyd, as "Hopalong," and his hard-riding pals, Andy "California" Clyde, and "Lucky" Johnny Nelson, played by Brad King, go through a series of exciting adventures amid the magnificent scenery of the Cisco range before they succeed in wiping put a desperate gang of cattle rustlers. Wanda McKay supplies the heart interest.

The current serial, Spy Smasher and a colored cartoon round out an entertaining family program.

AT THE BELLE

"Wings For The Eagle"

Planes, planes and still more planes is the war cry of America. Bombers, fighters, training planes keep rolling off the assembly lines in an unending stream. The heart-pounding drama in the lives of the men is now told in Warner Bros.' "Wings For The Eagle" which is now playing at the Belle Theatre. In the leading roles are Ann Sheridan, whose recent brilliant performances in "Kings Row" and "Juke Girl" won nation-wide praise, and Dennis Morgan, who in a short time has made a place for himself among the top performers in Hollywood.

Most of the story is set in the vast Lockheed Aircraft Plant where people have come from all over the United States to help do their share. Here Morgan meets an old friend of his, played by Jack Carson, and his wife, portrayed by Sheridan. Because Carson is cheated by a phony engineering school he has a falling out with both Ann and Dennis which culminates by Ann walking out on him, and getting a job at the plant.

Dennis, who needed no encouragement to make a play for Ann, now goes to it without pulling any punches. But it is no go. He realizes that her heart is still with Carson, who also finds employment at Lockheed.

Lake Hanso, a particularly ambitious foreman at the plant, played by the versatile George Tobias, has a son, portrayed by Russell Arms, who works with Daniels.

It is only after Pearl Harbor that Dennis really awakens and shows his understanding by patching things up between Sheridan and Carson and joining the U. S. Air Force.

"Story of Broadway Dodgers"

"Them lovely bums," those daffy, delightful Brooklyn ball players, are coming to town. Not on the baseball diamond, but on the screen of the Belle Theatre, in the 20th Century-Fox's riotous comedy "It Happened in Flatbush" the companion feature attraction.

Telling the story of baseball's "whackiest" team and its three million rabid, raving fans, the film goes all out for entertainment. And according to preview critics, "It's a double-header for thrills."

Lloyd Nolan, playing the scrappy, fast-talking manager of the Brooklyns, a role quite different from anything he's done before, is said to score a clean hit with his audience-pleasing performance. He won the role by his ability to master "Brooklynese" and his masterful shouting!

Curvaceous Carole Landis creates quite a few complications for manager Nolan, in her role of the owner of the Brooklyn team. But advance reports have it that Lloyd takes care for Miss Landis, and the complications, in his own inimitable style, combing in the process two of America's favorite pastimes—baseball and romance.

Supporting honors are carried off by Sara Allgood, William Frawley, Robert Armstrong and Jane Darwell.

AT THE McCARTHY

The McCarthy Theatre is now presenting two swell feature attractions. "Hi Neighbor" is one of the season's top musical comedies, while "Danger In The Pacific" is an exciting war adventure in the Pacific. It starts off with an expedition into the jungles of Africa composed of Dr. David Lynd his assistant Andy, and Leo Carrillo as a British Secret Service agent and brings in Axis spies, head-hunting savages and such denizens of the jungle as snakes and crocodiles. Then as all seems lost along comes the R. A. F. to rescue them and blow up the Fifth Columnists' arsenal. So much happens throughout the film there is not a dull moment before the next thrill crops up.

The intrepid trio of heroes are well portrayed by Leo Carrillo, Andy Devine and Don Terry who Terry who has the romantic lead opposite lovely Louise Allbritton, a newcomer to the screen and a likely star before long. The enemy agents are a nasty lot, especially the treacherous guide played by Turhan Bey.

"Hi Neighbor" is a musical comedy you'll most certainly like, not only for the new musical numbers or the delightful comedy background, but the grand cast of players which includes such radio and screen favorites as Jean Parker, John Archer, Janet Beecher, Marilyn Hare, Bill Shirley, Lulubelle and Scotty, Barbara Jo Allen (Vera Vague) Don Wilson, Roy Acuff with his smoky mountain Boys and Girls, Harry "pappy" Cheshire and Lillian Randolph as "Birdie," all combine to make it an entertainment treat not soon to be forgotten. The four-star short subject "Peacefpul Quebec At War" completes this swell worth seeing program at the McCarthy.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma said, William, the Hewses would like us to drop over there for a little bridge this evening.

Fine, at the moment I can only think of 4 or five places where I'd rather drop, pop said. Unfortunately, however, an important long distance telephone call may raise its tingling voice at any moment, and by all laws of logic and distates of reason I ought to stick around, he said, and ma said, I see what you mean. You mean you dont want to go around to the Hewses, she said.

You appear to have a very low opinion of important telephone calls, pop said, and ma said, I believe them when I hear them.

Which just then what rang but the telephone and ma quick answered it, saying, Hello, yes, how are you, why I know he'd be delighted but there's no use my even asking him because he's sitting on tender hooks waiting for an important long distance call which may take hours to make up its mind you know how they are, yes, good bye.

Who the dooce was that? pop said, and ma said, Oh, what's the difference at this late date?

Was it Herb Lewis around at the bowling alleys? pop said, and ma said, Now William, when a thing's impossible what's a use of worrying over a name or two?

But horse blanket to blazes I didn't say that long distance call was an absolute certainty, pop said, and ma said, And I didn't say that voice on the wire was somebody absolutely asking for you, because who it happened to be be was some woman suffering from the wrong number, and now I'm going to call the Hewses and say we'll be there with pleasure, and if you offer any possible objections you can prepare to spend a long evening at home listening to my impressions of certain long distance telephone calls.

CHAPTER 27

Unexpected Hatred

In her present state of mind, near hysteria after her scene with Brenda, the tearful Linda could not bear the thought of returning to the lonely, forsaken apartment. In cold despair, she hailed a cab and gave Diane's studio address. Huddled in a corner, Linda tried to repair the damage tears had wrought but her efforts were unsuccessful. Her one thought was to reach Diane and pour out the entire story, to be comforted and understood, to find forgetfulness.

The artist was hard at work on a sketch, but seeing the expression on Linda's face as she stumbled into the tiny studio, Diane rose quickly and put her arms around the girl's shaking shoulders.

"What is it?" she asked anxiously. "You're white as a ghost, Linda. Aren't you feeling well?"

"Feeling well?" Linda laughed hollowly. "I never felt better in my life! Why shouldn't I feel wonderful? I have everything anyone could want!" Laughter bubbled up in her throat. Tears streamed unheeded down her cheeks. In vain Diane tried to quiet her. This was the maddening, frightening laughter of the hysterical, and Linda continued to laugh and cry alternately, until Diane, her face desperate with anxiety, raised her hand and struck the girl hard across both cheeks.

Linda's laughter stopped. Weakly she groped her way to a chair and stared accusing at Diane with tear-wet amber eyes. "Y—you slapped me," she whispered hoarsely, her hand touching her reddening cheek.

"I'm sorry," Diane said anxiously. "You were hysterical. I was afraid—"

Suddenly Linda buried her face in her hands, and sobbed.

"Diane, do you hate me very much?"

"Why should I?" Diane was taken back by Linda's sorrow.

"But I've been such a trial to you, Diane. I've been thoughtless of everyone—Mother and Dad, Kyle, and now I'm ruining your life—letting Greg fall in love with me, leading him on, when all the time—" Linda stopped. Would it be wise to tell Diane that Greg occupied only a small place in her schemes to release Steve from his unhappy marriage?

Diane had apparently not noticed Linda's hesitancy. Gently, she said, "Nothing Greg does means anything to me anymore. I haven't seen him for weeks. It—it ended when he came back from South America and I saw him as he really was."

How familiar that was to Linda, for she had experienced the same emotion. Yet, was it the same? She had realised it was Steve she loved, but Diane had always loved Greg.

"Don't . . . you love him . . . any more?" she wispered.

"I don't know." Diane stared out of the window for a moment, lost in thought. Did she love Greg Hollister still; despite his shortcomings, or had Steve, since his marked estrangement from Linda, taken Greg's place in her thoughts?

It was impossible to meet and know Steve Baridon without coming under the spell of his magnetic personality. The writer was so natural, so unspoiled by the popularity that had greeted him at every turn since his book became a success overnight.

Diane was carried back suddenly to the hour he spent in her studio after Linda demanded a divorce. Seated in the chair where Linda now sat, he had poured out his troubles into Diane's sympathetic ear, sparing no detail. When he had finished, he had sworn Diane to secrecy. Linda must never know he had assured Diane, just how much she meant to him.

Because she admired Steve so much, Diane had promised to keep his story from Linda, but her heart was heavy with the guilt of two confessions locked in its recesses. If only there were some way—

"Are you sure you aren't being hasty?" Diane asked when Linda had told her the humiliating story of her treatment at Brenda's hands. "Perhaps there's some misunderstanding. I can't believe Steve would be misled a second time by Brenda Coleman. If she were playing one against the other—"

"It's no use, Diane," Linda smiled wanly. "I thought perhaps that might be it, but I know I was wrong. I was wrong from the very beginning, and it's too late now for regrets."

"What do you mean, 'too late now'?"

Linda stood up, smiling faintly. "I might as well tell you, Diane, that Greg is staying over in Chicago only because he wants me to go back to Brazil with him."

"And you're going?" Diane said tensely.

Linda shrugged indifferently. "After all, Greg has been very good to me, and as long as I'm to have a large share of Steve's money I might as well enjoy life. Don't you agree?"

Diane stared in amazement. Could this bored young woman be the same girl who had stumbled, sobbing into her studio a few minutes before?

"Greg is taking me to dinner tonight," Linda said preparing to leave. "I'm sure he'll ask me to divorce Steve immediately and marry him."

"And—" Diane whispered halfheartedly, half-hopefully—"what will your answer be?"

"That," Linda answered with bravado, "depends entirely on the mood I'm in this evening."

Diane caught her arm savagely. "Don't be a little fool, Linda. You know it's Steve you love. Why not admit it before you ruin your life?"

"My life is already ruined," Linda cried angrily. "It's time I began to undo all the wrongs I've committed."

"And I suppose by marrying Greg you'll be undoing your wrong?" Diane was bitter.

Linda ached to tell the other girl the truth—to admit that she had no idea, of marrying Greg, that Steven Baridon was the only man she could ever admire and love. Instead, she shrugged lightly. No one must know until Steve was free to make his choice, and then it would be too late to matter.

After she had gone, Diane stared perplexed through the window. She was ill at ease, worried over Linda. "It was all my fault," she told herself bitterly. "I was so cynical, so woman-of-the-worldish! Linda is trying now to be like me. If only she knew how empty my world really is! There must be some way to bring Linda back to her senses—break down that wall of reserve between her and Steve that will make them realize how foolish they've been!"

That evening Linda looked lovely and sophisticated clad in a gown of black tulle. She had learned to be gay and vivacious with Greg to cover by laughter the dull void in her heart. Her future seemed destined for heartache but tonight Linda was determined to forget the past and future—to live only for the moment at hand.

Dancing and dining with Greg, she tried to ignore the dangerous gleam in his eyes, tried to evade caressing hands and ardent phrases but in vain. Linda knew with a sinking heart that she could not evade things much longer. Greg was not a child, but a man—spoiled demanding, undoubtedly dangerous when crossed.

This was the night, Linda foresaw, when Greg would force the issue and demand an answer to his ardent proposal. For the moment, however, Linda was recklessly indifferent, trying futilely to substitute gay abandon for the void in her heart. She was dancing in Greg's arms, when suddenly she caught sight of a familiar blond head and faltered.

Brenda! Quickly her eyes flew to the model's companion, half fearful of what she might see, but, surprisingly, it was Jerry Coleman. Linda drew a breath of relief. With them were Steve's sister, Mary and her husband, Philip. Linda knew Brenda had seen her and said something to Mary because the girl's eyes were reproachful.

Linda smiled automatically at her sister-in-law, but the other girl, after staring at her for a moment, turned her head to reply to Brenda. Linda flushed with hurt surprise. With that icy rebuff, Mary had made her own viewpoint clear. She, too, was on Brenda's side!

Following a reckless impulse, Linda headed for the table where Brenda and her companion sat, Greg protesting beneath his breath as he followed her. Linda scarcely heard him, for she was smiling pleasantly into Brenda's narrowed eyes, and saying cheerily:

"Good evening, everyone. Haunting the nightspots, I see."

Jerry and Philip rose, but while their eyes were warm with sympathy as though they, alone, realized Linda's bravado was false Mary eyed the girl coldly as Linda talked freely scarcely knowing what she said:

"So you and Jerry are following the Hollywood custom of remaining good friends in spite of your divorce," she said lightly. "Isn't it rather awkward, Brenda?"

"Brenda is leaving for the south," Mary said pointedly, "and asked Philip and me to bring her here to see Jerry in regard to some last-minute financial matters, before she leaves."

Young Adams left his Toronto home on Tuesday and was seen proceeding in an easterly direction through Cobourg last night. His father, a Canadian National Railway conductor running out of Toronto, made the request to local authorities early today. The lad was described as being five feet one inch in height, weighing 95 pounds.

HEAVY ELECTRIC STORM VISITS THIS DISTRICT

One of the season's heaviest electric storms swept across the Bay of Quinte area last night. Sharp lightning was seen as the storm broke suddenly about ten o'clock in the evening, but no serious damage was reported in the district today. The heaviest part of the storm seemed to be centred across Prince Edward County. The rain that followed was most welcome to the farmers of the district in assisting to prepare the ground for fall ploughing.

Early British Attack in Egypt Is Expected

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Although the battle of Stalingrad holds the spotlight in the war news, developments in the Atlantic, in Egypt and the Balkans have definite significance.

The British Commando-type raid on Tobruk, Marshal Rommel's major advance base and probably the site of his chief tank and truck repair operations, points strongly toward an impending British counter-offensive in Egypt. Coupled with the simultaneous landing raid operations at El Daba behind the Nazi sea flank, the Tobruk operation looms as a prelude to a formidable British attempt to drive Rommel out of Egypt before he can recover from his recent repulse.

By every indication Anglo-American tank power as well as air power now surpasses that of the Axis in Egypt. The time seems right for an attempt to crush Rommel before Hitler can spare planes from Russia. Egypt has seemed to this writer to hold out more imminent Allied second-front possibilities to take some strain off the Russians than any other sector.

Raid on Ploesti.

Another development which catches attention was the whipsaw Anglo-Russian air offensive against the Ploestis oil field in Rumania. Moscow reported many fires started at that nerve centre of Nazi oil supplies. It has not been similarly bombarded since the fall of Greece drove British bombers back beyond the Mediterranean except for a recent surprise American attack of limited scope.

Ploesti is far remote from any Allied air base now. The nearest possible area in Russian hands from which bombers could have taken off to attack it would be the Black Sea coast of the Caucasus, 600 miles distant as the crow flies.

Assuming that Russian bombers took off from there, it is to be recalled that Britain has created a new army in Russia and Iraq to back Russian defence of the Baku oil field at need. British or American planes assigned to that army could use the same bases in the Southern Caucasus, well supplied with gasoline from Baku refineries, to supplement the Russian oil attack when the planes are available. The Russian bombardment of Ploesti may be a foretaste of what is to come in the Balkans as American heavy bombers enter the struggle in ever increasing numbers on all fronts.

U-Boat Centre Shifts.

Another development of note is Nazi confirmation of a recent British statement that the German U-boat attack centre in the Atlantic was shifting northward and eastward. Berlin claims a damaging assault on a convoy in the "middle" North Atlantic costing the Allies a score of cargo and naval craft out of a westbound sailing. Canada has announced sea losses in near-by waters.

The changed Nazi scene of action was due in part, Admiralty officials said, to increasingly effective American protective measures in the Western Atlantic and Caribbean, now supplemented by experienced British air patrols, in part to the sustained British bombing of Nazi submarine construction centres, bases and Bay of Biscay routes to Western hunting grounds and in part to growing U-boat losses.

Two things about the Berlin claim tend to support that British explanation. It was a westbound not an eastbound convoy picked for attack. Returning empty ships are less heavily guarded than eastbound troop transports of supply craft. Berlin also paid tribute to young U-boat crews said to have been engaged. Serious attrition among seasoned undersea personnel is suggested.

THE WAR TODAY

By De Witt MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

If one were inclined to bet on hunches it wouldn't be a bad idea to wager a few coins that the Anglo-American assault on Nazi Marshal Rommel's supply base at the port of Tobruk was the fore-runner of the anxiously and not altogether patiently awaited Allied offensive to liquidate the Axis threat against Egypt.

I'm sufficiently psychic to be able to suggest that Britain's new Middle East Commander, Gen. Alexander—a fighting Irishman of great capabilities and hard-boiled characteristics — is manoeuvring in preparation for a house-cleaning. This destructive operation by sea, air and Commando forces was a heartening exhibition of initiative in the midst of the enemy camp.

This means that the British 8th Army, which is drawn up opposite Rommel's forces in the narrow confines between the Mediterranean and the Great Qattara Depression in the flaming desert, has passed from the stage of back-to-the-wall defence to aggressive initiative. Alexander is flexing his muscles.

It doesn't necessarily follow that the British forces intend to launch a drive within the next 24 hours. It wouldn't be surprising to see it come before long, however. Maj.-Gen. H. S. Sewell, British military expert, remarks with customary reserve:—

"Morale is high and the soldiers of the desert army are thinking in terms of attack."

Well, soldiers don't think in terms of attack without good reason. The indications are that the British forces are either set for action or rapidly nearing preparedness. It's no secret they have been receiving reinforcements and supplies.

With the fighting in the Caucasus in such a critical state, it's vital that Britain break off the Libyan claw to the pincers which Hitler is trying to close about the whole Middle East. It can't be over-emphasized that Egypt is the keystone of Britain's control of the Eastern Mediterranean, and that the loss of that country might spell Allied disaster.

Rev. Dr. J. C. Cochrane Heads Pension Bd. Of United Church

Pioneer veteran of the northern mining missionary fields, the Rev. Dr. J. C. Cochrane, North Bay, secretary of Home Missions in Northern Ontario, was elected secretary of the Board of Pensions, by the United Church General Council today.

He succeeds Dr. S. W. Dean, Toronto, who is being retired on pension.

Dr. Cochrane received a fifty per cent majority over the Rev. C. H. Adair; Rev. H. E. Horton; Rev. R. C. Copeland, and a layman, Amos Vipond, Toronto. A ballot vote was taken.

Dr. Cochrane in a brief address thanked the Council for the honor accorded him. "I will do my best for the Church," he said, "I will not let you down."

In his younger days Dr. Cochrane made history at Victoria College winning the Fawcett Prize for oratory and earning an early reputation as a preacher of marked ability.

Later he became well-known in the mining fields of Northern Ontario where he worked in the Shining Tree District of the Gowganda District. He travelled by dog sled throughout the snow-swept terrain of the north, visiting far-flung mining camps in the early years of the century.

On one occasion he journeyed several miles with dog-team and sled through a blinding snow storm to rescue a woman dying from cold. Her husband lay dead from exposure when Dr. Cochrane arrived. The woman was brought out and later recovered.

POLICE BLOTTER

City police were called to No. 12 Patterson Street, Tuesday evening where it was reported two boys were attempting to steal money for milk, that had been left for collection. The youths had disappeared before the authorities arrived at the scene. Fortunately the residents had heard the would-be thieves before they had an opportunity to steal the milk money and succeeded in frightening them away.

Reports Collision

Wm. A. White, Frankford, complained to police that an unidentified automobile had collided with the rear of his motor car on Front Street on Tuesday causing damage to a wheeled chair that had been secured on the rear of the vehicle while in transit. A description of te alleged hit and run vehicle was provided police.

Search For Sheet of Steel

Provincial Police are searching the district for a 700-pound sheet of steel that disappeared from a transport somewhere between here and Odessa Tuesday evening. A second sheet of steel was found along the highway after the driver had missed two sheets upon arriving in Odessa. What puzzles police is how such a large, heavy and bulky piece of metal could disappear so quickly.

R.C.M.P. IMPOUND AMERICAN CAR

Federal police seized a motor car bearing United States licence plates at Picton on Tuesday. The impounding of the vehicle was made by Constable Wm. Beatty of the R.C.M.P., after it had been established the vehicle had remained in Canada for a period longer than the tourist licence issued for the motor car had called for and was therefore in violation of the Customs of Canada. The automobile was bearing Pennsylvania State licence plates and had been driven into Canada by a resident of that State who joined the R.C.A.F. some months ago, but has since been discharged and returned to his home leaving the Auburn sedan in this country. The vehicle is now being held by the R.C.M.P.

How to be Happy In World Like Ours Subject of Address

"How to be Happy in a World Like Ours," was the subject of one of the most interesting and instructive addresses that has been delivered to the Belleville Kiwanis Club in many months and it was fitting that Rev. W. J. "Bill" Johnson of Eglinton United Church and a Kiwanian for a great number of years should be the speaker as the Kiwanis Club partook of their first luncheon in their new home at the Quinte Hotel. "Bill" Johnson has addressed the Kiwanis Club on many occasions but it was the concensus of opinion it was the best talk he ever gave the members and they went from the luncheon room out to a world of strife a happier and more care-free crowd. Seated at the head table were members of the Kiwanis Club from Newfoundland to Vancouver, many of the men being in attendance at the General Council of the United Church, now being held in this city. Jack Trudeau presided with Harold Carruthers as song leader and Leo B. Riggs, back from a vacation, at the piano. Dick Kuntze, song leader at Bigwin Inn convention, gave only a slight imitation of how well he performed at that gathering.

Appeal Made to Members

Before the address of the luncheon was given, W. G. Milton, of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, who is conducting the financial campaign in this city during this week and which will terminate with a Tag Day on Saturday, spoke to the members, outlining briefly the work of the Institute, particularly as it refers to this district. The president thanked the speakers and promised the co-operation of the club in the worthy cause. Mr. Taylor Franklin of Albert College and president of the V.O.N., spoke on the coming campaign of the Belleville Community and Service Fund hoping that the Kiwanis Club, which has always assisted in these worthy causes, would again assist the general committee and that assistance was generously promised by the president. The Community and Service Fund is requesting $15,000 and the Salvation Army, the Y.M.C.A. and the V.O.N. will benefit. Clare Morgan is general chairman of the committee and Kiwanian Jack McIntosh is in charge of the Committee of Special Names.

Carnival Workers Thanked

Jack McVeigh as general chairman of the Ways and Means Committee that handled the recent carnival, thanked each and everyone for the loyal support given by the members. Especial thanks were tendered to the ladies under the chairmanship of Mrs. Jack Trudeau who raised $425 through the medium of the draw on the hope chest. The factory management was thanked for their co-operation the police and fire departments for their help, the Kinsmen for running a game and all others, who in any way contributed to the success, which Mr. McVeigh stated would be as great as last year. The press was not forgotten for their build up to the Carnival and the advertisements that were carried. Cliff Baragar also thanked Mrs. Trudeau and requested that flowers be sent to the Trudeau home, which was unanimously adopted.

The special speaker was introduced by Cliff Baragar and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Fred Deacon. In opening his remarks "Bill" Johnson told his listeners, that 31 years ago on Tuesday he left Belfast and a great land for Canada and a grander land. He chose as his subject "How to be Happy in a World Like Ours", and stated it was hard to reconcile ourselves as to what the world is aiming at. He spoke of countries being bombed but he asked, what are buildings compared to life? "We had a great loss in convoy just the other day", said the speaker, "but we can lose the ships but what of the officers and men whom we have lost. We will simply have to pull up our belts a little tighter. We are now rationed in a lot of things but we are going to be rationed more in the very near future. In a democracy we nearly have a dictatorship."

Mr. Johnson asked, "Where did this war come from?" and he answered the question by saying it came out of a wrong philosophy of life. The German nation took for its guide the philosopher Hegel, who claimed, that the state must rule in everything and if it was good enough for Hegel it was good enough for the Germans. Then they adopted the philosophy of Fichte, who advocated a pure race and pure blood and finally they took the philosophy of Neitzsche, that the weak be driven to the wall and the strong endure and thus the German cult was born and which has caused so much misery in this old world.

"We are a peace-loving people because of our ideologies" said Mr. Johnson and most of our lives are motivated by attitudes. There are three classes of people, the first being the retrospective kind, who continually live in the past and they can never make progress because they are anchored to the past. We must be alive and alert. The second class are the introspective and they cannot be happy because they are always looking at themselves. They develop an inferiority complex and have no unification of personality. They don't take time to see the people near and dear to them because they are always looking at themselves. This is a good way to build up a spirit of isolationism and that is a thing that we must constantly avoid. The third class is the prospective people, who are always thinking too much of the end and when they get there they will not find the happiness, that was expected. Anticipated happiness is never a reality."

The speaker stated there were three great teachers in the world, the law, which if it is kept both morally and physically, will make one happy, affliction, pain being the greatest teacher, and permits a person to sympathize with others, who have been afflicted, while the greatest teacher is experience. Mr. Johnson illustrated his several points with incidents from a personal standpoint, which more realistically brought his message home.

PRESIDENT VARGAS ORDERS GENERAL MOBILIZATION

New Order Will Place 250,000 Brazilian Trained Infantrymen In the Field

Brazil declared war against Germany and Italy Aug. 22 after incurring heavy losses from Axis attacks on her merchant shipping.

Since then Brazilian sea and air forces have been helping the Allies combat the enemy sea menace.

The general mobilization extends steps already taken by the Brazilian government. Brazil could place 250,000 trained infantry in the field.

OCCUPANTS ESCAPE INJURY AS CAR ROLLS OVER

After passing a truck immediately east of the town limits of Trenton on Highway No. 2 Tuesday night, an automobile driven by Joseph Chartrand, Trenton, turned completely over into the south ditch. Both Chartrand and a passenger in the vehicle miraculously escaped with minor abrasions, as the vehicle was badly damaged and windows shattered as the car rolled over twice. Provincial Constables Jas. McKenzie and Robt. Morrison investigated and were told by the driver he had successfully passed a truck, when his motor car skidded on the wet pavement, went out of control and crashed into the ditch. The occupants had to be assisted from the wreckage by passing motorists.

CANADA PROTESTS VICHY DEPORTING OF JEWS

Nazis Maintain Drive Into Stalingrad's Outskirts

HUGE LOAD OF EXPLOSIVES DUMPED ON GERMANY

Hope Expressed No Deportations Will Take Place

Reports Say Jews Sent to Camp To Be Deported To Nazi-Held Lands

VICHY'S ACTION

Ottawa, Sept. 17 (CP)—The Canadian government has protested to Vichy against deportation back to Germany of Jewish refugees rounded up in unoccupied France, a spokesman for the external affairs department announced at a press conference today.

The Canadian representation was made through the Vichy degation in Ottawa. It expressed the grave concern of the Canadian government over reports that Jewish refugees were being sent to concentration camps in unoccupied France for the purpose of being deported to countries under German control.

The French Minister to Canada, Rene Ristelhueber, was asked to convey this representation to the Vichy government.

"We can hardly credit here reports that the French government would return to Germany refugees of German oppression," stated the note to the French Minister. It asked him to express the strong hope of the Canadian government that no actual deportation would take place and that those placed in concentration camps for deportation should be released as soon as possible.

Canada's representation was in line with similar protests made by the United States, and by the Pope through the Papal Nuncio at Vichy.

Families Reported Broken Up

The information in the hands of the external affairs department is in line with that given in press reports—that a considerable round-up of Jewish refugees is being carried out under instructions of the Vichy government. At first the round-up applied to Jewish people who had entered France to escape Hitler persecution after 1936 but the round-up since has been extended to cover refugees who came to France any time after 1933.

According to press reports and information to the department, these round-ups have been carried out with a great deal of cruelty, including the breaking up of families.

The refugees are being herded into concentration camps, the reports state, with the object of being deported to countries in which they would be under German control.

It is understood some of these refugees wished to come to Canada and the United States but that the Vichy government has refused exit visas to enable them to do so, even if they were able to get passage on trans-Atlantic ships — which is doubtful.

14 Persons Hurt, Explosion Accidental

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 17 (AP)—A midnight explosion shook the huge plant of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, injuring 14 persons. Doctors said the condition of none was serious and that the name of the most severely injured worker had been removed from the danger list.

Thomas Boak, Winchester works manager, terming the explosion 'accidental', said it occurred in a small, sheet metal outbuilding when a worker dropped a tray containing explosives.

Boak estimated the damage to the new building at $10,000.

Silly Questions Annoy Heroine On U. S. Visit

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 — (AP).—Lieut. Liudmila Pavlichenko, Russian woman sniper credited with killing 309 Nazis, declared yesterday that "It is plain to see that with American women what is important is whether they wear silk underwear under their uniforms."

She added grimly: "What the uniform stands for, they have yet to learn."

In an interview given Alice Hughes, radio commentator, at the Soviet Consulate here, the lieutenant said that she had been amazed by "the silly questions asked me in America."

"One woman even criticised the length of the skirt of my uniform, saying that in America women wear shorter skirts and besides my uniform made me look fat," she added.

"This made me angry. I wear my uniform with honor. It has the Order of Lenin on it. It has been covered with blood in battle."

At the same time, the Bulletin said, British fighters were active over the battle area, shooting down at least two enemy aircraft and damaging many others. One British plane was lost.

Hollywood Executive Tops List Of U. S. Men With High Salaries

Washington, Sept. 17 —(AP)—Louis B. Mayer, an immigrant from Russia who hit the jackpot in Hollywood, still tops the United States Treasury's select company of persons receiving more than $75,000 a year.

Mayer's $704,425 salary and bonus from Loew's, Incorporated, for the fiscal year ended August 31, 1941, the Treasury list published yesterday showed, was $158,131 more than the second-place man, Thomas J. Watson, received as President of International Business Machines Corporation. Mayer has been at the top for several years.

Both incomes, as well as most of those in the Treasury list, previously had been made public through annual reports filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission early in the year. The difference in the two lists is that the Treasury reports all compensation for personal services over $75,000, while the annual reports to S.E.C. show only the three top remunerations.

Both lists show only incomes from corporation salaries, bonuses and commissions. Actually, the largest incomes in the United States are from other sources, principally investments. For example, 44 persons paid income taxes last year on 1940 net incomes in excess of $1,000,000 and these 44 averaged $1,877,000 each. In addition, 104 persons paid taxes on net incomes averaging $660,000.

Other Top-Notchers

I.B.M. paid Watson a $100,000 salary and "other compensation" of $446,294.

The next three places in the treasury list, which it is required by law to publish were held by Eugene G. Grace, who got $180,000 salary and $298,144 bonus as President of Bethlehem Steel Company; George W. Hill, with $120,000 salary and $336,415 bonus as president of the American Tobacco Company and Francis A. Countway, with $30,000 salary and $408,778 bonus as president of Lever Brothers Company.

Singer Bing Crosby received salaries from two companies which aggregated more than Countway's income from Lever Brothers. Paramount Pictures, Incorporated, paid Crosby $302,314 and Universal Pictures Company, Inc., paid him $150,000, a total of $452,314.

Actress Iren Dunn appeared in the list three times with solaries totalling $362,500. She collected $137,500 from Universal Pictures, $135,000 from Columbia Pictures and $90,000 from R.K.O. Radio Pictures.

SWARMS OF NAZI BOMBERS HOLDING AIR SUPERIORITY

Dispatches Intimate Fighting Bitter But That City Still Held By Russians

FRESH NAZI RESERVES

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Sept. 17 — (AP) — German and Russian infantrymen battled in the attics and cellars of a northwestern sector of Stalingrad today after the gates of the city finally had been opened to the invaders by massed tanks.

Bombs rained down without a letup upon the defending army — made up of soldiers, Red Marines and armed civilians—and buildings within the smoking city on the elbow of the Volga as waves of Nazi dive-bombers hurled themselves into the assault.

It was apparent from field dispatches that the German air force held a clear numerical superiority and was hard for Soviet fliers to meet.

Successful defensive actions were stressed by the Soviet information bureau's mid-day communique a few hours later, however, and Russian field dispatches in no way intimated the fighting was lessened or that the city was falling.

"In the northwestern outskirts of Stalingrad, enemy automatic riflemen supported by tanks were repulsed by a Soviet infantry unit," the communique said. "Six tanks were disabled or set on fire by anti-tank rifle fire, hand grenades and incendiary bottles. The enemy automatic riflemen were surrounded and wiped out."

About 650 Germans were reported slain on other sectors of the Stalingrad defence zone in engagements which frequently developed hand-to-hand fighting. Nazi tanks, armored cars and ammunition trucks were brought under the damaging fire of Red Army artillery.

Tremendous fury was reported in the fighting in the northwestern section, with the Germans swarming into every house they could seize.

Immediate Diversion Of A Second Front Sought by Russians

(By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP) — A foreign diplomatic source said yesterday that the Russians, disappointed over the delay of Britain and the United States in establishing a second front, are pressing for such a diversion quickly.

Moscow was said to hold the view that it not only is necessary to establish a second front in 1942, but also that it is entirely feasible.

(The source of this report cannot be named. But the nature of the source, plus its timing, lend renewed importance to what appears to be merely a restatement of a position Russia has held for some time, but on which there has been less agitation since Prime Minister Churchill's recent visit to Moscow.)

The feeling in Moscow, it was said by this source, was that the Russian people and the Red army were both led to believe by the communique issued in Washington after Premier Molotov's visit that they would get a second front this year. Delay of such help, it was reported, is view by the Russians as likely to have these uphappy effects:

1. Renewal of old suspicions between Russia and Great Britain and the United States.
2. Dampening of the morale of the Russian people and the Red army and possibly bad effects on neutrals and the peoples of occupied countries.
3. Extension of the war "over a number of years."

ARMIES LOCKED IN BITTER COMBAT AT PORT MORESBY

Japanese Forces Push Forward Eight Miles After Being Stalled a Week

32 MILES FROM PORT

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 17 —(CP)— The main bodies of the Allied and Japanese forces in New Guinea are locked in bitter combat today approximately 32 miles airline from Port Moresby following a new enemy advance down the southern slopes of the rugged, densely-wooded Owen Stanley mountains.

The immediate scene of the battle is the tiny hamlet of Ioribaiwa, which the Japanese reached yesterday after pushing forward eight miles from Efogi, where they had been stalled for a week after crossing the summit of the mountains with the aid of their familiar infiltration tactics.

A communique from Allied Headquarters said the Japanese are exerting heavy pressure and that "serious fighting" is in progress, but there is no indication of the turn it is taking.

It appears evident, however, the Japanese have been strongly reinforced during the last week and that they are throwing everything into a determined effort to reach Port Moresby, a vital link in Australia's outer defences.

An Allied spokesman said that despite the rugged nature of the terrain the Japanese brought up mountain guns and are employing mortars and machine guns as well. While the full strength of the Japanese forces is not known, it is believed their spearhead on the southern side of the mountains is composed of several thousand men.

Allies Strongly Reinforced

The Japanese advance yesterday brought them into contact for the first time with the main body of the Allied forces defending the approaches to Port Moresby, which also had been reinforced during the last week.

The invaders apparently were attempting to repeat their infiltration manoeuvres, which have resulted in the past in much fighting

RETURNING TO POST

Washington, Sept. 17 (AP)—State Secretary Hull said today that Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative at the Vatican, is returning to his post despite the fact that Italy and the United States are at war.

Replying to press conference questions about Taylor's future activities, Hull said he would resume his mission to the Vatican and would remain there for a limited time.

Asked if this meant the Italians had granted safe conduct to the President's emissary, Hull replied that would have to be assumed.

BRITISH FORCES CONTINUE DRIVE IN MADAGASCAR

No Information in London on Progress of Negotiations for Armistice

STILL FIGHTING

LONDON, Sept. 17 — (CP) — British forces were believed to be continuing their week-old advance today upon Tananarive, seat of the Vichy French administration of Madagascar, pending an agreement on armistice terms.

Sources here said there was no official information in London on the progress of neotiations which Governor-General Armand Annet of Madagascar sought of the British commander, or of terms which might have been proposed. In seeking the armistice Annet asked that talks be arranged "to find means by which we can cease fighting with honor."

British columns, closing in since last Thursday dawn from key west coast ports, were reported officially ti have pushed more than half the way inland toward the capital. Annet said yesterday in asking for terms:

"This morning the adversary reached our defensive posts in strength much greater than ours."

A Vichy French communique announcing Annet's overtures for peace said that pending an agreement resistance continued, with "the battle still raging as violently as before."

Previously, however, all reports had described the resistance as slight, slowing the British forces more by road blocks and destroyed bridges, than by gunfire.

Trapped Seamen On Yorktown Brave to End

San Francisco, Sept. 17 —(AP)—Coxswain Howard Sites, one of the survivors of the lost United States aircraft carrier Yorktown, told here yesterday how two trapped carpenter's mates faced death in a compartment five decks below the flight deck.

"They were in a compartment still dry, but there was water all around them," he said. "It was hopeless to try to get them out. The telephones were still working down to the trapped men: 'Do you know what kinda fix you're in?'"

"'Sure,'" they called back. 'We know you can't get us out, but we got a helluva good acey-ducey game goin' on down here right now.

"'When you do sink her, put the torpedoes up forward. We don't want it to last long.'"

RENEWED U. S. AIR ATTACK BLASTS JAPS AT KISKA

Two Minesweepers, Three Subs And Several Cargo Ships Severely Damaged

500 JAP CASUALTIES

Washington, Sept. 17 (AP)—Renewed American aerial assaults on Japanese invaders in the Aleutian and Solomon Islands left the enemy today with a loss of two ships, damage to five others and three submarines, and 500 troop casualties.

In the southwest Pacific where United States marines hammered down a third Nipponese attempt to regain Guadalcanal territory, the navy reported that marine and navy aircraft bombed and torpedoed enemy ships south of Choiseul Island and damaged two cruisers.

Almost simultaneously, the navy and Pacific fleet headquarters told of striking savage new blows in the Aleutians for to the north where army planes sank two Japanese mine sweepers, damaged three submarines, three large cargo ships and "several small craft, killed or wounded an estimated 500 troops, shot down six planes and fired storehouses and supply dumps.

Battle Occurs Monday

The big Aleutians raid, centring about Kiska harbor occurred Monday the navy said yesterday in the first report on that area since Aug. 22 when an American submarine sank an enemy merchantman. A Pacific fleet headquarters' communique said the action occurred Tuesday but both agreed on all substantial facts.

Enemy resistance with fighter planes and anti-aircraft fire was weak over Kiska, enabling American forces to carry out what the Pacific fleet headquarters termed a "most successful attack." Four "Zero" fighters and one small plane were brought down and a large Japanese patrol plane was smashed while on the water.

Wendell Willkie Arrives in Russia

Kuibyshev, Russia, Sept. 17 (AP)—Wendell Willkie arrived by air today.

He came from Teheran, Iran, continuing an air-tour as President Roosevelt's volunteer messenger.

Mr. Willkie was accompanied by Joseph Barnes and Gardner Cowles of the office of War Information.

Tours to inspect a new hydro-electric plant on the Volga and the new sites of war industries moved back from Russia's western war zone have been organised for him.

He will be guest also at a special concert arranged in his honor by the Russian Foreign Office and at receptions by the Diplomatic Corps here.

R.A.F. Puts on 'Real Show' At Dieppe, Says Canadian Boy Returning Home

Waterloo, Ont., Sept. 17—(CP)—Pte. Louis Hodgson of Waterloo who was with the Canadian army in the battle of Dieppe said here today the Royal Air Force put on "the finest show I ever saw" at Dieppe.

"They were just like a hood," he said. "If it hadn't been for the air force, I don't think a man would have been able to get out. If they co-operate in the same way in an invasion it will be a cinch."

Hodgson, the 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hodgson of Waterloo, arrived home yesterday. He was wounded in the left arm by a piece of shrapnel during the attack while he was carrying out his duties at an advanced dressing station as a member of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps.

He said he slapped a dressing on his wound and kept on working. "That's all I could do," he said.

"It was absolute hell," he said of the raid. "You've seen pictures in the movies that were fakes but looked pretty awful. Well, it was something like that, only worse. Men dropped like flies and the majority of them went down in a half hour after the first landing."

Industrial Heart Of Ruhr Raided By 800 Bombers

Renewed Effort To Aid Soviet Russia By Crippling War-Making Machinery

39 PLANES MISSING

London, Sept. 17 (CP)—A strong force of British bombers, including at least three R.C.A.F. squadrons, made a heavy attack on the Ruhr Valley during the night, following up a dusk attack by light bombers on Wiesbaden, in the Rhineland.

Wiesbaden is the seat of the German armistice commission which deals with French armistice matters.

Thirty-nine planes were lost in the two forays. The attack on Wiesbaden meant the traversing of nearly 400 miles of enemy territory in daylight and this phase of the operations might have accounted for the large number of planes lost. However, there was no official indication of this.

If the usual five per cent loss ratio prevailed, as many as 800 planes may have been sent out. An authoritative source said specifically, however, that it was not a 1,000-bomber operation.

The R.A.F. ran its string of night assaults on the Reich this month to ten by this attack.

Nazis Intercepted

Spitfire fighters meanwhile intercepted a group of high-flying German daylight raiders over the English Channel this morning and turned them back after they had tried three times to cross the British south coast.

A German broadcast said several localities in the Rhineland and Westphalia had been bombed. It claimed that 37 raiders were shot down.

Of the nine previous night attacks which the R.A.F. has launched against Germany since start of the month, all but one have been on a major scale and most have involved hundreds of planes.

Germans Shoot Male Inhabitants Of Four Villages

London, Sept. 17 —(CP)— A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Istanbul today quoted Belgrade reports that the Germans had shot all male inhabitants of four Yugoslav villages and sent the women and children to concentration camps in reprisal for the blowing up of a German military train.

The train, carrying troops and war supplies, was blown up by Serbian regulars on Sept. [illegible], it was stated, and many young officers on their way to reinforce Marshal Rommel's Africa Corps were killed.

NEW COMMITTEES ABLE TO CHECK ON HOUSING, RENTALS

Will Inspect Room Accommodation And Determine Rentals When Called On

WIDE POWERS

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 — (CP) — A new type of rentals committee whose members will personally investigate housing accommodation and determine rents was indicated today following a wartime prices and trade board order issued yesterday.

The order, published in the Canada Gazette, empowers a rentals administrator to "Appoint any person or persons as a committee to function in such areas and with such powers as the administrator may designate."

Under provisions of previous orders the rentals committees throughout Canada, in addition to those existing when present rental regulations were set up at the end of last year, usually consisted of a county judge and, in Quebec, of judges and magistrates specially appointed.

It was learned that the new type of committee will probably simplify procedure in areas where housing difficulties exist by inspecting housing and room accommodation and making rental determinations.

The new order also gives the rental administrators, Owen Lobley and C. R. DeMara wider authority to fix maximum rentals and prescribe the grounds upon which rents may be varied, their orders to be subject to counter signature of Donald Gordon, prices board chairman.

The order was effective Sept 12.

Wide Variety

The rentals administrators are also empowered to lay down orders on a wide variety of points. The administrators may:

1. Fix the maximum rental that may be charged, demanded, received, collected and paid, whether such rental be according to the number of occupants or otherwise;
2. Prescribe the manner in which any maximum rental shall be fixed;
3. Prescribe the grounds on which and the manner in which any maximum rental may be varied;
4. Prescribe the grounds on which and the manner in which leases may be terminated;

TYENDINAGA FARMERS SUFFER LOSSES FROM TUESDAY NIGHT STORM

Tuesday night's electrical storm which swept through this section of the province was more severe east of Belleville than in other districts, according to reports of damage done by lightning. Two farmers in the Melrose-Lonsdale district suffered loss by lightning, while farther east near Kingston several barns were reported burned.

Mr. Roy Badgley of Melrose, 3rd Concession of Tyendinaga, reported the loss of five of his best Holstein cows. The cows had taken shelter under a basswood tree in the open pasture and were killed when the lightning struck the tree. The other reported loss was that of a barn being burned, the property of Mr. Alex McCrea of Lonsdale. A quantity of hay and grain was also consumed in the blaze.

FORMER TWEED BOY MISSING AT DIEPPE

Publication of Dieppe casualty lists continue to strike home to the Belleville district with Sapper Edgerton Bertram Huyck son of Mr. Harold Lee Huyck of Melfort, Saskatchewan, now being named a casualty.

Sapper Huyck was born in Tweed and had lived there since infancy, being the grandson of the late Edward Huyck of that village. Popularily known as "Bert" Huyck, he received his schooling in Tweed and prior to his enlistment was employed with a drug firm in Toronto where he enlisted. He had been in England two years before taking part in the Dieppe raid, from which he is reported missing.

COLLIER ARAGON RUNS AGROUND

Running slightly off its course while en route to Anderson's Coal Dock with a load of coal, the collier Aragon on Monday ran aground in the Bay of Quinte near Rednersville. Despite the efforts of the crewmen to back her off under her own power, the coal carrier remained stuck to the bar and it was necessary to call for assistance.

Wednesday afternoon the collier Caldwell came up the bay and sending out a tow-line, the combined power of the two engines freed the coal-laden Aragon, permitting her to proceed to her destination.

Mammoth Military Display To Feature Official Part Of 1942 Belleville Fair

A military atmosphere will surround the official opening of the 1942 Belleville Fair on Monday night, when detachments of Navy, Army and Air Force units from Military District No. 3 supplemented by units of Canada's women in active service, Air Cadets and the O. V. C. will all lend assistance to give the opening of the Belleville Fair an atmosphere of present wartime conditions. Precision drills by Airmen from the No. 5 Initial Training School and Royal Canadian Navy from Kingston supplemented by a display of Commando operations, identical in all details with the training of these crack soldiers overseas, presented by experienced soldiers of the Second Hastings and Prince Edward Battalion under Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan E. D. All of this and more too will be featured before the grandstand following a parade of armed forces through the streets of Belleville to open the Belleville Fair.

Behind smoke screens and with thunder flashes booming and flares dropped representing bombing raids, Commandos from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will enact the operation of commando troops in actual combat over-coming obstacles attacking pill boxes and re-enacting scenes so bravely completed by Canadian at Dieppe. Commando raids over ramps and identical obstacles surmounted by these trained troops are only part of the Belleville Fair.

Detachments Parade

Parading to the Exhibition Park will include two detachments from Kingston, the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, a detachment of the Women's Division of the R. C. A. F. and a detachment of the C. W. A. C. No. 3 Flight from the No. 5 Initial Training School of the R. C. A. F. and the base trumpet band. The Second Hastings and Prince Edward Battalion (R) and brass band, the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) and pipe band, a detachment from the 34th battery, R. C. A. (R), the Ontario Volunteer Constabulary and the Belleville Air Cadets. The Naval Reserve and Women's Division from the Kingston R. C. A. F. training base will doubtless attract local attention, as will the precision drills of the No 5 I. T. S.

The military display, before the grandstand to officially open the 1942 Belleville Fair next Monday night, will be a large scale program and doubtless the most sterling exhibition of modern military operations ever staged in Belleville, assured President Ben Bleecker as he announced the program of official opening today.

Y.M.C.A. Facilities Used By 28,314 Members of Armed Forces During Past Year

Facilities at the Belleville Young Men's Christian Association were used by 28,314, soldiers, sailors and airmen from September 1st., 1941, until August 31st., 1942, it is revealed by records kept by the secretary, Mr. Joseph Shortt. And this service has been given in addition to the regular membership activities and facilities offered to organizations outside the "Y" in the community.

Thus it is shown that the Y.M.C.A. assumes a place of great importance in the recreational and social welfare of the community during the war time.

And the use of the "Y" by members of the armed forces stationed in the Belleville district is growing by leaps and bounds. In the last three months more than 10,000 men of the armed services have spent their leasure hours at the "Y" in the games or reading room, in the well-appointed swimming pool or shower, or have used accommodation to stay overnight. This is exactly double the number using the "Y" facilities during the three months period starting last September.

The work of the Y.M.C.A. with the armed forces does not stop at the offer of facilities for their use, however, but one of the most popular phases of their activity during the past winter was the Sunday entertainment of airmen and other members of the armed forces.

From the first Sunday in October through to the 17th of May, Open House was held each Sunday providing a period of social entertainment of the men. Young ladies from the city very graciously volunteered to assist in the entertainment of the men on each Sunday, which concluded with a concert on the gymnasium floor.

Service of the "Y" to the men in uniform has been extended to include the wives of airmen in the district. A club known as the "Contact Club" with wives of men in uniform as members, meets at the "Y" on Thursday afternoons and gives the members an opportunity to develop social contacts which would otherwise be impossible.

All of these services to the members of the armed forces and their wives, with the exception of overnight accommodation, is provided at no cost whatsoever to the men or their wives The Belleville "Y" has indeed gone all out to assist in every way possible in brightening the social lives of the men of our armed services.

Much of the building space formerly used in local activities for club members has been sacrificed to provide additional facilities at the disposal of the men in uniform, but nevertheless there has been an increasing program for community activities.

During 1941, 30,214 persons made use of the "Y" building and its various facilities and during 1942 to date there has been a large increase in the use of the building. The "Y" has certainly a big part to play in local community life.

Increased staff has been necessary, however, to permit this increased service and is one of the many reasons why such organizations are justified in expecting public support of a financial nature.

Next week three local services the Y.M.C.A., The Salvation Army and the Victorian Order of Nurses are appealing to the citizens of Belleville for $15,000 to carry on their work. Every donation is badly needed and will be greatly appreciated.

$1,478 Raised in Past Year By Women's Hospital Auxiliary

At the annual meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. G. H. Stobie reports were received on the splendid achievements of the past year and an appeal was made to the women of Belleville to associate themselves with the Auxiliary which has ahead of it a most exacting year. Any women who are interested in the hospital and in community activities were invited to become members of the Auxiliary which co-operated with the Hospital authorities and whose services this year, more than ever, will be of special value, since the hospital as private individuals is finding special difficulties at this time.

Mrs. Stobie invited any women who would like to know more about the organization to get in touch with her.

In outlining the program for the season it was decided that the usual schedule would be slightly changed because of war conditions.

Members Thanked

Mrs. R. A. Flynn, retiring president, occupied the chair for the first part of the meeting and thanked the members for their co-operation in the work of the Auxiliary, particularly the Tag Day which was a splendid success. She expressed appreciation to Miss Thompson, Miss Shantz and Mr. Barclay for their assistance throughout the year and referred to the pleasure and privilege it had been to her to work with the members in all the undertakings of the Auxiliary.

Tribute was paid to the work of Mrs. Harley Wray as co-convener of the entertainment committee. She had been a tireless and enthusiastic worker and much of the credit for the success of Tag Day was attributed to her efforts.

The reports of the Treasurer, Mrs. R. M. Anderson, showed that the sum of $1,478 had been collected last year through the Auxiliary's money-making activities which included a Tag Day, Fashion show, bridge, dance and chain teas. The money had been expended on improvements at the hospital. A new laundry press was installed and there was considerable decoration done to the east wing as well as to one of the nurses' residences.

It was decided to set aside two hundred and fifty dollars for repainting and repairing furniture in one of the wings. The report of Mr. Barclay on hospital activities was heard with much interest.

Mrs. H. Wray was appointed representative at the Hospital Aids Association annual meeting in Toronto in October. Mrs. Mikel is an executive member of the organization.

Mrs. Stobie, President

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Honorary Presidents—Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Mrs. R. A. Flynn.

President—Mrs. G. H. Stobie.

First Vice President—Mrs. J. O'Flynn.

Second Vice. President—Mrs. E. McDonald.

Treasurer—Mrs. R. M. Anderson.

Corresponding Secretary— Mrs. Chas. Earle.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. G. A. Morton.

Visiting Committee—Mrs. Mackenzie Robertson, Mrs. E. Bernstein.

Social Welfare—Miss Thompson.

Executive Committee—Mrs. John McIntosh, Mrs. G. S. Cronk, Mrs. R. Abrams, Miss Clara Wallbridge, Mrs. C. A. Cameron and Mrs. W. P. Allore.

Important Task

Mrs. Stobie in assuming office thanked the members for the confidence reposed in her and referred to the wonderful record of the Auxiliary in its four years of establishment. The Auxiliary had a most important task in wartime. There were many avenues of service and women of the community would be welcomed to the meetings. It was decided to meet at Mrs. Stobie's home the third Tuesday of each month. Meetings will begin exactly on time at two forty-five and conclude at three thirty. In this way they will fit in with the busy wartime schedule to which most women subscribe.

FAVORS CREATION THEOLOGY STAFF AT McGILL UNIV.

Staff to be Drawn From 3 Colleges Whose Relation With Own Communions Will be Unaffected

The creation of a faculty of divinity in McGill University, proposed by Dr. G. G. Kilpatrick, United Theological College, Montreal, was unanimously endorsed by United Church General Council Commissioners here today.

The staff of an initial faculty of ten will be drawn from the three colleges now engaged in teaching theology; four from the United College; three from the Anglican College, and three from the Presbyterian College.

The Dean of the Faculty will be appointed by the university, but nominations for the appointment will come from pre-selection committees of the three colleges involved.

Dr. Kilpatrick, presenting the report stated that the initiative regarding the creation of such a faculty came from the university and not the church.

Relation of 3 Colleges to Communions Unaffected

The relations of three colleges to their various communions will be unaffected, and for the maintenance of the faculty, each college shall be assessed an agreed annual amount, this to be the first charge on income.

Dr. H. E. Sedgewick seconded the proposal which drew little debate and received the unanimous endorsation of Council.

INCREASED FINES TO BE IMPOSED

Warning is Given of Step to be Taken in Case of Convictions Under Rental Regulations

Police Court officials here today issued warnings to property owners, who rent their properties, that in future events when convictions are registered under the Wartime Leasehold Regulations increased fines were definitely to be imposed. The statements came in Thursday's County Police Court held before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd after a local landlord had been convicted on two counts of increasing basic rents following the pegging of rental controls by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board as of January 2, 1941.

"This court has only assessed minimum fines in such matters in the past. Every home has been circularized with rental regulations fully outlining the leasehold regulations and if and when future convictions are registered I will seek increased fines upon prosecution", warned Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, in charge of Wartime Leasehold Regulation prosecutions.

"Personally I see no glory in a property owner making refunds in such cases after they are acquainted with the fact that the Board is investigating their cases and charges are pending. The increased rents may not be great to the tenant, but if the owner possesses several such houses the amount naturally becomes much greater", added Magistrate Lloyd as he voiced approval of Mr. Robertson's warnings.

In the case heard today the property owner was fined $35.00 and costs after being convicted of two such charges. The fines were paid by Mr. E. O. Butler barrister representing the accused.

McCURDY JEWELRY STORE ROBBED DURING THE NIGHT

24 Wrist Watches Form Bulk of Loot Taken— Loss of $400 to $500

ENTERED FROM REAR

With jewelry robberies reaching alarming proportions in Belleville the third of such crimes was discovered early today when Mr. J. O. R. McCurdy entered his jewelry store at Front Street and found that the store had been entered and robbed. A check-up revealed that only valuable wrist watches and the dearest type of cigarette lighters had been included in the night's loot. The loss was estimated at between four and five hundred dollars.

"Until I check my complete inventory it will be hard to say just how many watches are actually missing, but I do know the most valuable wrist watches in my store were taken," Mr. McCurdy informed the Ontario Intelligencer early today.

Discovered by Owner

The robbery was discovered by Mr. McCurdy as he opened his jewelry store shortly before seven o'clock this morning. At first nothing seemed amiss but when he walked toward the rear of the premises he observed a door leading into an ante room ajar and immediately suspected trouble, as the door had been secured at closing time Wednesday.

"I glanced up and noticed the receiver was off the hook of my telephone. Going out into the rear of the store I discovered a rear window had been broken and the heavy wooden shutter shattered in half. I returned to the telephone and picking up the receiver managed to get an operator, who told me the receiver had been off the hook since ten minutes after three on Thursday morning," stated Mr. McCurdy.

Broke Rear Window

Entrance was gained by breaking the glass of a first storey rear window and reaching inside to release the window catch. After unlocking the window the robbers had to open it and then break through an inch-thick shutter that was kept in place by a heavy iron bar. The shattering of the wooden shutter must have caused considerable noise also. Once inside the rear store-room the robbers experienced little difficulty in breaking down a bolted door that leads into the jewelry store proper. P.C. Wright answered the call to investigate and found a six-foot piece of two-by-four scantling at the rear of the store which is believed to have been used in the breaking of the heavy wooden barred shutter window.

Later in the day after Mr. McCurdy had checked his stock he announced that 24 wrist watches and six Ronson lighters, valued at over $400.00 had been stolen.

Service After Regular Hours Discussed by Garage Operators

Spurred by a report that a Napanee service garage operator had refused to work after regular closing hours in order that a transport truck carrying vital war materials to a Quebec gun plant might proceed an its way, members of the Garage Operators' Association at their regular monthly meeting Wednesday night voted discouragement of early closing when it affected essential industry.

The truck in question had been held up by electrical trouble while on its run east and a call to Napanee by the driver failed to obtain the necessary assistance. At least one service man in Napanee told the driver of the truck he would not go out as it was after regular closing hours.

Defer Decision

The question of early closing of servire garages was thoroughly discussed at the last regular meeting of the Operators' Association, but decision on the matter was deferred owing to members' inability to agree. Reports of local garagemen being called as far east as Gananoque and west to Cobourg after closing hours to service trucks engaged in war work brought the matter to a head last evening and a resolution was formed to be presented to the Operators' provincial council asking that no regulation on early closing be made that might retard war industry.

The resolution pointed out that while local operators were entirely in sympathy with the idea of service garages closing early, they felt trucks carrying war materials should not be held up during the night because of lack of service.

Ask No Discounts to Insurance Companies

A second resolution passed at the meeting asking that no discounts on parts be given to insurance companies getting repair work done. Th. motion was put by a Tweed operator and was carried unanimously, although the matter will be later tabled at their provincial directors' meeting to get a provincial viewpoint on the subject.

Membership in the Hastings and Prince Edward Garage Operators' Association is steadily growing it was revealed at the meeting with Secretary Mac Hill announcing approximately 80 percent of all district operators were members. Lorne Vaughan moved that the fiscal year of the local organization be changed to end December 31st to coincide with that of the provincial body. The motion carried.

Provincial President Jack Trudeau gave a comprehensive report of the last provincial directors' meeting held in Hamilton at which it was decided federal assistance would be sought for operators on the question of leaseholds with oil companies. Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle had felt, it was reported by Mr. Trudeau, that the decrease in number of gas stations would take care of the situation but a delegation will go to Ottawa on the matter.

Mr. Bert Boyce acted as chairman for the meeting in the absence of acting president Ken Vivian, while the dinner was provided by the Y.M.C.A. Woman's Auxiliary. Program was provided by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company with the showing of an interesting movie reel showing the place rubber takes in modern industry, and also by General Motors who presented the reel "On to Victory" and pictures of a British Commando raid on Norway.

THE WAR TODAY

By De Witt MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst.

The world's big ears are twitching with the announcement by General Hata, Jap Commander-in-Chief in China, that "The East Asia was is about to take an important step in co-operation with the European war" — a statement calculated to convey the impression that Nippon is going to attack Russia or India.

Just what scheme motivates the devious Oriental mind in spreading this propaganda isn't apparent, although the odor of red herring is strong along the trail. Maybe the Japs are telling the exact truth— adopting Hitler's tactics of fooling the enemy by announcing his real intentions in advance. It's equally possible that Hata is just lying, for benefit of Mikado and country.

The probabilities are that Japan doesn't want to undertake either of these dangerous adventures. They would be illogical military moves, since her whole business now should be to consolidate her dangerously wide-spread conquests before the rapidly growing strength of the Allies overtakes her She will be a fool if she attacks Russia or India.

Still, the importunities of the powerful Hitler may move the Japs to embark on new war in hopes that this may hasten the end of the Allies. The fall of Stalingrad would be impressive — and this industrial giant of the Volga today is shielding the strategic waterway with a body so torn from wounds that it will be a miracle if the Boche are thrown back. Should the Japs be beguiled into playing cat's paw for the Nazi all-highest, the fall of Stalingrad might turn the trick.

The perils Japan would risk in going after Siberia or India would be many. The most vital consideration is that in either case she would be seriously weakening her forces of all categories in the Southwest Pacific, thereby making the Allied task immeasurably easier.

This would be particularly true as regards India. Overland invasion through Burma and across the towering mountain ranges isn't feasible on a big scale. The Japs would have to employ a great water-borne expedition. This would mean that at a time when they need every transport, warship and airplane for use in the Pacific warfare, they would have to make a heavy call on these already badly reduced arms.

In the case of Russia, the Nipponese would lay Tokyo and other great cities open to heavy aerial bombardment the moment the war began. The Reds have a strong air fleet at neighboring Vladivostock, and presumably have warplanes at Siberian stations.

CATTLE RUSTLING REPORTED IN AREA

Cattle rustling was reported in the Stirling area this week when Robert Lake reported the loss of a heifer calf. The calf was stolen from pasture either Monday or Tuesday night, Mr. Lake informed Provincial Police late Wednesday. It was a black and white calf weighing about 300 pounds which Mr. Lake was fattening for beef. Authorities believe the calf was loaded onto a truck and driven away. With a premium price on beef and a shortage of such meats prevalent such practices would reap a handsome profit these days.

SWARMS OF NAZI

House-to-House Battles

They fired from attics and cellars, a dispatch said, but the Red Army men ejected them from many.

Dispatches left no doubt the German air force was raining bombs continually upon the weary Russian fighters, capitalizing on a numerical superiority seldom if ever before attained in the German-Russian war.

The army newspaper Red Star said the sky over the city was swarming with both dive-bombers and high-level squadrons and declared the fate of the city depended upon the skill and courage of the available Soviet fighter pilots.

German planes were reported previously to have been rushed from many distant sectors, including North Africa, for the assault and the government newspaper Isvestia said documents found in the ruins of a downed Junkers transport showed it had been flown to Stalingrad from the Netherlands.

Enemy Lose Heavily

"The enemy is sustaining enormous losses," the Soviet radio said, "but is still pressing forward."

German tank groups were reported earlier to have cut into Red Army lines on the northwestern fringes of the Soviet nerve centre only to suffer extinction at the hands of Russian gunners and grenadiers still striking back powerfully in the 24th day of a fight to the death.

Announcement that armored detachments of Field Marshal Fedor Von Bocks siege forces were hard upon the northwestern outskirts was contained in the midnight communique, even though it emphasized the repulse of attacks.

(The Germans claimed there was street fighting deep in the city. The Berlin propaganda ministry was quoted in a dispatch relayed via Zurich, Switzerland, late yesterday as saying that Hitler's headquarters would issue a special announcement expected to deal with Stalingrad—within 24 hours.)

A change of pressure was noted in the Nazi assault tactics in the sweep against the bomb-ravaged and smoking city from the northwest, for recent emphasis had been upon the west and south-western fronts.

"On one sector individual groups of enemy tanks drove wedges into our defences, but they were wiped out in the heavy fighting that ensued," the midnight communique said.

It noted the rout of a Rumanian rifle regiment, the annihiliation of a German infantry battalion and the destruction of 13 Nazi tanks and 34 motor vehicles in other areas of the defence arc anchored on the Volga. Soviet fighter planes were declared to have shot down 32 German aircraft.

Reds Hold Near Mosdok

Again the Soviet Information Bureau reported that German reserves were moving up to join the offensive, intended to wipe out one of Russia's largest remaining industrial cities, split her central and southern forces and sever Caspian Sea supply lines.

German troops harassed by Soviet fire south of the Terek river in the Mosdok area of the central Caucasus, launched counter-attacks but were repulsed with heavy losses and the Russians recaptured a tactically-important settlement, the communique announced. It said about 30 tanks were crippled or burned.

Elite Soviet Guards were reported to have captured a German tank, two guns, four trucks, 26 machine guns, 33 cases of mines and a document-laden staff car in the Mosdok area.

Russian troops probing invasion lines on the central front captured a fortified position and killed about 900 Germans, the communique said. Soviet artillerymen were credited with destroying 10 dugouts, 36 blockhouses and five field guns.

The army newspaper Red Star said a Lieut.-Gen. Rittau, commander of the German 129th Division, had been killed in action near Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

The see-saw fighting in the upper Don basin south of Voronezh persisted and the Russians said about 500 invaders were slain in a two-day engagement.

Far to the north, Red army men were declared to have captured a fortified position and wrecked four Nazi tanks in the Sinyavino area of the Volkhov river front.

Troops Poured In

Several hundred thousand troops —"Several tens of divisions"—were declared by Isvestia to have been concentrated by the German command for the push that broke into the outskirts of Stalingrad.

Transport planes brought up fresh forces and poured them into the battle. Plane landings this close to the front indicated the Germans were able to establish landing fields immediately outside the city.

Red Star said 5,000 Germans were killed during a counter-attack in the Sinyavino area of the Volkhov River front and fighting flamed on the central front, in the Upper Don basin and along the Terek River Valley of the Caucasus.

Major attention, however, was commanded by the Battle of Stalingrad.

RENEWED U. S. AIR

Still Cling to Base

At the other end of the Pacific battle theatre, the marines still clung to their Guadalcanal base, as the navy announced the intensity of the fighting had decreased. Marine patrols, meanwhile, still sought to drive enemy units from the interior of the island.

A Japanese cruiser and destroyer force was spotted yesterday by planes of Choiseul, the navy said. One cruiser was damaged about 200 miles northwest of Guadalcanal.

A day earlier, the communique added a bombing attack by two Boeing Flying Fortresses set shore installations afire at the Japanese base on Rekata Bay about 140 miles northwest of the American Guadalcanal airfield.

The hits scored on the two cruisers boosted the toll on enemy shipping in the Solomons to more than a score sunk or damaged. In the Aleutians, the Japanese have had 32 ships lost or damaged to date as a result of the latest air attack.

ARMIES LOCKED

While Ioribaiwa is only 32 miles by air from Port Moresby it ordinarily takes two days to travel between the two points by land along narrow, tortuous trails.

Allied planes were reported giving the ground forces good support by continually strafing the Japanese from low levels, although the dense jungles provided the enemy with cover which made detection from the air difficult.

Allied Headquarters also announced that Allied planes had attacked the Japanese base at Buna on the New Guinea east coast, springboard of the present drive, bombing barges on the beach with unobserved results.

Other Allied bombers attacked enemy dispersal areas at Rabaul, New Britain, and at Buka, in the northern Solomons, the bulletin said.

John Baumhour Given 6 Months

BANCROFT, Sept. 17 — Arrested several weeks ago on a charge of aiding and abetting, John Baumhour, Monk Road farmer, who had agreed to sell his 12-year-old daughter to a neighbor in marriage, was Wednesday afternoon sentenced to six months definite and to 18 months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph.

Baumhour appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Bancroft with Crown Attorney Lieut. Col. B. C. Donnan conducting the prosecution. Robert Pringle, Belleville barrister, appeared for the accused.

The Crown charged in court that Baumhour had sold his daughter to a neighbor for $75 and an old overcoat and was found guilty by Magistrate Lloyd. Given a mental examination in Belleville, Baumhour was found to be mentally defective.

INDUSTRIAL HEART

Many Targets

The targets have included Saarbruecken Karlsruhe, Duisberg, Frankfurt, Duesseldorf, Wilhelmshaven and Bremen—which was raided twice.

Reflecting the tenseness created in Germany by this continuing offensive was a Berlin broadcast yesterday warning the German people to "see to it that the blackout is complete". The warning was repeated by all Nazi radio stations:

While the R.A.F. was over Germany last night a few Nazi raiders dropped bombs at several places in East Anglia, but official reports said they did little damage and caused no casualties.

Nine persons were killed yesterday, however, when German raiders bombed and machine-gunned three towns on the south and southeast coasts.

British fighters simultaneously made a daylight sweep over Northern France, patrolling the coast from Berck to Le Treport without challenge from German planes. On their return flight across the Channel they encountered thirty German fighters and a dogfight resulted in which several Nazi planes were damaged and one British plane was lost.

IMMEDIATE

No Question of Rift

It was said that there was no question of a great rift between Russia and her Allies, but that the situation would be most unfortunate if 1942 closed without a second front. For one thing, it was said, the Russians might find themselves so exhausted that the Germans would be able to stabilise the eastern lines and bring possibly 100 divisions westward to face their other foes.

Such a development, the Russians believe, would make a second front for the Allies more difficult in 1943 than in 1942.

Although Stalin's meeting with Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt's representative, W. Averell Harriman, was perfectly cordial, it is believed that the United States and Britain then told the Russians so flatly that they were not prepared for opening an immediate front that the Russians were disappointed, particularly in view of the increasing difficulties at Stalingrad.

Expresses Disappointment

Ivan Maisky, the Russian ambassador in London, is understood to have communicated this feeling of disappointment to Harry Hopkins when the latter was in London recently. The Russians also were said to be disappointed that the United States, owing to convoy troubles and exigencies of the war elsewhere, had been unable to fulfill her commitments in war supplies.

The Russians are grateful for United States and British bombing raids on Germany which were reported to be having an increasingly important effect on the German people and industry, but which they think are not yet enough in view of the seriousness of Russia's situation.

The Russians were said to take the view that the Canadian-led Dieppe raid, which they heartily approved, had established that landing on the continent was feasible. They are said to have made it plain that the Russians intend to fight on regardless of what happens, but they want action that will draw 40 or 50 German divisions off the Russian front.

TAX RATE REDUCED

Cornwall, Ont., Sept. 17 (CP)—Cornwall's tax rate for 1942 has been struck by city council at 21 mills on the dollar, a reduction of 1-2 mill from the rate in 1941. The rate is the lowest in five years and is two mills below the 1938 rate. The rate for public and separate schools remains at six and 12 mills, respectively, showing no change from last year.

NEW REEVE ELECTED

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 17 (CP)—C. M. Baiden yesterday was elected Reeve of the nearby village of Portsmouth, succeeding M. G. Johnston who resigned last week to take a position with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Mr. Baiden was elected by acclamation.

REV. T. MOONEY NEW TREASURER

Other Appointments Made by General Council in Session

United Church General Council Commissioners today elected by acclamation the Rev. Dr. T. Mooney, Ottawa, as treasurer of the United Church. He succeeds the late Rev. Dr. Robert Laird.

Also given an acclamation was the Rev. Dr. C. A. Myers, Toronto, who will be the new secretary of the Board of Christian Education, succeeding the late Rev. Dr. Frank Langford.

The Rev. Dr. W. H. Sedgewick, Westminster-Central, Toronto, was elected Chairman of the newly set up committee on Schools and Colleges, a part time office. He also received an acclamation.

Recruiting Appeal Made to Members Of G. O. Assoc.

An appeal to members of the Hastings and Prince Edward branch of the Garage Operators' Association to offer themselves as recruits for the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) Reserve unit, was made before the regular meeting of the organization at the Y.M.C.A. last evening by Lieut. Clare Ridell, who attended with three members of the unit.

Ages and classes of men eligible for enlistment with the reserve unit were specified by Lieut. Ridell who stated the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) was Belleville's own regiment, formed in 1862 but changed over to a tank corps in 1936. He appealed to members to offer themselves as recruits for the unit as between four and five hundred men were needed to bring it up to strength.

Sergeant "Nick" Nicholson, himself a garage operator, also attended the meeting and urged members to offer themselves to the unit. "I would like to see a complete platoon made up from members of the Garage Operators," he said.

Schedule of training program which members of the Argylls undergo two night per week was given by Don Brown who joined the reserve unit two months ago. Instruction included rifle drill and shooting on the ranges, map reading and machine gun drill, according to Mr. Brown who stated he had enjoyed his association with the Argyll unit immensely.

One-Legged Gull Fond of Cheese

..More than humans enjoy a piece of good Canadian cheese, according to Harbor Master Joseph Waddell who reports that the gulls also appreciate their share of Belleville cheddar. With cheese grading going on for several days of the week at the local dock throughout the summer months, it becomes a bit of a problem to dispose of cheese borings and so it was only natural that the gulls fall heir to the tid-bits.

The practice of throwing cheese borings to the gulls was started five or six years ago and one old gull in particular seemed to enjoy the extra bit of fare. Mr. Waddell took note of him because of the fact he had lost one leg in an accident, but nevertheless he managed to hop around quite nimbly on his one remaining prop. Every year the old gull came back to his haunts along the Bay of Quinte but this year he was late in showing up. The harbormaster considered time had run its course, but no, yesterday the old one-legged gull showed up for his share of the cheese borings.

Charged With Murder After Death of Wife

Montreal, Sept. 17 —(CP)—Ovila Thibeaudeau, 65, was Wednesday charged with murder in connection with the death of his wife, Mrs. Adrienne Thibeaudeau, 67, in their Rosemount home on Monday.

Thibeaudeau is charged with having attacked his wife with an axe while she lay in bed, inflicting wounds which caused her death. Preliminary hearing will be held here Sept. 22.

In a second murder case in the courts Wednesday, Cpl. Harry Steele, Pte. Henri Descelles and Pte. Phileas Bertrand were charged with murder following the death [illegible]rette here early Monday morning.

[illegible] found lying on the street in an unconscious condition and suffering from head injuries, the police reported. He was taken to the central police station and later to St. Lukes Hospital where he died without regaining consciousness.

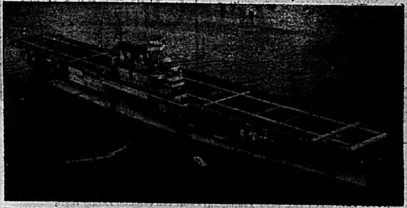
According to testimony given at an inquest, the three soldiers fought with Barette following an argument concerning the validity of his discharge papers.

Preliminary hearing will be held on Sept. 22.

TO HAVE BEAVER CLUB

Cornwall, Ont., Sept. 17 (CP)—Soldiers in training in Cornwall soon will have a Beaver Club of their own. The new soldiers' recreation centre to be opened shortly in the auditorium of city hall will be known as Cornwall Beaver Club, named after the Canadian Servicemen's Club in London, England.

American Carrier Yorktown Sunk By Japs



Washington announces that the United States aircraft carrier, Yorktown, pictured here, was sunk after the battle of Midway, as a result of Japanese bombs and torpedo attacks. The Yorktown was first put out of action by enemy bombers and torpedo planes. Two days later as the carrier was being towed to safety, a Jap submarine fired two torpedoes into the crippled ship.

Belleville Fair

Another wartime fair season has come around and Belleville Agricultural Society has rounded out months of preparation that will make the 1942 exhibition which opens on Monday, Sept. 21st., and continues through Tuesday and Wednesday, one that is expected to attain the highest peak of achievement in the fair's history.

Belleville Fair is an institution which is familiar to every man, woman and child in this district who look forward to this agricultural show and industrial and business fair with perennial interest. One reason is of course the vital importance of the central position of this city as a city of homes, a manufacturing community, the county seat for Hastings and as county and district centre of the throbbing communities which dwell in the surrounding counties of Hastings and Prince Edward. Belleville owes much to her good neighbors on the farms and in the centres around about for the interest of the farming community has helped in the development of the entire district. Favored by good roads and highways and the facilities of the railways and the large city market agricultural production has continued to expand and both city and farm folk are the better for the unity and community of their interests. The countryside and the city grow side by side and look hopefully to the future. In the war effort the district farms and the city industries and organizations have been able to play a notable part in war work. Enlistments have been large.

There is today a larger population in the environs of Belleville and both the country and city have felt the impact of the presence of all new residents, who are located in the two counties and are there serving and being served. There is a great expansion in trade, the consequence of the throbbing life of the whole community.

This affects the urban and rural interest and it is bound to be reflected in the district fair and in the attendance at this exhibition. The Agricultural Society has felt the urge of doing the best for the community in the effort of the Dominion in the war. This will be seen in an expanded exhibition, which is the show window of the community, by more numerous and highly creditable exhibits, the attractions and the amusements. The interest is widened and an historic exhibition may be expected by reason of the conditions at large in the land and in these city and country communities.

The people of the countryside and the city folk are working as never before under the inspiration of achievement at this period in the nation's history and both are proud of their accomplishments and have something to show one another in their products.

The city and country are closely related, their interests well interwoven and greatly strengthened in the balance of the rural and city populations.

Many new features have been added to the exhibition this year which will attract patrons to every department and command the interest and praise of all visitors. There will be the more extensive range of exhibits to inspect and the appeal and the inspiration offered by the energetic and progressive young people of the junior department wherein will be caught a glimpse of the prosperous and successful life of the farming community in the years to be. There will be ever-appealing special attractions of the Garden Bros.' Amusements, the Conklin Midway features associated with which is the Terrell Jacobs' wild west circus, the trials of speed which have never failed to draw many thousands to the grandstand and track side, and the many other features.

So the officers and directors of the Belleville Agricultural Society confidently look forward to the annual event next week, assured of the joint support of the people from city and country. The fair is an institution. That is why it carries on. It has a lesson for the community, especially one so favored as this with a prosperous countryside and a throbbing city centre, where the two are essential to the prosperity of all.

Let everyone attend the fair and lend support to an institution which means much as an index of the community life.

THE BELLICOSE MAJOR

Once in a military club
I knew a certain Major Chubb;
A soldier always, straight and trim,
I wonder what's become of him.

Quite often since this war began
I've thought about that soldier man.
I still can see him sitting there
In his own special easy chair.

With waxed moustache and bristling hair
His eye a-gleam with warlike glare,
Telling about the days when he Fought with the Horse Artilleree.

By us, who'd also fought, the peace
Was welcomed as a glad release,
But Chubb, who was a pukka Sah'b,
Thought peacetime life too tame and drab.

It was his habit oft to doze
(At least, his eyes we saw him close),
Then startle us, the wakeful ones,
With sudden cries: "The guns! The guns!"

Fighting in dreams against defeat,
Secure in cosy club retreat,
That was the Major, that was he,
Late of the Horse Artilleree.

Yet in these troubled days and grim,
I wonder what's become of him.
If he's alive, the troops I'll wager,
Will not get far without the Major.

'UNKNOWNS' SAVE A CONVOY

One of the most remarkable feats ever performed by workers at a Royal Ordnance factory—to whom Sir Andrew Duncan, Minister of Supply, paid tribute in the House of Commons—has just been disclosed, says the Daily Mail.

The workers numbered 20. A telephone call was received at the factory from the Admiralty on a Friday night. By Sunday morning, the superintendent was told, lorries would arrive to load a cargo of new and secret ammunition.

The load was destined for a warship, waiting to sail from a port hundreds of miles away. The safety of a convoy was at stake.

Work began at once, full of danger, since the factory had not produced this type of ammunition before.

There were the usual technical pitfalls. There were new dangers to be faced.

Worst of all was the desperate need of haste. Speed is a fruitful source of accidents in any kind of industrial process, let alone the manufacture of explosives.

All through Friday night the shift toiled. At dawn the day shift took over. At 3 p.m. on Saturday the superintendent telephoned the Admiralty:

"We'll send as much as we can—but the full load is impossible."

The Navy replied:

"The ship must sail. She's on convoy duty. . . . ."

The production manager and the superintendent went into the shops. They asked for the 20 men to volunteer to work through the night and finish the job.

Many live far from the factory. One had a special reason for going home—his wife's health was poor. She knew his job. She would worry.

Every man volunteered.

"What about your wives?" asked the superintendent.

One man replied grimly: "The missus will be upset—but women have to cry in war time."

The lorry-drivers volunteered to make an all-night drive to the port. Two naval ordnance officers arrived. They found the superintendent and the production manager in shirtsleeves checking, gauging, packing, and carrying the ammunition to the waiting vehicles.

Tragedy came at midnight on Saturday. A technical fault was discovered.

Every round of ammunition had to be specially scrutinized and the fault rectified. It meant practically starting all over again.

The 20 men started again. They worked faster. The canteen had closed. The superintendent found some food. The men ate it as they worked.

They wanted to smoke, desperately. But a smoke meant leaving the shop. They carried on without it.

At 3 a.m. on the Sunday the job was done. The last round was checked, packed and loaded. The lorries pulled out with time to make the run to the waiting warship.

The convoy sailed with full protection—thanks to the 20 men of Factory "X."

GERMAN PRACTICE

This is the teaching of the Hun:
Kill for the slightest evil done.

Stand all who differ, low or high,
Against a firing wall to die.

Be deaf to pity's gentle plea,
To all offenders heartless be.

Destroy without an hour's delay
All who would bar Der Fuehrer's way.

This is the German method: Shoot
Till freedom's voices all are mute!

Lest one brave man for truth shall dare
Even his children do not spare!

Thus we (and much against our will)
The spies among us also kill.

For, as you teach us, German brute,
We, too, must also execute.

SAYS PUBLIC-OWNED DAIRY WOULD LOWER PRICE TO CONSUMER

The Editor:
Belleville Ontario Intelligencer:

In your report of the city council meeting on Monday night, it is noted that application has been made to the council for the permission to construct a dairy on Coleman Street. If a new dairy is needed in the City of Belleville, would this not be a project, in which the citizens would be interested as a public utility?

The delivery of milk in Belleville, particularly in war time, is a service in which all citizens should be interested. Each day five or six delivery vehicles cover exactly the same routes, each equipped with four good tires, and giving the same services. Surely such a duplication is an obvious waste, not only in the delivery but in the processing of the milk in the several privately-owned dairies of the city.

The City of Belleville could conserve labor and materials and supply milk at a lower price to the consumer, by operating one dairy as a publicly owned and operated service.

A Consumer.

Instructed to Confer With View To Taking Action

Ottawa, Sept. 17 (CP) — Hugh O'Donnell, K.C., of Montreal has been instructed by Justice Minister St. Laurent to confer with the Quebec Attorney General's representative with a view of taking action against some officers and employees of a Montreal firm on charges of fraud in conection with subcontracts for the munitions and supply department, the Justice Department announced in a statement issued Wednesday.

Mr. O'Donnell also has been authorized to take civil actions as he deems necessary to recover any losses sustained by the Department of Munitions and Supply.

The departmental statement said: "Following representations made by to the Minister of Munitions and Supply (Hon. C. D. Howe) by Mr. L. A. Forsyth, K.C., after a prolonged investigation the Minister of Justice (Hon. Louis St. Laurent) has instructed Mr Hugh O'Donnell, K.C, of Montreal to confer with the representative of the Provincial Attorney-General with a view to introducing criminal proceedings some of the officers and employees of a Montreal company charged with frauds in sub-contdacts for the production of certain war supplies.

"Further, Mr. O'Dinnell is instructed to take such civil proceedings as may b deemed advisable for the recovery of any losses sustained by the department."

The X-ray Most Important Part of Examination for Tuberculosis

If you were to visit a sanatorium for patients suffering with tuberculosis, of every 100 patients, 86 would tell you that it was while consulting their family physician that the tuberculosis was discovered. These 86 had consulted their physician during the past eight weeks before they came to the sanatorium. They consulted him because they felt that something might be wrong.

What about the other 14? How did they find that they had tuberculosis?

The other 14 had no suspicion of tuberculosis; their infection was found as a result of a routine X-ray examination. The examination might have been given by the employment office of a large factory, by a hospital, or by a college that carried on a program of routine X-rays of the chest as a part of a medical program. These 14 thought they were perfectly well until the physician gave them the bad news.

What about the 86 discovered by the family physician? Only a few of them suspected tuberculosis. Some thought they had a severe cold that was slow in clearing up, others were "tired" and others had some pains.

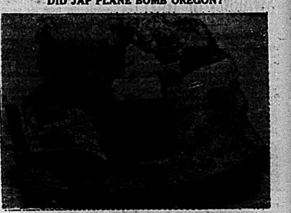
The above information is part of an article by Dr. George A. Sherman in "Michigan Public Health". Dr. Sherman is Director, Bureau of Tuberculosis Control, Michigan Department of Health.

Why was the family physician able to detect tuberculosis in patients who consulted him because of various symptoms, some of these symptoms in no direct way pointing to tuberculosis?

First, physicians know that tuberculosis must be suspected in a large number of apparently healthy persons. Second, the X-ray examination removes any doubt in his mind, and the X-ray has taken the place of the stethoscope in the examination of the chest.

The physical examination does not always tell the story, nor does the presence or absence of the germs of tuberculosis in the sputum. On the other hand, the X-ray gives positive evidence of the presence of tubarculosis and is a reliable guide as to the progress of the disease, or the progress of the patient in fighting the disease. The fact that an X-ray film of all soldiers is now part of the routine examination will save the lives of many men for home and business that might otherwise have been lost or have required months of treatment in a sanatorium for tuberculosis.

DID JAP PLANE BOMB OREGON?



It is believed a small single Japanese plane, possibly launched from a submarine, dropped an incendiary bomb near Brookings, Oregon, in an effort to start fires in the forest areas of that district. The picture shows a non-metallic cube, which was possibly the wick for inflammable material. Wherever one of these cubes struck, after the explosion, a fire started and burned the ground in lava-like slag as is pictured ABOVE. If a Jap plane did drop the bomb, it is evidence of the enemy's closer approach to American shores.

Whitehall Notebook

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 17—(CP)—Capt. Randolph Churchill, the Prime Minister's son and a member of parliament in his own right, created quite a stir among other M. P.'s and leading politicians with his speech hinting at emergence after the war of a new "centre party."

Conservatives, and he is one himself, didn't take kindly to his reference to their "retrograde and selfish associations," while members of other parties wondered whether he was speaking for himself or reflecting views which might have parental endorsement."

A party of Canadian newspapermen now visiting Britain gave the official reception committee which welcomed them to London some uneasy moments. The Canadians were scheduled to arrive in London at 9.30 p. m. But after standing for two hours in a crowded train they transferred to another train which arrived here two hours earlier.

The official greeters, unaware of the change, weren't at the station to meet the party. The newspapermen, who didn't know they had arrived ahead of schedule, were surprise there was no one to welcome them, but made the best of things and checked in at a hotel—not knowing that rooms had been reserved for them elsewhere.

Telephone lines hummed for the next hour as guests and greeters caught up with one another and before the night was over the newspapermen had been welcomed officially and transferred to their pre-arranged quarters.

More than 130 names, including those of 18 members of parliament, appear on a manifesto calling for organization "on as wide a front as possible" of all "who are not actuated by bitter and unreasoning hatred of the German people" and who desire "a just and lasting peace on a socialist basis."

The manifesto denounces "the shallow and twisted histories of those who follow the lead of Lord Vansittart (outspoken anti-German) and others in high places who think like him" and urges that in order to exercise "any progressive influence abroad we must put our own house in order."

A sub-committee of the liberal party created a stir in political circles by recommending in a report to the party that the civil service be removed from treasury control. The service, it is proposed, should be made directly responsible to a minister without portfolio, who should be the deputy Prime Minister.

Lord Winster, former Parliamentary Secretary to the first Lord of the Admiralty, and now a critic of the government in the House of Lords, described the authority of his former chief as purely "nominal," in a pamphlet on shipping and shipbuilding which he calls "the war on our doorstep."

Clement Attlee, Dominions Secretary and Deputy Prime Minster, is rebuked in the pamphlet for "slightly underraking our intelligences, as a clever man is often likely to do," while other unspecified ministers are condemned as "the men of tried and proved initiative."

Newspapermen usually grind their teeth at the mere mention of censors, but there was genuine regret along Fleet street when Rear-Admiral G. P. Thomson, chief press censor at the ministry of information, went to hospital with gastric trouble.

The mild-mannered former submarine commander has won the respect and admiration of every pressman in London for his intelligent, reasonable and prompt handling of censorship problems.

AGENT OF DEATH

"I do not think that the death penalty is necessary to protect society, and do not believe it should be inflicted."

Those words were written by a man who had executed 387 condemned persons, five of them women.

The amazing story of this man is told in "Agent of Death," by Robert G. Elliott, with Albert R. Beatty (E. P. Dutton & Co., N.Y.C.)

Elliott first became associated with prisons in his capacity as an electric engineer.

He finally became official executioner of six states—New York, New Jersey, Massachussetts, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Vermont.

Among the notorious persons who died legal deaths by electricity controlled by Elliott's hand were Nicola Sacco, Bartolomeo Vanzetti, Ruth Snyder, and Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

He once electrocuted six men within 24 hours — three in New York and three in Massachusetts.

His predecessor, John Hulbert, executed 120 condemned persons in 12 years. Hulbert's predecessor, Edwin F. Davis, executed 240 persons during the 20-odd years that he was official executioner.

The position of official executioner is only a part-time job. Elliott received $150 for each electrocution.

New York substituted electrocution for hanging as the mode of carrying out the death penalty by a bill signed by Governor David R. Hill, June 4, 1888. It was made applicable to all murderers condemned to death in the state after January 1, 1889. New York was the first state in the Union to adopt electrocution as the method of putting persons to death legally.

After that death sentences in New York read: "The sentence of the court is that a current of electricity be passed through your body until you are dead—and may God have mercy on your soul."

Electrocution was adopted because it was regarded as more humane, but many people objected to the change on the ground that "hanging is good enough for murderers."

The first person sentenced under the new law never went to the electric chair. He was Joseph Chapleau, who was sentenced to be electrocuted for killing a neighbor for poisoning his cows, but the sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment.

William Kemmler, convicted of killing his mistress, was electrocuted at Buffalo, on March 29, 1889 and was the first person in the United States to be put to death legally by this mode of execution.

Robert G. Elliott, who electrocuted more persons than any other man who ever lived, was born in Hamlin, N.Y., in 1874, and died in New York City in 1939.

North American Guest Night

By CHARLES A. BOWMAN
(Overseas Press Service of BBC)

The people of this great British island have, up to now, lived well, because efficient people have been to the fair distribution of their food. To keep on the best terms with my hosts—especially in the North—I have sometimes eaten more in Britain than I would in Canada. For many people, there is more nutrition in British meals than before the war.

At Montreal a month ago, before setting out on the perfect way to travel across—that is, by air—I ate a normal Canadian breakfast. Next morning, on this British side of the Atlantic, I had my first eye-opener about Lord Woolton's good work as Minister of Food: the British breakfast table under war conditions has survived every effort of the Hun to destroy it. Luxury is out but the people are being fed.

On the way over, my fellow-travellers included two young American airmen. They were lads from the deep South . . . where they sing songs like "Mammy's li'l Baby likes shortenin' bread," so I thought it timely to tell them about the virtues of a plate of porridge with treacle. (But I had inward doubts whether they would be allowed the luxury of treacle with porridge.)

Breakfast Surprise

On that first British meal after landing, with the troops in effect it should be said, the lady in charge of the breakfast table must have heard in advance that two American boys would like to sample porridge for the first time. She had ordered a fresh panful to be cooked.

To my astonishment, however, breakfast also included choices of bacon and eggs, bacon and sausage, toast, butter, marmalade, tea, coffee . . . in fact, the traditional British breakfast, unimpaired. The fighting forces are certainly well fed.

It's true that we had no orange juice . . . but neither — in the halycon days before the last war—were we allowed orange juice for breakfast at my native home, where I lived happily as a boy in Northumberland.

After three years of world-wide overturning in war, the British people still manage to live well. They are good breakfast table managers.

At virtually every British railway station, the traveller is confronted with a poster bearing this inscription: "IS YOUR JOURNEY REALLY NECESSARY?" Well, whatever the overloaded railway operators may think about it, I certainly needed to make this journey to clear away some of the misconceptions I had of living conditions under war in Britain.

Without expecting to find people actually hungry, or pinched for the essentials of life, I had conjured up in my mind a grim, fierce nation, lean, impatient.

After a month of journeying into the industrial north, [illegible] well as into the lovely gardening counties south of London, my impression is that the British people are better fed, better clad and better housed than they were when I fist set sail for they were when I first set sail for

They are working hard, long hours—but no longer, and the work is no harder than in the years of my engineering apprenticeship on the Tyne—when we were supposed to start work in the shops at six in the morning and work until five at night. . . .

Working Conditions Improved

Women are working in the ship- improved in the modern British factories. Thanks to the British Ministry of Information, it has been my privilege to see war workers in action in various parts of the country. At one great plant—where small-arms ammunition is manufactured—girls handle fulminate of mercury and cordite . . . and sing at their work. Radio broadcasting amplifiers are suspended overhead in some of the workshops, to liven up the work hours with music and "swing"—or perhaps I should call it "jive."

After lunch at the canteen, the men and girls dance—and they have an orchestra, made up of factory workers, and a hardwood floor, for the half hour or so of dancing before going back to work.

Relations between wage-earners and management are good at such war factories.

England has a clothing factory perhaps unsurpassed by any other for output. It has a productive capacity of fifty thousand suits a week. At present this factory is mainly employed on uniforms for the armed forces. The seven-thousand clothing workers—as in the small-arms factory—have radio broadcasting, and sing to the hum of their machines. As well as meals served in a huge canteen—a full meal for the equivalent of sixteen cents (or, for juniors, eight cents)—they are allotted a break of a quarter of an hour for the ubiquitous cup of tea. Recreation facilities, medical care and other services are also provided free.

Women are workingin the shipyards. They operate overhead cranes. In the machine shops—as in Canada and the United States—they are showing themselves to be skilful and careful with the more delicate tools like drills and taps. They have "eyes in their fingers" in the handling of micrometers and precise gauges.

The women work loyally and intelligently—with the feeling of being actively in the war—behind brothers, husbands and sweethearts in the firing line.

Canada is much in evidence in the Ministry of Food's network of storage warehouses — dispersed across the country for strategic reasons. Flour from Canada is stacked in bags alongside canned meat from Iowa and Chicago, tea from Ceylon and sugar from home-grown beet crops.

In the country, there is nothing more impressive than the ripening fields of grain. England is growing wheat. British farmers have been inspired to put six million more acres under cultivation than in peace-time. There has never been so much grain ripe for the harvest in this island. . . .

ARRAIGNED

And it is still the same, lovely countryside—with hawthorn hedges, honeysuckle and wild roses.

Always Hear Planes

Petrol had, before the war, of course, changed many little country lanes into paved highways. With August, however, every private car not used for war purposes went off the road. The fishing boats no longer put to sea with brown sails set. As along the shores of Nova Scotia, the sound of the "put-put" is heard . . . Nowhere is there seclusion from the deep, ominous hum of aircraft engines.

It surprised me to find how little the people had changed after three years of war strain, siege, disappointment.

With the Hun at the gate, the cricket-mentality has apparently survived. It has doubtless helped to carry the British through these last three years. There must be few towns in England without the scars of German frightfulness but I have a strong feeling that the Englishman would rather attack the enemy with a cricket bat than with poison gas. Britain is learning more about baseball, however, with the advent of American forces on British soil.

Canada has a part to play in helping to harmonize the British cricket mentality with the American baseball mind. Surely in war, at least, there is something to be said for the baseball art of stealing bases and of "razzing" the opposing pitcher to confuse him.

As Canadians know, there is more, of course, behind the great American game of baseball. Canada has reason to welcome overseas the growing might of the United States fighting forces, backed by American methods of mass production.

As a Canadian—born in England, but far longer resident in Canada—the most inspiring days of my month in Britain have, naturally been with the Canadian lads on active service—soldiers, sailors and airmen. I have never seen anything finer than the spirit of Canada's young airmen—before setting out to attack the enemy in Germany, and on returning from the attack.

Reflects Spirit of Canada

I am sure that every member of the valiant "Moose" bomber squadron would agree that Wing Commander John Fulton, D.F.C., A.F.C., of Kamloops, British Columbia, supremely reflected the spirit of young Canada. Modest, calm, resourceful, trusted by every man on active service with him, he set out one night last week in command of the "Moose" squadron — to repeat a heavy attack on a Hun stronghold. When he, and the brave lads with him, failed to return, every other bomber crew of that squadron would have cheerfully gone back to face certain death in the hope of finding their beloved wing commander.

In later years, the story of young Canada's part in this war will be told. The Canadian people will realize better how much they have reason to be grateful for such young men. It must surely be an inspiration to Canada to go forward along the path of service for the common weal.

It has been divinely ordained that Canada, offspring of the free-born British people, should be also the closest neighbor of the United States—a great nation, also free-born and of good report.

So, finally, in answer to question to travellers at British railway stations: "Is your journey really necessary?"—if for no other reason, my journey has been necessary to make it more than ever clear to me that the free-born nations must ever work closer together.

Winter Starting To Close in On Russian Steppes

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The first cold breath of coming Arctic winter is sweeping the Russian steppes to encourage her gallant defenders and warn Hitler that time again is ebbing dangerously for him in the East.

From the Baltic to the Caspian, Moscow reports the coldest day of the season in the wake of autumnal rains. The drop in temperature apparently came earlier this year than last in Russia, even though it is only an advance showing for the six-month-long winter moving up behind it. By every portent there remains some weeks, but only weeks, before ice and snow again seal the Russian front and drive the invaders into winter quarters they have not yet attained along the Don or the Volga or on the flanks of the towering Caucasus range still guarding the Baku oil field.

In the circumstances a cryptic phrase from a broadcast by Japan's highest ranking army general in China, picked up by a British station, must catch attention first for its possible bearing on the crisis in Russia.

"Asia in co-operation with Europe is about to take simultaneous action toward realization of a new world order," General Shunroku Hata, was quoted as saying.

Attack on Russia

Short of a Japanese assault on Russia to help Hitler achieve his immediate aims before winter steps in to halt his conquest march, it is difficult to see what form co-operative Axis military action in Asia and Europe could take to justify the Hata cryptogram. A Japanese attempt to invade India would not have the same significance. Evolution into a major operation of the new Japanese effort to regain lost ground in the Solomon Islands torn from the enemy's grip by American forces would not.

Only Japanese aggression against Russia would seem to fill the bill unless Hata was talking about some new political gesture, not about military action. And it is northward, toward Russia, not southward against Australia or westward against India, that Chinese reports have consistently maintained that Japanese forces being withdrawn from Southeastern China were moving.

It is against Russia, too, that Japan is offered the shortest and best protected route for expanding her campaign of conquest. It is only 600 air miles from Tokyo to Vladivostok, and reinforced Japanese armies in Manchukuo are in face-to-face contact with the Russians on the Siberian border. By contrast, mounting an invasion campaign against either Australia or India would involve stupendous long-distance transportation difficulties.

Solomons Activity.

As this is written, news from the Solomon Islands battle still is too meagre to indicate its scope. Whether the second Japanese attempt to drive out American forces which ousted them from important sectors in the southeastern section of the great group is a local action, a screening operation or the beginning of a pitch-battle test of American ability to retain control of the Southwestern Pacific is yet to be revealed. It could be any of these in strategic concept.

Intensified Japanese reaction to the first American offensive move of the Pacific war was to be expected. Military prestige and the reputation of the Japanese commanders, army and navy, in that area urged it if nothing else. If it was ordered by Tokyo, however, and has been or is to be backed by mass movement of air power, fighting ships and troops southward to support it, a crisis in the Pacific is impending. The greatest sea-air conflict of the whole war could be shaping up.

What seems more likely as yet is that Tokyo has authorized its commanders in the Solomon area to use their available reserves in an attempt to restore the close threat to American-Australian communication lines. Certainly if, as the Hata statement hints, Japan is about to attack Russia, it would be logical to engage American attention at some point in the Pacific too remote to permit quick aid for the Russians.

British Power Grows.

The same thing would apply in the event India is to be attacked by the Japs, but to a lesser extent. British sea and air power in the Indian Ocean, now apparently further entrenched on Madagascar, is the prime factor Japan must consider if an invasion of India is her purpose.

The Hata remark is so timed as to recall what happened in Europe and Asia last winter. Hitler reached the peak of his Russian offensive that year at Rostov Nov. 22. He surrendered it again a week later and the German retreat to winter lines was on.

That was clear to everybody by Dec. 7, and that "day of infamy" Japan struck at Pearl Harbor and Singapore and Manila and Hong Kong and the global war of Hitler making was an accomplished fact, involving all major powers except for the strange truce between Japan and Russia, a truce that seems doomed to early collapse on Japanese and Axis initiative by every sign.

GOES HOME

Replacement of Dr. Hu Shih, ABOVE, as Chinese ambassador to the United States by Wei Tao Min has been revealed in Washington. Wei has served as a member of China's executive yuan and also was mayor of Nanking before the city's capture by the Japs. Dr. Hu will return to Chungking.

WEDDINGS

ROBERTS—FITZGERALD

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fitzgerald was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding on Saturday at three p.m. when their only daughter, Lois Grace, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to William Sandford Roberts, eldest son of Mrs. Roberts and the late Mr. William Roberts of Madoc.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. Crabbe of Eldorado.

Gowned in a street length frock of white chiffon with lace, a shoulder veil caught with white rosebuds, and carrying a bouquet of American Beauty roses, the bride entered the parlour on the arm of her father, to the strains of wedding music by Mrs. Joseph Hayton. She took her place under the arch of cedar and Fall flowers and a large white bell.

Her bridesmaid, Miss Ruth Fitzgerald, cousin of the bride, was gowned in Heavenly blue chiffon, street length frock and carried pink roses.

The groom was ably supported by Mr. Gordon Holmes of Queensboro.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. Hayton again supplied music.

Following the ceremony a dinner was served in the dining room to about twenty guests. The rooms and table were beautifully decorated in pink and white. The bride's table was centred by a three tier wedding cake. Three girl friends of the bride served the guests. The bride's mother dressed in British navy, assisted by the groom's mother in dusky rose, received the guests.

The groom's gift to the bride was a silver tea service, to the bridesmaid and organist, gold compacts, to the best man, a leather billfold.

For travelling the bride donned a green dress brown tweed coat, with brown accessories.

Amid showers of confetti the young couple left for a honeymoon to Belleville and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will live in Toronto. They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

ADAMS—WINTERS

Tabernacle United Church was the scene of a lovely Autumn wedding Wednesday at three-thirty o'clock, when Keitha Elizabeth (Betty) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Winters, became the bride of Private William George Adams, R.C.O.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Williams Adams. Rev. Ralph Spencer performed the ceremony and Mrs. M. P. Duff presided at the organ for wedding music. Miss Laidman of Barrie, was soloist singing "Still as the Night". Bronze and maroon dahlias with ferns made a colorful setting for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her floor length gown of maize taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice and bouffant skirt, the full sleeves tapering to points over the wrist. A short veil fell from her Queen Anne headdress of matching shade and she carried a Colonial bouquet of Talisman roses, asters and bouvardia. Miss Ilene Williams in peach, and Miss Helen Thmpson in orchid, wore taffeta gowns in similar style to that of the bride, but with short puffed sleeves. They wore matching pill box hats with short veils and carried Colonial bouquet in pastel tones.

Sgt. D. R. Brown, R.C.A.F., Victoriaville, Que., cousin of the bride, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. G. Mathews and Mr. C. B. Colling brothers-in-law of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the rooms being most attractive with a profusion of Autumn flowers. Mrs. Winters in Elizabeth blue with accessories in midnight blue and corsage of pink roses, and Mrs. Adams wearing navy blue with white accessories and corsage of roses, received the guests who numbered about thirty-five. Misses Helen Wedden, Elaine Mason, Mary and Lois Knapp of Napanee, assisted in serving.

Rigid Health Rules Must Govern Victims of Rheumatic Fever

Rheumatic fever, one of the dangerous diseases of children, does not always do its harm by taking life when it strikes. Its danger is that it shortens life by weakening the heart. If properly treated the span of life of those whom it attacks may be prolonged. the person with rheumatic fever scars of the heart must live by careful and rigid rules of health.

The exact cause of rheumatic fever has not as yet been determined. Doctor Homer F. Swift of Rockefeller Institute, New York, believes that much of the evidence concerning this disease indicates that it is caused by the hemolytic streptococcus. He also thinks that this idea may give leads as to ways and means of controlling, preventing, and treating the disease.

Doctor Swift thinks that rheumatic fever occurs at definite seasons, depending on how many persons there are who carry the hemolytic streptococcus in their throats. Furthermore, the areas in which the disease occurs also are, usually, areas in which are located large numbers of persons who are carriers of the hemolytic streptococcus. For instance, in such places as Puerto Rico and Alabama, there are but few persons who are carriers of the germ, and very little rheumatic fever occurs in these places.

It is also thought that the large number of cases of rheumatic fever among children of poor and crowded families is explained on the same basis as the more rapid spread of streptococci under such conditions. If a person who has had rheumatic fever is exposed to someone who has had a streptococcic infection. Dr Swift thinks that such person is likely to have a relapse of the rheumatic fever. As long as such persons are free of streptococcic infections of the nose and throat, relapse do not take place.

To prevent rheumatic fever and keep it from recurring, Dr. Swift thinks that sulfanilamide may be used with benefit. He thinks that it should be given to the patients during those months when infections of the nose and throat with the streptococcic seem to be most prevalent. It should be given, the Doctor thinks, not only to those who have had the disease previously but also to those who seem to be particularly susceptible to the disease. Once the rheumatic fever has started, the sulfanilamide has no effect, and in fact, may even be harmful.

In treating rheumatic fever it is suggested that the patient be put to bed and that salicylates be used to lower the temperature and to decrease the pulse rate. The rate and slowing down of the pulse rate, and the lowering of the fever, may help in preventing damage to the heart muscle and heart valves. Once the person has recovered from the attack he should be urged not to return to surroundings such as may have helped to produce the disease in the first place.

The final outcome of rheumatic fever depends on the number and severity of the attacks which occur. Because this disease is one which damages the heart, proper methods of treatment and the prevention of recurrences may do much to prolong life. The important thing is to prevent the recurrent attacks.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Day or Evening Wedding?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,—

My fiance, who is in the Air Force, and I plan to be married soon, and I would be deeply grateful to you if you would answer several questions for me.

1.—My fiance will, of course, wear his uniform, and I am planning to wear a suit. For such informal attire as my suit, would it be correct to have the wedding in the evening? Or would it be more appropriate to have this kind of wedding in the day-time?

2.—What should my mother and my maid of honor wear? If I have bridesmaids, what would be correct for them to wear?

3.— Are the invitations for such a wedding, and a reception later at my home, the same as for a formal wedding? If not, what is the difference?

4.—If our only attendants are a maid of honor and a best man, should I have ushers to seat the guests? If so, how many? Since, if we do have ushers, they will be men who are not in the Service, what should they wear?

Jean

1.— You and your fiance are the ones who must decide whether you wish a day-time or an evening wedding, either is correct. Unless for some reason it is more convenient for you to have an evening wedding, it is, I think, somewhat easier to plan a more effective informal day-time wedding.

If you wish to wear a suit, it should be a dressmaker type, or one "dressed up" with a soft, colorful blouse and matching accessories.

2.—If you wear a suit, your mother and your maid of honor might wear either similiar dressy suits, or street-length dresses of inconspicuous shades. For such an informal wedding as you are planning you should have only one attendant. Your "processional" should consist of only your maid of honor, walking first, and then you and your father or whoever is to give you in marriage.

3.—Formal invitations are appropriate only for formal weddings. The invitations for your informal wedding may be given verbally and by notes written by your mother.

4.—For convenience, you may have ushers, the number depending on the number of guests you are inviting. Since your ushers are civilians, they would wear business suits, to be consistent with the suit you are planning to wear.

Rectory Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me concerning the correct attire for a wedding in a church rectory? I should very much like to wear a long, white dress (no train) and a fingertip veil. Do you think this would be correct? The ceremony is to take place in the morning.

If I wear this, what would be the correct attire for the bridegroom?

R. T.

Although customarily the bride who is to be married in the rectory wears a street-length dress and coat, or a suit, there is no reason why you should not dress as a "real bride" since you especially wish to.

Your bridegroom should "dress up" to the formality, or semi-formality, of your costume. He may wear either a cutaway coat or an Oxford jacket (less formal, of course, than the cutaway coat); striped trousers, white shirt, stiff collar, four-in-hand or bow tie. He should have a white boutonniere perhaps some small white flowers from your bouquet.

Shun Sun Glare To Save Beauty

Joan Fontaine's beautiful eyes are precious asset.

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

GOOD LOOKS are stock in trade to the lovely ladies of the silver screen. No other class of women make such strenuous efforts to retain the alertness and appearance of youth. They watch their weight to a fourth of a pound. They realize the importance of long hours of restful sleep. Their exercise is supervised, diet arranged by those who know their business. Hair specialists pet and pamper their tresslocks, beauticians get in their fine work, dress designers bring out their best anatomical points. And they are devotees of sun glasses.

If you have not been protecting your eyes from glaring roads, shining beaches and silver-bright waves, begin now. Dark glasses protect against wind and dust, as well as blinding sunlight.

Sun glasses have lenses made of glass which contains ingredients having the property of absorbing some of the suns rays. The various ingredients produce lenses of light, medium and dark shades. The individual should have the tone that provides the greatest degree of eye comfort and efficiency. As these glasses are intended for distant vision they should never be used for reading.

We must safeguard our eyes not only for their own sake, but for the sake of the tissues that surround them. If they are uncomfortable they draw their shutters, causing squint lines. Why invite beauty blemishes? That's silly. One should never forget that it is wise to take out insurance against them by following a policy of protection.

Tired eyes result in impaired efficiency in any work that we do. Not only that but, we are told by those who know, slowed-up vision retards speed and accuracy of the other senses that co-ordinate with eye sight.

Curtesy Tip

Saying "thank you", sincerely and often, is one of the most charming impulses of a mannerly person. It's an easy and pleasant way to add grace to your life . . .and certainly to the lives of those with whom you come in contact.

NOTED ENGINEER DIES

Smith's Falls, Ont., Sept. 17. —(CP)—Willis Horatio Roberts, 54, general manager of Dominion Construction Co., and affiliated firms, including E. P. McLean Ltd., and H. P. McLean Inc., died early Wednesday in hospital here.

An outstnding civil engineer, Mr. Roberts just before his death had been at Corning, N.Y., supervising a multi-million dollar project, including installation of embankments along the Susquehanna River, for the United States army.

FASHION FLASHES

DINNER AT HOME takes on new delight with the assistance of a smart dinner pyjama suit. Black velvet is used for the trim, slim trousers of one suit which is worn with a jacket top of pink crepe trimmed with small rings of jet beads.

A CHANGE from black or dark brown comes in colorful coats of woolen with fur trimming. A grand winter coast is of bright red diagonal woolen with tuxedo revers of black Persian lamb. Shoulder yoke is quilted in shell effect.

A GOOD MATCH in accessories is liked by many smart shops and their clients. For highlighting a dark dress or suit one shop is showing a big bag of American Beauty or dark green suede with a tucked pillow-like silhouette and matching six-button suede gloves.

A TOUCH of glitter appears in many of the new street-length after-dark-frocks. Black crepe done on a slim, modified pegtop silhouette is made with deep plunging neckline and long slim sleeves finished with bracelet cuffs of jewel-toned stones and brilliant.

A GOOD WAY TO SAVE a fine fur coat or fur-trimmed cloth model is a general wear coat of tweed. Black and green hound's tooth check tweed is used for a grand coat with high, turnover collar, notched self-fabric banding and black calf belt with silver buckle. Leather buttons.

PRETTY AND WARM is a suit of black velvet made with bustle-back peplum, jet buttons and a cascade jabot of pale pink lace.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Doesn't Want to Commit Herself to Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl friend and I have been going steady for three years, during which time we went many places together and I also visited her at home, where I received a generous welcome. I love this girl and she has said she loves me.

I've always believed she loved me until recently, when I asked her to marry me. She hesitated and said she didn't want to marry now due to war conditions. She doesn't seem to know what she wants.

Does this mean that she is losing interest in me? I feel my love for her is fading because she seems so indifferent about marriage. Shall I continue seeing her or quit and seek other companionship?

Disappointed.

Many girls share the same feelings about war conditions as your girl friend. And who can blame them, with so many things to be considered in regard to the future? If you really love this girl, why not agree with her point of view? Besides, you know a woman's reputation about changing her mind. She may say "no" one day and "yes" the next.

Worried About Younger Sister

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 19 years old and my problem is my younger sister, 12 about whom I'm very much worried. She's intelligent and good-looking, and appears older than she is. I want her to grow up to be a young lady instead of a roughneck.

When I was her age I never went out had no friends and had to learn everything the hard way—my mother never told me anything.

At 15 I started taking care of other people's children to get a little money to buy clothes for school. I had to wear other peoples' clothes, given to us by the church, and I'll never forget what I went through. When I graduated from high school, I had to buy everything with my own money except my shoes, which I borrowed.

My sister isn't a bit of help to me. I go out and earn the money to buy clothes for both of us, and when I come home the house is in the same disorder it was when I left. I want to teach her to be a good housekeeper.

Waiting Patiently

You do not mention having either father or mother. A girl of 12 is too young to know the danger she incurs in running the streets wild and refusing to assume any responsibility.

You might consult some of the agencies that have to do with Child Welfare. The pastor of your church might have helpful suggestions.

F. D. R. WEIGHS POWER PROJECT

Says it Will Take 3 to 3½ Years to Finish, Guesses War Will Last That Long

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 — (CP) — President Roosevelt weighed the desirability of undertaking the St. Lawrence River power and navigation project against advisability of using war materials the development would require.

The president, long an advocate of the inland waterway development, told a press conference yesterday the project would take three to 3 1-2 years to finish and that he is studying the matter to see whether it is desirable to start it. He assumed, he said, the war will last the same length of time, but added later that was just a guess.

Question of Power

Describing the proposed development as much needed, Mr. Roosevelt recalled he had asked Congress several times to authorise the project. Canada and the United States signed an agreement in Ottawa March 19, 1941, which has been held up before the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House of Representatives.

A power shortage now exists in Eastern Canada and the President predicted one for New England and New York state. The development would generate 2,200,000 horsepower to be divided between the two countries.

Estimated cost of the project which would provide a 1,300-mile deep-water seaway from Montreal to the head of the lakes, is $285,000,000. Most of the cost would be borne by the United States because Canada would be credited with expenditures already made, principally for the Welland Canad.

The dams, locks and powerhouse would be in the 48-mile international rapids stretch of the St. Lawrence between Cornwall, Ont., and Massena, N. J.

CARELESSNESS ROBS SOLDIERS OF GIFTS

Carelessness in including matches, lighter fluid and other inflammable materials robbed Canadian soldiers overseas of the gifts shown in the pictures above. Major General J. P. McKenzie, Quartermaster General of the Canadian Army, has requested that no inflammable materials be included in parcels or letters sent to soldiers. The pictures show contents of 30 bags of mail for Canadian soldiers overseas were destroyed by fire in an English van started by "Safety" matches in a parcel sent to a soldier. Upper photo (1) shows cans of food which were spoiled, and below (2) are packages of various gifts, cigarettes, soap, canned goods, clothing and reading matter which will not reach the men to whom they were sent. —(Canadian Army Photo.)

THE EXPERTS SAY

By ISABEL ALLAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, — (CP)—Hints from the experts for wartime living:

Sugar—Are you afraid the loss of sugar in your diet will affect your health? You needn't be . . . Marion Harlow, assistant director of Nutrition Services, Department of Pensions and National Health, is reassuring. She says before the war we Canadians let our sweet tooth get the better of us and we didn't have any appetite left for such foods as milk, fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals.

Rationing —Hang on to your ration card but make a copy of your serial number and put it away in a safe place—just in case, warns S. Boyd Millen, chief of the rationing section, Wartime Prices and Trade Board. . . . This serial number is yours for the duration and if you lose, seriously damage or receive a defective book, you will need this number when applying to the board for a new one.

Honey—Honey is coming into its own these days. . . Laura Pepper, head of the consumer section of the agricultural department, suggests you use it wherever possible in baking. . . But here are a few things to remember color in honey is an indication of flavor, the lighter the color the less the flavor —a cup of honey replaces one cup of sugar. . .Don't forget to reduce the amount of liquid called for, by a quarter, unless a small amount is used, as in muffins. . . .Grease cup or spoon before measuring—bake at a low, even temperature.

Applesauce— Johnny and Mary can have as many extra helpings of applesauce as they want now, says the consumer section of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. . . .You can obtain sugar for cooking apples to the extent of one pound per eight pounds of apples, or if you are going in for it in a big way, five pounds per bushel hamper.

Jellies — It's preserving time and the sugar supply isn't what it was in grandmother's time but the consumer section of the agricultural department has been making experments with jams and jellies, keeping within the sugar limit. . . So if you want to fill up those empty shelves, write to the Publicity and Extension Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, for the free pamphlet they have prepared.

Rubber Rings—Our New Zealand cousins have a rubber shortage, too; here is one method they use to seal preserves instead of using rubber rings. . . .Take suitable sized rounds of papers, preferably tissue, dip each one in milk, hold up the discs to allow drainage. . . .place on jars and press down. . . .Use three layers, allowing each to dry before adding another.

Price Ceiling Placed On Used Sewing Machines

Ottawa, Sept. 17 (CP)—Used sewing machines, in increasing demand since war needs have called for metals used in their production, went under a Wartime Price Ceiling with an order announced by S. Godfrey, administrator of used goods.

The second-hand machines now are scarce, the announcement said, and any housekeeper who has a sewing machine not in use is urged to turn it in, listing it with the used goods administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board if he is unable to dispose of it by other channels.

Sewing-machine scarcity has resulted in a tendency toward increased prices, and the new ceiling has been imposed because used machines were not previously subject to the maximum price regulations.

Price of used machines, rebuilt, is not to exceed 60 per cent of the selling price when new, said the statement. "This applies only to Ontario and Quebec, an additional $2.50 being permitted on sales in the Maritime Provinces, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and $5 in additional for sales in Alberta and British Columbia. Extras and attachments not regularly supplied with a similar machine when sold as new may be charged for in addition; on the basis of 60 per cent of the price when new."

A similar order covering used industrial sewing machines is in preparation.

U. S. A. WELCOMES HOCKEY

Washington, Sept. 17 — (CP) — Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the United States Manpower Commission said in a statement that Canadian hockey players "will be welcome to play in the United States during the coming season."

McNutt issued a statement identical in wording with that issued in Ottawa, and appended the remark that the Canadian players would be welcomed in this country.

DOG KICKED OUT OF NAVY

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 17 — (AP)—Boot, a 130-pound Great Dane mascot at a nearby naval training station, has been kicked out of the life of ease in the navy and now works for a bone a day in the army. As navy mascot life was a romp. But when he started killing sheep Boot had to be dismissed. He's with Dogs For Defence, Inc., training for army sentry duty.

Shoe Firms Ordered To Turn Bulk of Output Over For Army Needs

Ottawa, Sept. 17. (CP)—Several large shoe manufacturing firms have been instructed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to turn over 75 per cent of their production for the next four or five months to the Government for military needs in Canada and among Allied nations, it was learned Wednesday.

Prices Board officials refused any statement on the instructions said to have been sent by letter to the various companies. The board has control over production of goods for civilian purposes, and was understood to have told the companies concerned that, until requirements of the forces have been met, only 25 per cent of their production may go to civilian purposes.

Informed sources said it seemed probable that the sudden urgent requirements for more shoe production came, not from Canada, but from her allies. Under the mutual-aid agreements between the United Nations, any country with sufficient supplies and producing machinery is liable to be asked to assist in some particular sphere, and such assistance is being given even if some inconvenience may be caused the civilian population as a result.

Persons in touch with the leather situation said supplies were relatively plentiful but the demand was abnormally great, due largely to the shortage of rubber for civilian use.

One authority estimated that from five to ten major shoe-manufacturing companies had received instructions to turn 75 per cent of their production over.

No comment was forthcoming on the possibility of rationing of shoes in Canada, but officials said that waste in leather must be avoided everywhere if the demands on the available supply are to be met with or without rationing.

Warns Penalties Will be Severe

Toronto, Sept. 17 — (CP)—Severe penalties "can and will be enforced" on women in the 20 to 24-year group who fail to register, Austin Wright, assistant director in charge of enforcement, National Selective Service Board, said here Wednesday.

"This is not a voluntary registration," he said. "It is something that must be done. We can and will enforce the penalty—a $50 fine or six months in jail—on those who fail to comply. This seems to be a huge price to pay for what may be considered a minor infraction of the law, but we want it known that we're not fooling."

Please do not buy PORK
(FRESH CUTS, BACON or HAM)

In order that Britain may continue to receive from Canada its shipments of bacon and ham, so urgently required for military and civilian needs, you are asked not to buy pork for the next few weeks. This sacrifice is not hard to make.

Just think—in Canada, our dinner-tables are still abundantly provided with a rich variety of nourishing foods. But the tale is different in Britain today. There, luxury foods are unknown and most staples are rationed.

Yet the strain of war on the British people makes complete, nourishing food more and more important to them. Proper diets can only be maintained by steady shipments of essential foods—and one of these is pork from Canada, in the form of bacon and ham.

Do not buy pork: Choose from the wide variety of other foods that we Canadians can buy. Let Canada continue to send full cargoes of bacon and ham to war-torn Britain.

You can help by using any of the following:-
CHEESE • BEANS • CHICKEN • TURKEY
EGGS • FISH • FRESH VEGETABLES • CEREAL

You may buy the following pork products as they are not needed for export to Britain:-

Pension Fund of United Church To Be Financed by Assessments In Pastoral Charges After 1945

Two Amendments of Financial - Report Rejected Before Adoption

LENGTHY DISCUSSION

The Pension Fund of the United Church will be administered as a separate fund and financed through assessment of pastoral charges beginning January, 1945, General Council Commissioners decided today.

This was embodied in the report of the Finance Committee presented by Chairman, the Rev. W. J. Gallagher, Toronto and adopted by a strong majority of Council which rejected two amendments to the report.

The present system of finance is by a grant of $240,000 from the Missionary and Maintenance Fund in which the Pension Fund is embodied. Efforts to increase this grant for the next two years to $400,000 were defeated.

Council also adopted a recommendation that a competent committee be appointed to devise a plan of charge assessment and for the formation of the separate Pension Fund. It also endorsed a motion to increase the retirement age from 65 to 68 years and years of pensional service. It rejected, however, a proposal to extend the age limit to 70 "for the duration" due to scarcity of ministers.

Four Alternatives

During the lengthy debate which occurred on the question, Council Secretary Dr. Gordon A. Sisler, told the Council it was faced with four alternatives, to do nothing, which meant in from 15 to 18 years the Pension Fund would disappear; to draw from the Missionary and Maintenance Fund; freeze the fund and close it out in 1944, or assess pastoral charges.

"You must make a choice," he said.

He advocated the separation of the Pension Fund and assessment of charges. "The United Church must have a ministry and a pension system."

Dr. R. Leslie Pidgeon, Montreal, did not agree. "You have never yet succeeded in putting over a third fund," he said, "and you may make all the assessments you like, but you can't collect on the voluntary system. You cannot force this on the people."

An amendment proposed by Dr. A. P. Outerbridge that a new Pension Fund be constituted with assessments on an actuarial basis was defeated by council. Actuarial solvency was not new the Rev. H. Copeland pointed out. "It was tried in 1928. It is time we dropped all notions that we have a reserve. We have none. What we have is a deficit."

Need Money for Solvency

The obligation to those now on annuity is five million dollars, he said, and what is needed to make the fund solvent is money. We are faced with repudiation and impossibility of meeting our obligations, or getting a gift of one-half million dollars. It will mean a million dollars a year for ten years to save the fund.

Dr. Hugh Dobson, stated the only way to save the fund is to go wholeheartedly after legacies. It can be done if people put their minds to it, he said.

Not agreeing with the assessment plan, W. B. Sparling, Toronto, urged the Church to go after new money for the Missionary and Maintenance Fund and give a larger grant to Pensions.

Small Salaries Deplored

The "beggarly salaries" paid to ministers in small western charges was deplored by J. L. Reycraft, K. C., Winnipeg. He charged that ministers did not inform their laymen of the situation and urged them to "never hesitate to tell the truth. He told the ministers "to wake up and go to your congregations and double the M. and M. Fund this year". He favored the actuarial plan.

"The churches," he charged, "are developing into nice clubs where there are fine people, good music and nothing else." He blamed the ministers for this condition.

"You ministers", he said, "should not be afraid to tell your people what the situation is. Stay with them and you will double the M. and M. Fund if you are the men I think you are."

The Rev. George Stafford, Lachine, disagreed. "We are willing to talk to the laymen and back them up. I think the job of selling the Fund and getting the people pension-minded is the layman's job."

MAKES REPORT

General Manuel Avila Camacho, president of the United States of Mexico, makes his annual report before the Congress of Mexico. This report — his first wartime capitulation of the situation — was particularly important and was addressed to the rest of the American continent as well as to Mexico.

Wealth Underestimated

The wealth of Canada has been underestimated, Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, Toronto, said. "There is plenty of money. Family budgets have been greatly increased. The money for the gigantic liquor bill comes from somewhere, and farm incomes have greatly increased."

"It is time the church emulated the government and said to its ministers: 'Thou shalt pay thy Pension Fund assessment'. The element of compulsion is necessary even in a sweet and loving brotherhood like the ministry".

The Rev. J. A. Fraser, Nova Scotia, admitted he was one of the delinquent ministers who had not paid assessment to the fund. "The chief thing wrong with the church finances is that some of us are afraid to ask for money. We who are delinquents are not so from choice. We would like to know when the church is going to pay the Fund what it owes."

An amendment proposed by the Rev. A. G. Pentz urging that the report be laid over until the next General Council in 1944, and placing the onus for financial responsibility on ministers and congregations during the interim, was ultimately lost.

Dr. Sisco urged the Council to vote the amendment down with an overwhelming majority. He was tired of seeing the finance problem referred from one committee to another. This had happened during the past five years at a great cost to the church, he said, and it was time some decision was made.

General Council Goes on Air In CBC Broadcast

Across the Dominion from Halifax to Vancouver, the greetings of the United Church of Canada to its hundreds of thousands of members and adherents flashed last night, as distinguished members of the General Council nearing the end of its session here, went on the air.

Through the facilities of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the heads of the eleven conferences of the nation, and the Right Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Sclater, newly-elected Moderator, spoke to the nation, in a message, that took cheer and an appeal to all who heard them.

At sharp nine-thirty, the Council, some 286 commissioners from Newfoundland to Victoria, including repatriated missionaries from far-off China and Japan, ushered in the nation-wide broadcast with the stirring words of the famous hymn, "The Church's One Foundation."

Dr. Sclater, himself a veteran of the airlanes, spoke briefly to his invisible audience outlining the general purposes of the Council and the work they were doing here in the interest of the church and its members.

Introduced by Moderator

The Moderator introduced the various heads of the conferences also missionaries, who stressed the part the various church constituencies were doing in the tremendous task of liquidation of the church debt. There was a note of optimism in all the addresses.

Dr. Sclater concluded the broadcast with an appeal to the members of his church to stress all efforts on the liquidation of the remainder of the debt.

Prior to the broadcast, the commissioners, assisted by a fair representative gathering of city attendants in the church gallery rehearsed the singing of the hymns used in the broadcast, also his preliminary remarks.

The conference heads were seated in the choir during the broadcast, appearing individually behind the Moderator as their turn came

General Council Highlights

The Wednesday session opened with solemn memorial service, which included a Litany of Remembrance, to recall gratefully the life and work of the 147 ministers of the United Church who have died since last General Council.

A second report of the sessional Committee on Pensions presented the serious situation facing the fund in having to draw on its reserves to the total extent of $635,550. In 1941 the amount taken was $143,000. Two methods were recommended either to ask larger grants from the Missionary and Maintenance Fund; or to assess the Charges directly and separate the Pension Fund from the other funds of the Church. This section was laid on the table until the report of the Committee on Finance was taken up again. It was decided first that every candidate for the ministry will be instructed on his obligations to the fund when ordained. In all the debate it was clear that present standards can only be maintained if it can get considerable increase in annual revenue. An increase in the capital of this fund, it was stated, must be the next major financial effort of the Church. A memorial originating in Ottawa Presbytery that undesignated gifts to the United Church be given to the Pension Fund was voted down on the explanation of the assistant treasurer that this was the only available source not in the budget to provide for the necessities of war effort, and meetings of Commissions and other emergency expenses.

In a debate arising from Rev. Dr. R. B. Cochrane's objection to the above proposal it was shown that Home Mission Funds had added to their reserves abnormally because of several large bequests, including $400,000 for the estate of the late Sir James Aitken which is designated by trust for use in Western Canada Missions. The last two years has brought $150,000 from legacies and gifts, but the usual annual amount is about $20,000, Dr. Cochrane said. Increasing the salaries of men on home missions to $1,500 a year would take $200,000 a year from reserves. He was acclaimed for the statement that until we know the effect of war taxation it would not be sensible to wipe out reserves in the Home Missions Department by applying to other funds. Besides they were trust funds in most cases and earmarked, and could not be so used.

The previous report was lifted from the table and joint debate on the relevant clauses of the sessional committee and the investigating committee on Church Finances were considered with Dr. W. J. Gallagher in presenting the findings of the latter. It was decided that the two recommendations of Dr. Gallagher's committee on the reorganisation of the Boards of the Churches, namely that there be constituted a new "Board of Evangelism and Education" and another Board of Missions be sent to the executive of General Council for further study and to report a proposed set-up to the next Council.

The other major recommendation that there be a Board of Finance to co-ordinate all spending departments has become law already.

A campaign was ordered initiated throughout the Presbyteries which will be asked to hold all day special sessions, to initiate an effort to secure a sympathetic attitude towards the Pension Fund and its needs by a campaign of education and information. "We haven't told our people enough," was the closing remark."

At rising at noon sections retiring age from 65 to 68 and the separation of the Pension Fund from the M. and M. Fund had not been reached.

The Sessional Committee on Finance in an interim report made the per diem allowance to commissioners for meals and expenses one dollar; and the treasurer was authorized to make payments to Friday which is the probable date of adjournment, probably in the afternoon.

A keen discussion was provoked by a memorial from British Columbia Conference asking General Council investigate a scheme for carrying its own fire insurance on congregational and other properties. The Committee cited non-concurrence. Gershom W. Mason, legal advisor, told of previous efforts to get this, but they had run into difficulty with varying provincial laws and it had been found to be impracticable as "Contrary to Provincial Legislation." Dr. S. Wesley Dean explained that the Methodist Church before union had had such a scheme from 1918-25 which offended many agents but gave the Church fuller knowledge of insurance on its small church properties neglected by agents as not worth while. Two United States bodies have such a plan. The Board of Finance was finally asked to take it under study and report to next Council.

Rural Teacher Has Seven Pupils, Six of Whom Are Her Children

Tweed—Mrs. Thos. S. Kelly and Miss Helena Meraw are re-engaged as teachers of Bogart School and Miss Yvonne Rivers at Otter Creek. Miss Mary Kinlin who taught last year at Stoco, is now teaching at Teeswater.

The scarcity of teachers in the rural districts is calling a number of ex-teachers back into the profession again. Most of these are married women who have been absent from the profession for many years. In one such school northeast of Tweed the teacher has a class of seven pupils, six of whom are her own children. These women are to be commended for the sacrifice which they are making in filling the positions left vacant by young men who have been called for military service and young women who have also entered some form of war work.

Capt. Dr. Wesley Clare, mentioned in despatches for extreme bravery in connection with the Dieppe raid, was well known in Tweed where his father, Rev. David Clare, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Clare, lived for many years. Capt. Clare attended Canadian soldiers wounded in the Dieppe raid and refused to leave them although he knew his failure to do so meant either death or capture. He has been reported missing in action.

The September meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held on Thursday afternoon with the president, Mrs. T. E. Moffat, in charge. The Worship service was conducted by Mrs. J. W. Kingston who was assisted by Mrs. George Gordon and Mrs. M. Bradshaw.

The subject of discussion, led by Mrs. Moffat, was the Church and the Mission. She was assisted by Mrs. P. C. Barnett Mrs. S. B. McGee Mrs. S. G. Way and Mrs. Geo. Gordon.

The treasurer reported contributions amounting to $10.00, since he assumed the office of treasurer on August 1st., and a balance on hand of $998.29. He was authorized to forward $500.00 to The Canadian Red Cross Society, Ontario Division.

Several communications were dealt with and the secretary was asked to extend an invitation to the Presto Club of Belleville to come to Tweed this fall to give a concert in aid of Tweed Red Cross Branch.

The following is a summary of the articles made and shipped by Tweed Red Cross Branch during the half-year, January to June:

The Consolidated and Separate Schools reopened for the fall term on Tuesday morning. At the Consolidated School 21 beginners were enrolled and 6 new pupils in the higher grades. The total enrollment was 178. Miss Bernice Starr of Little Britain replaces Miss Evelyn Reynolds, the only change on the staff. Miss Reynolds is now a member of the staff of Toronto Public Schools. As teacher of grades IIIA and IV, Miss Starr comes to Tweed highly recommended by her inspector at Deseronto where she taught last year. She has a total of six years' teaching experience.

Twelve new pupils are enrolled at the Separate School where there are two changes on the staff, Rev. Sr. Mary Borgia succeeding Rev. Sr. Thrasilla as principal and Rev. Sr. Agnes Clair. The other members of the staff are Rev. Sr. Mary Timothy and Rev. Sr. Mary Stanislaus.

The other members of the Consolidated School staff are Mr. S. H. Connor, who begins his twenty-sixth year as principal, Florence Blaney, Grace Moran, Lois Richardson and Catharine McQuarrie.

Wins High Honors

Another former pupil of Tweed Consolidated and High Schools has brought honor to his schools in his C. Aall,Hyl .. .. scholastic achievements. John F. C. Ardenne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Ardenne, a student at Pickering College, was the winner of the Gordon Scholarship in English and the Ellen M. Nickle Scholarship also in English at Queen's University. As a student can receive only one scholarship, the latter scholarship is awarded to another student.

The Gordon award has a cash value of $225 and a tuition value of $450, a total of $675. Mr. Ardenne will enter Queen's University this fall.

Tweed Hydro Electric Power Commission is engaged in making alterations to the Royal Bank building which has been purchased as an office building for the local branch. The bank vault is being torn out and other changes are being made. It will be some time before it is ready for occupation.

Graduate as Officers

The former who enlisted as a private and spent some time in England has been given the rank of 2nd. lieut. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. McCrea. Lieut. Kerr is the only son of Reeve and Mrs. C. H. Kerr, Tweed, and was a former member of the teaching staff of Vaughan Road Collegiate Institute, Toronto.

Special Preacher

Rev. Harvey Campbell, of the Knox United Church, Regina, was guest preacher at Tweed United Church on Sunday morning and at Lodgeroom in the evening. Rev. Campbell is attending the meeting of the General Council of The United Church of Canada as one of its commissioners. In one of the finest addresses heard in the United Church here, Mr. Campbell spoke on the subject of the place of the Christian Church and Christian people in this world of conflict and in the world of peace which will follow. He based his remarks on a verse from Jeremiah, "Speak to the people who come into the House of the Lord all the commandments that I give you. Keep not back one word. Perhaps they will listen."

The arrangement for a service in the interests of Temperance, planned for Tweed United Church on Sunday, September 13th., at which Rev. E. Wootten, pastor of Picton United Church, was engaged as speaker, were cancelled owing to the recent tragic death of Rev. Wootten's grandson in an automobile accident.

Rev. H. L. Morrison has been attending the sessions of the General Council of The United Church of Canada meeting in Belleville during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Allen of Tottenham visited friends in Tweed this week. Mr. Allen was a former manager of the local branch of the Royal Bank.

Mrs. M. G. Dales has returned home following an operation in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Gertrude M. Connor who recently underwent an operation at Belleville General Hospital has returned to Tweed.

Would Restore Pension Rights

Toronto Sept. 17 —(CP)— A resolution asking the restoration of pension rights to a pensioner "in respect to a wife where marriage occurred subsequent to May 1, 1933," and children born after that date was passed yesterday by delegates to the 19th annual War Amputations of Canada convention here.

The resolution was submitted by the Vancouver, Calgary and Western Ontario branches, and in addition the delegates decided to petition the government to rescind legislation which disallowed compensation to widows of amputation's pensioners who married after Jan. 1, 1930.

Commenting on the measures, Lt.-Col. The Rev. S. E. Lambert, Dominion President of the "Amps," said, "If we can safeguard the future of disabled men and their families, our existence as an organization is justified."

Stating that ex-service men were unprepared to assume the commanding position they should have taken at the outbreak of the present conflict because they had become separated into several organizations and groups, another resolution was adopted suggesting an early conference of representatives of all these organizations and groups of ex-service men and women.

The object of such a conference would be to have a unified and stronger front in the preparing, consolidating and submitting to the authorities all representative legislative proposals endorsed by the organizations, pertaining to the needs of ex-service men.

Newsman Gives Graphic Description Of Jap Aerial Attack On Yorktown

(Editors Note: The stand of the aircraft carrier Yorktown, which the United States navy announced as sunk was witnessed by an Associated Press Correspondent in the battle of Midway. Here is his story, written aboard a United States cruiser June 4 as the stricken Yorktown disappeared into the horizon. Two days later, as salvage vessels struggled to get the 19,900-ton carrier to port, she was torpedoed and finally slipped beneath the waves June 7.)

By WENDELL WEBB
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

With the U.S. Pacific Fleet, June 4 (Delayed)—(AP)—The aircraft carrier Yorktown is a lonely blotch against the western sun tonight, and there is a lump in many a throat. The fleet is moving on.

We hold slight hope of ever seeing the Yorktown again. She is wounded, badly, and she is far from home. At best it will be days before she can be towed to safety. And these are dangerous waters now.

It was only this morning, June 4—although it seems like years—that the Yorktown and her sister ships launched their great broods of planes wich already have slashed to bits the Japanese strength hurled toward Midway.

Hour after hour the attacks went on. Suddenly, early this afternoon the enemy struck back A little distance away I could see shells burst in the air, flaming planes falling into the sea, wisps of smoke marking the graves of enemy pilots. The Yorktown was being dive-bombed.

Then came a great ominous belch of black smoke. Bombs hit their target.

This cruiser steamed at full power toward the wreckage of planes, life rafts, splintered boxes, oil slicks and debris of all kinds.

What was left of the enemy had gone as we approached the smoking ship. The flashing signal light showed there still was light on the bridge. We circled, waiting and hoping, while desperate efforts were made to get the fire under control. The Yorktown lay dead in the water.

Slowly the smoke lessened. We could see several planes still on the Yorktown's deck which apparently had only been nicked. Other planes were criss-crossing overhead. The ship appeared on an even keel, and hopes grew.

Hardly a word was spoken during those long, anxious minutes.

"Look, the Yorktown's moving." The guners around me were jubilant.

Within another few minutes the entire fleet was under way.

Then there came a quick report: "enemy planes."

Every gun was manned and the fleet was set for action.

"Enemy planes. Closing fast."

Planes Launched

The Yorktown had sufficient speed now to launch her remaining planes, and they were roaring off the flight deck.

"Enemy planes to port."

There were two waves of them, torpedo planes coming in low and dive-bombers far above. It was a combined attack—the last, desperate assault on an already beaten enemy.

Our fighters were tearing into both groups. Few of the dive-bombers ever got through, and no one was paying much attention to them anyway—we were watching the flashing torpedo planes, there appeared to be 15 of them. Some fell away in flames, in spirals of smoke, in weird tumbles. Our fighters were taking a heavy toll.

Aimed For Carrier

Nine of the attackers kept right on coming. They apparently were aiming straight for the carrier. This cruiser stood between. As they came within range, the whole fleet's anti-aricraft opened up with such a din I don't remember a thing after the first second. The attackers tried to dive beneath the barrage. More planes fell. Our own planes, too, were all mixed up in the dizzy aerial whirl.

The most distinct memory I have of the moment is that every gun on the Yorktown was blazing. She was putting up a secrap if any ship ever did.

Two planes of the Rising Sun ziped astern of us to drop their deadly fish right at the carrier. I didn't see them hit.

At the same moment, another enemy craft was slashing over our bow through a veritable wall of shellfire His machine-guns were pounding straight toward us. Across the bow, he went into a steep glide and let his silvered load plot into the water He died within 10 seconds in a mass of flames when the last plane to roar off the Yorktown cut him to pieces. The attack was over.

The sudden stillness was stifling. Our own fighters now were far away chasing the few remaining enemy planes. Every eye was on the Yorktown.

Listed Badly

The huge water spouts sent up by the torpedoes had died. The ship was listing badly. Two planes clung like struggling beetles to her tilting deck. It was a sickening sight.

Men were sliding down ropes and dorpping into the water. Destroyers were pulling alongside and picking them up. The signal went up—"I am abandoning ship."

Hundreds of survivors took to life boats and rafts and were taken to several nearby ships. Hundreds of bobbing heads found safety with the lifebelts tossed from all sides. Men were working fast, but it was an orderly abandonment—if any such drama could ever be so described.

An hour went by, two hours,—hours that seemed like a bad dream. We watched silently from a few hundred yards away. All this time the enemy never came back—and we knew suddenly that the battle of Miway had been won.

Empey Hill

Empey Hill — The service in the United Church on Sunday morning was well attended. A special service of intercession for our armed forces was conducted by Rev. W. R. Merrick.

'Wouldn't Mind Changing Places' Marshal Bishop Tells Canadian Pilots

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 17—(CP CABLE)—Air Marshal William A. Bishop talked to Canadian fighter pilots just back from a sweep over France and told them, "I wouldn't mind changing places with you."

The air ace of the first great war, paying his first visit to the Canadians since he arrived in Britain from the Dominion recently, met pilots and ground crew members of a squadron commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Norman Bretz, D. F. C., Toronto. That squadron damaged two Nazi aircraft during the morning's action.

He climbed into a spitfire to listen to the pilot's account of the fighting and said, "I'd rather be sitting here in the cockpit of this spitfire than stuck behind a desk. However, I guess I'm stuck on the ground for good now."

Then he went to the ground crews and told them "you boys must never forget for a moment that your job is just as important as the job of those who do the actual flying. We just couldn't run an airforce without you. Don't ever forget that and don't get discouraged because you can't fly. You are doing an extremely essential job."

The story of fighting which Bishop heard was one of action that started at 27,000 feet when the Canadians spotted a small formation of enemy aircraft immediately above them.

Flt. Lt. D. G. Malloy of Toronto who was leading the formation promptly began to climb and engage the enemy. The Germans peeled off into a steep dive and PO. George Keith of Tabor, Alta., followed one down, his cannon blazing. Black smoke began to pour from the Focke-Wulf 190 and Keith claimed a damage.

Meanwhile, a Messershmitt 109 was preparing an attack on Keith's plane from the rear, but Malloy spotted the Nazi in time to warn Keith to take evasive action. While this was going on, Sgt. E. J. Ross of Montreal noticed two Flocks Wulf 190's "stooging around." Ross flew in to attack and opened fire when travelling at right angles to one German's line of flight, turning until he was almost on the enemy's tail.

"I could see cannon shells going home," he said.

This enemy plane went down with smoke pouring from its engine and also was claimed as damaged.

Earlier in the day Bishop visited a squadron commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. Keith Hodson of London, Ont., arriving at the station just as the aircraft were circling overhead, returning from a sweep.

He wound up his day's activities with a visit to the army co-operation squadron commanded by Wing Cmdr. R. F. Begg of Vancouver.

Earl McCready Gives Katan Real Going Over in Main Bout But Only Gets Split Decision

Martinez Easily Wins the Semi-Final With Ali Adali Polishing Off Gotch

GOOD MAIN BOUT

Big Earl McCready, the Regina wrestling adonis, and John Katan, the Calgary mat villain, are no further towards a shot at "Whipper Billie" Watson's British Empire heavyweight wrestling crown today than they were this time Wednesday. Katan and McCready plied their grappling trade before a goodly crowd of wrestling addicts in what was advertised as an Empire title elimination bout, but after 60 minutes of torrid hostilities, in which each gained a fall, ring activities were abruptly halted by the hour limit, the final bell finding the contestants staging a marathon race outside the squared circle with the popular McCready in hot pursuit of the villainous Katan.

Returning to the ring Referee Phil Lawson declared the bout a draw much to the chagrin of Katan, who launched a new attack on both his opponent and the official, but the decision stood at all even. Directly after the bout McCready requested a return bout with no time limit. "Let's settle this thing once and for all without the interruption of a time limit bell and I'll show you who's the better man," pleaded McCready and Promoter Tunney promised to give the matter consideration for a return bout at the Hume Arena next Wednesday night.

Turk Makes Good

Of interest to the Hume Arena wrestling patrons was the appearance of Ali Adali, the moustachiod, bald, barefooted, "Terrible Turk", who had little difficulty in beating Jan Gotch in the opening bout with a crotch hold and slam in 22 minutes. Gotch tried to take a mean advantage of the hairless Turk and trampled his bare tootsies whenever the opportunity presented itself, which was naturally not appreciated by the Turkish "barefoot boy". Occasionally Mr. Gotch would reach out and yank the Turk's flowing moustache, of which he was more than proud. Such tactics are frowned upon by lovers of good clean sport, (but who can call wrestling good clean sport?)

In the semi-final bout that saw the rough Mexican, Pedro Martinez, soundly beat the 258-pound George Duros of Chicago, any resemblance to a wrestling bout was purely coincidental, as Duros had more nerve than ability to even enter the ring with such a ring master as Martinez. Eddie Sobel, former light heavyweight wrestler was a popular referee for the preliminaries.

Getting back to the feature attraction of the night it was somewhat of a test of matched strength, with McCready providing the orthodox wrestling and Katan in keeping with his self-styled crown of Canada's most villainous grappler. "Big Earl" made the patrons happy with several rolling barrel scissors holds that left Katan helpless, but not pinned. Each contestant delved deeply into his respective bag of tricks, with Katan rousing the ire of the patrons by continually blinding McCready. However, the Regina heavy weathered such attacks to win the first fall in 28.31 minutes with as rapid-applied flying body scissors as has been lamped in the local sports palace in many a moon. The unorthodox Katan roughed McCready, blinded him with foreign substances in the eyes, clamped on a step-over toehold and polished Earl off for the tying fall in 14.50 of the second stanza.

A Finish Bout Ordered

There was action personified in the final round as Katan rolled Referee Phil Lawson to a total loss, but gained nothing except the disregard of the official. The fans howled with glee when Katan swung and missed McCready with his fist crashing to the ring post. It was while protecting his injured paw that Katan sought sanctuary outside of the ring and was proving a better marathon runner than McCready when the final bell halted hostilities. Today Promoter Tunney announced he would definitely give McCready his request of a return bout here with Katan in a finish bout with no time limit.

No Hockey at Philly

Philadelphia, Sept. 16 (AP). — Peter Tyrrell, manager of the Philadelphia Arena, announced Monday that it will not operate a team in the American Hockey League during the 1942-43 season.

He said insufficient players were available, adding:

"It was a blow to us to have finished in last place (in the Eastern Division) last season and we didn't want to struggle through with another cellar club.

"This city deserves better representation. We can't see how we can ice a strong combination, so we abandoned the idea. There may be hockey players around, but we can't locate them."

JERSEY GIANTS IN FINAL ROUND FOR LOOP TITLE

Defeat Newark Bears 6-2 to Win Playoff Series by 4 to 1

ROYALS WIN ONE

(By The Associated Press)

For the first time in the 10-year history of the International League's Governors' Cup playoffs, Jersey City Giants have reached the final round.

The Giants accomplished this trick yesterday by defeating the pennant-winning Bears 6-2 to win the preliminary series, four games to two. Montreal Royals, second to Newark during the regular season, staved off a similar elimination when they whipped Syracuse Chiefs, 4-2 last night for their first victory in four games.

Since the playoffs were established in 1933, Newark has finished on top during the regular season six times but only twice has escaped the letdown that often follows. Jersey City encountered the same difficulty in 1939, its only pennant year, being eliminated in the first round.

Thus it was more or less according to "form" that the Little Giants who finished this year's main campaign in a third-place tie and then lost a one-game playoff to Syracuse, should come through against the champions in the cup series. But the Jerseys did it the hard way. After dropping the first two games in Newark, they won three straight in their home park then returned to Newark to win the deciding contest.

Koslo's Hitting Features

Dave Koslo's pitching, and to some extent his hitting, was the big factor in yesterday's deciding game. Dave limited the Bears to nine hits and might have had a shutout but for two fielding lapses by his mates. Manager Bill Meyer of the Bears tossed in 19 players, including six pitchers, in a futile attempt to turn the tide.

The Giants won the game in the third inning when they scored four runs. Koslo started things off with a single and after Johnny Rucker popped out, pitcher George Washburn of the Bears lost control and walked three men to force in Koslo with the first run. Hugh Poland singled home two more runs and Joe Orengo drove in the fourth.

Rowe Called in

Montreal called on the veteran Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe to halt the Chief's six-game winning streak and he did it with a neat seven-hit job. He applied the whitewash until the final inning when two hits, a walk and an error gave Syracuse its runs.

The Royals did all their scoring in the first off Nate Andrews, who gave up two hits and two walks without retiring a man. Tom Delacruz, who relieved him after two runs had scored, managed to retire the side only after the other two men came in but pitched near-perfect ball the rest of the way. He was nicked for only three hits in nine full innings.

The fifth game will be played at Syracuse tonight.

Thirty-Five-lb. Muskie Is Record Fish Caught In Stoco Lake This Year

Tweed —Mr. Ernest Cronkwright veteran fisherman of Tweed, captures the honors for the largest muskie taken in Stoco Lake this season to date. His prize tipped the scales at thirty-five pounds. He landed it on Friday evening after a great struggle.

A new lighting system has been installed in Jerry Quinn's restaurant. The lights, which are most modern in design, consume only a fraction of the electricity used by the old lighting system and provide a much better light, the nearest approach to daylight yet achieved.

WHIRLAWAY WINS AGAIN

Trainer Ben Jones holds the bridle. Jockey George Wolf is up. The event was to be the "race of the year" with Whirlaway running against Alsab, but the last minute scratching of Alsab made the race a pushover for the winner. This is a phonephoto.

WHY TROUT WAS FINED

Angered by the taunts of a ball park vendor who was a spectator, Paul (Dizzy) Trout, Detroit Tigers' hurler, grabs the heckler in the sixth inning of a Detroit-Philadelphia game at Detroit. The action led to Trout's ejection from the game. Trout said the man kept shouting, "Diz, are you getting ready to go back to the minors?" Trout was fined and suspended by the Tigers for his action.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SCOTT YOUNG

Toronto, Sept. 17 (CP)—The word that Annis Stukus will coach Toronto Oakwood backfielders in the Ontario Rugby Football Union's senior group this season is almost too much for most of us to bear.

This large and loquacious member of the Lithuanian family Stukus is a refreshing type of athlete. He is one of Canada's best backfielders but only the public takes him seriously. Stukus himself can't be bothered.

He was one of the few on Lew Hayman's Toronto Argos who didn't go for Hayman's famous fire-talks—words that always made rookie brows steam with anxiety and sent even some veterans into the fray anaesthetized against any sensation but the game ahead. Stukus never steamed. He never was anaesthetized. He often wise-cracked the spell away, and Hayman resented that plenty.

Stukus is Canadian football's sage of the drawing rooms. He is something of an actor in this regard. He is big-boned, big-muscled. He looks like the movie conception of the half back who runs the wrong way on the crucial touchdown play. He knows this, and acts it out. He gives his audiences, which are always large, and largely female, what they expect—serious discourses on how good he is. He gives them the works in rugged English, and they love it.

I refuse even to attempt to imagine Stukus giving his Oakwoods a pep-talk, although they'll probably need plenty, plus a bren gun, brass knucks and blackjacks to get anywhere in the O.R.F.U. But I can see him now in a throng of rapt women, playing the part of the studious, but maligned coach; giving them the wherefores of that important play, and lurid background on the perfedious opposition.

There was once, on a football trip, when Stukus took himself seriously. The boys were in a night spot, and a Salvation Army girl came in selling the War Cry. She got a rude reception at a few tables. Stukus and his pals rose. They approached the girl, took her bundle of papers, and started around among the tables.

A football player, big and burly, would stop menacingly beside a patron, drop the war cry on the table.

"You want it don't you? he would snarl.

The patron would take one look at the vendor, and develop a burning desire to read the war cry. He would reach into his pocket. If he produced a nickel, he got it for a nickel. If a half-dollar came out first, the price was a half. It cost some of the heathen dollar bills.

The papers were all sold in five minutes. Stukus and the boys handed the Salvation Army girl a quart of silver and a few bills. Then they went back again to not being serious.

4 BROOKLYN FANS AND PLAYERS BATTLE AT PARK

Hailed Into Court on Charges of Assault and Battery

FANS NO LONGER

Brooklyn, Sept. 17. (AP)—Four brave men, but bad, stood between hundreds of loyal Brooklynites and Magistrate Charles Solomon last night and said coolly their love for the Brooklyn Dodgers was positively dead.

They weren't sad so much because they were being arraigned on disorderly conduct charges growing out of a tussle at Ebbets Field between fans, ushers and ball players. It was more because, they said they no longer had a team to root for.

Their resignation from Dodger fandom brought grunts of displeasure from the shocked audience—men, women and children— and some even turned and walked from Brooklyn—Queen's Night Court.

The four men—James Vigilante, 28; his brother, Michael, 33; Michael D'Guisseppi 23, and Anthony Fischetti, 22—were paroled for a hearing October 4, when the baseball season will be over.

Complaints against them were signed by Peter Casey, chief usher at the Dodgers' home field who charged they had disturbed the peace at the diamond shortly before the start of yesterday's game with Pittsburgh Pirates which the Dodgers won, 10-3, leaving them two games behind the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals.

Additional Charges Laid

An additional charge of simple assault was brought against the elder Vigilante by Usher Chester Braves, who said two of his teeth were chipped during the melee.

Counsel for the defendants said they wanted to press charges against Dodger Manager Leo Durocher, Catcher Mickey Owen and Fielder Dixie Walker. The lawyer said the Athletes assaulted two of his clients while the battle raged.

Magistrate Solomon told him to come back in the morning.

The fight started in a box directly behind the dugout when Ushers urged the defendants to leave the seats there.

The now ex-Dodgers rooters said they had gone to the box to get Dodger team to autograph photographs which hung on their club walls. They said Whitlow Wyatt, star hurler, and Walker had signed when the ushers started to throw them out.

The ushers gave ground and ballplayers took up the fight, while teammates surrounded the combatants and the Pirates stepped forward to look on.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, JR).
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Instead of fining those unruly spectators, maybe Brooklyn should give 'em a vote of thanks. . . .The Dodgers hadn't shown as much fight in weeks as they did in that pre-game brawl yesterday, and did you notice how they started hitting right afterward? . . . .If they can only stay mad now, they may still beat out the Cards. . .Dixie Walker only got credit for four hits, but that wasn't a bunt he hung on that fan's jaw. . . Looks as if the Phils are the real beneficiaries of the close race. They drew 26,874 for the Card series and will cut in on five games at Ebbets Field, including a Sunday doubleheader, as well as two home games against Brooklyn. . . Ordinarily at this stage they'd have about 300 fans rattling around in the park.

Sensible Solution

When Johnny Stojack, star back at Wells High in Steubenville, O., was charged with accepting pay for playing sandlot baseball during the summer, J. R. Townsend, head of Ohio State Athletic Conference, came up with the ruling that Stojack could regain his eligibility by paying back any money he received for ball playing. . . .He decided that Johnny had compromised himself innocently and that the steel company on whose team he played didnt know it was getting a grid star into trouble.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

ALTHOUGH SOCCER FOOTBALL never became what one might call a major sport in Belleville, there is within 25 miles of here one of the best soccer football teams in Canada. We refer to the Picton R.A.F. eleven which has established one of the most formidable records achieved on a Canadian football field. The team is rated as one of the best clubs ever to appear in the Dominion and have racked up a record of 15 wins, two losses and two draws in nineteen games. They meet the Mount Hope R.A.F. eleven at Peterboro on Saturday. Of course the Picton team is composed of many named British football stars with a line-up as follows:

Goal—T. Thornton, Wolverhampton Wanderers.

Right-back—J. Williams, Manchester City, three times capped for Wales, twice against England and Scotland.

Right-half—G. Flockett, Spennymoor United.

Inside-right—S. Sheddon, Queen's Park.

Centre-forward—H. McConnell, Ayr United; three times capped against England and Wales.

Inside-left—Danny Miller, Middlesbrough

Outside-left—PO. W. F. Lockwood, Durham University.

Reserve—R. Smith, Elgin City.

SOFTBALL FANS OF BELLEVILLE are to get a break tonight when the Kingston and Oshawa intermediate teams play a third and final game for the Eastern Ontario championship in the O.A.S.A. Each team won their respective home game forcing a third tussle on neutral grounds. The clubs originally agreed to play at Trenton, the half-way mark between the two cities concerned. However, Bayside Park in Trenton is being used this evening, which was a break for local softball addicts. "Big Preem" Whitely pitched and won for the Oshawa Colts at home, while Stan Scrutton bested Don McLaughlin for the Victoria's home diamond in Kingston. When it became known that the Trenton diamond was not available Convener Harry Rollins ordered the two clubs to play here tonight with Eddie Schrieder and Harold Bawden named as the two neutral arbiters. The Belleville Girls' Softball League final game scheduled for tonight will be played Friday.

WITH EARL MCCREADY TRYING his level best to wrestle according to the little blue book and John Katan doing a fine chore of breaking practically every rule in the said manuscript, Canada's two leading contenders for the British Empire heavyweight wrestling crown mauled and pulled each other about for sixty minutes to a draw and now they go back at is again next Wednesday. If decisions were given in wrestling bouts McCready would have won by the proverbial mile, and that's why Promoter Frank Tunney heeded the popular Regina boy's pleadings for a return grudge fight to a finish and without the handicap of a time limit. Katan proved he was a much better marathon runner than a wrestler as he out-ran "Big Earl" in the dying moments to gain a split decision last night. However, the fans got a real kick out of Ali Adali, the bald Terrible Turk, who left Jan Gotch wondering if it was all worth while in the opener.

REMEMBER WHEN BOBBY Riggs and Alice Marble completed a sweep on the Wimbledon and United States tennis singles championships at Forest Hills, N.Y., three years ago today? Riggs turned back young Welby Van Horn in straight sets to succeed Donald Budge as national champion, while Miss Marble defeated former champion Helen Jacob, 6-0, 8-10 and 6-4.

IN KEEPING WITH THE CURRENT drive for the National Baseball League championship, Manager George Forhan has a picture showing at the Belle theatre which is timely to say the least. It's a baseball comedy woven around Brooklyn's beloved "bums", the Dodgers, and a more daffy baseball story has never been conceived by any writer. Besides some good baseball sequence shots, romance and comedy are injected into the picture to assure a splendid evening of entertainment.

SATURDAY SEES THE ANNUAL world's fair at Shannonville and one of the chief attractions is a baseball game between Latta and the Reliance A.C. Directly following the game the same clubs are slated to play a second Sunday game at the Exhibition Park here over the weekend. Last Sunday a goodly crowd watched these two nines play ball here without any pre-game ballyhoo. As no admission is charged and the games are played as recreation for war workers and do not interfere with the conventional Sunday activities no great harm is done and the war workers of the community can enjoy a little recreation.

Both the Dodgers and the Cardinals won yesterday as the National League race narrows down. The Cards, still enjoy a two-game advantage, but the Dodgers have two more games than the Cards to play. The Brooklyn club has eleven games to play as against nine for the St. Louis Cardinals. Although Pittsburgh got ten hits off Whit Wyatt yesterday, "Dem Bums" pounded six Pirate pitchers (?) for a total of 19 base knocks and some sound spheriod thumping, as the Dodgers won 10 to 3. In Boston the Cards made nine hits roll into six runs, while the Braves, who collected the same number of base clouts, only scored two counters. The answer — well, the Braves kicked in with three bad miscues. Big Ernie White scattered the hits he allowed the homesters well.

THIS AND THAT — It was quite a surprise when Jersey City knocked off Newark in the International League semi-finals ... And the same might be said for Montreal in eliminating Syracuse ... After all the Bears were considered the "Yankees of the minor leagues"... Art Scarlett helped himself to another hit as Hollinger knotted the Northern League finals with Falconbridge yesterday ... After losing 11 to 3 in Oshawa, the Kingston Victorias returned home to win the second game 9 to 3 and now the teams square off here this evening in a third and final tussle ... Nobody is interested in the fact the Yankees beat the Tigers yesterday ... Things are pretty bad in Brooklyn when the wolves (common reference made by players in referring to the fans) put on the verbal pressure yesterday with Walker and Owen bruising their knuckles on a couple of patrons ... The war has closed 68 per cent of the boxing clubs in the United States, Mexico and Canada...two and two? well—

Washington Redskins have a Club rule that players who eat in railroad diners have to leave a 25-cent tip each time—which makes them popular with waiters who have fed big league baseballers. . . .Although the Seattle City Hockey League has lost a dozen men to the armed forces, plans call for a three-club league this winter—unless the big pro leagues send out too many calls for veterans like Roger Jenkins, Frank Daley and Dave Downie.

SOUTHWORTH, FATHER AND SON

Billy Southworth, manager of the St. Louis' Cardinals, is in a happy mood these days. His son, Billy Jr., has just been appointed a captain in the army air force. Young Southworth, who until January 1941, played the outfield for Toronto in the International League, might have gone on in baseball to become the younger half of baseball's father and son combination had he not decided to choose aviation for a life career. Billy St., has brought his Cards right out in front in the National League. Billy Sr., is shown here at Port Custer, Mich., talking to his son who is in the cockpit of the plane.

AT THE McCARTHY

A scene from "Invisible Agent" based on a story by H. G. Wells and featuring Ilona Massey, Jon Hall, Peter Lorre and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, which opens next at the McCarthy Theatre. On the same program a Texas western "Stagecoach Express," with Don "Red" Barry.

AT THE CAPITOL

The screen's new Henry Aldrich, freckled Jimmy Lydon, gets into his usual pack of troubles when he goes into high school politics in Paramount's "Henry Aldrich for President," currently showing at the Capitol with Hopalong Cassidy in "Twilight on the Trail" as Companion feature.

AT THE BELLE

Ann Sheridan and Dennis Morgan have the starring roles in the thrilling new Warner Bros.' film, "Wings for the Eagle", now on the Belle Theatre screen, with Lloyd Nolan and Carole Landis in the exciting baseball story of the Brooklyn Dodgers, "It Happened in Flatbush."

'DEM BUMS' HAVE TOUGH ROAD TO BEAT CARDINALS

St. Louis Can Play .500 Ball From Here in and Snatch Pennant

BOTH WIN WEDNESDAY

(By SID FEDER)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Ferdinand the Figger Filbert popped out of his hole today, right smack into the National League Party and threw a scare into the folks in Brooklyn.

Ferdinand the Filbert, in case you've forgotten him, is the little guy with an adding machine for a head and a percentage table for a heart, and when he starts counting!

The way Ferdie has it figured out right now, what with St. Louis Cardinals two games in front of the Bums and moving right along, the layout looks tough for the Daffiness boys.

Naturally, you'll point out that the Brooklyns broke out of their hitting slump yesterday. They turned loose a 19-hit bombardment that tore the feeble Pittsburgh Pirates apart 10-3 and ended their five game losing streak in a game marked by a brawl in the stands among some fans, a couple of ushers and Dixie Walker and Mickey Owen. No one was "hotted".

Some Figuring

And those festivities caused Ferdinand to point out that if the Cardinals should lose even four of their remaining nine games, the Dodgers would have to take nine to eleven to win. Or, the Cards can even go under the .500 mark—say win four and lose five—and in that case, the Gowanus gallants would have to grab eight and lose only three. And if the sons of St. Loo should fall apart and drop six out of nine, Durocher's darlings still would need seven to eleven to come home on the bandwagon.

The Layout

As both outfits went back to work today for more target practice at the same bulls-eyes, here's the way the layout lined up:—

Club	W.	L.	G.B.	G.P.
Cardinals	96	47	—	9
Dodgers	96	46	2	11

However, the Dodgers still are better than a 100-to-1 shot. Certainly, the manner in which they came back after their two days in drydock for repairs did them no harm.

Meantime, the Cards combed Jim Tobin for only nine hits, but they put five of them together for a winning four-run rally in the sixth.

Brewer Has Two-Hitter

The pitching job of the day, however, was turned in by Marv Breuer in twirling New York Yankees to a 5-1 decision over Detroit Tigers. For seven innings he had a no-hitter and he wound up by giving up only two for the afternoon.

Paul Derringer also tossed a four-hitter that gave Cincinnati Reds a 3-1 decision over the Giants.

Just in case you're interested, Chicago Cubs climbed over the Pirates into the National League's fifth place by splitting a twin bill with the Phillies losing the first 3-1 to Johnny Podgajny and taking the nightcap 4-1 behind Herman Bithorn.

Johnny Niggeling whitewashed Boston Red Sox with seven hits for a 3-0 St. Louis Browns' victory, and Philadelphia Athletics trounced Chicago White Sox 4-2.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Marv Breuer, Yankees: Handcuffed Tigers with two hits for 5-1 victory.

Dolph Camilli, Dodgers: Hit two homers, two singles, drove in five runs in 10-3 victory over Pirates.

Stan Musial and Walker Cooper, Cardinals: Each drove in two runs in 6-2 victory over Braves.

J. Niggeling, Browns—Blanked Red Six 3-0 with seven hits.

Jim Bagby, Indians: Muffled Senators with five hits for 5-1 decision.

Jihnny Podgajny, Phillies and Bob Sturgean, Cubs,: Podgajny downed Cubs 3-1 in opener with six hits; Sturgeon's double and single drove three runs across in 4-1 Cub nightcap victory.

Bob Johnson, Athletics: Collected three hits, drove in one run in 4-2 triumph over White Sox.

Only Two Tickets To a Customer

St. Louis, Sept. 17 (AP)—Figuring on a brisk demand for world series tickets if they win the National League pennant, the Cardinals have established a two-to-the-customer limit for reserved seats. Mail applications for grandstand seats will be accepted beginning today, but none will be made for more than two blocks of tickets.

As usual, tickets will be sold only in blocks of three, covering the three games to be played here. All box seats already have been sold to holders of season boxes.

Shannonville Fair Offers Many Fine Attractions

Claimed by its directors to be bigger and better than in any previous year, Shannonville "World's Fair," scheduled for Friday and Saturday, is expected to be graced by the usual large attenance.

The decision of the directorate in making the fair two days instead of the one as has previously been the custom is expected to make the exhibition more interesting both from the exhibitors' and spectators' viewpoint. The extra day will permit the exhibitors to get their produce arranged in the exhibition hall on the day previous to the actual holding of the fair and will leave the last day entirely free for viewing the fine display of exhibits.

A series of continuous interesting attractions has been arranged by the fair directorate and patrons are assured a fine program of speeding events, sports attractions, rides and midway replete with many fine shows and games. As a special attraction a squadron of three flights from No. 5 Initial Training School under PO. Douglas will parade at the fair grounds and give an exhibition of precision drill during the afternoon on Saturday. Grounds will be open to the public Friday night.

Shannonville "World's Fair" has, for many years, been an attraction popular with district residents who attend to meet friends and to enjoy a real day among their neighbors. This year the event promises to be bigger and better than ever. The same popular prices as has been the custom in other years will prevail at both afternoon and evening performances.

BIRD HUNTS HUNTER

Sherbrooke, Que., Sept. 17—(CP)—The open season for partridge started early this year for Emmanuel Samson of Sherbrooke, but it was a case of the bird hunting the hunter and not the hunter hunting the bird. Samson was asleep when he was awakened by the crash of a pane of glass. A search disclosed that a partridge had flown through a window. It was still alive when he picked it off the floor.

ONE DROWNED, TWO RESCUED

Berthier, Que., Sept. 17 —(CP)— Adrien Marechal, 55, of St. Barthelemie, was drowned and two companions were rescued when a rowboat capsized in the St. Lawrence River, 80 miles below Montreal.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Henry Aldrich for President"

The third in Paramount's Aldrich Family series, "Henry Aldrich for President," arrived at the Capitol Theatre last night and introduced Jimmy Lydon as the always-in-a-jam Henry. The picture is a welcome and completely satisfying piece of cinematic entertainment.

"Henry Aldrich for President" is light and amusing comedy with plenty of the human touch. It is entertainment for the whole family. We strongly advise a visit to the Capitol Theatre. The picture will get your vote for bouncing, lively good humored fun. It has ours.

"Twilight On The Trail"

William Boyd as Hopalong Cassidy stars in the companion feature "Twilight on the Trail", the latest Cassidy action drama of the wild West.

In this thrill-filled film "Hoppy" and his saddlemates, "Lucky" Nelson, played by Brad King, and Andy "California" Clyde, discover the mountain hide-out of a gang of cattle rustlers and, after a series of exciting adventures, some hard riding and a roaring gun fight, they wipe out the desperadoes. The feminine lead is taken by beautiful Wanda McKay.

AT THE BELLE

"Wings For the Eagle"

"Wings For the Eagle", which Warner Bros. released locally at the Belle Theatre yesterday, is a film that does a splendid job of blending individual drama with the one grim story that hovers over all personal conflict—the world struggle to smash the Axis. But this film tells its story not through the soldiers and sailors or the warring front but through the men and women who turn out our planes. Their story is packed with all the action, drama and excitement that one would find on the actual fighting front; the the constant fight against time is never out of their minds.

Lovely Ann Sheridan and debonair Dennis Morgan have the leading roles with Jack Carson and George Tobias in the supporting cast. The film is set, for the most part, in the huge Lockheed Aircraft Plant. Ann and Jack play the role of a married couple who split up when Jack becomes irritated over having wasted his money on a phony engineering course.

Morgan portrays a care-free character who lands a job at the Lockheed plane in the hope that his draft board would consider his job "essential." But Pearl Harbor changes his mind in a hurry and he realizes he had a wrong slant on things.

Dennis also takes advantage of Ann's quarrel with Carson and goes all-out in his attempt to be pleasing but he soon learns that her heart is still with Carson. Tobias, as usual, gives a splendid performance as the shop foreman whose whole life is wrapped up in Lockheed and the patriotic fervor to speed up the work. His son, played by Russell Arms, also works at the plant, but leaves to join the air force and Tobias is prouder than a papa with a newborn babe.

It is only after the United States' involvement in the war and after Tobias' son pays with his life for his patriotism that Dennis decides he, too, has a debt, both to his country and his friends. He joins the Air Force, but before going he patches things up between Ann and Jack.

"It Happened in Flatbush"

20th Century-Fox's riotious comedy "It Happened in Flatbush," based on the doings of those daffy Brooklyn ball players and their rabid fans, is the added feature offering and keeps the spectator in an uproar from start to finish.

Lloyd Nolan is excellent in his role of a former big league ball player who is called in to manage a tottering Brooklyn ball club. What happens to him could only happen in Flatbush. "Them lovely bums" and their three million rabid, raving fans, nearly drive him "nuts" with their "whacky" antics.

Featured with Nolan is curvesome Carole Landis, as the owner of the ball club who doesn't know the difference between left field and a curve ball. She thinks a guy who steals a base should be arrested and that a baseball coach has wheels.

But under Nolan's voluble tutelage Miss Landis learns fast, and when he gets through, she's all in favor of the "squeese play." And CCarole teaches Nolan a few things too—but not about baseball. She's an expert in stealing hearts rather than bases.

For a double-header of thrills, comedy and romance, don't miss 20th Century-Fox's hit, "It Happened in Flatbush," now at the Belle theatre.

"Donald's Gold Mine" is the title of the latest Walt Disney comic color cartoon, to be exhibited on the same program.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was thinking behind his cigar and ma said, William there are 2 wonderful pictures on the bill at the Narcississ, and I know you beleive firmly that human beings were not created to sit through double movie features, so I have a concession to make.

Good, we'll stay home, pop said, and ma said, That would be a surrender and not a concession for land sakes. Now here's what I propose. I'll telephone the Narcississ and find out exactly what time the second feature goes on, and we'll stay away from the first feature bodily and just get there in time for the 2nd, so then after that the show will be over so I mean I cant be tempted to beg you to wait fur even just the beginning of the other picture, she said.

That'll be just dandy, if I can be assured of not doing violence to my business ethics, pop said, and ma said, Now William how does such a thing as that enter in the picture?

In enters into both pictures, pop said. Granting that the full program is worth the recently increased price of admission, why should we be asked to pay the full rate when we see only half the show? Now supposing you call up the manager of the Narcississ and explain to him that if the picture industry was an art instead of a business we wouldn't even consider asking him to alter his rates according to value received, any more than we would think of requesting an art museum to let us in at half rates if we promised to look at only half the paintings, but inasmuch as motion pictures are a money making business, why should they expect cash without delivery? Offer the bird half the regular admission price for half his show, pop said.

Now William, I'll call up, but strictly to find out what time the 2nd feature begins, ma said. Just a same it's a good idea, she said.

Which it probably is.

Money is Needed To Assist Fund

With additional names of Belleville boys serving overseas being added to the Kinsmen Club "Fag Fund" the financing of the fund, to assure smokes for Belleville men in the armed forces, is becoming more strenuous each week. "We are rapidly approaching the 600,000 cigarette mark, but as additional names are added to our Fag Fund list the appeal for financial aid naturally follows," pointed out Kin Matt Currie, chairman of the fund, today. The Kinsmen "Fag Fund" is purely a voluntary effort and all contributions received are given directly towards the provisions of smokes for Belleville boys overseas with all administration costs being borne by the Belleville Kinsmen Club.

The names of those sent cigarettes through the fund this week included: George E. Barnett, F. G. Belsey, Horace Bowler, Douglas R. H. Carr, Ken G. Cherry, E. O. Doyle, Everett S. Fairman, F. Chapter 28

A Startling Announcement

Linda was temporarily quieted by this remark. She felt like a naughty child that has just been punished. Then, impulsively, she pulled up a chair and sat down beside Jerry. Greg followed suit, and Linda said gaily, "This calls for a celebration—all of us together."

"All of us?" Brenda's drawl was low and amused. "Come, Linda, you haven't forgotten one of us is missing. The most important one—I should say."

Linda colored, knowing to whom Brenda had referred. She closed her eyes for a moment. As if she could forget Steve—even, for a moment. When she looked at Brenda, she was once more in control of her emotions.

"Important?" she queried, lightly. "I dare say, you speak for yourself, Brenda."

Suddenly Mary was on her feet, glowering at Linda with smouldering eyes. "Please," she said coldly. "If you insist on joining our party, I suggest you have the decency to refrain from mentioning my brother's name. He can't possibly hold any interest for you—now."

Mary blushed, surprised by her outburst. It was so unlike her to say anything unkind that Linda realized how deeply hurt Mary was.

Philip patted Linda's hand lightly. "Please—" he said kindly. "you mustn't let Mary upset you, Linda. She isn't feeling very well, and I'm sure she didn't mean all she said."

Linda laughed merrily. "Of course, I realize Mary didn't mean it. Did you, darling?"

She meant to antagonize Mary, and did. That touch of flippancy, that indifference in her manner brought forth results.

"Yes, I meant everything I said," Mary answered coldly. "I—I hate you, Linda. I hate you!"

Following Mary's bitter words, there was a breathless silence. Linda regarded her sister-in-law in aching silence, longing to confess her love for Steve. Then, feeling Brenda's eyes turned on her triumphantly, she laughed.

"It is exciting, isn't it? And rather confusing, I'll admit, to be trading husbands and sweethearts with such abandon. Jerry, suppose you relieve the so-called situation by dancing with me?"

For a moment she was afraid that Brenda's former husband would refuse, but while Brenda and Mary stared in silence, Jerry rose, bowed gallantly, and said:

"It would be a pleasure, Linda."

In his arms, Linda closed her eyes, swaying to the slow dance rythmn, but they had scarcely moved three steps before Jerry regarded her soberly, his face almost stern.

"Why are you behaving like this, Linda?" he asked. "It isn't like you to be so artificial, so shallow."

With a tired sigh, Linda let her head rest on his broad shoulder. "I'm so tired," she whispered softly. "You're the only one who's been kind to me, Jerry. You're the only one who — who understands."

"I understand a great many things," Jerry said. "For instance, I know you're putting up a wonderful bluff because you're scared silly that Brenda will take Steve away from you. You're trying to show everyone that you don't care. Isn't that true?"

"She's already succeeded," Linda answered gravely. "I underestimated her ability, I'm afraid. I'm stepping out of the picture now — in a gay manner."

"I wish I could tell you it isn't true," he said and sighed heavily, "but unfortunately I can't. Brenda called and asked me to meet her here because she's going to Saratoga soon. Do you know what that means?"

Linda's throat constricted. "That means — the racing season opens soon and now that Steve can afford to come and go, he'll be taking his racing ponies south. It means—"

"Maybe we're wrong," Jerry was hopeful. "Maybe—"

Linda shook her head wearily. With a sinking heart she realized that she had lost. It was Brenda, Steve's sweetheart, who held the winning hand.

"I want to go back," she said suddenly. "I—I have an announcement to make."

Linda watched soberly while Greg poured sparkling wine into the goblets before each member of the silent party. A pall seemed to have fallen over the group.

There was anxiety in Jerry's eyes as they rested on Linda's white face. Brenda twisted the corner of her handkerchief nervously and Greg's hands shook as he poured champagne, spilling the liquid on the snowy cloth.

When everyone had been served, Linda lifted her goblet. Her voice rang out clearly. "Let's drink—" she said, defiantly, "—to Steve and me — and to our impending divorce!"

No one moved. Everybody was shocked by the news. Then Greg lifted his glass. "I'll drink to that," he said loudly, "because I've been waiting to hear those words for a long time."

With a sudden movement, Mary pushed back her chair and rose. Her face was white and stricken as she turned and left the group with Philip, her husband, following her protectively.

Only Brenda, and Greg and Jerry were left now, they were strangely silent, suddenly Linda's glass slipped from her trembling fingers to the floor. She was crying softly. "Take me away, Greg," she cried. "I want to go home!"

Riding beside Greg in his warm, enclosed car, Linda shivered, but her tears were dried now for all time. For Linda, life had ceased with the announcement of her contemplated divorce. Greg on the other hand was jubilant, making lavish plans for a future which Linda knew she would never share.

As he stopped before her apartment house, Greg caught her hands tightly "I know you're tired, dear," he said anxiously, "so I won't keep you. But — Linda, you've made me a very happy man tonight."

Linda smiled automatically. How like Greg to imagine he had won her away from her husband. She was amazed by his egotistical qualities. It had not even dawned on him that Linda might not marry him — that she was not the simple, trusting girl he had lured away from Prairievale.

Struck by her silence, Greg said quickly, "I — I did hear right, didn't I? You are leaving Steve"?

Nodding slightly, Linda got out of the car. "Good night," she called, and without looking back, ran across the lobby to the elevator, her head whirling dizzily.

When she awakened the next morning after a restless night, Linda found Ellen waiting with a long, white envelope. Linda tore it open, one glance at the letterhead affirmed her suspicion. The letter was from Steve's lawyer and requested a 10 o'clock appointment for that very day.

Linda glanced at her clock. It was after nine, and she sprang from the bed. It was evident that Steve had wasted no time in informing his lawyers of her plans, and now that the arrangements were being made, she would not hold up proceedings.

Seated in the office of Steve's lawyer, Linda regarded the attorney soberly, as he said, "Mr. Baridon asked that I make arrangements for you to have six weeks' residence in Reno, Nevada. Is that agreeable to you?"

Linda nodded indifferently. She felt as though she was dreaming. Surely this could not be Linda Phillips replying so calmly, so indifferently to questions that were to make her marriage null and void. The panorama of her adventures in Chicago passed before her eyes. That first thrilling trip to the Windy City — Greg, big and red-haired as he courted her in Prairievale — the night she had fled from Diane's apartment to a haven of safety with Steven, and the rich contented weeks that followed — the misunderstandings, the bitter words — soon all this would be gone and she would be merely Linda Phillips once more. Greg, Brenda and Diane would be vague shadows in a make-believe world. Only Steve would be vital, and Linda would never escape from memory of the man she had loved—too late.

She was suddenly conscious that the lawyer was watching her with concerned eyes, that his voice was worried. "Are you ill?" he asked. "You're so white—"

Linda managed a shaky laugh. "I was only thinking. I'm sorry. What are you saying?"

"I said I have obtained reservations for you on a train leaving for Nevada tomorrow night, and accommodations on a fine ranch near Reno."

She took the sealed envelope he held out to her, and listened as the man said gravely: "As to the matter of a settlement, Mr. Baridon has been most generous." He named a figure so high that Linda gasped in amazement. She had never expected anything to compare with the amount of money Steve intended her to have, and when she protested, the attorney reprimanded her severely.

Stomach Bloated With Gas; Tired, Achy and Nervous

"Never Enjoyed Meals Because of Suffering Afterwards" Says Grateful Man—Says Syntona Gave Him First Real Relief.

"Since I've been taking Syntona I am having the first real spell of relief from stomach suffering that I've had in years," said Mr. Thomas Holdsworth, 88 Robbins Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I used to be so careful of what I ate, but even the lightest foods gave me gas, bloating and a full, heavy feeling in my stomach. I never enjoyed my meals because I had gassy pains and heartburn from one meal to the next. Being badly constipated all the time, I was a victim of dizzy spells and black spots darting before my eyes. I felt tired and achy all the time and my nerves were so upset that I wasn't able to get restful sleep at night.

"Having tried so many things without benefit, I was sceptical about the chances of Syntona doing me any good, but I am surely glad that I finally decided to try it. Almost from the first it began to relieve the gas, heartburn, bloat and full, heavy feeling in my stomach. It took away that tired, nervous, achy condition. My bowels are acting better, too, than they did for years and I am relieved of the dizziness and spots before my eyes. I sleep better, enjoy my meals and sure feel a lot better than I have for years."

Syntona is made from 12 of Nature's finest medicinal herbs and roots and acts on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. It aids in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at Dolan The Druggist.

Dr. J. R. P. Sclater Was Ordained Forty Years Ago

Forty years to the minute after the Right Reverend J. R. P. Sclater, Moderator of the United Church of Canada was ordained to the ministry of the Church in England, he received the felicitations of the General Council of the church of which he is the newly elected head.

The Council paused in its deliberations yesterday afternoon, sharply at three o'clock to pay an impressive tribute to its head.

The Rev. Dr. E. Leslie Pidgeon, Montreal, spoke for the Council as the body rose in the church auditorium, moving that felicitations be extended to the Moderator and thanks to Almighty God.

The Very Rev. Aubrey S. Tuttle, past Moderator, placed the motion before the floor, and on presenting it to the Moderator, said, "You have won a warm place in our hearts."

Dr. Sclater in response told his Council: "You have no idea of the gratitude and thankfulness in my heart. I cannot help but reminisce about the past, and give thanks to God that I have enjoyed the association of such wonderful people in this country."

It was exactly twenty years ago that Dr. Sclater came to Canada to accept his first charge.

Tom Fillingham, Wellington, Ont. In Nazi Raid

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 17 (CP Cable) — Canadian fliers returning from last night's raid on the Ruhr said they encountered only light clouds over the Ruhr Valley but found that the industrial haze which is constantly over the district restricted visibility of ground detail.

At least three R.C.A.F. squadrons participated in the attack. Sgt. Benoit Levasseur of Clair, N.B., carried a 4,000-pound bomb in his plane but said he saw no flash when it fell.

"I was too busy getting away from the flak and searchlights but could see fires burning as I went in over the target."

Sgt. Bill Gray of Winnipeg and Sgt. Harold Jacobsen of Vancouver flew with Levasseur.

Flt. Lt. Hal Shockley, Vancouver; Flt. Sgt. R. L. Turnbull, Digby, N.S.; PO Wendell Palmer, Woodstock, N.B., and Sgt. Orrin Henderson, MacRorie, Sask., said they could see built-up areas ablaze.

Warrant Officer Wally Ferrier of Montreal piloted his plane between two large searchlight cones, bombed and slipped out again. His crew included PO. Ed Mason, Rock Glen, Sask.; Sergeant Karl Decher, Kitchener, Ontario, and PO. Tom Fillingham, of Wellington, Ontario.

"The fires were not so concentrated as in the 1,000-bomber raid on Cologne, but they covered a wider area," reported Flt. Sgt. Edward Murphy of Dorchester, Mass., a veteran of many raids. "The red glow from the fires was reflected by the clouds over the target."

Sgt. James Burton of Billings, Mont., said "the Rhur Valley defences were extremely hot—they were pouring it up."

"Whenever a cone of searchlights focussed on a plane, the Germans sent up the whole works. We were caught in a beam once or twice, but we weren't coned."

BIGGEST CASUALTY LIST

Ottawa, Sept. 17 —(CP)— The army looked into its records today and decided Tuesday's monster Dieppe casualty list—2,519 names of missing men — was the biggest individual list ever issued here.

One spokesman said that lists of about 1,000 names were issued during the First Great War.

Institute For Blind Conducts Campaign For Funds in City

Money Required to Continue Help for Blind in District

This week the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is holding a campaign throughout Belleville and district with the object of raising money for the work among the blind in this area.

The public, of course, is entitled to know why it is necessary for this institution to conduct a campaign of this nature. The answer is simple. It is to enable the institution to carry on its work among those unfortunate in losing their eyesight or who have been blind since birth.

Wherever it is possible it is the desire of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to provide employment for those blind people physically competent. Before this can be done, however, teachers must be sent into the homes of persons who have lost their sight in order that they may learn to read and write Braille, to operate a typewriter or become proficient at some handicraft that will give them the opportunity to earn a few dollars.

Medical attention must be provided, and if there is a possible chance of sight being restored or improved, that chance must not be denied them. It is up to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to offer this opportunity as no other services in Ontario is equipped to give the services required.

The local committee working in the interest of the blind in this district know the problems and are well acquainted with the situation confronting the blind in Belleville and in Hastings County. These public-spirited citizens know the need, but they must have help.

Frankly, money is required. It is not a great sum that is required but failure to obtain the needed amount would mean a disastrous change in the lives of many blind persons. When the canvasser calls, welcome him and give what assistance is possible. It is needed badly, and will be appreciated.

Honeymooners Run Foul of Law And Pay Fines

Honeymooners, for the greater part, occupied the cell block at the city police station yesterday when a bride and groom and another bridegroom were locked in the confines of the local bastille for a longer period than was appreciated.

Early Wednesday afternoon police apprehended a pair of Toronto honeymooners, who had been married on Monday, in their first marital altercation. The bride and groom were sitting in their motor car on Pinnacle St., causing a disturbance by arguing in which direction they should proceed. Police abruptly brought the altercation to an end by placing them under arrest. The pair were found to be under the influence of liquor and after "sleeping it off in the cell block", the happy (?)couple paid a drunk charge and were sent on their journey of wedded bliss.

Later in the afternoon another bride and groom were driving at an excessive rate of speed along Dundas St. and are alleged to have crowded another motor car off the street. Police placed the groom under detention, but after promises of safer and saner driving the happy couple were united and continued their honeymoon, Ottawa bound. However, the police extracted a careless driving charge fine from the groom, which means he'll have $7.50 less to spend on his honeymoon frivolities.

COUNTY COURT

Traffic convictions dominated Thursday's County Police Court held before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd at the Court House and the court's coffers enriched as fines were paid in all cases.

Charged with driving a truck without having procured P.C.V. licences, Joseph Mann, of Kingston paid $22.50, including costs, while another Kingston resident, Wm. Seabrooke, was assessed $5.00 and costs for driving a motor vehicle with an overcrowded front seat.

Charges of speeding preferred under the War Measures Act and bringing fines of $15.00 and costs were heard against James O. Holland, Toronto; Stanley White, of Trenton; Douglas MacDonald, of Belleville, and Thomas Grooms of Kingston.

Careless Driving

Other minor infractions of traffic regulations saw Clarance McKelsky, Belleville, and F. B. Brown of Trenton, convicted of careless driving and fined $7.50 including costs.

Donald Pinch, Stirling farmhand, pleaded guilty to a charge of taking his employer's motor car without the consent of the owner. "His employer is willing to take him back and give him employment," revealed Mr. Bastedo, Stirling lawyer, appearing for the accused.

A Splendid Gesture

"That is a splendid gesture and I would recommend a suspended sentence," aded Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

"I hope you appreciate what every person is trying to do for you and don't break the confidence of your employer," cautioned Magistrate Lloyd as he gave the lad a six months' suspended sentence upon the payment of the costs amounting to $9.00. The lad's employer paid the costs and thanked the court for the considerate manner in which the case was disposed of.

675 MILLION LBS. BACON FOR U. K. IN COMING YEAR

Hon. J. G. Gardiner Outlines Major Plan to Use Vast Grain Stores to Increase Annual Output

BEEF PROGRAM

2-Year Program on Basis of Present Stores — Restoration of Pork to Full Volume in Canada as Soon as Possible

OTTAWA, Sept. 17 — (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner today announced a major agricultural program to make use of vast stores of grain now available and increase the output of animal products for Canada and her Allies.

The minister outlined steps in the program as follows:

1. A new agreement will be signed with the United Kingdom for the provision of bacon, with the figure of 675,000,000 pounds mentioned as the possible export in the coming year compared with 600,000,000 pounds in the contract year ending in about seven weks.

Farmers will be urged to breed more sows from now on to ensure success for the hog production program.

2. As soon as possible pork will be restored to full volume on the Canadian market without interfering with British requirements. When this has been done, the adequate supply of pork for Canadian domestic needs will release beef for the United States market. This will permit the Americans to release beef from their home market for shipment to Britain.

3. A program will be undertaken to encourage the feeding of beef cattle until they are at least three years old, and to bring about an increase in the number of animals turned into beef.

Mr. Gardiner said that at last supplies of grain were sufficient to permit planning for a two-year program.

He made this statement to the press conference at which he announced the policy:

Two-Year Program Possible

"If farmers conserve the fodder and feed grain grown this year it is possible to enter upon a two-year program of production of meats which in from six to twelve months' time, depending upon the product concerned, will result in our being able to supply our own people with reasonable supplies of dairy products and meats of all kinds and at the same time supply Britain with the expected amounts of cheese and bacon and the United States with her supplies of beef cattle."

For two years the Agricultural Department, through wheat acreage reduction, prairie farm assistance and prairie farm income measures, assistance on freight on feed shipped east from Fort William and west into British Columbia, and assistance on fertilizer supplied in Eastern Canada, had attempted to get feed grain and fodder production up to a level where a long-time program of meat and dairy produce production could be "safely embarked upon, the Minister said in a statement.

Farmers Encouraged

"During that period of two years we have encouraged farmers to produce in as great quantities as possible those commodities which Britain requires: namely, cheese and bacon.

"It has required the use of all surpluses of feed and a control of the consumption of these two products in Canada to make possible the shipment of the agreed-upon amounts to Britain.

"Last year in order to obtain the quantities required, we found it necessary to prevent the shipment of feeds out of Canada.

"The creating by artificial means of a shortage of supply in cheese and pork has resulted in a run on other food products, particularly beef, until there has developed a temporary and artificial shortage in beef in certain urban centres".

SEES 12 CRITICAL MONTHS AHEAD,

Wellington, New Zealand, Sept. 17 (CP Cable)—The next 12 months will be the most critical of the war, especially in the Pacific theatre, Prime Minister Peter Fraser said today on his return here from the United States, where he has been attending sessions of the Pacific War Council and inspecting American production.

College Courses To Be Accelerated As War Measure

United Church commissioners endorsed as a war measure today, acceleration of theological courses, which will speed ordination of students from four to ten months. Under the plan 67 will be ordained next March.

The General Council accepted an amendment of Dr. E. Kerr, Halifax, that theological colleges have authority to arrange the plan to suit local conditions.

Lengthy argument was precipitated by a clause in the report submitted by Dr. George Dorey that called for continuous study on the part of students from September 15th to March 31st.

The drain on the student fields which will be caused by the plan, was deplored by the Rev. Basil Thompson, Kingston. The gain will be offset by the service in the field lost during the tightening of the course, he said. He suggested a plan whereby students could study while doing field work.

Dr. J. C. Cochrane North Bay, in a dynamic address to the Council stated that if the church depleted its rural areas no theological colleges could save it".

"It's all very well to sit here complacently and talk", he said, "but if some of you walked among these rural areas you would be conscience-stricken".

'My concern", he said, "is not for the bond-clipping preachers but for the heroes of the rural areas. We must make their future more secure. This church should not be so concerned with the saving of money as the salvation of the rural districts".

Theological students claim that the chucrh has done nothing about government recognition of their status as workers in an essential business. The government wants them to enlist and the church wants them to carry on their work, Dr. R. B. Cochrane stated. He wanted something done. The church must find $9,000 to finance the war emergency.

$750,000,000 VICTORY LOAN OPENS OCT. 19

Canadian Corvette Charlottetown Sunk, 5 Missing

GAS RATIONS SHORTENED BY CANADIAN GOV'T

Highest Objective Of Any War Loan Offered To Public

Must Devote Every Effort to Ensure The Success Of Forthcoming Loan

DETAILS LATER

Ottawa, Sept. 18 (CP)—Canada's third Victory Loan will be opened October 19 with an objective of $750,000,000, Finance Minister Ilsley announced today.

Denominations and maturities of the bonds to be sold, and the rates of interest to be paid, will be announced later.

The last Victory Loan, held in February, had a $600,000,000 nominal objective but was greatly oversubscribed.

In a brief statement released at the same time as the Minister's announcement, G. W. Spinney, chairman of the National War Finance Committee which organized loan campaigns, said:

"The challenge and the opportunity presented to the Canadian people at this time in the form of the third Victory Loan may well prove to be a matter of consequence in the winning of the war.

"Canadian people have responded with alacrity in the past when the need was pointed out.

"That need now is increased to the degree that every thought, every effort and every penny must be devoted to ensuring the success of the forthcoming loan."

All Oversubscribed

The $750,000,000 objective is the highest of any of the five loans since the war began.

The first was for $200,000,000, the second for $300,000,000; the third and fourth — first and second victory loans — for $600,000,000. All have been considerably oversubscribed.

The first loan was held in January, 1940, and cash sales amounted to $321,276,850 with an additional $50,000,000 in conversions of maturing issues.

The second was in September the same year, with cash subscriptions of $324,348,300 and conversions of $24,945,700.

The first victory loan, in June last year, resulted in cash sales of $730,376,250 and conversions of $106,444,000.

The second victory loan last February brought the government almost $1,000,000,000, with cash sales of $843,127,900 and conversions of $153,539,000.

Girl Lies on Road For Over Hour After Accident

Bancroft, Sept. 18 (Special) — Thrown clear of her car when it turned over several times, rolled into the ditch and struck a large stone, Miss Ailleen Plumbley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Plumbley of Bancroft, narrowly escaped death early Thursday morning 12 miles south of here.

The young woman was driving home alone from Belleville when she swerved her car to avoid striking a skunk only to have the vehicle go out of control. Thrown clear of the car she lay on the road for over an hour before she was discovered by G. L. Moxam, driver of the Bancroft bus, and Mr. Wasmund of Lake St. Peter. Miss Bartlett, registered nurse, who was a passenger in the Wasmund car, gave the girl first aid at the scene, she later being rushed to Bancroft. Given an X-ray examination at the office of Dr. S. Lumb, the girl was found to be suffering from no fractures, but was badly bruised and suffering from a cut on her head.

The automobile in which Miss Plumbley was driving was badly wrecked, with Provincial Constable S. W. Palmateer, investigating the accident.

SMASHING BLOW STRUCK AT JAP BASE AT BUNA

15 Landing Barges Damaged and Fires Started Seen for 25 Miles

35,000 ROUNDS USED

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 18 — (CP) — While Australian troops battled Japanest forces in the New Guinea jungles only 32 miles airline from Port Moresby, Allied fighter planes struck a smashing blow yesterday at the enemy supply base at Buna, Allied headquarters announced today.

Approximately 35,000 rounds of cannon and machine-gun fire were loosed by the Allied raiders in a concentrated attack, destroying or damaging 15 landing barges and setting fires in supply dumps which were visible for 25 miles, a communique said.

The assault obviously was delivered with a view to relieving pressure on the Australian forces locked in combat with the Japanese near the village of Ioribaiwa, on the southern slopes of the lofty Owen Stanley mountains.

The fighting in that area, which the Japanese reached Wednesday after a swift eight-mile advance, apparently had abated somewhat in intensity, the Allied communique describing the action as sporadic.

A spokesman at Allied headquarters, however, said both sides were busily manoeuvring for position, and it appeared probable the lull would be short-lived.

The Japanese spearhead at Ioribaiwa is approximately 90 miles southwest of Buna, where the invaders established a base late in July. All the supplies to feed their overland push toward Port Moresby flow through that base, being brought there by ship from upper New Guinea or from New Britain.

COMMANDER DEAD 5 MEN MISSING, 3 DIE OF INJURIES

Some of Crew Are Seriously Injured, But With Others Are Improving

MINISTER'S STATEMENT

Ottawa, Sept. 18 —(CP)— Loss of the corvette Charlottetown by enemy submarine action, with her commander dead and five of her crew missing, was announced today by Navy Minister Macdonald.

Three other ratings died of injuries.

It was the second Royal Canadian Navy loss reported this week. On Monday Mr. Macdonald said the patrol vessel Raccoon had been sunk with her entire complement of 38 officers and men missing. He also reported the sinking by U-boat of four Allied merchantmen.

Charlottetown's commander, acting Lt.-Cmdr. John Willard Bonner of the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve, was killed in action. The five ratings who are missing are believed killed in action.

One officer and six ratings are reported seriously injured—two of them on the danger list—but all are reported improving. Six ratings were slightly injured, four of them already discharged from the hospital.

The other four officers and 35 ratings were unhurt.

When sunk the Charlottetown was fighting off an enemy submarine attack on a convoy. Details of the time, place and the fighting in which the Charlottetown was torpedoed were not given. The announcement simply said the ship, "engaged as an anti-submarine vessel in escort duties, was torpedoed and sunk in heavy fog."

Survivors were rescued by another Canadian naval vessel and brought to an eastern Canadian port.

GETS 3-POUND BROOK TROUT

Wellesley, Ont., Sept. 18—(CP)—The daddy of all speckled trout was hooked in the Huntsville area this summer when E. K. Reiner of Wellesley, Ont., landed a three-pounder, 19¼ inches long. Fishermen said it was the prize catch of the district in 1942.

R.C.A.F. Pilot Describes Emotions On First Operational Flight at Dieppe

With the R.C.A.F., Somewhere in England, Sept. 18 (CP)—They told me I was undergoing training as a fighter pilot that on the first few trips over France I'd probably find things so confusing that I wouldn't see much of what was going on. Well, the first trip I went on happened to be a sea-level trip to Dieppe. I saw plenty.

Our squadron was detailed early in the morning to escort Hurricane bombers to attack a position in the town. We crossed the Channel right on the water. That started it.

About half way across, a Spitfire ripped through the haze in a vertical dive, right among the Hurribombers and disappeared with a great splash. That jarred me no end, and I tried to see where it had come from and more important, what had shot it down. However, no enemy aircraft was near.

At the harbor entrance, the confusion was indescribable. A smoke screen obscured the northeast part of the harbor. Near the beach a Boston bomber was burning. Ships of all descriptions were undergoing a terrific pounding from the shore batteries, while aircraft milled about in a tight ball.

It's hard to describe the feeling I experienced for that half second as we pulled up over the cliff. However, it disappeared as I found the flak in that particular corner of hell wasn't very heavy. All around the horizon dogfights of every description were going on, while burning buildings, shellbursts, and other tokens of international discord added to my confusion—and my blood pressure.

As we turned behind the town, a small flak post hit one of our aircraft. It broke in two, struck the ground with all the impetus of 250 miles an hour, and disintegrated. Then we were over the target, and as the Hurricanes went into bomb, two Focke-Wulf fighters dove on us from our left.

"Well," I thought, "my mamma done told me about these people." However, they turned away as soon as we faced them.

Then we were away again, five feet off the water and weaving in order to see behind and above us. The luftwaffe had other business in hand, however, and we were not bothered. Suddenly our leader called "Climb, blue two! You're streaming glycol." One aircraft had been hit in the radiator, and the cooling fluid was pouring out in a white stream.

At the height the pilot wouldn't have had a chance to jump and a single-engine fighter isn't at all seaworthy. Before the engine stopped, the pilot gained about 1,000 feet, got out, and after what seemed an hour his parachute opened, 100 feet or so before he struck the water.

The rest of us circled the spot where the pilot was floating in his Mae West. We called the Air Sea Rescue Service on the radio, and within 45 minutes he was in a navy launch, warmed by several stiff tots of rum, and on his way back to the squadron. The rest of the trip was uneventful.

Anyway I was scared silly. Since then I've found one always has a tension before the show actually starts. But once you started it disappears and is replaced by a calmness born of confidence in the leaders, the training, and particularly the aircraft.

Encounter With German Tanker, Cause in Part Of Casualties at Dieppe

(By FRANK FLAHERTY)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 18 (CP))— Canada's heavy casualties in the battle of Dieppe—some 3350 killed, wounded and missing of a force of 5,000—were due in part to a chance encounter with an escorted German oil tanker during the English Channel crossing, a statement from National Defence headquarters said today.

The strength of the Canadian force which attacked the French coastal town on the morning of August 19th., was disclosed today for the first time. The statement, issued by the army last night for publication today did not give the number participating but the 5,000 figure was added later.

Last week Defence Minister Ralston revealed the total number of casualties and today's statement indicates the attacking Canadians, who were supported by large naval and air formations and groups of British, fighting French and American troops, lost some 67 per cent of their effectives.

Beyond stating the raid was essential to the agreed aggressive policy of the United Nations the statement did not attempt to appraise the value of its results. It pointed to some benefits achieved but kept back the essential objectives and the extent to which they were achieved for reasons of military secrecy.

The encounter with the German tanker was described as the one mishap marring "complete achievement of surprise." The statement said the Germans had no information an operation against Dieppe was projected.

One armed enemy trawler was sunk and another probably sunk in the Channel encounter but the incident had two important results on the later land operation:

1. The British No. 3 commando force which had the task of attacking and destroying a battery at Berneval, six miles east of Dieppe, was unable to complete its assignment;

2. The Royal Regiment of Canada from Toronto was 20 minutes late in reaching the beach at Puits, a mile east of Dieppe, and had to land in broad daylight instead of semi-darkness.

No. 3 commando force was unable to put ashore a small detachment which interfered with the fire of the enemy battery at Puits, but that was all. The daylight opposition encountered by the Royal Regiment prevented the clearing of a headland east of Dieppe, part of the plan to protect the main force, attacking the beaches at Dieppe itself, from enemy fire.

Beyond All Praise

The conduct of all ranks engaged at Dieppe was "beyond all praise", said the 4,000 word statement issued by Defence Minister Ralston. The Canadians gained valuable experience in combat and were now anxious for another contact with the enemy.

"Where all were brave, it is difficult and perhaps invidious to quote individual cases of gallantry," said the statement, but it described the bravery of two soldiers—Lt.-Col. C. C. I. Merritt of Belleville, Ont., officer commanding the south Saskatchewan Regiment who is missing, and Lance Sergeant Hickson of the 7th Field Company, Royal Canadian Engineers—"merely as examples of the manner in which Canadian officers and men maintained the traditions of the Canadian army and the honor of their country."

For reasons of military security the statement was silent as to the main objectives of the operation and the important results achieved. It said a public discussion of the les-

ANOTHER BRITISH FORCE LANDED ON MADAGASCAR

French Resistance Offered But Port Of Tamatave is Soon Occupied

LAND ON E. COAST

London, Sept. 18 (CP)—A strong new British force has landed on the east coast of Madagascar and occupied the port of Tamatave after some French resistance, the British East Africa command announced today.

Tamatave is 130 miles northeast of Tananarive, the island's inland capital, and the first British beach head on the east coast. The new landing came after the Vichy French colony had turned down British terms for an armistice.

Both Britisn and Vichy French radio reports from the island had announced the occupation of Tamatave, but the communique was the first disclosure it was taken by newly-landed forces rather than by an offshoot of the columns moving toward Tananarive through the interior.

Tamatave, Madagascar's principal commercial seaport, was said to have fallen into British hands with little damage although it underwent a brief naval bombardment. One of the main railways on the island links Tamatave to Tananarive.

A British military commentator said the spurned armistice proposals were purely military terms of surrender. Their details have not been announced.

This led to the general conclusion here that questions concerning the civil administration of the island were omitted in the unsuccessful parley.

The commentator said civil administrations were functioning peacefully in towns already occupied and that commercial activity was proceeding without incident.

COAST COMMAND BOMBS U-BOAT BORDEAUX BASE

Southeastern Europe Kept in High State Of Jitters By Raid Scare in Sofia

HUNGARIANS WARNED

London, Sept. 18 (CP)—While the weather shielded Germany proper from air attack last night, planes of the R.A.F.'s coastal command bombed docks at Bordeaux, German-held port and submarine base of southern France on the Bay of Biscay

Preceding the assault Beaufighters of the same command, on patrol over the Bay of Biscay yesterday, destroyed three enemy bombers and lost one of their own number, the Air Ministry's communique said.

Southeastern Europe, meanwhile was kept in high state of jitters last night by an air raid scare in Sofia and by reports mysterious balloons laden with explosives were drifting over Hungary.

Considerable damage and some casualties were reported from Britain's own coast when [illegible] four Nazi planes strafed a southeast port with bombs and machine-gun fire on a day-light sweep.

British anti-aircraft guns downed one enemy fighter off the coast in the same region during this morning and home guardsmen captured four German airmen who bailed out of a bomber destroyed over Britain during the night.

Warned About Balloons

Hungarians were warned by the presence of the balloons by the Budapest radio, but the broadcast gave no hint as to where they had come from or whether they were causing any damage.

The Vichy News Agency later reported the balloons were trailing explosive of incendiary material on long cables, which apparently were intended to catch in telephone and high-tension wires.

GERMANS TRYING TO "DIG IN" IN THE OUTSKIRTS

Hand-to-Hand Fighting Employed By Russians To Keep Hold On City

25TH DAY OF BATTLE

(By HENRY C. CASSIDY)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Sept. 18 (AP)—Soviet troops have wiped out two threatening wedges within Stalingrad in hand-to-hand fighting and the Germans now are trying to fortify themselves in the northwestern outskirts against fierce, tank-led counter-attacks, the Russians said today.

Field dispatches said the Nazi air force, striking in formations of 30 to 100 planes, continued to lay waste to sections of the Volga River city, but 19 were brought down by ground gunners and outnumbered Soviet fighters.

While the besieged forces position was difficult, communiques said a powerful drive from the northwest was smashed in street fighting yesterday and a similar fate befell two battalions which penetrated the city in another sector.

Soviet tanks were declared by the army newspaper Red Star to have smashed into a Nazi-fortified zone, destroyed 48 anti-tank guns and killed 950 troops with gunfire and caterpillar treads, crushing enemy forces, who had hidden in ditches behind the Volga hills.

The mid-day communique said troops defending the northwestern outskirts of Stalingrad repulsed both tank and infantry thrusts.

Artillerymen destroyed 12 German tanks and wiped out two infantry companies,' the communique said.

"In another sector two battalions of enemy infantry broke into the streets of the city, but were met with concentrated machine-gun and automatic rifle fire. In hand-to-hand fighting which followed the Germans were routed and forced to retreat losing about 500 killed and wounded.'

Firing points and anti-tank obstacles were hastily erected by the Germans for protection against counter-attacks and to serve as a springboard for another effort to drive to the heart of Stalingrad, Red Star said.

Lt.-Col. Merritt and Sgt. Hickson Given Special Mention For Bravery

Ottawa, Sept. 18—At the Defence Department today singled out in its 4,000-word statement on Dieppe the bravery of two Canadian soldiers—Lt.-Col. C. C. I. Merritt, Officer Commanding the South Saskatchewan Regiment, and Lance Sergeant G. E. Hickson, of Kitchener, Ontario, of the 7th Field Company, Royal Canadian Engineers.

Col. Merritt, a Vancouver man whose wife is listed by the army as living at Belleville, Ont.

(He has been reported as a prisoner of war by International Red Cross).

Hickson got back to England safely.

"Where all were brave, it is difficult and perhaps invidious to quote individual cases of gallantry," said the department, "but two such instances are mentioned here merely as examples of the manner in which Canadian officers and men maintained the traditions of the Canadian army and the honor of their country."

When Col. Merritt's battalion was held up by fire at a bridge on which many men had fallen he walked back and forth across the structure waving his helmet and calling, "See, there is no danger here." Then he led his men across and cleared enemy positions on the other side.

He led detachments against strong road blocks, personally disposed of a sniper and led parties against machine gun posts. When last seen he was gathering weapons and organizing a defensive position to cover the withdrawal of the last parties of his unit.

Sgt. Hickson was assigned to a demolition job in the town and, unable to go to it directly, attached himself to an infantry platoon When the platoon's officer and senior non-commissioned officers were put out of action he took command and led it to the Casino which he entered by blasting a hole through a wall.

With another charge he blew in the steel door of a concrete gun emplacement inside the Casino and killed the gun crew. He destroyed a six-inch naval gun and two machine guns, then reorganized the rest of the platoon and led them against heavy opposition into the town. He was one of the last men evacuated from the beach.

New Category 'AA' Will Be Devised For Pleasure Cars

20 Units Will Be Most Motorist Can Receive Under New Category

SITUATION CRITICAL

Ottawa, Sept. 18. (CP)—Pleasure-motorists throughout Canada tightened their belts today and sat down to figure out how to make the best use of the remainder of their shortened gasoline rations announced last night by Munitions Minister Howe.

Over a National network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Mr. Howe told Canadians just how far the level of gas and oil stocks in the country has dwindled due to "colossal" tanker losses in the battle of the Atlantic, and declared frankly:

"You must understand now, that when your coupon book is exhausted your motoring is finished until April 1 of next year".

Reserves og gasoline in Canada are about 20,000,000 gallons less than a year ago, Mr. Howe said, and stocks of crude oil and unfinished products are about 40,000,000 gallons less.

Mr. Howe said a new category—"AA"—has been devised for motorists who use their cars for non-essential purposes. He added that a number of motorists formerly in higher categories have been reduced to Class "A"—previously the lowest Class.

The Munitions Minister said "AA" motorists with Class 1 cars (popular-priced models) will be allowed the following supplies for the six months' period. Oct. 1 to March 31:

Drivers of Class 2 (medium-sized) cars, 18 units;

Drivers of Class 3 (large-sized) cars, 20 units.

Units in Different Parts

As a gasoline unit is three gallons in the Maritimes, four in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia and five on the prairies, this new ration would work out for the Oct. 1-March 31 period to the following totals for "AA" motorists:

Martime province, 48 gallons; Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia, 64 gallons; Maritime provinces, 80 gallons.

The "A" motorist with the class 1 car under the new restrictions is entitled to 60 units a year, and 30 units for the six-month period Oct. 1 to March 31. This is almost double the "AA" allowance. The class 2 car is allowed 34 units and the class 3 car 38 units.

225,000 Canadians Will Be Affected By New Regulations Of Oil Controller

ALL JUDGED ON MERITS

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 — (CP) — Munitions Minister Howe said today about 225,000 Canadians will have their category "A" gasoline ration books withdrawn after Oct. 1 and replaced with a smaller ration in the new category known as "AA."

The minister announced the new category, effective Oct. 1, in an address over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation National network last night.

The new category will provide 16 units for six months to the owner of a small car, about half the amount available to the holder of category "A" ration books.

The "AA" category will include all those who use a car for personal transportation and not for business. Housewives not employed in war plants, university and high school students, and owners of two or more cars are among those who will be affected.

Also coming within the new category will be those who use their cars chiefly for driving to and from their stores, offices and non-essential factories.

Letters Being Prepared

Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle said all category "A" applications now are being examined and letters are being prepared for those who may have to accept the lower category after Oct. 1.

"If we find that our information is insufficient we shall seek additional information before making any decision," he said. "Normally a housewife would not be entitled to a category higher than "AA" but if we find she now has a job in war industry, is not provided with adequate public transportation, and is driving fellow employees to work, then she will be permitted to retain her "A" category.

"No hard and fast rule will be followed. Each case will be dealt with on its own merits."

First Notices Mailed Oct. 1

On October 1 the first batch of notices to motorists will be mailed from 12 regional offices across Canada. Each letter will require the recipient to mail or send in his Category "A" ration book within a week. If the old book is mailed in, the new book will be returned within 48 hours. If it is taken into the regional office, the transfer will be made immediately.

Mr. Cottrelle said that if a motorist uses up all the coupons in his present book he will not get a new book of any kind. If the owner of a small car has less than 16 coupons in his Category "A" book when he turns it in, the number he is short will be torn from his new Category "AA" book before he receives it.

The Controller warned motorists not affected by the reduction and not in the commercial category that the gasoline ration books they now have must last them until March 31, 1943.

"If anyone is foolish enough to use up all his coupons, then he will buy no more gasoline," said Mr. Cottrelle. "This ruling will apply even if the motorist is engaged in an essential industry."

PURSE IS STOLEN FROM LOCAL STORE

Two youthful female purse snatchers are believed responsible for the disappearance of a purse from Wotten's ladies store yesterday. Miss Lena Jackson, 281 Ann St., an employee of the store, left her purse in its accustomed position near the store telephone desk yesterday afternoon. During the day two young girls entered the store and were given permission to use the telephone. After leaving, the purse, containing $10.00 in cash, Miss Jackson's registration card and other valuables, was reported missing. Police are investigating.

ALL-NIGHT PARKERS RECEIVE TICKETS

Residents on Dunbar St. awoke today to find police stickers affixed to the windshields of their automobiles with instructions to report to the police station today. The occasion came about following the practice of the street residents, in using the street for all-night parking facilities, thus impeding the progress of traffic. Motorists complained about the congestion of traffic to Acting Sergeant Wm. Evans, who investigated the matter. "With motor vehicles parked on both sides of a narrow street like Dunbar St., it is difficult for other motor vehicles to pass through the street," stated the officer following his investigation. Police added today that the all-night parking of motor cars on public thoroughfares was directly in violation of the law.

LT.-COL. MERRITT REPORTED PRISONER OF WAR IN GERMANY

Lt.-Col. Cecil C. I. Merritt, officer commanding the South Saskatchewan Regiment, previously reported missing after the battle of Dieppe, is now a prisoner of war in Germany, his wife was informed today.

Col. Merritt comes from Vancouver and his wife, the former Miss Grace Bone, resides here with her two children.

(In a statement issued today at Ottawa, Defence Minister Ralston singled out the exploits of Col. Merritt in the Dieppe raid as one of the "examples of the manner in which Canadian officers and men maintained the traditions of the Canadian army and the honor of their country.")

SOLDIER IS GIVEN SUSPENDED SENTENCE

"I am of the opinion this young man would be of more use to his country in the army than in jail," remarked Magistrate J. L. Lloyd when Pte. Martin Hicks, of the R.C.S., Kingston, appeared before him in city police court today on a charge of theft of an automobile.

"I am aware of the fact that he stands to be sent to prison for no less a period than one year, but I will call his superior officers in Kingston and ascertain whether or not he can be returned to the service," commented Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., after Hicks had pleaded guilty.

A subsequent long distance telephone call placed by Mr. Donnan resulted in Hicks being given a suspended sentence and returned to his unit.

FIRE DAMAGES KITCHEN

Fire of an undetermined origin caused slight damage to the rear kitchen of a residence on Canniffton Road, just outside the city limits, shortly after 9.30 this morning. The fire department was called to the home, owned by Mr. John Bradden, and quickly extinguished the blaze with hand pumps. Firemen could not state whether or not it arose from sparks from the chimney.

United Chuch Urges Gov't To Enact Collective Bargaining Act In Interests of Labor

Warm Debate Follows Resolutions Presented to General Council

CIVIL LIBERTIES

In one of the most dramatic sessions of the sitting, the General Council of the United Church last night urged a collective bargaining act on the part of the government, and adopted a report of the Sessional Committee on Evangelism and Social Service asking that the bar be lifted upon the Communist Party and certain religious bodies, and implementation of recommendations of special parliamentary committees appointed to review the Defence of Canada Regulations.

There was sharp diversity of opinion on the part of Council on the collective bargaining question. Many angles were forwarded by its supporters, which were met with insistent argument that the church was going beyond its realm by opponents of the recommendation.

Opposition argument, however, seemed centred on the definition of the term "collective bargaining" rather than a direct refutation of the recommendation, although a number of commissioners came out "flatfooted" against the report.

The outcome was a referment to a special committee to draft a new recommendation embodying the many amendments supporting the original report, and some of those which appeared to be part of the argument presented by some of those opposing it.

This report will be presented some time today to Council.

The Council will also urge the Government to give organized labor full, direct and representative membership on wartime control boards, directly affecting labor and its relations.

It will ask the Government to encourage the formation of joint management-labor war production committees in all war industries.

Declaring that the practice followed in some prosecutions under the war regulations of stating the charge in vague general terms without revealing the precise character of the offence charged, is contrary to democratic principles, the Council will urge the government that in every case the information laid and the summons issued to the accused shall definitely state the nature, time and place of the alleged words used and (or) acts performed of which complaint is made.

Commended Allies

It commended the valor and sincerity of the heroic Allies, the Russians and will urge the Government to promote the fullest fraternal cooperation and mutual confidence between Canada and the Soviet Republic.

The Governments of Ontario and Canada will be asked to protect freedom of speech and action for all as far as compatible with the National safety. It commended the government for bringing Canadian law into practice as regards conscientious objectors, into line with British and American law and practice and will ask that no man should suffer through religious or political convictions, or because of lawful or political activities.

The debate provided one of the most tense sessions of entire session of the Council sitting. Amendment followed amendment. Commissioners were asking for recognition from the floor of the house in pairs. Eliminations were asked for and adjustments requested. Questions were asked from the four corners of the auditorium until the Moderator began to weary.

Dr. E. Leslie Pidgeon stepped into the procedure breach often, but eventually he too, became a bit tired.

It was not until a voice from one of the back benches, fortunate enough to secure a hearing without interruption, moved that a special committee be appointed to rephrase the amendment The motion poured oil on the argumentative waters, and the Council went on to another part of procedure.

Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, chairman of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service, in moving recommendation of the original report, stated that the Church's definition of collective bargaining was similar to that of Justice Hughes.

A Delicate Matter

Thinking of man as a child of God, he said, the Church is dealing with a matter of order and common justice is the right of every man.

"The capitalistic system has doubled the wealth of the nation", he said, "and also increased the standard of living, but the common man is more than a number on a payroll or a cog in a machine. As the London Times points out, he has the right to vote, to work and to live".

"This resolution asks, that the United Church give labor not only its endorsation of a principal, but that it asks for an act that shall say 'there shall be collective bargaining'. These are the teeth we need".

"The labor situation in Canada is not good", Dr. Mutchmor stated. "I know labor and I know what it means. We are not producing the coal we produced at the beginning of the war. The only figures we hear is production and not capacity of production. We are under steel production by 600,000 tons this year".

Must Have All-Out Production

"The time has come when Canada must have an all-out production and that will require the complete co-operation of capital and labor. But the country is beginning to hear about collective bargaining. I see by the press, that the Premier of Ontario and the Minister of Labor are becoming interested".

"The United Church of Canada", he declared, "is the first body outside of Labor to place the stamp of approval on collective bargaining".

"I will not surrender to the United Church or any other body my conviction on an economic question of this kind", L. F. Reycraft K.C., Winnipeg, said. "The whole resolution is a huge mistake, one that will do far more harm than good. The Church has no right to go to the Parliament of Canada and say that its entire membership wants the government to pass a Collective Bargaining Act. We shall never get anywhere that way".

"He resented very strongly", he said, "the intimations or insinuations that every employer is a rogue and that every man, who has $1,000 is a rogue also. I favor the capitalistic system and I am not going to sit back and not oppose this motion".

Against Bargaining

The General Council was not the voice of the United Church of Canada as a whole insofar as collective bargaining is concerned, declared W. H. Gibson, Tillsonburg. "There are not enough industrial men here".

"Labor does not need any help from the church nor from the state, because at the present time it is sitting in the driver's seat".

The church should not take a definite stand in favor of collective bargaining because he felt that sooner or later conditions will change. He moved an amendment eliminating a section of the report asking the Government to recognise labors right to collective bargaining with an act of parliament.

The argument supporting the motion for collective bargaining is unfair and whatever action is taken is not going to affect labor in Canada, Elmer Davis, Kingston told the Council.

"The attitude of the United Church, which should be fair, has been unfair to those who employ labor," he charged. He objected to to inference in the report preamble suggesting that employers are always working adversely to their employees. "It would seem that they take the blame of everything.'

Interruption Heard

Dr. Mutchmor interrupted at this point, asking the Council not to impute motives. "I have never said that capital was not fair. "He asked the speaker to "keep to facts.' He called attention to the fact that the section referred to by Mr. Davis was a quotation from a government report."

"What of it," Mr. Davis asked, "the government isn't always right, is it?"

If coercion is charged on the part of labor, then it is only fair, that the other side should be recognized, he said.

"This Church is asking the government to make it compulsory that every industry in Canada become unionized. That is definitely not the stand for the United Church to take."

Dr. W. E. M. Howse, Winnipeg stated, that he was thoroughly opposed to the closed shop. "It is a vicious principal. We should take the stand, that employees have every right collectively to deal with employers and if the employers refuse, then ask the government to act."

Phraseology Wrong Claim

G. W. Mason K.C., Toronto, church legal advisor told the Council that the phraseology of the report was wrong. "The United Church is asking the government to do something it cannot do. The motion would be laughed at and would not raise this Council in the estimation of those who study these things.

He proposed that until parliament deals with the question that it be laid on the table.

At this point Dr. Mutchmor told the Council that he would change the recommendation to "urging the government of Canada at an early date to enact a Mandatory Collective Bargaining Act."

This, he explained in answer to a question for clarification, meant that any dispute between employers and employees would be settled by a court.

W. B. Sparling did not agree with the recommendation. "We are going farther than the sphere of a Christian Church permits,' he said.

At this point a motion to refer the recommendation to a special committee carried.

Another Section Under Debate

The section on Civil Liberties also came in for warm debate. Apparently referring to the clause regarding prosecutions under war regulations, Judge Forin, Vancouver, stated that he regretted the fact, that the United Church saw fit to reprimand the administration of justice "The church should be proud of its judges for the civil law of Canada is administered in a fine way. The church should praise the laws instead of criticising them because in a few cases labor has been criticised."

Told he was laboring under the wrong idea, Judge Forin turned to another angle. "Canada's war regulations are not an open book", he said, "and when men are placed in internment camps they generally are put there for a good reason 99 times out of a hundred. And these reasons are not always given out."

He pointed out that Canada is under a deadly war cloud, especially in British Columbia and war regulations are necessary.

"If you attack these war regulations," he said, "you are doing something you know nothing about."

R. W. Treleaven, Hamilton, futilely moved that the whole section referring to Civil Liberties be deleted.

General Council Secretary Sisco stated that the Civil Liberties question was a burning one. "Lawyers and judges have not defended the things they are sworn to defend", he charged. "If it had not been for the Civil Liberties Committee there would not have been much justice in this country for some people. We don't want the Church lagging behind 70 per cent of the people."

Rev. John Cobourn stated that the church was behind the law, "but no man should be placed on trial unless he is informed of what he is charged and be given a change to prepare his defence.

Other problems urged a new international organization to be built upon the League of Nations, the principles of economic democracy as set out in the Atlantic Charter, and stressed that no attempt to build a new order can succeed unless motivated by the spirit of Christ.

The General Council reaffirmed its judgment that the Christian family is central to Christian civilization. Every effort should be made to minister to the physical, social and religious needs of individuals and their families who have congregated near industrial centres and camps.

All ministers and church members were urged to support the Government authorities such as magistrates and police forces, as well as social workers, in common endeavor to restrain juvenile delinquency and social evils.

The Government authorities were urged to extend the health services and the enactment of a Federal contributory health insurance measure in accord with the well proven British methods and of a nature to guarantee the support of the medical profession. It was pointed out that adequate health services are not available in many areas, and often not procurable in the areas where they exist because of the financial incapacity of many.

The report of the sessional Committee on Evangelism and Social Service, which was unanimously passed by Council, endorsed the work of the National Religious Advisory Council in which all Christian bodies co-operate in religious broadcasting. It also expressed the hope that radio advertising will soon be eliminated on Sunday.

The Council placed its stamp of approval on the Farm Forum and expressed the hope that this method of teaching be used by religious bodies to make available to frontier and isolated areas the broadcast of Sunday school lessons.

The Prime Minister and the Government of Canada was commended for enacting unemployment insurance, and Council recorded its judgment that an excellent start had been made in an essential and vital social security area of our common life.

Canadian Oil Company Wants Tanks to Supply Air Station

TO BUILD SEWER

At a special meeting of the City Council on Thursday evening, the members voted to allow the Canadian Oil Company to erect storage tanks as a war measure south of the Tourist camp, to service Mountain View Air Station with high octane aviation gas but the recommendation was not carried until the yeas and nays had been taken, the recommendation carrying by a vote of six to five. Members of the Oil Company appeared before the Council with their proposition and after a lengthy discussion in committee the following recommendation was passed:

"Recommended that by-law no— be amended strictly as a war measure to allow the Canadian Oil Company permission to erect storage tanks according to their application for the sole purpose of supplying Mountain View Air Station and providing the said Company will give to the City before proceeding with the work an agreement in proper form whereby they agree to remove these tanks from said location within six months after the duration of the war or in the alternative that if they wish to do business in Belleville afterwards, that they will within six months after end of war remove their tanks to the area now occupied by other storage tanks near the Government Docks, the road providing ingress and egress to the property to be maintained to the satisfaction of the Company but at their own expense with no responsibility to the City whatever of any drawings of any kind whatsoever, the city to provide snow plowing, provided road in proper condition for use of plow."

Yeas and Nays Taken

When the vote was taken a member asked for the Yeas and Nays and they were recorded as follows: Years—Mayor Thompson, Aldermen Clarke, Follwell, Potter, Marshall and Wotten; Nays—Aldermen Armstrong, Butler, Pringle and Rollins.

Since the formation of the Civilian Defence Committee in this City word has been received from the Ontario Civil Defence Committee approving of the action taken and at the meeting a recommendation "that the O. C. D recognizes and approves of said committee so that benefits of compensation to workers enrolled therein may be provided and equipment supplied by the Federal Government." It is expected that new equipment will be in the city just as soon as sufficient enrollment has taken place. The remainder of the money owed on the new footbridge will be paid from a loan negotiated with the Bank of Montreal and the Chairman of Finance and the Comptroller were given authority to negotiate the loan. The money will be repaid to the bank by the end of 1945.

Will Construct Sewer

A by-law to construct the Dufferin Street sewer at an approximate cost of $6,000 was given two readings by the City Council and will be forwarded to the Municipal Board for their approval. This approval will be given as a delegation waited on the Board this week to make arrangements for the work. The debentures for the sewer will be for ten years and will be constructed as a Local Improvement. Ald. Wotten told one of the Aldermen that it would be impossible to paint the city signs because of lack of funds in the Tourist and Publicity department. "We will paint the signs if the Council will find the money, said Ald. Wotten. "I think they should be painted because they are a disgrace in their present shape" said Ald. Allin. Inquiry was made if the sign that was ordered removed had been taken down but definite information could not be furnished although it was intimated that instructions had gone out to the parties concerned after council had recommended the removal at the last meeting. There being no further business the council adjourned.

Belleville Fair Has Carried On Successfully During Good Times And Bad For 82 Years

Belleville Fair has come a long way in the 82 years since in 1860 a group of enterprising local men envisioned the fair of today staged in what has been termed, "the best-appointed agricultural park in the Province of Ontario outside of the larger centres.'

Speaking to the Ontario Intelligencer regarding the fair of late in the past century, Mr. Erle S. Denyes, secretary of the Belleville Fair, disclosed that the late Col. James Brown, the first local representative to Ottawa following Confederation, was the president of that first exhibition.

Sponsored by the South Hastings Agricultural Society, that first fair in 1860 would be a strange sight to present day patrons. Instead of the pure bred stock which is the pride of district farmers today, livestock exhibits were essentially "grades" and instead of the gleaming exhibits of modernly appointed farm machinery, there were the homemade machinery displays and exhibits of locally manufactured carriages and wagons.

Has Exhibited Annually

Few, if any persons living today can remember the first fair held by the South Hastings Agricultural Society, but it was assured by Mr. Denyes that the exhibition has operated annually since that time. The oldest living ex-President of the Belleville Fair is G. M. Campbell of Deseronto, former reeve of Tyendinaga township. Benjamin Bleecker of Holloway is the present president of the fair.

The Belleville Agricultural Fair has not always had its present well-appointed location, however. In 1922, while the late Charles Hanna was president of the fair, officials proposed the building of the present Agricultural Park. The Belleville Parks Board, under the direction of the late Tom Powers, C. J. Symons and the late Robert E. Colling, constructed the present park and in 1925 the first fair was held in the new grounds with Mr. George Ostrom as its president.

One of Finest in Ontario

The present agricultural park is admittedly one of the finest for its size in the province, the entrance to the grounds, the well-kept beds of flowers and the lawn bowling green drawing favorable mention from patrons visiting the exhibition.

"Meet you at the fountain' has been the favorite phrase of local fair goers for many years.

A great many prominent Belleville men have at various times been active on the fair board, some for a long tenure of office and others for more brief periods. The list of presidents for the past 40 years includes R. G. Garbutt, Col. W. N. Ponton, W. C. Farley, G. M. Campbel, Arthur Jones, H. K. Denyes, Charles Hanna, R. H. Ketcheson, George Ostrom, R. M. Mitchell, H. B. Stock, W. Asselstine, James Barber, Dave Thrasher, E. E. Bonter, Wesley Gray and the present president Benjamin Bleecker.

Outstanding secretaries of the Belleville Fair have been H. B. Stock and R. H. Ketcheson, while the late Ambrose C. Dafoe was treasurer for many years. Fred Chamberlain is the present treasurer.

It is today a proud boast of Belleville Fair officials that the organization is entirely free of debt, and that outside of one year, all prizes have been paid 100 per cent. This speaks well for the financial standing of the Belleville Agricultural Society.

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT—
FRIENDS AND COUNTRYMEN:—

The evil forces of Hitlerism and Fascism are already finding that their war machines cannot conquer the fighting spirit of free British people. Here in Belleville, we have no opportunity to show our heroism under crashing bombs and against German fury. We have, however, the opportunity to SERVE ON THE HOME FRONT by contributing, to the utmost of our ability, to the Belleville and District Community and Service Funds.

Let us prove ourselves worthy of the bond of common allegiance between those brave people,—who today crouch in damp shelters, sacrificing all they hold dear in order that democracy may continue to exist and that we may live on in comfort and safety—by serving on the home front. Let us give freely, more than ever before, so that our City and District may take its fair share of responsibility in seeing that the poor, the sick and needy, and all peoples that need the assistance of the V.O.N., The Y.M.C.A. and The Salvation Army, be properly looked after.

I have confidence in the people of Belleville and I know that they will not fail in this great cause, which means so much to all.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed)

Agricultural Program

To Canada has fallen a great task, to fight as any ally of the democracies of the world for the freedom of mankind, to become the granary of the Empire and practically of the world, and to supply the tables of the United Nations with animal products. She is a nation destined to have a great share in upholding the principles of freedom through her co-operation in many ways. Nearest of the nations to Britain, she fortunately has vast acreages, rich soil, resources of mine and forest and lake, which she is able to turn to many uses, in foodstuffs, in the munitions of war, supplying many raw materials as well as the fnished product.

While her factories are steadily working day and night, her broad farms are silently producing. This past season she has had the greatest wheat crop in all her history. Here again destiny seems to have chosen Canada. Other cereals and grains have been produced in bumper proportions. At this time when the meat problem has been intensified with the demands upon Canadian production for the Allied nations, she has vast stores of grain for use. The opportunity to serve in fullest measure is offered and Agricultural Minister J. G. Gardiner has announced a great agriculture program to utilize these present stores of grains so as to increase the output of animal products for the Allies and for Canada.

In the year closing in a few weeks Canada has pledged herself to provide Britain with 600,000,000 pounds of bacon and ham, one of the main foods of the British tables. Now with more grain, Canada is ready to sign a new agreement with Britain for no less than 675,000,000 pounds of bacon and ham for the coming year. The program includes more than this, it aims at restoration of pork of full volume on the Canadian market, which will come as soon as possible and thus release beef for the United States which will permit the release of American beef to Britain.

The program will have direct results in good measure in six months to a year in meat and cheese production.

This is an indication of the responsibility which Canada has to build up the exports of these foods and provide for Canada's own needs.

Hydro Chairman's Views

"Rationing of electricity this winter will really be insignificant compared to the rationing of other commodities," Chairman T. H. Hogg of the Hydro Electric Power Commission told members of the Eastern Ontario Municipal Electric Association at Brockville. He put it this way, "you already know how much rubber you can buy to operate your cars. You know how little steel, copper or aluminum you can purchase and your wives know all about the drastic reduction in the use of silk, coffee, sugar and tea." As he explained the situation, to prevent interruptions use of electricity must be cut from ten to fifteen per cent, but "this is really a minor rationing in our economic life," he added, warning that it will be "very apparent when street lights are dimmed and shop window lights extinguished."

Dr. Hogg was confident of the Hydro situation in Eastern Ontario for he said that "in general Eastern Ontario has nothing to be apprehensive about. You have a system that is extremely well-suited to your requirements. Your generation costs compare favorably with the Niagara and Georgian Bay systems. You have an abundance of undeveloped power sites at locations well-suited to your needs."

The chairman explained that the Hydro was not caught unprepared for war but it was caught unprepared for the fall of France, the Nazi domination of Europe and the Japanese domination of the Far East. There had been, he said, enough power resources planned before these tragic events took place and forced industrial organizations to reorganize to supply the United Nations with large quantities of war materials and armaments to replace those being produced in enemy-occupied and bombed-out war districts. The result has been unprecedented demands for new distribution facilities. New problems have come in power supply "which somehow will be met and with the help of every Hydro municipality I am sure will be met."

"HAWK EYE"

Wing Commander E. P. Wells—famous in Fighter Command for some time as "Hawk Eye" Welles, or just "The Hawk"—has been awarded the D.S.O., and is to have a spell of rest from operations.

He has won his D.S.O., together with the D.F.C. and bar, in little more than a year. And in the same period he has advanced from pilot officer to his present rank—four stages.

"Hawk Eye" Wells is only 26, a former national clay pigeon shooting champion from New Zealand. He is one of the breed of fighter "aces" which the R.A.F. like best—a team worker, first and foremost. He has, however, at least 11 certain victories to his own credit.

Many of the outstanding successes in fighter sweeps of the last year have been achieved by squadrons and wings under his leadership. Countless stories are told by fellow pilots of his exceptional eyesight and deadly coolness in action.

Before leading an all-Empire wing, he had command of the first New Zealand Spitfire squadron to be formed in this country.

He handed over the leadership of this squadron last May to another remarkable young New Zealander, Squadron Leader R. Grant, D.F.M., who had joined the squadron only eight months previously as a sergeant pilot.

Prominent now among the train "wreckers" who play daily havoc among the enemy railway systems in occupied territory, the squadron recently destroyed seven locomotives in two days.—Daily Mail.

MAN WITH 1,000 LIVES

Major-General Sutton—"One-Armed Sutton," whom the Chinese call The Man with a Thousand Lives—has been captured by the Japanese.

This soldier of fortune, who became munitions supplier to the Chinese war-lord Chang Tso-lin in the 1920's, went back from Canada in 1938 to aid the Chinese against Japan.

It was recently reported that a division led by him had wiped out an entire Japanese division.

A close friend of his told me the story of Sutton's capture at Hong Kong. When the Japs took Hong Kong, "One-Arm" stood high on their "wanted" list. They knew he was on the island, and they immediately sent out search parties.

He dodged them for some time, but was eventually captured and taken straight to see the Japanese General-in-Command.

Early reports coming out of Hong Kong said that he had been put against a wall and shot, but his friend told me that he was definitely alive.

His friend told me: "I have no doubt the Japs regard him as a great capture, for they have been hunting him for a long time. But I know they will not get anything from him."

Major-General Sutton is about 58. He lost his right hand at Gallipoli, and later had a hook made to replace it.

He wrote of this decision: "A six-pound hook is a valuable, innocent-looking weapon. Once you hook a man towards you, you can finish him off with a quick left to the jaw—like gaffing a salmon."

"One-Armed Sutton" is 6 ft. 3 in. tall, a man of great strength, and with an alert mind.

He came out of China in 1927 with £600,000. He went to Vancouver, bought half the city, went down in a slump, and lost a million dollars.

So he went back to China. — English Exchange.

It will be welcome news to the residents of this progressive city that there is now every likelihood of the proposed electric railway, (for which a charter has already been granted), being taken up and the road constructed and linked up with the proposed line through Prince Edward County, tapping one of the most populous and richest agricultural districts in the Province. The city end would take in Point Anne, where over one thousand men are employed, also Trenton and probably Tweed. That this would be a paying proposition from the beginning, experts tell us there is no doubt, and state that it is strange that it should be so long in accomplishment. However, no less than three distinct and separate corporations are now interested in the project and there appears, as already stated, every likelihood that the early spring will see operations commenced on a large scale.

The Creation of New Labor

New York, September 19—While we are discussing the placing of workers in the most effective places—the problem concerning Paul V. McNutt, to whom a new executive order gives authority over 2,300,000 federal employees—we must not lose sight of the fact that the basic problem is to create totally new cadres of workers.

This country is short of manpower. The war is forcing us to give up many old prejudices, amongst them the one that this country is overpopulated.

Our enemies are able to draw enormous reserves of workers — Hitler in the conquered countries inhabited by 230,000,000, plus Germany and Italy, which together are another 120,000,000.

And Hitler has made the most of it. He has transferred 6,000,000 foreign workers to Germany alone, as well as using the workers in the industries of the countries where they dwell.

* * *

Our own population is about 132,000,000, and of these only 54,000,000 are normally classified as working or wanting to work. There are only 80,000,000 people between the ages of 15 and 65, male and female. Probably the total of those over 16, who could be put to whole or part-time work, is not more than 65,000,000. Out of these also must be drawn an army of from 10,000,000 to 13,000,000.

Out of productive work also must be drawn federal and state and other officials. We learn that one in twenty of our normally employable persons is already on the federal payroll. This bureaucracy is too big. It is greatly to be hoped that Mr. McNutt will reduce it drastically.

* * *

The question remains whether the creation of new cadres of labor can be done from above by decrees and by a new bureaucratic organization ordering everyone what he has to do and where he has to go, or whether we, the people, have creative power in ourselves, assisted by the Government but relatively free of bureaucracy, by which we can meet the problem.

The use of manpower is not merely a matter of quantity but of quality — of putting the right person in the right place. There is no instance, Government or otherwise, that can decide that as well as the individual person, who knows his talents and the circumstances necessary to his efficiency.

Now, the greatest unexhausted reserves of labor are among youth and women. By youth I mean those of pre-military age, the majority of whom are in school. They cannot be taken out of school, but they go to school for eight or nine months, and the rest of the time are free to enjoy themselves. Can they be used, and where?

Yes, and in a way that will promote their health, strengthen their characters, add very much to their knowledge, and integrate them deeper into the nation.

Useful work can be part of their education, furnishing a complement to their book learning and an antidote to their largely urban life. They can be used for seasonal labor on farms.

Their school year can be shortened and adjusted to make it possible for them to work from sowing to harvest in those parts of the country where there are clear seasons. The training of their brains will not lose by this, provided they are integrated in farm life with its manifold skills. For the brain is developed indirectly through the hands and the body, as well as through direct mental exercise. The greatest test of intelligence is its capacity to adapt itself to new situations and differing circumstances. The challenge of new environments has, historically, brought out the greatest physical and intellectual qualities in persons and races.

Schoolboys over 16 and schoolgirls over 16 can be turned with extreme rapidity into adequate and very useful agricultural workers, and enjoy themselves in that work. This was proved this summer on a small but representative scale by the Volunteer Land Corps, which made a laboratory test of 600 in the State of Vermont. Almost without exception they were city youth, whose average age was about 17. They were recruited fairly hit or miss, with probably too little attention paid to their physical and moral qualifications.

Yet 80 per cent of them were retained by their farmers on wages the simplest test of whether they performed the work they were expected to do.

But this never would have been possible if it had been bureaucratically organized as a mere labor-exchange matter. It was organized as a patriotic pioneering movement; It was supervised by its own county field agent; it was supported by such institutions as the Grange and the Extension Service as well as by bodies of farmers and local community leaders; it continually invoked the spirit and the mind as well as the body; it created a press for the exchange of mutual experiences; it discovered poets amongst its members and used them—without taking them off from pitching hay.

And so, small as it is, it is already a vivid part of the nation, and a self-creative part instead of a dead mechanism.

What we need is not first to atomize the nation and then regiment it, but to sink deep into the springs of its creative power and release it into the channels where it will fertilize our great land.

It is probable that in an emergency this country must be organized from above. But it must be organized simultaneously from below by the people themselves; otherwise nothing will come to fruition.

Help Work For Blind By Contributions And in Buying Tag

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is very appreciative of the response in Belleville so far to the appeal for donations to the work of the association. Total receipts up to this morning were $121. The campaign secretary is Mr. C. L. Jewell, Manager of the Bank of Commerce.

When a contribution is made to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind it helps to keep blind people in employment to provide them with a library service, have them taught Braille, typing and handicrafts at home, to maintain a field service, to maintain residences, to support a social service which gives much assistance to blind folk, provide emergency relief for those for whom work cannot be secured, to insure proper medical attention, to spread the campaign for the prevention of blindness.

A tag day in aid of the Canadian Institute for the Blind is being held here on Saturday Sept. 19. The collection will be used to maintain the work of service to the blind and prevention of blindness in this district.

THE SINGING TOWER

The Singing Tower on the summit of Iron Mountain near Lake Wales, Florida, is sometimes compared in architecture and setting to the Taj Mahal at Agra, India.

It was built as a gift to the American people by Edward W. Bok and dedicated in 1929 by President Coolidge.

The 205-foot tower is composed of several different native Florida stone materials and near the top is a carillon of 71 bells, which range in weight from 11 tons to 12 pounds and which have a total weight of 123,264 pounds.

It was designed by the late Milton B. Medary, Philadelphia architect, and constructed by the firm of Horace H. Burrell & Son of the same city.

The remains of Bok, who died a year after the Singing Tower was dedicated lie in a crypt in front of the north door.

The motto on the tower is a quotation from the naturalist John Burroughs: "I come here to find myself; it is so easy to get lost in the world."

Also inscribed on the Singing Tower are the following lines from Dorothy F. Gurney's "God's Garden":

The kiss of the sun for pardon,
The song of the birds for mirth;
One is nearer God's heart in a garden
Than anywhere else on earth.

Adjacent to the Singing Tower is a reflecting pool, and the rest of the top of the 324-foot hill known as Iron Mountain consists of a bird sanctuary and park 53 acres in area.

Edward Bok, who distinguished himself as an editor and writer, was brought to America by his parents when he was seven years from The Netherlands, where singing towers and carillons are common and his gift of such a sanctuary and singing tower to the American people was an expression of his gratitude to his adopted country.

Carillon concerts, open to the public, are given at the Singing Tower four times a week from mid-December until late in April.

The carillon is played by Anton Brees, a carillonneur from Antwerp.

GOOD NEWS FOR CHILDHOOD

Christmas toys will be as brightly colored as ever next Christmas, the war notwithstanding.—Washington dispatch.

* * *

Whatever else the war may stop
And Germans steal from people free.
Still red will be the humming top
And brightly colored drums will be.
Still little children will awake
On Christmas morn to countless joys,
For even Hitler cannot take
The splendor for their Christmas toys.

The Germans may with force and fire
The relics of the past destroy;
May level every temple spire,
But cannot crush a Christmas toy.
In spite of hate and lust for power,
And greed and madness these remain:
The gladness of the Christmas hour,
The brightly painted sled and train.

Though ancient glories fall and fade
And what has been will be no more,
Though armies lie in ambuscade
And slaughter stains both sea and shore;
Though people mad world-wide appear,
'Tis good to know let come what may,
In spite of death and dismal fear,
There will be toys for Christmas Day.

U. S. Contingent Arrives Safely

London, Sept. 18 —(CP)— Thousands of United States troops arrived in Britain recently to swell the ranks of the rapidly-expanding United States army in this country.

While they have been whisked away to camps already, announcement of their arrival was not permitted until today.

They came in a typical convoy of great ships, which were well-known passenger liners in peacetime, and disembarked at a number of British ports.

Crossing of the Atlantic was made swiftly and not a single German submarine was sighted, it was reported.

The arrivals consisted mainly of troops and anti-aircraft and transport units. There were also hundreds of army technical experts and some army air force personnel.

Moscow Protests Raid On Russian Consulate By Bulgarian Police

Moscow, Sept. 18 —(AP)— The Soviet Union announced today it had protested to Bulgaria — Axis-allied but neutral in the German-Russian war — against a "Hooligan raid" by Bulgarian police on the Soviet consulate at the Black Sea port of Varna.

Tass said the Bulgarian police both uniformed and in plain clothes, broke into the consulate Sept. 15 with a band on "local peddlers and scribblers for boulevard newspapers," ransacked the building and robbed it of cash.

Soviet Minister Alexander Lavrischchev presented the protest in Sofia.

(A German dispatch broadcast yesterday by the Berlin radio said the Varna consulate had been closed after police raiders found it contained "compromising material such as data on military installations.")

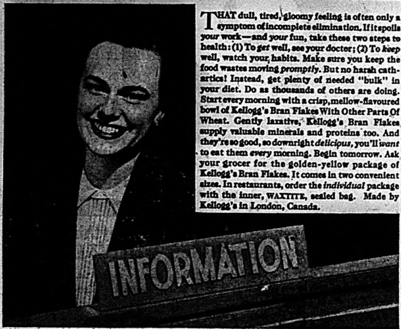
Is YOURS a "no-exercise" job?



THAT dull, tired, gloomy feeling is often only a symptom of incomplete elimination. If it spoils your work—and your fun, take these two steps to health: (1) To get well, see your doctor; (2) To keep well, watch your habits. Make sure you keep the food wastes moving promptly. But no harsh cathartics! Instead, get plenty of needed "bulk" in your diet. Do as thousands of others are doing. Start every morning with a crisp, mellow-flavoured bowl of Kellogg's Bran Flakes With Other Parts Of Wheat. Gently laxative, Kellogg's Bran Flakes supply valuable minerals and proteins too. And they're so good, so downright delicious, you'll want to eat them every morning. Begin tomorrow. Ask your grocer for the golden-yellow package of Kellogg's Bran Flakes. It comes in two convenient sizes. In restaurants, order the individual package with the inner, WAXTITE, sealed bag. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

"SITTING ALL DAY answering questions may not look like work, but I'm tired every night. I have to be courteous, so I can't afford headachy, short-tempered days. Here's my answer. I keep fit, but no nasty doses. Instead, I make sure of getting 'bulk' in my diet by eating a heaping bowl of crisp Kellogg's Bran Flakes every day in the year!"

Relax, To Save Good Looks

A cool witch hazel pad is soothing to weary brows.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN THE FAMILY cherub whines and fusses, makes a nuisance of himself, mama explains it by saying he doesn't feel well. She might well come to the same conclusion about herself, when she feels snappy and snarly and nothing suits her.

There's a close bond between the physical and mental mechanisms. When one isn't clicking right, the other is likely to go haywire. How else can it be explained that what will annoy one day won't bother the next? There are times when even the angelic woman will fly off the handle at the drop of the hat.

At other times there may be all-manner of family complications, arguments, and unreasonable demands, and she'll stay as calm and cool as an ice box cake. Fine! Digestive motors running all right, nervous system attending strictly to business. Nothing ruffles her. Nothing rouses her.

Suppose then she has worked beyond the limit, lost sleep, been bored by tiresome relatives or is suffering some anxiety. Her fine poise weakens. Her head begins to thump. She can feel her disposition curdling.

She gets a glimpse of herself in the mirror. Skin grey or sallow. Little hammocks under the eyes. Shoulders drooping. Is it possible the lady in the looking glass is herself, or has somebody sneaked up behind her?

She'd better take time off, get into a hot bath and relax, after which an hour or two in bed won't do a bit of harm.

Yes, madame, mental health is as important as our physical well-being if we are to keep our good looks. We must strive to keep tip-top in every way.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Mourning

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

Will you please answer some questions for me on the subject of mourning?

1.—How long should a mother wear mourning for her son? And how long should a sister wear morning for her brother? Please give me all the information about wearing mourning.

2.—How long must one refrain from playing the radio?

3.—Where can one go when one is in mourning?

L. O.

1.—The whole question of wearing mourning has undergone such a complete change in the past few years that there are now no definite rules left. It is left entirely to one's personal choice as to whether or not one shall wear mourning, even for a close relative. Many people today do not believe in going into mourning at all.

However if one feels that wearing mourning is a sincere and appropriate expression of one's feelings, if it will be a solace and a protection, then one should certainly abide by this personal point of view.

For a son a mother may wear all-black for about six months. . . it is seldom longer than that. Then she usually relieves the black by touches of white, and wears this second mourning for a year, or as long as she wishes. A grown sister may wear the same type of mourning and for the same periods, if she wishes, or she may, as is quite often done, wear all-black or black-and-white for two or three months, and then just dark clothes. What the sister does depends on the kind of life she has to lead, and the sensible adaptation of mourning to her life and necessary activities.

2 There are no rules for or against playing the radio. This depends on one's choice and feelings.

3.—A person in mourning would not, of course, go to a dance or to a large dinner, or anywhere else that would suggest social gaiety. But if she wished there is no reason why she could not go to the homes of her close friends, to a family dinner or to a simple home party, for this would undoubtedly be a comfort and a needed distraction for her.

A sister might properly go to the movies with intimate friends two or three months after the death. The point is not to withdraw from comforting diversion or from one's usual mode of life for too long a time, unless this is definitely one's inclination and unless one feels that this is a wise and sensible inclination.

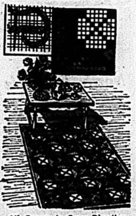
Colorful Cross-Stitch Makes This Lovely Rug



All Crosses in Same Direction

The individual touch that makes your home charming—a handmade cross-stitch rug! Or RUGS—for you can make several with fast, sturdy cross-stitch.

The first thing is to rule squares on your rug canvas (35 squares on a 26 by 35-inch piece) leaving a 1½-inch margin on all sides.

Then to stitch, following for each square our pattern diagram. Each little block stands for one cross-stitch; the shades are for colors—peach, turquoise, brown. In alternate squares you might have turquoise, orchid, cerise.

Your stitching's done with fat rug yarn. Each stitch in the row working to the right, should be from lower left to upper right. Coming back over these stitches, cross from lower right to upper left—all crosses in the same direction!

After completing all squares, make a border of one row of turquoise and one brown and stitch canvas to denim backing.

Our 32-page booklet has detailed instructions and diagrams for making this rug; also shows how to make lovely hooked, woven, braided and crocheted rugs. Includes Oriental, novel styles. Tells how much material you need for each.

Lowered Protein Reserve Brings Nutritional Edema

Because vitamins are currently being emphasized in nutrition, we are apt to overlook the importance of some of the other parts of foods—protein for example. That is especially true when the diet of the pregnant woman is considered. She is required to build a new individual —her baby—as well as to sustain herself, and so she must obtain tissue-building material.

One tissue-building material is protein. If the expectant mother does not have sufficient high-quality protein, the result is often a dangerous deficiency. This condition may account for the swelling of the legs during pregnancy. If the pregnant woman already has a lowered protein reserve, according to Drs. Rupert E. Arnell and William F. Guerriero, of New Orleans, nutritional edema is more likely to develop.

A number of patients with nutritional edema, whom the above-mentioned doctors studied, varied in age from 21 to 46 years. It would seem that repeated pregnancies tend to make it more likely that the nutritional edema will develop. The edema occurred in all cases during the last three months of pregnancy. A study of the diets used by these patients showed that they were deficient not only in protein, but also in iron. Vomiting, diarrhoea, and diseases which caused food materials to be lost rapidly from the body, made it more likely that the nutritional edema would develop.

In treating these patients they were put to bed. It was noted that bed rest brought about improvement in many cases. Injections of a sugar solution into a vein were given. Vitamins B-1 and C were also administered by injection. A diet rich in protein foods was given when there was no disturbance which interfered with the taking of food by mouth. The most important part of the treatment, however, was the giving of blood transfusion. Each patient received, on an average, four blood transfusions. The average duration of treatment was about 17 days. At the end of this time, all the patients were free from the edema.

A large number of pregnant women studied showed that their diets were likely to be lacking in protein, iron and vitamins. It would therefore seem important that every pregnant woman make a careful study of her diet to determine whether or not any such deficiency exists. If it does, proper diet should be outlined by the physician, and the woman should make every effort to eat the food suggested. Proteins can be obtained not only from animal foods but also from whole-grain cereals and various vegetables.

FASHION FLASHES

SHOW YOUR COLORS and bring cheer to the autumn scene. Good old red, white and blue is nice in the guise of a boxy red wool topper worn over a navy flannel skirt and white sweater.

Well keyed to sports and casual clothes is a group of leather-trimmed felt hats. A good model is of green felt, the brim turned up sharply one side; faced with alligator patterned brown calf laced through with cords of the felt that continue into the crown.

Why not a color for that first red crepe is used for a nice frock fall frock? Deep American Beauty red crepe is used for a nice frock made with drapery on the bodice and skirt that is softly drawn into a shirred inset at the waist. Tiny matching velvet bows on the bodice.

It won't be long before we appreciate the comfort of a warm coat. A nice new fur-trimmed model is of slightly lighter than navy woollen with wide surplice closing collar in leopard, with gauntlet cuffs of the fur. Slightly bloused silhouette.

Maybe not so many dinner frocks as in former years, but there are plenty to choose from when you want to dress up for that man home on leave. A grand model is a plunge neck shirtwaist top of white crepe studded with rhinestones, the rhinestones nailing a border on the collar and forming the cuffs of the full sleeves. Black crepe skirt with front fullness.

Cross country reports all point to the demand for velveteen suits. Bright red velveteen is used for a nice suit with raglan shoulders and silver buttons.

St. Louis Cards all but "In" As Dodgers Lose to Pirates While Redbirds Take Braves

Cardinals Now 3 Games in Front With Eight to Play

100TH GAME FOR YANKS

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sport Writer

From what's been going on here lately it no longer is a question of St. Louis Cardinals winning as Brooklyn's Dodgers losing the National League flag.

If ever a club looked as though it had folded up, the Dodgers from Flatbush did just that yesterday in dropping a 3-2 decision to Pittsburgh Pirates for their sixth setback in seven games.

And what made the bums seem all the more pathetic was the way the Cards kept right on fighting is Boston and finally won out 6-4 with a five-run blast in the ninth inning to go three games in front in the pennant parade.

At the same instant as the guys from St. Louis were finally getting to Al Javery—After being muffled with five hits for eight frames—three Dodgers were walking meekly up to the plate for their ninth-inning "Lick" and being retired in order with no more fight than you'll find in a dead chicken.

Redbirds Almost In

The net result of these proceedings was to put the Cards in a spot where only a major catastrophe can keep the Redbirds out of the senior circuit championship, climaxing one of the sturdiest uphill fights in years. For not only are they three games in front with only eight to go, but two of these games are in the important "losing side" in the records. At the moment, as the Cards head west to pick up against the Cubs Saturday and the Dodgers tangled with the Phillies today, here is the picture:-

	W	L	TP
Cardinals	99	47	8
Dodgers	95	49	10

With the hot National League shindig still just about the whole show, the chief supporting features of the day saw New York Yankees win their 100th ball game to break a record they already had in the books and Tex Hughson join the select "20-game-winners" pitching set.

Joe Dimaggio's 20th homer of the season, good for three runs, was the big blow for the Yanks as they knocked off Detroit Tigers 7-4. This marked the eighth season in which the boxbers had chalked up 100 or more victories, adding one more year to the mark they already had.

Fine Pitching Chore

Hughson became the first 20-game winner for the Boston Red Sox since the hey-day of Wesley Ferrell. Tex spread nine hits among St. Louis Browns without doing his spreading too thickly at any one point, and galloped off a 5-1 decision.

The pitching job of the afternoon came out of Philadelphia Athletics. Young Roger Wolff handcuffed Chicago White Sox with just two safeties for a 1-0 victory.

In Cleveland, Sid Hudson arrived on the scene in the 11th inning for the Senators just in time to walk home the winning run that gave the Indians a 6-5 ball game.

Babe Young clouted a homer and three singles and knocked in seven runs to back up Harry Feldman's five-hit fast-balling and give New York Giants 11-1 verdict over Cincinnati Reds.

Chicago Cubs flailed the Phillies 8-0 behind Hank Wyse's eight-hit whitewashing job.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS, JERSEY GIANTS MEET FOR TITLE

Syracuse Eliminated Royals 4 Games to 1 on Blackwell's Hurling

SCORE IS 7-2

(By The Associated Press)

Syracuse Chiefs and Jersey City Giants who played off for third and fourth places in the International Leagues lineup last week, will do it all over again in the final series of the Governors' Cup playoffs.

Syracuse, the winner in that tie-breaking tusale after they had finished the regular season deadlocked for third place, eliminated the second-place Montreal Royals last night when Ewell Blackwell pitched the Chiefs to a four-hit, 7-2 triumph in the fifth game of the series. Jersey City made the grade a day earlier, putting out the pennant-winning Newark Bears four games to two.

The final best-of-seven series for the Governors' Cup and the big pot of playoff money will open tomorrow at Jersey City. Two games will be played there and the next three at Syracuse, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Viewing the pitching records of the finalists, it isn't too surprising to see them in the last round instead of the heavier-hitting Newark and Montreal Clubs. And their regular-season scraps indicate another hot-tussle for the cup. Fourteen of their 22 meetings ended in shutouts, eight of which were turned in by Syracuse pitchers. In all, the Chiefs earned 23 shutout victories during the long campaign and another—a one-hitter by Red Barrett—in their third-place playoff with the Little Giants. Jersey City won 19 shutout games.

Blackwell, a 19-year-old right hander who blanked the Royals in the playoff opener, nearly added another shutout to the list last night. He walked only one man, fanned six and the two runs off him both were unearned.

Syracuse had the game all wrapped up before a man was retired in the first inning. Ed Albosta faced three batters, walked two and gave one hit and then was yanked in favor of Les McCrabb. All three runners scored. In the third inning the Chiefs drove McCrabb to cover with three more runs and they picked up another tally off Bill Nagy in the fifth.

Woody Williams paced the Chiefs' attack, driving in four runs although he made only one hit, a double.

Philadelphia, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Theodore Roosevelt, Knute Rockne and Walter Camp, in sculptured likeness, will occupy the first three niches in the United States' newly-created football hall of fame.

President Bert Bell of the Robert W. Maxwell Memorial Football Club announced the selections, "T.R." because he saved the game more than 35 years ago by demanding rules to reduce injuries and fatalities caused by that era's mass formations; Camp, "The Father of Football", for his All-American teams which he began selecting in 1899; and Rockne, killed in a plane crash 11 years ago for his popular recognition as the country's No. 1 coach.

The Club, founded in memory of Tiny Maxwell Swarthmore Football Great, sports writer and official, sponsored the hall of fame which will be housed temporarily in Benjamin Franklin Institute.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Sept. 18— One thing that has hoss-race fans puzzled about the Whirlaway-Alsab match race tomorrow is who's going to be pace setter?. . .Both these goats—beg pardon, equine artistocrats—like to come from behind to win and unless one jockey is willing to take a chance on getting a licking by setting the pace, the affair is liable to be about as exciting as that great mile race a few years back when Cunningham, Venzke and Mangan did everything but run backwards to keep from taking the lead. To dress up the race a bit they're calling it the "Narragansett championship" and instead of having numbers, the starting stalls will have signs "Whirlaway" and "Alsab" over them. . .

Hi, thar, stranger.

When the Norfolk Naval Air Station Baseball team visited Jarratt, Va., the home team lined up something like this: B. Rideout, ss; L. Rideout, 1b; M. Rideout, cf; D. Poole, 3b; J. Poole, c; H. Poole, lf; D. Barnes, 2b; F. Barnes, rf, and L. Barnes, p. . . When a guy named Bolster came in as relief pitcher the sailors threatened an investigation until they learned he was a nephew of one of the others.

LARRY O'CONNOR TO SHOW WARES

Hurdler Invited to Run at Big Athletic Meet at Toronto

Toronto, Sept. 18, (CP)— There isn't enough track talent in the Royal Canadian Air Force's No. 1 Training Command to give Larry O'Connor a race on his own terms, so the airmen have set their own: an 120-yard dash in which O'Connor will go over low hurdles while his opponents run on the flat.

O'Connor, now a corporal in the Canadian (Active) Army, hasn't lost any of the ability that won him a place on the Canadian Olympic team in 1936, so perhaps it's natural he can't find suitable opposition. But because he still draws crowds, opposition or not, he is one of the few army men invited to the No. 1 Training Command's track and field championships at Toronto Varsity Stadium tomorrow.

The entry list is huge—380 names long. It will be mainly an Air Force show, with entries from the R.C.A.F., the R.A.F., Fleet Air Arm and R.C.A.F. (Women's Division). Navy and Army men will compete in the small number of open and exhibition events.

Among the entries are PO. Alex Munro, Trenton, Ont., former Olympic high jumper; LAC John Sandy, Kingston, Ont., who won the 440-yard event for armed services at the Canadian National Exhibition in 1941; A.C. Fred Town, Orillia, Ont., Canadian shot put record-holder; and LAC. Henry Neale, Hamilton, Ont., a star miler.

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

SWEDISH NEWS DISPATCHES have carried glowing stories relative of Gunder Haegg, the Stockholm middle distance runner, who has been making the feats of such past mile greats as Sydney Wooderson and Glenn Cunningham look ordinary. The experts are depending upon Haegg to establish what heretofore was thought an impossibility — a four-minute mile. As a matter of fact his friends' claim he would have accomplished this feat in Stockholm recently had the running surface been fast.

According to reports, a wet layout confronted him, but the Stockholm boy covered the distance in 4-4.6 and was good enough to lop off the 4.6 had the cinder cushion been solid. There would seem to be considerable common sense to such a thought, and the way the young athlete is going, those who despised the possibility of a four minute flat time for the route, may have to change their ideas when Gunder makes future trips to the starting line.

ALI ADALI, THE TERRIBLE Turk who made his initial ring appearance at the Hume Arena on Wednesday night, told us he was in Paris, France, when the French Government capitulated in June of 1940. Adali is not a bit bashful, as a matter of fact he leans towards the egotistic style. "I wrestle all over the world and am not afraid of any man," boasted Ali as he related his escape from France.

It seems he made his way with refugees to the Italian border and from Italy flew by air to Madrid and ultimately arrived at Lisbon, Portugal, from where he sailed on the Manhattan to the U.S.A. Ali Adali has enjoyed nearly two years of successful wrestling sojourns around the United States and is now making his first Canadian appearance. No doubt Promoter Tunney will include him in a semi-final bout next Wednesday when Katan and McCready resume their British Empire elimination feud.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE Dominion Government gave professional hockey the go-ahead sign and green light in both Canada and the United States, Kingston hockey interests received somewhat of a surprise. It seems Al Sutphin, boss of the Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, immediately contacted Charlie Hicks and those at the head of the Jock Harty arena relative to the Barons utilizing the Queen's University ice palace for fall training purposes. If the Cleveland mentors and the Jock Harty heads get together district hockey fans will benefit, as the Barons would doubtless be playing several pre-season exhibition games versus National League clubs in Kingston. However, there is only one slight drawback, it's something about gasoline rationing we've read about somewhere or other. Long before this it has been rumoured that Bil Cook, skipper of the Barons, intended to help his old home town in the matter of hockey players by using the Combines as a farm for the Cleveland club.

REMEMBER WHEN DETROIT Tigers set a new major league mark two years ago today by punching out at least one home run in their 15th straight game? The previous record was held jointly by the Tigers of 1938 and the New York Giants of 1935. The streak was halted at 16 by Cleveland two days later. Hank Greenberg hit for the circuit in 12 of the sixteen games.

IF THERE EVER WAS A WELL beaten softball club it was the Kingston Victorias here last night. They got a couple aboard in the initial two frames via the four ball route, collected exactly two singles and thats just about all Yip Radley and company did insofar as offensive softball warfare was concerned. On the other hand "Soup" Campbell's Oshawa Colts were cuffing the offerings of two Kingston moundsmen with abandon. The Colts collected seven extra base blows, including circuit blows by Red Jubenville, former C.O.B.L. infielder, Nelson and McGee. Skipper Campbell didn't gamble at any stage of the game, he sent his seasoned veteran moundsman, "Preem" Whitely to the hilltop and at no time let up with jockeying. Doubtlessly the better nine won. Insofar as Kingston was concerned the Vics. outfield loafed badly in the garden positions and kicked fly balls around without concern.

THIS AND THAT—CONGRATUlations are the order of the day for Charlie Barnett's Zeller girls softball nine. Last night the Zellers chalked up their third consecutive league championship by beating Deacons 13 to 7. . . .Ever since girls' softball was revived in Belleville three years ago Skipper Barnett and his Zeller lassies has dominated the league and last night crowned a three year period of success . .

OSHAWA COLTS DEFEATKINGSTON BY 13-0 COUNT

Winners Will Now Meet Guelph for Provincial Title

MUCH TOO STRONG

Scoring runs in every inning except two, the Oshawa Colts blanked the Kingston Victorias 14 to 0 at the Exhibition grounds here yesterday. The game was the third and final in a best-in-three series in the Eastern Ontario finals and the O.A.S.A. semi-finals. Oshawa now meet Guelph for the Intermediate "A" championship of the province.

"Soup" Campbell's Oshawa nine cuffed the offerings of two Kingston pitchers to every conceivable corner of the local ball yard and added to their prowess with seven extra base hits, including circuit blows by Nelson, McGee and Jubenville. "Preem" Whitely went to the hilltop for the Oshawa squad and was in rare form, limiting the Kingston nine to two insignificant single base blows, while the Colts pounded two Kingston hurlers for a total of 13 hits, with McGee leading the parade with a circuit blow and two singles. Radley and Rawley with one-base blows accounted for the feeble batting efforts of the Limestone City nine.

Although they had racked up four runs in the first frames, the Oshawa team pushed six runs across in the sixth to cinch the piece and coast in. The winners played errorless ball and were by far the better team on the night's play.

ZELLER LASSIES WIN LOOP TITLE FOR THIRD TIME

Deacons Defeated 13-7 With Bessie Doolittle Holding Opposition Safe

LUSTY HITTING

Thrice champions the Zeller girls waltzed off with every title in the Belleville Ladies Softball League since the revival of the game here three years ago. The Zeller lassies beat Deacons 13 to 7 in a fourth and final game at the Reliance diamond last night concluding the league finals at three games to one in a best in five series.

A quartette of runs in the third and fifth assured the perennial titlists of their third league pennant. Bessie Doolittle went to the hilltop to crown a year of pitching success and besides striking out four, scattered 13 hits in a masterful manner. In the meantime the continued champions were finding "Stewie" Stewart for 18 base hits, many of which were of the extra base nature. Wilma Clarke, Helen Garrow and Pete Haslip led the champions on the attack, while Glad. Samain, Dot Hansey and Jean Corneal carried the Deacon batting sting.

Except for the fifth inning, when they scored five runs, the Deacons were literally handcuffed by Miss Doolittle, while Zellers scored runs in every one of the nine innings. except the second and seventh, to mount the score.

The line-ups:

Deacons — Samain ss, Sword 3b, Corneal 1b, Woodhouse c, Hansey cf, Moreland rf, Stewart p, Green lf, and Freeman 2b.

Zellers — Colden 2b, Clarke rf, Haslip cf, Garrow 1b, Donovan ss, Bennett 3b, Douglas lf, Flindall c, and Doolittle p.

Score by innings:

Toronto, Sept. 18. (CP) — The services have become dominant factors in most Canadian sports during the last ten months, but golf has been left largely to its own devices, which are legion . . .This situation is altogether likely to continue, because even the most frantic among us cannot make out a case for golf as a vital part of a fighting man's training. . . .Not the kind of fighting man who could lick anything but a defenceless and hen-pecker putter, anyway.

AT THE BELLE

"Wings for the Eagle"

Two of filmdom's top-notch players, Ann Sheridan and Dennis Morgan, have the leading roles in Warner Bros.' action-packed film, "Wings for the Eagle," now on the Belle Theatre screen. Its swift moving story is set for the most part in the large Lockheed aircraft plant. The supporting cast is made up of such favorites as Jack Carson, George Tobias and Russell Arms.

"It Happened in Flatbush"

Baseball thrills, fun, and romance are embodied in "It Happened in Flatbush," latest co-starring vehicle for Lloyd Nolan and Carole Landis, the added feature attraction which also includes a color comic cartoon "Donald's Gold Mine."

"Charley's Aunt" Immortal Comedy

Jack Benny, the greatest comedian of our time, makes his bow in Brandon Thomas' immortal comedy, "Charley's Aunt," which 20th Century-Fox will present this week-end at the Belle Theatre.

Jack has been cast in the title role of this long-time laugh favorite, and it promises to be the most hilarious and most unusual of his career.

The story is that of the fellow who helps out two college pals by masquerading as his friends' aunt. While clothed as the aunt, he chaperones two young ladies and receives two proposals of marriage. Then, at the height of his impersonation, the real aunt comes upon the scene. How he and his friends get out of their predicament makes for one of the funniest comedy climaxes.

Preview audiences hailed Jack Benny's performance and have called him for the funniest thing in skirts. Kay Francis is the real aunt who turns up at the wrong time and James Ellison is the friend who needs the help.

The Brandon Thomas farce from which this screen comedy has been adapted is one of the most popular stage plays of all time. It has been shown more times than any other play with the single exception of "Hamlet." Translated into seventeen different languages, it has scored a hit in every one. In the forty-nine years since it was first shown in London, there has always been at least one company playing "Charley's Aunt" somewhere.

An impressive cast of laugh provokers have been placed in the other supporting roles to make this the funniest comedy of the year. Among the others in the cast are Edmund Gwenn, Ann Baxter, Reginald Owen, Arleen Whelan, Laird Cregar, Ernest Cossart, Richard Hayden and Morton Lowry.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Henry Aldrich For President"

Followers of the Aldrich Family fortunes on screen and radio are in for a treat when they see "Henry Aldrich for President," now on the Capitol screen.

The Henry of "Henry Aldrich for President" is the same lovable, wistful 100-per-cent American boy that Jackie Cooper made him in the first two films of the series, "What a Life" and "Life With Henry.' In this picture he is inveigled into running for president of the student body at Centerville High School. He wins the election but gets into all sorts of jams when fake ballots are discovered and everything points to Henry as the culprit. He gets out of trouble in one of the most hilarious slap-stick sequences ever filmed in a "family" picture.

"Twilight on the Trail"

Based on Clarence E. Mulford's "Hopalong" Cassidy stories, "Twilight on the Trail" sends "Hoppy" (Bill Boyd) and his pals riding hell-bent-for-leather after rustlers who have been raiding the herds in Antelope Valley. "Hoppy" gets himself captured by the rustlers but escapes just in time to rescue a posse of ranchers who have been amushed by the desperadoes.

This latest of the "Hopalong" Cassidy pictures is heralded as the fastest and best of the series, with some right smart riding by "Hoppy" and his pal, Brad King. One thing is certain, Capitol theatre audiences are in for another thrilling adventure in the West.

"Spy Smasher" the current Capitol serial also provides spine-tingling thrills in completing this program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Invisible Agent"

Today's most amazing screen sensation, based on a story by H. G. Wells, Universal studios new trhiller "Invisible Agent" is now showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

The cast includes Ilona Massey, John Hall, Peter Lorre, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, J. Edward Bromberg, John Litel and Albert Basserman. The second feature is an exciting Texas western "Stagecoach Express" featuring Don (Red) Barry, Al St. John and Robert Kent. A clever technicolor comedy cartoon, "Concerto in B. Flat Minor" is also presented on the program.

Comedy-Cartoon Show

Saturday morning a special children's comedy and cartoon show will be presented at the McCarthy Theatre and in addition the first chapter of the new serial "Adventures of Red Ryder" will be shown. Mothers, send the kiddies, matron in charge. Doors open at 9:15 A. M.

General Council Officers Refuse Cost-of-Living Bonus

United Church General Council officers and superintendents of missions today refused to accept a five per cent cost-of-living bonus on the grounds that the ministry is a brotherhood and the officers desire to share with all ministers of the church, the exactions and sacrifices of these difficult days.

The motion recommending the bonus was unanimously passed, but Dr. Gordon Sisco, General Council Secretary immediately rose and asked the Council to reconsider its proposal without debate.

"Officers of the church should share difficulties with the ministers", he said. Council reluctantly consented to the secretary's proposal.

Hitler Believed In Great Need Of Manganese

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

There are new factors in the battle of Stalingrad, now in the street-fighting stage, which could foil Hitler's indicated hope of announcing capture of the city within a few hours even if its probable early fall cannot be denied.

Both Berlin and Moscow have stressed the share Nazi dive-bombers have had in breaking through Soviet defences. But air effectiveness in the hand-to-hand fighting in city streets must diminish if not vanish. Friend as well as foe could be the dive-bomber victim.

It is a man-to-man, gun-to-gun, grenade-to-grenade affair in a house-to-house combat. The courage and daring of individuals, soldiers or civilians, fighting for their own hearths, comes to its supreme test in such close action. There can be no lack of that in Russian ranks.

Yet by every rule of war experience Stalingrad's endurance must be regarded as numbered in days, if not hours. And with its seemingly impending fall much may be revealed as to Hitler's intentions or those of his Japanese accomplice. For if Japan ever is to strike at Russia, or elsewhere in Hitler's aid, now would seem to be the time. The loss of so powerful a Russian and United Nation protective bulwark for vital supply lines and so important and modern a war arsenal as Stalingrad could not fail to have some dismal repercussions in Russia and in all the United Nations.

Whether Stalingrad can or will prove worth its cost to Hitler or the Axis must depend largely on its place in his grand war strategy. It is obviously supremely important to him, apparently, much more important for some reason than its actual or potential strategic position can yet explain.

To attain Stalingrad, he has poured out the blood of other peoples' children, dipped deep into his reserves of oil and armor and left his own war industries and cities open to both Russian and British bombing. He faces another winter in Russia on vastly extended, not contracted lines. And all to take Stalingrad, Why?

This observer cannot say. Many theories have been advanced, including that of a correspondent in Oklahoma who wrote recently that lack of manganese rather than lack of oil was the basis of the Nazi campaign. He had heard that the Stalingrad region was rich in manganese deposits and that the lack of that metal to harden his war steel was Hitler's most urgent need.

Inquiry reveals that the greatest manganese deposits in Southern Russia are not around Stalingrad, but in the Caucasus range far to the south. There have come now in the American press reports from Russia that it is manganese, not oil, that Hitler seeks in those rugged mountains.

If that is true, possession of Stalingrad to anchor a Nazi winter front along the Don and Volga may be vital to Hitler. Without that eastward bulge to the Volga to protect it, his thrust down the Rostov-Baku railroad and along the northern flank of the Caucasus range, where the manganese deposits lie would be exposed.

Yet if it is manganese in the Caucasus range even more than oil Hitler is driving to attain, it would be a highly encouraging thing for his foes. It would mean that the twin nerves of his war effort ashore, afloat or in the air, oil and steel, are both worn raw by the three-year struggle. It would mean that the blockade policy of Britain from the start of the struggle is taking effect increasingly and just how seriously only the Germans know.

Lack of a single cargo of manganese when the naval collier Cyclops disappeared en route from South America during the first Great War with that essential ore all but stymied American war steel production. It had to be replaced with manganese borrowed from Britain to the keep the war mills crunching.

CHAPTER 29

"It has all been arranged", he said frowning, "as Mr. Baridon wished it. If you feel the amount is insufficient for your needs, you must see Mr. Baridon yourself".

Linda bit her lip to suppress a sudden smile. Insufficient indeed! She wondered what the attorney would say if he knew she was protesting that the amount was too great instead of too little. When she said nothing aloud the man handed her a substantial check, saying, "Mr. Baridon asked me to give you this to cover your expenses for the next two months. As to the manner in which you will receive your alimony—"

"Please!" Linda's voice sounded strangled as she jumped to her feet. She thought wildly, "I can't bear anymore of this. I won't let this stranger talk to me so calmly about my life—as though nothing makes any difference now!"

Aloud, she said, "I—I'm rather in a hurry now. I'll come back some other time to go over the details with you—perhaps this afternoon or tomorrow morning".

She turned and walked rapidly out of the door. The lawyer stared after her in consternation. What an odd young lady, he thought to walk out when he had reached the plans that interested most women so much. . . . .

Linda rode back to the apartment with tears coursing down her cheeks. She had resolved never to weep again, never to think of Steve again, but now she realized this was impossible. Whereever she went, whatever she did, the memory of the man she loved would travel with her——constantly reminding her of what might have been.

When she entered the apartment, Ellen was waiting with a message that Diane had called several times, and seemed—in the maid's words —"Quite upset".

Linda smiled grimly, knowing that by now Diane would have heard about the startling announcement made the evening before. Smiling ironically, she dialed Diane's number . . . . . .

"My dear friend Brenda just called to tell me the glad tidings", were Diane's first words. "Linda—is it true?"

"Absolutely". Linda said bitterly. "I just got back from seeing Steve's lawyer—by request".

"Oh", Diane gasped, "Then—you—you've seen Steve?"

"Of course not," she replied irritably. "I received a letter from his attorney this morning asking me to call at the office, and I did. They—they've asked me to go to Reno".

"And—you're going?"

"Naturally. It's a case of 'here's your hat, what's your hurry'."

"Linda, I don't want you to go. Somehow I have a feeling that if you went to Steve and made a clean breast of everything —"

"Save your words, darling". Linda advised lightly. Her voice was lilting, gay. Diane must never know what an effort it cost her to say gaily, "This time tomorrow night I'll be on my way—Reno-way to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness!"

Diane ignored Linda's flippancy. Hesitantly, she said, "I—I'd like to drive out to the farm this afternoon Linda, if you're going. I suppose you have some things out there you'll want to pick up, since you'll never see Hillsacres again".

Never see Hillsacres again? Linda had forgotten the rambling-farmhouse—the spacious countryside where she had been happy without realizing the reason for her happiness. She had a great desire to see the farm one last time.

"I'll ask Greg to drive us there", she said. "Is that all right with you?"

Diane's voice sounded relieved. "Perfectly all right. What time?"

"One o'clock ought to be all right," Linda answered. "Wear riding clothes if you want to join me in one last ride before I leave".

Driving with Greg and Diane in the crisp, autumn afternoon, Linda tried to forget her despondency—to be gay and amusing—but her efforts were in vain. She was aware that Diane seemed unusually alert. Again and again she glanced at her wrist watch, and each passing car seemed to hold her attention until Greg said sharply, "What's the matter, Diane? You seem upset about something".

Diane's face had an expression of guilt, but she managed a shaky laugh. "I'm just embarrassed at our little threesome, I guess. It's like a moving picture triangle. Girl loves boy— guess that means me, but boy loves another girl, meaning you, Linda and girl—"

"We're nearly there", Linda said hastily. She was afraid of Diane's next words.

"Greg, you're an angel to bring me out here".

He grinned down at her. "Your wish is my command".

"Very poetic, darling".

He swung the car into the driveway, and Linda glanced curiously at Diane, for the artist was straining forward, anxiously. A moment later Linda's color drained from her face. She, too, had seen the reason for Diane's sudden anxiety. There, parked in the drive before the house was Steve's cream-colored convertible!

"I—I thought Steve was in New York!" Linda said, anguished; then a glance at Diane's relieved face affirmed her suspicions that the other girl had known Steve was back from the east. "Diane—she began accusingly.

"Can you imagine that!" Diane made a poor attempt at expressing surprise. "We have company". She jumped from the car, pulled Linda after her, and after a moment Greg shrugged indifferently and joined them. As they rounded the house and went in the direction of the stables, they came upon Steve, astride the horse Patricia. He stared at Diane, almost reproachfully, and then his eyes came to rest on Linda. Linda's heart beat madly her breath came in short gasps. She had tried unsuccessfully to forget Steve, and now, seeing him again, was torture. For a moment, oblivious of the others, she looked up at him, seeing how tired he appeared. How strained.

"Good afternoon', he said civilly. "To whom do I owe the pleasure for this unexpected call?"

Linda was confused. He was looking steadily at Diane, and Linda cried out suddenly, "We—we came for one last ride before you send the horses south and I—"

Steve waved his arm in the direction of the stables. "By all means help yourselves," he said, and when Linda started after the others, he called to her.

"Yes?" She scolded herself for a sudden thrill at the sound of his voice speaking her name.

"I suppose you saw Jenkins, my lawyer, this morning?"

Linda's hopes died slowly. "Yes, Steve. You—you've been very generous". She did not tell him that she would never accept the settlement; that she had never had any intention of so doing.

"I suppose", he said, as Diane and Greg appeared with Rusty and Fanfare, "you'll want Cavalier?"

For a moment Linda hesitated. She was used to the big, white horse and it was her intention to ride him, but with a reckless impulse she tossed her head:

"I'm afraid Cavalier is a trifle slow", she smiled. "I'm riding Challenger today".

Steve's face mirrored surprise and concern. "Challenger! But you have never ridden him, Linda. He's dangerous and even Mary never risks it."

Linda hesitated for a moment. She had great respect for Steve's judgment, knowing he spoke the truth about Challenger. He was an exhibition horse, proud, nervous. She always had been afraid of him. Then she laughed cooly and entered the stables.

"Bring out Challenger", she ordered the stable boy, and when he stared amazed, she repeated the command impatiently. Her heart pounded as the boy helped her into the saddle, but she tried to conquer her fear. It would never do for Challenger to realize his rider was afraid. Instead she walked him out to the clearing and said lightly to Steve: "Your man-eating horse seems quite subdued".

Steve whirled about angrily. "Don't say I didn't wrn you, Linda, if he suddenly bolts. He's dynamite and it takes an expert rider to hold him down".

"Meaning what?" she demanded.

They stared frigidly at each other, not speaking until Diane, who had been watching the scene from a vantage point, rode up beside Steve.

"Come along", she ordered anxiously. "This is no time to quibble. Steve, ride along with us and make it a foursome".

Linda was startled. She had a guilty feeling that Diane had planned this very arrangement, but she expected Steve's refusal.

"Thanks," Steve said curtly. "I will".

The little procession started off, and automatically Linda reined her horse in beside Steve, her eyes fixed on a distant point. She heard Diane and Greg engaged in a humorous conversation up ahead and groped for some witty remark to make to her companion, something that would let him know how completely indifferent she was.

"Patrician seems in fine form today". She eyed Steve's chestnut mare.

Steve, patting the horse's shining flank. "I wish you were riding her instead of that skittish stallion. Challenger is a man's horse".

Linda laughed, unamused. "He's not afraid of me. Challenger and I understand each other. We're very much alike in many ways".

"If you mean each of you symbolizes a certain type of beauty, I suppose that's true".

Linda glancing stealthily at Steve's profile, saw he was grimly in earnest, although his eyes remained fixed on the road ahead.

"You're very gallant", she retorted, "but that's hardly what I had in mind. Challenger needs love patience and a little understanding. He was wild and untrained, but now—"

"Then I fell down on my job". Steve's voice rose as they urged their horses into a canter. "Perhaps if I'd been more patient, more understanding, you would have learned to love me".

"What?" Linda could not believe her ears. Surely fate was playing another trick on her imagination. Unconsciously her heels dug into Challenger's sensitive sides; her hands relaxed their grip on the reins.

"When you went back to Prairievale", Steve was saying stonily, "I thought you understood how I felt—that I loved you and wanted you to be my wife. I—I'd loved you for so long, but when I saw that it was Greg you really wanted—"

"But —Brenda—you were together so much—"

"Brenda"! Steve laughed bitterly. "Now that you're leaving, now that everything is settled between us, you might as well know there was nothing between Brenda and me. Oh, I'll admit she tried desperately to—well, re-arrange my life," But I told her that everything was over for good. When she's had her little fling, I expect she'll be glad to come back to Jerry and remain faithful to him the rest of her life".

"I thought if you believed I was interested in Brenda, you'd feel free to make your own decisions, but stay with me because you believed it your duty, so I—" Suddenly Steve broke off, his face whitening. "Linda!" he shouted. "The jump!"

There was a blur of black gliding through the air as the horse took a sagging fence. Linda had taken that jump many times before, but now, oblivious of everything save Steve's agonized face and his low, bitter confession she was off-guard.

As Challenger took the fence, Linda's slim body hurtled from the horse. There was another cry from Steve a gasp from Linda as the ground seemingly flew up to meet her, and then she was a limp, strangely-still figure.

Up ahead, Greg was accusing Diane, his face sudden. "You planned this", he said wrathfully. "You know Steve was out here and you threw Linda at him trying to get them to patch things up. Why?"

Diane looked away. "I think everyone deserves one break", she insisted. "If I'm wrong about—things I'll be the first to admit it, but I can't forget that Linda and Steve——"

Steve's cry reached them then, and Diane checked her horse instantly, "That was Steve", she said tensely. "Something—something has gone wrong back there!"

Without another word the couple wheeled their horses and galloping back to the jump, just as Steve his face ashen, bent and carefully lifted Linda's crumpled, unconscious figure. He whispered, agonizedly, "Linda, my dearest darling, I've killed you!"

Church Asked To Assist Officers In Placing Japs

The General Council of the United Church appealed today to the church as a whole to cooperate with placement officers of the government to locate British Columbia Japanese in other parts of the Dominion.

Ministers of the church will be urged to issue an appeal on Sunday, Oct. 18th., or some other suitable Sunday for the cultivation of goodwill among all people of the Dominion regardless of race, creed or color.

The church believes it is its duty in these days of upheaval for Canadian Japanese, to follow them with ministry.

The United Church will assure its Japanese Christians that a great Canadian church desires to disassociate itself from vicious and unchristian attitude.

Commends Statement

The Council went on record as commending the statement of policy by the Prime Minister's office on Jan. 14, 1942, and the appointment of the British Columbia Security Commission.

The status of the Rev. M. C. MacDonald with the Board of Home Missions was cleared by Council in an endorsed recommendation that he be appointed as an Associate Secretary of the Board to take effect after the first session of the opening of the Board in 1944.

The Board of Home Missions will receive from the Board of Finance the amount of increase up to $50,000 in 1942, receipts of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund, also a similar amount in 1943.

In the event of no increase the Board of Finance will contribute to the Home Missions the sum of $13,500 the amount of general receipts of the Moderators Fund for 1941.

An amendment to reduce the amount to $25,000, proposed by the Rev. W. P. Fletcher, Marmora, was defeated.

Urged to Raise Salary

The Council also approved instructions to Presbyteries to arrange for an official visit to every pastoral charge giving a salary of less than $1,500, urging them to raise the salary of their minister to at least $1,500.

Conditions applicable to the employment of laymen and lay women in the future will be inserted in the Manual, Council decided.

Lay supplies in the future will be required to be members of the United Church, employed year by year, and may not be inducted.

They will be appointed by the Presbyteries after the Conference Settlement of Ministers available is completed.

If a charge is able to pay more than $950, the standard set for lay supply, a minister will be settled, if one is available.

SMASHING BLOW

The latter source of supply was subjected to a new assault by Allied heavy bombers, which set fires visible for 30 miles in a short night attack on Rabaul, it was announced. Wharves were bombed, explosions were touched off in buildings and supply dumps and a number of enemy aircraft on the ground were destroyed, the communique said.

The assault was followed by an early-morning air attack.

Gasmata, another Japanese base on New Britain, also was bombed simultaneously with unobserved results.

There was no mention of any Japanese air activity anywhere in the New Guinea theatre with the exception of a hit-and-run raid on Port Moresby carried out by a single enemy plane under cover of darkness.

"There was little damage," the announcement said.

Use Infiltration Tactics

Analyzing the situation in New Guinea, F.C. Folkard, Melbourne Herald War Correspondent, reported today the terrain around Ioribaiwa lent itself readily to the infiltration tactics the Japanese have employed so successfully heretofore.

The Allies, however, now should be able to offer stiffer support, he said, because they are close to their main supply base and can quickly call upon reinforcements. They will be able to obtain more effective air support for the country will offer the Japanese less and less cover the farther south they go, and the Allies soon should be able to use artillery to answer the enemy mountain guns, which presumably are of 75-millimetre type.

Japanese advance forces, on the other hand, now are about eight or nine days walking distance from Kokoda, their nearest base on the northern side of the mountains.

Folkhard recalled that in the early part of the Japanese advance such stress was laid on the supply problems the enemy would face in crossing the mountains, but once again, he said. The enemy apparently was underestimated.

Japs Have Heavier Equipment

The Japanese, he said, not only are keeping their troops fed but are giving them heavier equipment than the Australians are employing.

Although the Japanese have traversed the worst part of the Owen Stanley range, fighting their way through passes more than 7,000 feet above sea level, the country still separating them from the head of the road leading to Port Moresby is tough, with steep razor-backed ridges some of which rise up sheer for 1,000 feet or more.

Ioribaiwa is perched atop a 3,000-foot ridge. About four hours' marching time north is Naroo, another mountain-top hamlet. Apparently fighting is going on in the precipitous valley between these two points, with other Australian forces guarding the adjacent ridges.

The latter are covered with thick undergrowth and tropical trees and are washed by frequent heavy rainstorms which clothe the peaks in mist.

The Japanese now have captured seven villages on the original Australian supply route between Port Moresby and the former Allied advanced base at Isurwva, about two hours walking time from Kokoda.

GERMANS TRYING

Germans Routed

Dospatches contained frequent references to individual Red army men who killed 10 to 12 Germans and to single machine-gun crews which accounted for as many as 40. A detachment fighting from behind ruined brick walls was credited with the distruction of seven Nazi tanks and the slaughter of 200 troops.

Red Star said Russian tanks destroyed 60 trucks moving up infantry reinforcements in one sector.

Canadian sport snapshots t

Familiar Pattern

The Germans attacked in a familiar pattern. Squads of automatic riflemen, hunched low and running, moved up first in an effort to cut through and disrupt defences from the rear. Tanks and motorized infantry followed them. Overhead planes dumped bombs on knots of Soviet resistance.

Streams of bullets whined and richocheted through the streets and the defenders were forced back for a time, but they rebounded to oust the invaders at bayonet point, yard by yard and house by house.

The Russians were backed down tree-lined avenues to cliffs overlooking the Volga waterfront at one time. With precipices behind them and tanks before them, they organized their counter-attack in a supreme effort to save the great economic centre from the Germans.

A Tass dispatch said thousands of fresh Siberian troops, their military training newly completed, now were moving to the front and many were already engaged in the Battle of Stalingrad.

The counter-actions at Stalingrad were coupled with a diversionary offensive against the Germans in the region of Voronezh, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, and vicious fighting on the central and Caucasian fronts.

Counter-Attack with Ferocity

Russian gunners and bayonet fighters, counter-attacking with a ferocity that forced the invaders to abandon hundreds of their dead, were reported to have cleared out detachments which had smashed into the streets of Stalingrad and restored the defence lines on the northwestern outskirts late yesterday.

This display of recuperative power by Red Army men now in the 25th day of battle against an unprecedented array of German military strength was coupled with a diversionary offensive which bit into Nazi holdings in the region of Voronezh, 300 miles to the northwest.

Damaging blows against the invaders were reported from both the central and Caucasian fronts and Soviet raids were executed by air and by sea.

(A Berlin radio broadcast—skipping all reference to a previously-advertised "special announcement from Hitler's headquarters" which failed to [illegible] last night — asserted the Russians were resisting [illegible] cidally. Its major boast was [illegible] "Stalingrad had ceased to be a solid block of resistance.")

Nazi Bid Fails

The Russian account of the Nazi bid that failed said German detachments were able to penetrate into some of the streets in northwestern Stalingrad Wednesday night.

"Street fighting resulted which developed into hand-to-hand encounters," it said. "Toward the end of the day all detachments which had penetrated our positions were repulsed. The Germans left behind hundreds of dead and damaged trucks and tanks.

Within two days one of our units destroyed 54 German tanks, 21 guns and 12 motor vehicles. They wiped out about 1,500 enemy officers and men. On another sector our guardsmen (Elite troops) routed a battalion of enemy infantry and destroyed eight tanks, two mortar batteries and 15 motor vehicles."

Russians striking at the German left flank on the Upper Don in the Voronezh area were declared to have recaptured a Nazi-occupied settlement, seized prisoners, 24 field guns and other equipment and wiped out about two regiments of infantry.

Tank-supported German infantry pressed back Russian lines slightly on the central front for a few hours, but a counter-attack restored the Red army positions and the invaders left behind 2 tanks and about 1,200 dead, the communique said.

Repulse Nazis at Mosdok

Russian troops battling to save the Grosny oil fields and Caucasus mountain passages were reported to have repulsed German assaults in the Mosdok area, reoccupied a village, destroyed eight tanks and other war equipment and "annihilated about 300 Hitlerites."

From the Black Sea coastal sector southeast of Nazi-occupied Novorossisk came word that Red marines had "repulsed several enemy attacks and mopped up about a battalion of enemy infantry."

"A bomber formation raided a German-occupied port on the Black Sea," the communique said. "Two enemy mine-sweepers and three torpedo motorboats were sunk and an ammunition dump was blown up."

The Moscow radio said four German-occupied naval bases in the Baltic were bombed by Soviet planes which damaged transports and port equipment, destroyed gun positions and set off fires and explosions.

Mr. Howe also warned that everyone depending on fuel oil for heating this winter would do so at his own risk He could give no assurance there would be sufficient oil for winter heating. If sufficient oil could not be brought into Canada, oil installations that could be converted to coal would be the first to be deprived of supplies.

ENCOUNTER

sons learned would give information to the enemy.

Things Achieved

But certain points of importance could be made, said the statement, and it outlined them as follows:-

1. Crossing of the channel by a large naval and air-escorted force and the fact that the naval force remained for many hours off the enemy-occupied cost was "a significant achievement;"

2. Demonstration of the possibility of transporting and landing tanks was "important;"

3. The air force was able to inflict a "very serious strategic reverse" on the enemy;

4. More limited and local objectives were achieved, including destruction of batteries and a radio location station, capture of prisoners, inflicting of heavy casualties on the enemy, and sinking one and possibly two armed vessels.

Paid Heavy Price

"For the lessons learned and the advantages gained the forces engaged and particularly the land forces, paid a very heavy price", the statement said.

"The history of similar operations in the past serves to indicate that heavy losses are to be expected in amphibious operations of this type directed against a fortified coastline held by a determined and alert enemy.

"At Dieppe the losses suffered were probably due in part to the misfortune of the chance encounter with the escorted German tanker. Such small circumstances are often important in operations of this kind".

Describing preliminaries of the Dieppe operation, the statement said the use of the Canadian forces was approved by Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, general officer commanding-in-chief of the 1st Canadian army, after he "had satisfied himself that the objectives of the proposed operation were vital to the agreed offensive policy and that the means available were likely to be adequate to the task in hand".

Two Brigades in Action

Land force plans were directed by Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts, commander of the 2nd Canadian Division and co-ordinated with the chief of combined operations, Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, by Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, commander of a Canadian corps in Britain.

Large elements of two brigades of the 2nd division were given special training and exercises in landings under similar conditions to those anticipated at Dieppe and these units basically comprised the assault force.

Thanks to special precautions taken, it was believed the enemy had no information that a specific operation against the Dieppe area was projected.

Coast Strengthened

The enemy, however, had been strengthening the French coast generally because of the avowed aggression policy of the United Nations, and had recently brought additional troops and guns into the Dieppe area. The Germans on the coast were in what might be called "a state of general alert."

Dieppe, said the statement, has a harbor to the south and east of the town. There are beaches in front of the town but to the west and east are headlands fronting in cliffs where landing are not possible. A mile and a half to the east is a suitable landing beach at Pourville and a mile to the west another at Puits.

The plan of operations called for: 1. Commando attacks on German batteries at Varengeville, five miles west, and Berneval, six miles east; 2. Landings at Pourville by the South Saskatchewan Regiment and at Puits by the Royal Regiment; 3. The main assault on the Dieppe beach by the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry on the right and the Essex Scottish on the left, to be followed by the tanks of the Calgary Tank Battalion the floating reserve, the Fusiliers Mont-Royal.

To Prevent Artillery Fire

The commando attacks on the outlying flanks were to prevent artillery fire on the main attacking force and the attacks at Pourville and Puits were to clear the headlands of German troops who would otherwise be in a position to fire down at the main assault force.

These operations were successful on the west but only partially successful on the east. The headland there was not cleared and this affected the success of the landings on the main beaches.

At Pourville the South Saskachewan Regiment landed with little opposition and affected a bridgehead through which the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg passed and penetrated two miles inland.

One Regt. 20 Mins. Late

The Royal Regiment was due at Puits at 4:40 a.m. but due to a change in course as a result of the chance encounter with the escorted tanker did not get there until twenty minutes later, in broad daylight.

"The enemy garrison at this point were manning formidable prepared defences were well provided with machine guns and mortars and were on the alert", said the statement.

"In consequence the Royal Regiment came under fire before landing and under very intense fire at the moment of touching the beach. Although the troops rushed to the attack through a deadly cross-fire with the utmost gallantry, the regiment suffered extremely heavy casualties and only a temorary lodgement was obtained".

The statement said the first wave of tanks was landed successfully at Dieppe and valuable knowledge was gained. Some tanks penetrated the town but others did not get off the beach. The Engineers worked gallantly but were unable fully to breach the seawall and some of the tanks could not cross it.

The difficulties of withdrawal after the raid were increased because the enemy succeeded in bringing a number of mobile batteries, mortars and additional infantry into operation. This enabled him to heavy fire on the beaches and sea approaches. Despite fighter cover, German dive bombers were able to make sporadic attacks on the ships.

The navy, however, went to the beaches again and again to take off the troops and many acts af gallantry were performed. The expedition returned to England under an umbrella of Air Force fighters which prevented any serious interference.

Wonderful Support

The statement spoke in glowing terms of the support given to the army by the navy and the air force — in both of which large numbers of Canadians were included — and described the demonstration of the officacy of arrangements made for inter-service co-operation as one of the valuable results of the operation.

"The distinguished part played in these operations by both Canadian sailors and Canadian airmen has excited the warmest appreciation on the part of the Canadian army," the statement said.

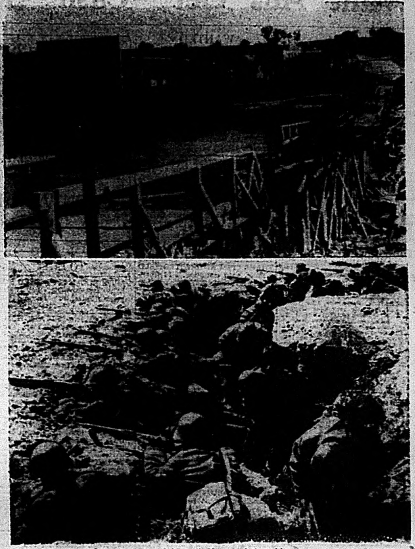
One flotilla of landing craft was manned almost entirely by Canadian naval personnel and many other Canadian naval officers and men served. In a hazardous rescue of some men of the Royal Regiment a Canadian and an English sailor sacrificed their lives.

Two army co-operation squadrons of the Royal Canadian Air Force did excellent work in the air fighting and suffered losses.

Canadian fighter squadrons were also in action and many Canadian airmen served in the Royal Air Force squadrons engaged.

Russians Fight Stubbornly Against German Invader As Winter Approaches

These pictures tell the full story of the fall of Rostov, of the violence of the attack, of the dogged resistance; how every street was turned into a stronghold from which the Russians exacted heavy toll of the attackers and how finally they were overwhelmed by the sheer weight of metal. TOP ABOVE, a Nazi gun is being brought into the breach in the barricade to cover the next phase in the advance of German infantry. In the LOWER German infantry are seen crawling forward with the support of field guns, operating on the opposite side of the street. According to the German caption the fiercest resistance was encountered in the very heart of the town and the streets leading to the harbor.



As the chill gets into the air in Russia, the Red army is making an almost superhuman effort to hold the German hordes back. TOP ABOVE is pictured a wrecked bridge in the path of the German retreat near Rzhev. The German inscription "single-track bridge—drive slowly" still remains, although the bridge itself was destroyed when Soviet forces drove the enemy back from the Zubtrov area, near Rhaev. BELOW is another official U.S.S.R. photograph showing Red army infantry protecting one of their own flanks and holding the enemy from the cover of a hastily dug shallow trench.

ALLIED BOMBERS BLAST JAP SUPPLY BASES

Vichy Hints New British Landing In E. Madagascar

DESTROYER ASSINIBOINE RAMS, SINKS U-BOAT

Fires at Rabaul, Jap-Held Port, Visible 50 Miles

27 Burned Barges, Used by Enemy To Carry Supplies Seen at Burma

SALAMANA ATTACKED

Allied Headquarters, Australia, Sept. 19 (CP).—For the second successive day Allied bombers yesterday blasted the Japanese bases in New Guinea and New Britain from which supplies and reinforcements are sent to enemy forces held in check by Australian troops only 32 airline miles from Port Moresby.

Bombers made a "harassing night raid" on Rabaul, New Britain—also an important Japanese base for operations in the Solomon Islands—and started fires visible for 50 miles, an Allied communique said. Salamana, Lae and Buna in New Guinea also were attacked.

The most immediate supply point for the Japanese now trying to push down the south side of the Owen Stanley range toward Port Moresby is at Buna on the northeast New Guinea coast. Allied fighters swooped down on Japanese transport and supply facilities there and poured burst after burst of machine-gun and cannon fire into them.

A reconnaissance unit, surveying the effect of Thursday's attack on the port, reported 27 burned barges, used to carry supplies along the coast, on the beach.

Farther up the New Guinea coast at Salamaua and Lae, heavy bombers started "numerous fires", the communique said.

Fighting on the road to Port Moresby yesterday was described in the communique as minor and apparently still centred in the vicinity of the village of Ioribaiva on the south side of the range. The action presumably was limited to patrol skirmishes in difficult terrain, which both the Australians and Japanese have found suited for infiltration, ambush and flanking manoeuvres.

Resistance To Japanese In Timor.

A spokesman said today that organized resistance to the Japanese is continuing on the island of Timor northwest of Darwin, Australia. A small force of Australians has held out there against bitter Japanese efforts to dislodge and destroy it, the spokesman said.

The Japanese first landed on Timor in late February, but now have a large force there, compelling the Australian units to remain on the defensive, he said. At one time, he added, the Australians broke up a Japanese attack and forced the invaders to withdraw.

Hepburn Complains Of Sugar-Coated News From Ottawa

Cornwall, Ont., Sept. 19 (CP).—A plea to "forget our politics" and a charge that Canada was being "fed sugar-coated news by paid propagandists in Ottawa" were voiced by Premier Hepburn of Ontario in a speech here Friday night.

Mr. Hepburn said: "What we want to see is Canada saved and the time is coming fast when Canadian people are going to rise in one voice and demand a total war effort. For heaven's sake let us forget our politics and do our all for the war effort.

He called on Canadians to awaken from their apathy and realize the seriousness of the situation. Asking his listeners to study the map of Europe and Asia and compare it with the way it looked before the war began, he said: "We have not won anything yet."

The Ontario premier, who spoke under the auspices of the Cornwall Kinsmen Club, asserted: "We are not taking the war seriously enough and may pay for it in blood, sweat, tears and slavery."

He charged that the dominion was not prepared for the war in which the country is engaged and added that "Canada faces the darkest hours in her history".

Bread and Butter Relished by Crew Of Sunken U-Boat

An Atlantic Port, Sept. 19—(CP)—White bread and butter was a great treat for German prisoners captured by the Canadian destroyer Assiniboine when she sank a submarine, members of the Assiniboine crew revealed when they reached port.

They said the Germans were fed up and glad the war was over for them but were still stout-Nazis. For a few minutes the U-boat crew thought they were going to be shot as they had been told Canadians did not take prisoners.

When a guard summoned five of them to come on deck the others shook hands with them and said goodbye. But the Canadians were just taking them up five at a time for exercise.

Limitless quantities of water for drinking and washing amazed the Germans as much as the white bread and butter.

"They had been at sea for more than 30 days and they certainly looked like it," said one of the guards.

One prisoner, named Bill Frederich, said he had lived on a farm in Manitoba before the war but spoke little English and did not elaborate.

"They enjoyed their food and were surprised by the good quality of it," said Ordinary Seaman Albert Lindsay of Hamilton, Ont.

"One could see they hadn't had good grub for a long time."

TOTAL CASUALTIES NOW 6,300

Ottawa, Sept. 19 —(CP)— Canadian army casualties in killed, wounded, missing and prisoners since the outbreak of war now total approximately 6,300, National Defence Headquarters announced today.

Nearly 2,000 were in the Canadian force at Hong Kong; nearly 1,000 others in various theatres but chiefly in the United Kingdom, are listed as killed, wounded, missing or prisoners; and the casualties suffered at Dieppe so far total more than 3,350.

Anti-Nazi Reporters Risk Lives To Probe Weakness of German Regime

By LOUIS De JONG

Louis De Jong, at 28, has had a distinguished newspaper career. As editor of De Groene Amsterdammer, vigorously anti-Nazi weekly, De Jong published an expose, 10 days before the invasion of Holland, of the Dutch Nazis' plans to organize fifth-column aid to the Germans. After the invasion, De Jong escaped to Britain where he has been doing journalistic work since.

London, Sept. 19 — (Aneta to CP) — A new kind of journalism has sprung up in occupied Holland. Reporters are daily risking their lives to dig up stories. Probing into the weaknesses of the Nazi regime, exhorting the people to remain firm and united, the Dutch underground press is serving as an effective voice of the anti-Nazi movement, working toward the day when an Allied invasion will bring liberation from the German hordes.

It is a risky work. Only a few weeks ago the German high court in Utrecht condemned four Netherlanders to death and three others to long prison sentences for publishing and distributing an illegal paper calling for anti-German sabotage. But every time one paper is suppressed another appears.

The first batch of underground newspapers to be smuggled out of Holland has just reached London.

Among them are these items:

At the end of April a train loaded with military supplies arrived in Rotterdam. When the last freight car, which should have contained hundreds of new machine-guns, was opened, it was found to be empty....

Since last autumn thousands of German workers have been working to complete that part of the west wall facing the Netherlands frontier, indicating that the Nazis are reckoning with the possibility they may have to retreat from Holland ....

Half of the 3,000 Germans on the staff of the German Commissioner, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, have been called up for military service on the Eastern front ....

Typical of the underground papers is De Oranje Krant — the Orange Journal — which made its first appearance on a freezing night last January, distributed by thousands of patriots, many of them children.

Under the motto "Vivere Militaire Est" — "To live is to struggle — the Orange Journal declared that it is "aped and published in the occupied Netherlands—intolerable reading matter for Huns and traitors."

Contents of the paper include quotations from prominent German writers who as long as 30 years ago advocated annexation of the Netherlands and Scandinavia, an editorial declaring that "Germany should not get another chance to enslave Europe," a detailed report on black-marked activities with a call to patriots to double their black market purchases and turn over half of the goods to those who cannot pay current sky-high prices.

RUSSIAN RESERVES REPULSE NAZIS AT STALINGRAD

Reds Fence off Their Holdings With Gun And Bayonet And Give No Ground

NAZIS USE RUSE

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Sept. 19 —(AP)— Reinforced Red army troops battled vigorously within Stalingrad and upon the exposed Nazi left flank there today in a supreme effort to halt and turn back German divisions whose vanguards are dangerously close to the city's heart.

Guns flamed in other sectors from the Karelian front to the central Caucasus and Russians emphasized Soviet gains in a diversionary offensive in the Voronesh area, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

The Germans, however, developed continuous attacks both in the northwestern section of Stalingrad and against a Soviet-held height dominating the centre of the city. Some of the invaders were reported arrayed in Red army uniforms.

Siberian-trained troops moved into the firing lines at Stalingrad. They were among the thousands headed westward to join the Red army's veterans.

(Some of these may have struck directly across the Volga at the neck of the Axis salient into the industrial centre, for the Berlin communique claimed a "relief attack made by strong enemy infantry and armored units from the north" against a German wedge "collapsed with heavy loss."

(The German communique may have been referring simply to counter-attacks from Stalingrad, but the Russians have placed the northwestern battle sector within the outskirts of the city.)

Russ Smash Nazi Defence-Works

The Russians said Red army men, slashing through a network of barbed wire, mine fields, pillboxes and dugouts, had captured several additional settlements in the basin of the upper Don about Voronezh and that street fighting was progressing in others.

Karelian front-troops were credited with the capture of an important height in hand-to-hand

Methodical Occupation Of Great Island By British Proceeds

London, Sept. 19 (CP). — The Vichy radio broadcast a Madagascar announcement today that British forces have occupied Brickaville, on the east coast of Madagascar 100 miles due east of Tananarive, the capital. This announcement indicated another landing has been made on the island.

Brickaville is 70 miles southwest of Tamatave, Madagascar's chief commercial port, where British forces made their first landings on the east coast yesterday following their original west coast landings ten days ago.

Both a highway and railroad connect Brickaville and Tananarive and it presumably was to gain access to these strategic communications that the British Command put the new force ashore today. The Vichy French described it as composed of light untis.

There was no immediate report from Vichy on the progress of British forces pushing toward Tananarive from four landings on the west coast.

A British commentator in London said, however, that the methodical occupation of Madagascar is proceeding and that one British column advancing from Majunga, on the west coast, is less than 60 miles from Tananarive.

This informant said there is a possibility that Vichy French forces might be concentrating at the capital for a stand but that at present resistance is negligible and only a few British casualties have been suffered.

A mysterious station identifying itself as "France Libre D'Outre Mer"—Free France of the Farther Seas—was heard at Port Louis, Mauritius, vigorously assailing the Vichy government's policy in Madagascar.

Accounts of this broadcast relayed from the nearby British island of Maurritius said the mystery station urged Madagascar citizens to demand that Armand Annet, governor general of the island, disclose British armistice terms which he rejected.

The station expressed doubt that French troops were willing to continue the fight as Annet was exhorting them to do.

Countering this broadcast a Vichy French station, apparently located somewhere in Madagascar, poured out a high-pitched stream of anti-British propaganda.

Mine Foe Waters, Attack Shipping

London, Sept. 19 —(CP)— A large force of bombers scattered mines in enemy waters last night, Coastal Command and naval aircraft attacked shipping off The Netherlands coast and fighter pilots raided railway targets in occupied France, the Air Ministry announced today.

Five bombers were lost in the night operations, the communique said.

The Air Ministry made no mention of any bomber attacks on German Baltic ports by British bombers as reported by today's German High Command communique.

AUGUST EXPENDITURES

Ottawa, Sept. 19 (CP)—Dominion government expenditures in August totalled $301,363,381, the office of the Comptroller of the Treasury reported today, against $14,122,025 in August, 1941.

Biggest item was war expenditure, at $173,404,422 compared with $98,922,813 in the same month a year ago. Expenses under the United Kingdom War Financing Act 1942 (the $1,000,000,000 gift-to-Britain measure) amounted to $100,000,000.

Tokio Story Says Japanese Secretary Has Been Recalled

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—The German radio broadcast today a Tokyo dispatch saying that the first secretary of the Japanese Embassy at Kuibyshev, Russia, had been recalled for consultation. The dispatch, by Transocean, said that the diplomat, Funao Miyagawa, probably would leave the Russian provisional capital Sept. 25.

ONE OF FOUR SONS SAFE

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 19. (CP) — Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy of Windsor, mother of four sons reported missing after the Dieppe raid last month, found comfort today in the knowledge that Pte. Willie Murphy youngest of the four, was reported officially a prisoner of war.

Last month Mrs. Murphy, a widow of four months, received four cables in 24 hours informing her that her boys, all members of the Essex Scottish regiment, had failed to return from Dieppe.

"I shall go on hoping for the best, no matter what happens", the mother said at that time.

Today she awaits news of her other three boys, Ptes. Bob, James and Joseph, of whom she has received no word since shortly after the Dieppe raid.

FOUR-TON BOMBS USED TO SMASH GERMAN INDUSTRY

Have Been Used Very Effectively in Raids On Duesseldorf And Karlsruhe

NO DESCRIPTION

London, Sept. 19 (CP).—A giant four-ton bomb designed to smash steel and concrete buildings and shatter lighter structures for blocks, already has been used to blight German cities, it was disclosed today, and some British air observers hailed the monster destroyer as the "war's deadliest weapon".

The new bombs—which the Air Ministry said were used with devastating effect in recent attacks on Karlsruhe and Duesseldorf — were accepted as a sign the allies are planning to scourge the Reich with the deadliest instruments of destruction they can bring to the job in the shortest possible time.

In Karlsruhe, 270 acres were laid waste and more than a square mile of Duesseldorf was wrecked when the giant bombs were employed Sept. 2, the Air Ministry said. Thousands of fire bombs were showered among the wreckage to spread great fires.

Months of Research.

The four-ton bombs were said to have been perfected after months of research. A large bomber then carried one to Germany and dropped it over an area not previously attacked. Aerial photographs were taken to show its effect.

About a year ago the Air Ministry reported the use of two-ton bombs on Naples and said "great havoc was caused, buildings being seen swaying outwards and then falling in toward the point of the bomb bursts." Now the weight of the biggest bombs has been doubled.

Londoners who saw the shattering effect of Germany's largest bombs—believed to be about 3,000 pounds—cheered when they heard the R.A.F. is using bombs nearly three times as heavy.

Only a few types of the largest bombers are able to lift the new bombs off the ground.

German broadcasts telling the German people not to keep large pieces of British bombs as souvenirs were taken by observers as an indication Germany is anxious to obtain details of the construction of this new weapon.

British officials were tight-lipped on details of the bomb and refused to permit even vague descriptions.

British Evacuate Coast Residents

London, Sept. 19 —(CP)— The War Office announced today that all inhabitants of a "considerable area" in the east riding of Yorkshire, facing the North Sea, would be evacuated and the district taken over entirely for military purposes.

Now Reported Safe or War Prisoners In 158th Army Casualty List

Ottawa, Sept. 19 (CP)—Six soldiers previously reported killed at the battle Dieppe, now are reported alive, five of them as prisoners of war, and two men previously reported missing are safe, National Defence headquarters reported today in the 158th. army casualty list.

The list also reports one man a prisoner who was previously reported wounded and missing and 43 as prisoners who were previously reported missing.

Lt.-Col. Douglas E. Catto of Toronto, officer commanding the Royal Regiment, is among those formerly reported killed in action who now are reported prisoners. The others are Major J. C. MacTavish, of Moose Jaw, Sask.; Major Elmer W. White, of Estevan, Sask.; and Lieuts. P. R. Clarke of Portage La Prairie, Man., and C. W. Bath of Toronto.

The man previously reported killed but now safe is Pte. Thomas H. Herbert of Sintaluta, Sask., and the two previously missing and now safe are Ptes. Leo Fortin, home address unknown, and Robert Lefebvre of Montreal.

The list also reported the death of Spr. Donald W. Sanford of Clementsport, N.S., a casualty presumably not connected with the battle of Dieppe.

The list reported officially that Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt of Vancouver, officer commanding the South Saskatchewan Regiment, is alive but a prisoner.

Col. Merritt's gallantry in the action was described in a statement issued yesterday by the Department of National Defence which said he was last seen collecting weapons and organizing a group to cover the withdrawal of his men from the beaches.

Close Range Battle One of Manoeuvre And of Gunfire

One of Epics of Sea Written by Commander and Crew Of Assiniboine

NAZI CREW PICKED UP

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 19 (CP).—Out of the fog banks of the Atlantic today came stories of valor, grim close-range fighting and loss of stout ships.

On the heels of announcement of the loss of two Canadian fighting ships naval service headquarters told the story of how one German U-boat was sent to the bottom in a battle which may well be unique in naval annals.

The victor over the U-boat was the destroyer Assiniboine which finally rammed the enemy after a gun battle fought at such close range that neither ship could use its torpedoes nor its heavy guns. The action was fought somewhere in the western Atlantic.

Germans and Canadians, looking into each other's faces, fired at one another with machine-guns and light cannon. The men on the destroyer hurled depth charges, one of which bounced off the deck of the submarine, and the Germans used their light "Oerlikan" gun which fires small shells at a rapid rate with telling effect.

The reported incidents were merely clues to the ebb and flow of sea warfare in the North Atlantic area in which the Royal Canadian Navy has been hotly engaged recently.

One of Series of Achievements.

The Assiniboine's achievement in sinking one U-boat is only one of the scores marked up to the credit of Canada and the United Nations. The navy will tell about others when the time is ripe and that will be when the information will not help the enemy.

Battle of Dieppe As Viewed By New York Newspaper

New York, Sept. 19 (CP).—The New York Herald Tribune said editorially today that had the Canadian-led raid on Dieppe which gained an entry into the town been followed up in force, "as would have been the case in a real invasion, the losses of the attackers would have appeared in a different perspective."

"Those losses were undoubtedly high," the paper continued. "They indicate, grimly, the nature of the German defences along the occupied coast and form a measure of the gallantry of the Canadian troops who made up the great bulk of the attackers. But it is not necessarily too high a price to pay for the lessons of the Dieppe operation, neither is it a yardstick whereby to measure the cost of opening a second front . . ."

The paper said enough is contained in Defence Minister Ralston's report on the Dieppe operation "to provide food for thought—and, despite the high percentage of losses among the land troops, hope—for the nations who are looking to the day when crossing the channel becomes more than an affair of Commandos, more than a reconnaissance in force; to the day when the counter-invasion of western Europe begins."

Two Student Pilots Killed Near Calabogie

Calabogie, Ont., Sept. 19 —(CP)—Two student pilots from Uplands Airport, near Ottawa, were killed late yesterday when their training plane crashed into the bank of the Madawaska River near Calabogie.

One of the dead was LAC. Arthur Wellington Ault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Ault of Ottawa.

Royal Canadian Air Force authorities in Ottawa withheld the name of the other flier, pending notification of next-of-kin.

Calabogie is in Renfrew county 65 miles west of Ottawa.

The plane, a Harvard trainer, was one of a flight of three machines on a routine training flight. When the ill-fated aircraft failed to return to its flight a search was begun.

Meanwhile two Calabogie river workers, William Ropelle and Dominic Clenen, who saw the crash, had sent word here and R.C.A.F. authorities at Ottawa were notified.

LAC. Ault was to have received his wings at Uplands next Friday. Born in Ottawa; he attended Glebe Collegiate, and was a well-known football player and skier in the capital.

Sqdr. Ldr. George A. Ault, assistant judge advocate-general at R.C.A.F. headquarters overseas, is a brother.

BURGLARS RANSACK BOTTLING WORKS OF FOY AND IRWIN

Burglars broke and entered the premises of the Foy and Irwin bottling works, Pinnacle Street, sometime Friday night and although they ransacked office drawers the marauders found no reward for their efforts. The break-in was discovered by employees coming on duty Saturday morning. P.C. Wright investigated and found that entrance had been gained by breaking a main floor window and reaching inside to unlock the window and climb inside. Cash was the object of the break-in as all office furniture was ransacked but nothing reported missing. Shortly after midnight Friday police investigated a report that a car was parked alongside of the bottling plant, but investigations at that time revealed no signs of any person lurking in the vicinity.

PO. Geo. Pepper Awarded D.F.C. For "Consistent and Skilful Flying in Face of Danger"

London, Sept. 19 —(CP Cable)— Canada's ever-growing honors list was increased yesterday with announcement of awards to four Canadian airmen, two of them for heroism during the Dieppe raid.

The Distinguished Flying Cross went to Fl. Lt. James Witham of Edmonton, PO. George Allan Casey, Mitchell, Ont., and PO. George Pepper, native of Belleville, Ont., now living in England. Sgt. Clarence Scott of Tisdale, Sask., was awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal.

Witham, member of a famed Canadian fighter squadron, received his decoration for bravery and initiative in a large number of sorties over enemy territory while the award to Pepper was for consistent and skilful flying in the face of danger.

Scott's award resulted from a thrilling episode over Dieppe. He was wireless operator-air gunner in an aircraft detailed to attack a selected target prior to the troop landings. The bombing was accomplished, but on the return flight his aircraft was attacked by a Focke-Wulf 190 and set afire.

As the plane plunged into the sea near the French coast Scott gave the enemy a final burst from his guns. He was thrown clear when the plane struck the water and soon became aware his two flying companions were in the wreckage.

Rescues Crew

The gunner inflated his "Mae West" jacket and swam to the spot where his crewmates had come up unconscious. Scott held the pilot's head above water while he inflated his jacket, then he inflated the crashed plane's dinghy and pushed the pilot into it. Next he swam to the observer's side, blew up his jacket and got him into the dinghy. He was spotted by a British aircraft which sent a rescue launch.

Scott's citation yesterday said: "In the face of extreme danger this gallant airman displayed conspicuous courage and determination in his resolve to save his comrades, both of whom were injured and in distress."

Scott suffered a sprained ankle and a deep cut over the eye.

Casey was wireless operator-air gunner in the leading aircraft of a formation of bombers detailed to carry out a smoke-bomb attack in support of the Dieppe operations. He met considerable fire and his plane was hit repeatedly. One engine was put out of action and Casey was wounded in both thighs while his R.A.F. co-gunner was critically injured.

The bombs were released from low level and Casey, disregarding his injuries, engaged enemy defences whenever they came within reach of his guns.

Seek Farm Help

Considerable discussion arose when a letter from Mr H. H. Reed, local manager of the Employment and Claims Office, was read requesting that some measures be taken to postpone the opening of the Belleville Collegiate Institute in order to have students assist in the harvesting of the tomato crop. "The situation is accute and farmers in the district need at least 100 hands to help in the picking and canning of the tomato crop," wrote Mr. Reed.

"I cannot support the further postponing of the opening of the collegiate year. The students are walking the streets now," remarked Chairman Sisler, who added he was in favor of co-operating in any measure in assisting in the harvesting of the tomato crop.

"I would think this is purely a case of arrangements between Acting Principal Turner and the pupils, if they desire to work on the land," commented Col. E. A. Geen.

"Couldn't Mr. Reed come to the collegiate on opening day and address the student body regarding this matter?" suggested William Harrison. Following further discussions the board voted to leave the matter in the hands of Mr. Turner and the students desiring to assist in this vital work. According to directions from the Department of Education any pupil desiring to assist in farm work during the month of September will be credited with school attendance, reported Secretary-Administer Kells.

On application of Mrs. G. M. Miller, the local Hospitality Club was granted the use of the Collegiate gymnasium and cafeteria for the entertainment of the armed services for the fall term. A request for additional dental clinics in the public schools made by Dr. M. Clarke was referred back to the school management committee.

In accordance with regulations governing the establishment of general shap and home economics courses, the pupils in Grade VIII of the public schools will be admitted to classes of woodwork, domestic science, etc., one-half day per week at the collegiate. The board also voted to open the vocational school to pupils of adjacent counties. Accounts for various alterations and decorations at the Collegiate Institute completed during the summer vacation were ordered paid and Mr. Clarence Garbutt was placed on the regular staff of janitors t the B.C.I.V.S.

Miss Harriet Cronk, B.A., was offered the position of secretary in the office of the principal of the collegiate, while the secretary-administrator was empowered to employ a stenographer for the same office. Outstanding Entertainment Program Will Feature Belleville Fair

Three big days, crammed full of continuous activity and points of exceptional interest, and with exhibits well above that of the average year, are offered to local patrons of the Belleville Fair this season.

Monday, the first day of the fair, has been specifically designated as Military Day with all members of the armed forces in uniform to be admitted to the grounds free of charge, both afternoon and evening. An outstanding military parade with personnel from district military units, both men and women divisions, will be staged in the evening, following which the fair will be officially opened by a distinguished military man.

Baby Show Monday Afternoon

Two big attractions on Monday afternoon and evening will be the Baby Show scheduled for 3 o'clock at the grandstand while in the evening will be the field demonstration of the Commando unit of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment which will stage a realistic attack force with all the thrills of an actual raid included. This demonstration will take place inside the race track in full view of the patrons from the grandstand.

Entries for the fair exceed those of last year by a considerable margin, it has been assured by exhibition officials, with heavy horses, sheep and swine entries being the greatest in the history of the fair.

Twenty stallions, including one-year-olds, will grace the stock pens, while a proportionate number of heavy draught horses will be on exhibition. Exhibits in certain classes of cattle will also be larger than in other years, while there is also a large entry of ladies' work and farm and garden produce.

Monday a Busy Day

Order of the day for Monday will be the placing of exhibits and the judging of dairy products, roots and vegetables, fruits, plants, flowers, ladies' work, fine arts, and domestic science. The Baby Show will be the centre of interest for mothers during the afternoon and Secretary Denyes has given assurance entries of babies for the show will be accepted right up until the time judging commences at three o'clock.

Conklin's Midway, admittedly one of the finest in the Dominion, will be the centre of attraction along "the great white way," and is certain to draw its usual voice of approval from the younger patrons of the fair. A full repertoire of rides, shows of all kinds, and dozens of other attractions are promised to make this phase of the exhibition as attractive as possible.

Fine Grandstand Performances

Garden Brothers will stage the grandstand performances on all three afternoons and evenings of the fair and a complete show is assured. The acts will range all the way from popular singing and dancing number, to the circus performances of a two-ring circus with a menagerie of well trained animals to delight the younger patrons.

As an added treat Garden Brothers are featuring western ranch rodeo act with all the frills of an actual mid-state cattle roundup. Cowboys dressed in the characteristic garb of a rider of the range will demonstrate to a Belleville audience the technique of roping and hog-tying wild steers, of riding bucking bronchos in true western style, while cowgirls will give exhibitions of fancy riding feats.

Another feature of the Belleville Fair will be the opportunity of patrons to enjoy dancing on the three nights of the exhibition. Never before has this feature been offered to patrons of the fair and the novelty is almost certain to appeal to the numbers who regularly attend the Park Pavilion.

GIRL EMPLOYEES COMPLAIN OF MEN THROWING TOMATOES

Complaints that two men in a motor car were throwing over-ripe tomatoes at female employees of the Deacon Shirt Company resulted in police questioning Douglas Wannamaker and Walter Kamp both of Trenton, at an early hour here Saturday morning. The girls were standing in front of the shirt company premises on Dundas St shortly after three o'clock Saturday morning when a motor car drove past several times and on each occasion the passenger in the vehicle, said to be Kamp, hurled tomatoes at the girls who were awaiting transportation home. Police questioned the men at the police station and later released them, but the matter is still under police observation. Constables Ellis and Wright apprehended the men after the girl had lodged the complaint. Several of the tomatoes hit the girls causing damage to their clothing.

Hitler Thrown Off Schedule By Reds' Stand

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

The Russian last-ditch stand at Stalingrad, described by the Nazis as "embittered" and "suicidal", has thrown Hitler off schedule at least another day.

The fact must be that the Nazi attempt to storm the city streets from the northwest was more "suicidal" than the Russian defense.

German casualties inevitably were heavier than those of Russian defenders who first contained the twin thrusts in a house-to-house battle, then drove the attackers out. In close quarter action of that type, the attacker invariably pays a heavier casualty price several times over than the defender.

The Russian success in expelling the first invader units may not guarantee that Nazi follow-up drives of the same nature can be turned back.

Stalingrad is so certainly proven now both a symbol and a strategic pivot which Hitler must have at any price that it is a fair guess he is lashing his generals and troops to outmatch the Russians in suicidal determination. Yet that first repulse tended to confirm the impression that when the battle reached the street-fighting stage, the odds against the Russians lessened rather than increased.

The enemy could not bring to bear in such close action and on so restricted a manoeuvre field, his dive-bombers or tank superiority. Man to man, the Russians stood him off. Only by throwing overwhelmingly superior manpower at terrible cost into the fight can the city be reduced.

London has forwarded a report from Moscow that at the supreme moment orders to counter-attack, not to stand and die where they fought, were issued to all Russian units in Stalingrad. They stressed that every house or hill regained meant time lost to Hitler. There were also Moscow reports of reinforcements from Central Siberia pouring into the battle along the Don and Volga.

Stalingrad does not offer the Russians a base for a major counter offensive. Massing within the city any more troops than could be effectively used in street fighting would merely be to double or treble losses unless Russian planes were available to keep off Nazi bombers.

If Siberian reinforcements are coming up, they must be heading for some other point in the line, probably for the Russian-held bridgeheads south of the Don along the north face of the great river bend. That is the only discernable point where a second-front operation might develop which could conceivably free Stalingrad from its dire peril.

It is too late for Russian counter pressure far to the north to influence greatly the trend of the Stalingrad battle. It has long been too late for an Anglo-American second-front assault from the west to ease pressure on Russia at that point.

Nor do Canadian losses in the Dieppe operations amounting to substantially two-thirds of the total force of 5,000 Canadians engaged, suggest that mass Allied landing operations across the English Channel are soon to be expected.

Whatever else was learned by the Allied High Command at Dieppe, the lesson that a real counter-invasion attempt to carry the war to Germany from the west must await far greater expansion of Anglo-American aid and sea power as well as manpower than has yet been attained seems dominant.

Record Collection Taken at Session Of General Council

Something of a record in church collections was established at Bridge Street United Church last Wednesday night, after the General Council had concluded its broadcast to the nation over a coast-to-coast CBC radio network.

In fact, as one commissioner put it, "It was the realization of a minister's dream."

Commissioners passed the collection plates to the 286 members of the council and when the money was counted it amounted to the magnificent sum of $969.

But this is not all. Friday night during the final evening session of council someone suggested that another collection be taken in order to bring the amount to $1,000. This was done and commissioners gave another $62.

Then to top these substantial financial contributions, a British Columbia commissioner stepped forward and laid the total amount of his General Council expenses on the table, amounting to $130.

So, through the generosity of its General Council Commissioners the United Church will reduce its deficit by the sum of $1,161.

Third Victory Loan

One month hence the citizens of Canada will begin subscribing to the Third Victory Loan, the objective of which has been set at $750,000,000. This is higher than the previous loan objectives the last of which in February was set at $600,000,000 and far exceeded that amount as every one realizes, almost touching the billion mark counting conversions.

The people of Canada realize the responsibility of supporting the loan as one of the essential steps to be taken along the road to victory. As incentives they have the fine record of past loan achievements and their knowledge of the necessity of making the loan a success but greatest of all they have the supreme example of devotion, heroism and sacrifice made in the Battle of Dieppe by the boys and men who there showed the full measure of service to their country.

Wheat and Other Grains

Wheat and other grains have always occupied the greatest interest of mankind. The fate of nations and empires has depended upon the grasses which have been developed as wheat, rye, oats, barley and corn.

Wheat, which is the most productive of the cereal grasses, dates from prehistoric times. The Chinese people cultivated it in 2700 B.C., as a direct gift from heaven and the Egyptians and Greeks of old called it the gift of the gods.

The native country of wheat is supposed to have been the region of central Asia, but a grass of the Mediterranean borders becomes by cultivation transformed into wheat and may be regarded as associated with the original form. Wheat is now the breadstuff of very many nations.

The first planted in the United States was planted in 1602.

In the year 1915 during the First World War, the world production was over four billion bushels.

Canada this year has produced the greatest crop of wheat of any year, 615,000,000 bushels, the Bureau of Statistics has stated. This is almost double of last year's crop and exceeds the high previous record of 1928 by 48,000,000 bushels. In storage at this time is also a vast stores of about 400,000,000 bushels from previous years. So Canada has more than a billion bushels of wheat on hand. Storage is going to be one of the problems this year and the portion of the new crop that cannot be stored in terminal and country elevators, will be retained on the farms for the present.

Accounts have come from the West of storages set up in unused schools and churches, halls and even front rooms of farmhouses, according to the Ottawa Journal.

Wheat is not the only huge crop in Canada for all the grains have had a great year. This creates a problem, but the other day the Minister of Agriculture announced a far-reaching program of expansion of livestock feeding. This great task of turning so much grain into so many tons of meats is a great one, worthy of the Canadian producers.

So the barns of Canada are veritably bursting with the rich store of golden wheat and the other grains. In Europe a different story is known, parts of it are in sad plight through lack of food through the greed and rapacity of the Hun hordes.

With what envious bugle eyeballs must such Huns as Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and Hitler's food minister look upon this plenteous store of grain wealth which keeps man alive .One of the newer lands of the earth has produced this marvelous growth besides keeping up with her war effort, her enlistments for overseas and her home service program and her manufacture of arms of war.

Already arrangements have been made for an extension of credit for ten million dollars to enable the purchase by Russia of nine million bushel of Canada's wheat. This is not the only wheat to leave Canada for the east for this nation is sending fifteen thousand tons a month to the Greeks to remedy the great shortage of food and alleviate sufferings of these Greek Allies of the democratic nations.

Canada has developed the finest wheat. This is the record of a young nation and her capable farmers.

THE GENERAL COUNCIL

The General Council of the United Church of Canada concluded its important work in Bridge Street United Church yesterday afternoon.

For nine days, ranking dignitaries of the ministry and laity of the church discussed the important problems of one of the greatest religious bodies in the Dominion.

From the stormbound coast of Newfoundland and the sunny slopes of British Columbia; from the windswept prairies and the gardenlands of Ontario; from Northern Ontario and Quebec, from the cities, towns and hamlets of the vast Dominion came these serious minded men firm in purpose and with a sincere desire to do their duty by their Church and their God.

There was a sharp difference of opinion in many of the issues that came before the Council. It can never be said, to use a slang phrase, that the Tenth General Council Commissioners were "yes-men." Far from it.

Some of the most brilliant minds of the Dominion were present. Such men as the new Moderator, the Right Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Cclater; Dr. E. Leslie Pidgeon, Montreal; Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, Toronto; Drs. R. B. and J. C. Cochrane and many other men of outstanding intellect crossed verbal swords in brilliant debate. The law and judiciary were truly represented. The men from the rural areas, and the lonely stretches of, Northern Ontario and the great western prairie districts contributed their opinions to a brilliant mental whole that augurs well for the future of the United Church.

Many momentous decisions were made. There were no "snap-judgments." Every point, question, problem, resolution and recommendation was carefully thought out and debated in brilliant manner. Sentiment did not enter into the question of church legislation, as instanced in one lengthy debate between two college principals, Dr. R. G. Wallace, of Queen's University, and Dr. A. E. Kerr, of Pine Hill College, Halifax. They roomed together, yet their opinions were widely diversified on the debating floor.

Perhaps other religious bodies will not agree with some of the Tenth General Council's decisions on matters of national importance. Be that as it may. But whatever these decisions may be, it must be said they were made from a point of an ernest desire on the part of the United Church for the betterment of conditions without and within the Church in Canada.

That their decisions are sincere and clean cut in their design is evidenced in the fact that the Dominion Government took immediate action on one of them after being presented with resolutions of the Council on the issue involved.

The United Church of Canada should indeed be proud of its representatives on the General Council, and of the splendid work it has done to further the interests of the Church and the people of the nation as a whole.

It should be proud of the choice made by the Council for its chief executive. The new Moderator, the Right Rev. Dr. J. R. P. Sclater, is a man of rare charm and intellect. His keen mind and engaging personality stood throughout the nine days of debate and decision. Beloved by all, his friendly manner and amiability, his rare sense of humor and a marked Christian attitude, endeared him to those with whom he had not come in contact until his election to the highest post in the church.

Perhaps the unsung heroes of the Session were the quiet unassuming members of the congregation of the host church. It is a work of no small proportions for a congregation to look after the welfare of two hundred and eighty-six guests of the church. Committees of not only Bridge Street but other United Churches of the city as well as Albert College toiled diligently far from the glare of publicity, and earned the sincere gratitude of the visiting commissioners.

To Dr. James Semple, Mr. H. B. Fetterley and others of the United Church in the city must go the palms of congratulation. Their efforts were no small contributing factors to the unqualified success of the Council here. They had a difficult job to do and they did it well.

This city is proud of the honor conferred upon it in the presence of these distinguished men of the United Church.

MEET MR. SOLON

Nowadays when we can't think of anything else to call a public official we call him a solon.

Even third-rate Congressmen and state legislators are gravely referred to as solons.

The term is short, convenient and fits neatly into headlines.

Solon (pronounced SO-l'n) was was really one of the first New Dealers in history.

He "flourished" in Athens about 600 years B.C. In his earlier years he wrote "amatory" and "didactic" verse, dabbled in philosophy, led the Athenians in several successful campaigns against neighboring Greek states, and acquired a prodigious reputation for wisdom and prudence.

Later generations included him among the seven wise men of Greece. "Know thyself" was the motto ascribed to Solon in the temple of Apollo at Delphi.

About 594 B.C. Attica was having a serious depression and there was a popular demand for a new deal.

So Solon, the scholar, soldier and statesman, was made chief of state with almost unlimited powers to revise the constitution and the laws.

He did such a good job that he has become the model statesman and law-giver of all time.

Solon extended the vote to the masses, opened the assembly to all freemen, annulled unreasonable mortgages and debts of the poor, granted relief to tenant farmers, made contracts infringing the liberty of individuals illegal, restricted the amount of land that the rich could add to their holdings, introduced an income tax, established a jury system, cut down interest rates, forbade all exports except olive oil, lowered the cost of funerals, tried a little inflation and a lot of other things.

Some historians say that Solon did the spadework for democracy in Greece.

But, as often happens in such cases, there was considerable opposition to the sweeping policies of Solon.

After a year in office, the sage concluded it would be better for his health to go abroad and so he spent the next ten years in travel.

Now, more than 2,500 years later the dictionary defines "solon" as "A legislator; publicist; wise man; sage; wise-acre—often humorous."

Advantages of Dried Plasma For Blood Transfusion

For many years the lives of patients suffering from shock and loss of blood were saved by injecting into their veins blood obtained from individual whose blood matched that of the patient. The delay in obtaining the individual to give his blood was sometimes fatal and so hospitals began, and still do, store the blood according to type for use in an emergency. It was later discovered that the use of the liquid part of the blood of any type could be used.

Recently it has been found that the plasma of the blood, when dried is likewise effective and can be stored away just as can the blood itself, and used in an emergency by adding the ordinary salt solution to it. Plasma is the liquid part of the blood which carries the corpuscles. In Annals of Internal Medicine, Drs. E. E. Muirhead and J. M. Hill, Dallas, Texas state the importance of producing a large volume of dried plasma and report the results they have obtained from using it in 275 cases in the regular or routine hospital service during twenty-one months. A total of six hundred and seventy-four doses of four times concentrated plasma (small and large doses) were given. Only five reactions occurred from these injections. All these reactions were of the kind where the temperature rises.

The disorders for which the plasma was given were shock, prevention of shock, burns, head injures, allergic symptoms due to eating protein, swelling of the tissues, and other conditions.

"The main emphasis in the treatment of shock is to restore the full amount of the blood to the circulation. Prevention of exposure, warm surroundings, and the giving of oxygen are of additional value".

It can readily be seen how valuable this dried plasma is going to be in war time, when the transportation of stored blood would be inadvisable if not impossible.

Also, it is possible to obtain mass production of dried plasma.

It will also be of great help in our civilian hospitals when blood donors are not available, and where, also stored blood is not always available.

Plymouth Carries On Undaunted by Ruins Of Homes and Stores

Following is a fine letter written by a district soldier describing Plymouth and how it appears today after surviving the blitz by the German air force.

England, 23 Aug. 42.

Dear Editor:

Sitting on top of the high cliffs surrounding Plymouth Harbor, I am writing from what I honestly think to be Britain's most blitzed city; a city that stands second to none from Hitler's revenge on these stalward Englishmen.

It is impossible to put on paper or even picture in ones mind what the eyes behold in this district, city, town and villages are all alike, have taken the steady rain of steel from Hitler's high explosives and incendiary fire setters. Street after street stores, apartments, churches and theatres none were spared. Miles of rubble piles wherever you gaze. Buildings that were entertainment palaces of this city stand bare skeletons, roofless, windowless reaching towards the sky.

Most churches though badly damaged, with rough lumber hiding the wrecked portion, some with half the structure missing, have a large congregation on each Sunday morning; you will see them with their Bible in one hand gas-mask in the other heading for the services of each denomination to thank God for the blessings of life; each individual with a happy smile, and "How do you do, Canada."

I have travelled miles by bus, train and boat, across the Cornish bays and Plymouth river basins, but the most interesting spectacle I have yet encountered is Plymouth Sound as seen from the high cliffs or by river steamer; this historical site is none other than the one picked by the Spanish Armada to land in Britain, but when Drake took time off from bowling on the green to change their minds, and end himself in the Hall of Fame. Today stands a large bronze statue on the same green, standing up there erect, gazing out to sea with a compass in one hand, the other on the handle of his long sword.

Beside this statue standing one hundred feet high in clear white stone is erected, in memory of England's sailors who died for Britain and her Allies in the last Great War. Hundreds of names of these Gallant Sons are engraved on the face of this massive stone. Twenty feet above the ground, in a restful position, are four large lions, two facing the sea and two facing the four river basins at the end of the sound.

As Plymouth has no sand beaches, the cliff face for a mile has been transformed into one of Britain's most beautiful summer spots with swimming pools, covered rest floors fitted with benches and camp chairs facing the sea with circular stairways all of white stone leading down to the wash of the waves. Numerous fountains throwing light blue water ten or twelve feet into the air and falling into the swimming pools keeping the water fresh as the sea. People of all walks of life can be seen walking along the vast driveways, sitting in camp chairs watching the endless chain of marine traffic go to and fro; meeting friends with the Devonshire saying "Allright" instead of "How are you,". The majority of these folks have worked their shift in factory or yard and go to the shore to rest and gaze at the blue horizon. Below this one can see hundreds of ferry boats, small craft and plenty of ocean going boats, all on the move to local communities on the Cornish coast and far off lands. Dozens of Britain's largest flying boats fly in and out, keeping the ever watchful patrol of the water surrounding this English port one of the finest in the land, one which Hitler's demons tried to damage.

To the average Canadian it is a wonderful picture one which will linger for a liftime. The vast damage this city has suffered where hundreds of innocent victims perished beneath the solid stone and brick walls of their homes; all for the sake of a mad demon seething in imaginary power who had put a stone heart into the human race against him but who will never conquer or get their trust again, but who with his followers will suffer the wrath in much larger proportions than this wonderful nation has had to suffer. May God bless them all. Long live the Mother Country

Keith VanDusen.

A PHEASANT GUEST

Peterborough, Ont., Sept. 19 (CP).—E. H. Jewell, of Peterborough, doesn't have to trek to the woods in search of wild life. A pheasant flew through the back door of his home recently, alighting in the midst of guests at his daughter's birthday party.

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Joseph C. Grew, former United States ambassador to Japan, in declaring yesterday at Syracuse, N.Y., that the Japs are tougher than the Germans, and will fight until utterly crushed, is trying to hammer home a truth which only in recent days has begun to register widely.

A good many people were suffering from distorted ideas about Nippon's vulnerability. Back at the time of Pearl Harbor a reader of this column wrote me a letter which was rather typical of a lot of current comment. He pooh-poohed my statement that the Japanese were hard eggs, and bragged:

"I've lived in the Orient and know my Japs. I'm only five feet four, but I never saw the day when I couldn't lick half a dozen of them, with one hand tied behind my back."

Now along comes Mr. Grew, who served as United States representative among these barbarians for a decade, to say that they "will not crack normally or psychologically or economically" and that "only by utter physical destruction or utter exhaustion of their men and materials can they be defeated." at the same time we are getting from the steaming jungle battlefields of the southwest Pacific island grim proof of the fanatical willingness of the Mikado's men to die.

When United States marines made their daringly successful invasion of Guadalcanal, not one of the many hundreds of Japs who were holding that island surrendered. Each went down in death, either fighting or like the three who battled until they had only three pistol bullets left, whereupon one of them shot his two comrades and then turned the gun upon himself.

Yes, the worshipers of the Rising Sun will take a lot of beating. What then is the basic strategy which will give best results? Let's get at it this way:

The heart of Nippon's strength, in all categories, lies in the homeland—Japan proper. There are her arsenals, her manpower, her financial resources—in short, those sinews which make her the power she is. Now all this is contained within an area of 148,756 square miles. And the borders aren't protected by other territories, but only by the sea.

So the strength of this primitive Samson is localised. We don't have to overrun a territory the size of say Australia—a mighty task for any nation—to do our stint. We don't have to reconquer all the Japanese conquests as a preliminary. Our primary task is to cut Samson's locks, whereupon his big body will lose its power.

Therefore I believe that when the major Allied offensive against the Japanese gets under way, it will strike primarily at the heart of the Empire—Japan proper — rather than start at the circumference with the idea of reclaiming the hodge-podge of Nipponese conquests piece-meal in order to reach the homeland.

The main Allied objective is, or so I assume, to fight in Japan proper. We shall approach this operation by first bombing hell out of that neatly arranged concentration of resources. We shall pulverise the island's industries and transportation system and what not, until finally we are ready to put an army ashore for the kill.

Once Japan proper is conquered, the rest of the ill-gotten empire will succumb. That doesn't mean there won't be much fighting outside Japan. There will be, and it's going on right now. But our main task will be done when we have just about wiped the Mikado's kingdom off the map.
